MacLennan and Wilson, driving a Ford Anglia, completed the 1,322-mile course between Toronto and North Bay with only one penalty point in two days of driving. Only 40 of 112 cars entered finished the course.

Second place went to Bill Silvera of Toronto and driver Martin Chenhall of Oshawa in a Corvair. They had seven penalty points.

Cy Wylde of Newmarket, Ont., and John Clark of Toronto, driving a Mustang, also had seven penalty points but were placed third by rally officials.

Silvera and Chenhall were penalized at fewer checkpoints along the rally route.

Fourth place went to John D. Smith of Kingston and navigator Dave Phippen of Collins Bay, Ont., in a Cortina. They had eight penalty points.

Maurice Carter of Hamilton and Don Hambly of Sudbury navigated their Chevy II to fifth place with 18 penalty points.

U.S. Astronaut To 'Walk' Twice Around World

Heavy Attack On CPR

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Today is the 85th anniversary of a federal agreement that gave the Canadian Pacific Railway a fortune in cash and the land to build and run an efficient railway.

But the eve of the big day wasn't an occasion for good will or merry-making in the Commons.

Members of Parliament Monday accused the privately-owned company of trying to run [illegible] with the assets and leave [illegible] government with the bare tracks.

"The CPR was given the goose that laid the golden egg," said Clifford Smallwood (PC—Battle River-Camrose).

"They now have the golden egg and they want to give the government back the goose."

Mr. Smallwood and other MPs said the CPR is deliberately providing shoddy rail service in hopes of a government take-over.

"I am a long way from being a socialist," said Mr. Smallwood, a western farmer, "but if that is the game the CPR intends to play, then the time has come for the government not only to take over the railroad, but the operations of all its enterprise.

"If we are going to be given

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks

"And how are you enjoying the army?"

By JIM STROTHMAN

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) A spectacular flight plan has been drawn up for the next Gemini space adventure calling for a "walk in space" of nearly three hours—twice around the world.

During his lengthy stroll, Gemini 8 astronaut David R. Scott will cling to the rear of the two-man capsule, looking like a man who almost missed his street car, while Command Pilot Neil A. Armstrong fires manoeuvring rockets on the spacecraft to uncouple and couple with another satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration now is in the process of deciding whether the unmanned target will be an Agena rocket or a substitute satellite, called an alternate target docking adapter.

The space agency wanted to go with the Agena, but an Agena engine failed in a test chamber last Saturday and muddled plans. Officials would prefer to use the Agena because it has a motor to manoeuvre it around, which the ATDA does not.

LAUNCH AT CAPE

Whichever target is used, it will be launched by an Atlas rocket from a pad 6,000 feet away from Gemini launching site at Cape Kennedy. If it achieves a proper orbit, Maj. Scott and Armstrong, a civilian, will rocket into space about one hour and 40 minutes later.

The launch is expected to occur one month from today, March 15.

Scott and Armstrong plan to catch up with their target satellite on the fifth or sixth orbit, then slowly push the nose of Gemini 8 into a "docking collar" on the target satellite, firmly coupling the capsule to it.

On the morning of the second day, Scott is scheduled to get out of the capsule and manoeuvre his way around to the rear. There, he will put on a special backpack with life - supporting oxygen bottles and other equipment inside.

After some manoeuvring with a hand-held jet gun, the space-walking astronaut will cling to hand and foot grips on the rear of the spacecraft, sources said, while Command Pilot Armstrong fires small rockets on the spacecraft to back Gemini 8 away from its target satellite.

West European Reds Protest Jailing of Two Soviet Writers

LONDON (AP)—West European Communists joined literary leaders today in protesting the prison sentences given two Soviet writers in Moscow.

The writers, Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel, were sentenced Monday to seven and five years at hard labor respectively for publishing books abroad that depicted Soviet life in an unfavorable light. Their four-day trial was closed to the western press, and only brief accounts of the testimony were published by Soviet news organs.

"The handling of this affair has done a great disservice to the Soviet Union than have the words of Sinyavsky and Daniel," said John Gollan, secretary-general of the British Communist party.

"The court has found the accused guilty, but the full evidence for the prosecution and defence which led the court to this conclusion has not been made public."

L'Unita, published by Italy's large Communist party, said the prison terms seemed "without doubt very severe."

Copenhagen's Land og Folk (country and people), the newspaper of the Danish Communist party, said nothing in the present situation of the Soviet Union warranted such harsh sentences. It called them "incomprehensible."

"The Soviet Union is not at war," the paper said. "There is no emergency. The internal resources and popular pre-conditions for the building up of communism are enormous.

Valery Tarsis, a Soviet writer who published anti-Soviet works abroad but was allowed to travel to London last week to lecture, said the sentences were "an attempt on the part of the Soviet authorities to return to the Stalinist methods of arbitrariness."

Algoma Steel Head Charged With Murder

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A preliminary hearing on a charge of capital murder was set for Feb. 18 in the case of W. Dalton Barber, 55-year-old assistant to the vice-president of operations of Algoma Steel Corp. here, when he appeared in court Monday.

He was taken back to district jail where he was lodged Saturday night after being arrested and charged in the death early in December of his wife, Marjorie.

A post-mortem at the time of her death showed it was caused by carbon-monoxide poisoning. Authorities now are considering whether to exhume her body. Crown Attorney Richard Sheehy said Monday there was no reason to examine the body extensively at the autopsy.

CLC Asks Voice In Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress urged the cabinet today to amend federal labor laws and give unions a bargaining role in industry's move towards automation.

The 1,250,000 - member congress warned of growing labor unrest over the increased introduction of job - cutting work methods "under the guise of exclusive so-called management rights."

"It is too much to expect that trade unions will stand by idly while employers make changes which arbitrarily deprive workers of their jobs or drastically alter their working conditions," the Congress said.

The CLC's 16,000-word annual brief urged the government to adopt the recommendations made two months ago by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman of Winnipeg in his inquiry report on CNR crew run-throughs.

The Freedman report said the introduction of new technology should be made a matter for negotiation between labor and management.

BACKS FREEDMAN

It also endorsed the Freedman views that in cases of technological change there should be adequate severance pay, assistance for re-located workers and

Modern Church Is Confused, On Defensive Against Critics

TORONTO (CP)—The modern church is confused and on the defensive, says Rev. Ray Hord, secretary of the United Church of Canada's board of evangelism and social service.

Mr. Hord told the board's annual meeting today that the church is confused by the sociological changes occurring in Canada, the proponents of the "God-is-dead" theology, and by the "new morality."

Critics have placed the church on the defensive with assertions that it is outdated, hypocritical and irrelevant, he said. On a worldwide scale the church is dwindling compared with the [illegible]ing population.

[illegible] 1900 Christians represented 36 per cent of the world's population of 571,000,000," Mr. Hord said. "In 1964 they only represented 29 per cent even though their numbers had increased to 925,000,000. By the year 2000, it is estimated the Christians will only be 20 per cent of the world's population."

Of his opinion that the church is confused, the Toronto-based secretary noted that Canada is being transformed into a pluralistic, urbanized, industrialized society.

"No longer is the parish minister equipped to handle the complex problems which confront him," he said. "The parish church, which ministers to man's personal and family needs, must be supplemented by other forms of congregation centring around man's vocational, political, educational and leisure needs and activities."

Proponents of the "new theology" who claim the Christian God of the past is dead "hopefully . . . may be one of God's instruments in developing a new theology and bringing about a new reformation within his church," Mr. Hord said.

While disagreeing that God is dead, Mr. Hord said radical theologians are speaking for "modern, scientific, secular man who has taken this world into his own hands and wants to be free to run it." They are challenging an authoritarian religion which claims to speak for a transcendant God exalted above the world.

"No longer can theologians develop their systems in library or ivory tower but, through prophetic involvement in the social and political activities of our time, will discover God incarnate, struggling, suffering to free and reconcile His people," he said.

Many people equate the new morality with licence, lack of standards and the "anything goes" philosophy. However, properly understood, he said, it emphasizes man's freedom and growth in love.

"The proponents of the new morality are right in emphasizing that the Christian ethic is one of love," Mr. Hord said. "They have not warned us, however, that contemporary man is as unwilling to accept the demands and disciplines of love as he is the old commandments. Wandering aimlessly between the old and the new, many in the church and in society are understandably confused."

OTTAWA (CP) — A big blue book mapping out preliminary federal government plans to spend some $9,318,224,878 in fiscal 1966-67 was placed before the Commons Monday.

Revenue Minister Benson's planned spending program for the year that starts next April 1 was a hefty 9½ per cent higher than that tabled by former finance minister Walter Gordon for the current fiscal year.

Announcement of the main estimates gives an inkling of the kind of revenue Finance Minister Sharp must think of collecting to meet the outlay. Mr. Sharp's tax program will be in his budget, expected late next month or early April.

The big 1966-67 total breaks down into three main pieces — $1,035,000,000 in expenditures from the old age security fund, $332,765,440 for loans, investments and advances, and $7,950,459,478 for spending by the various government departments.

Expenditure from the old age security fund, up from $905,000,000 for the current year, reflects the lowering of the qualifying age to 69 from 70 for the $75-a-month universal old age pension. The age drops another year to 68 next Jan. 1. Special sales, income and corporation taxes go into the fund.

The loans and investments figure is up from $202,144,800. These funds go to such Crown corporations as Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and Expo 67 and the government expects repayment in future years.

Thus these two categories are not regarded as budgetary expenses in the same way as that money allocated for the departments.

But the full figure given indicates the scale of spending for which Mr. Sharp must budget.

Mr. Benson, in tabling the estimates, said the Commons should be careful in drawing comparisions between the new year and the current one. He said the new figures are based

Medicare Debate Gets Hot

TORONTO (CP)—Debate on the third reading of proposed amendments to the Medical Services Insurance Act began in the legislature Monday amid an uproar sparked by an accusation that Health Minister Matthew Dymond was misinforming the house.

In other business the house:

—Listened to an explanation by Attorney - General Arthur Wishart of remarks he made in Saint John, N.B., at the weekend;

—Heard a New Democratic Party charge that the Bell Telephone Co. receives preferential treatment;

—Was told the government is reviewing laws governing court injunctions in the interests of one side in a labor dispute.

NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald started a furore when he alleged that government medical care legislation is designed to meet the interests of insurance companies.

Dry. Dymond denied this saying: "I have not consulted the insurance companies."

MAKES CHARGE

Mr. MacDonald then alleged the health minister was misinforming the house as far as government consultation with insurance companies was concerned.

Mr. MacDonald agreed to accept Dr. Dymond's statement but promised the legislature would see within the next week a debate on medical insurance "the like of which has never been seen before in this house."

RAF to Take Over From Navy Defending Flag East of Suez

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet rounds out a sweeping defence review today with political commentators taking it as certain that Britain will buy 50 to 60 F-111 swing-wing bombers from the United States.

This decision, if confirmed, means the Royal Navy has lost its fight for one or more new aircraft carriers. Britain's main defence east of Suez in the 1970s will be provided by the RAF operating from island bases.

Other consequent decisions, well-informed defence writers say, include a commitment to phase out the big base at Aden by 1968 and transfer some of its forces to the Arabian Gulf island of Bahrein.

Defence Minister Denis Healey takes off for Washington Wednesday, taking with him the decisions of three cabinet meetings called during the last two days.

This announced purpose is to attend NATO talks on nuclear strategy. Alongside these talks, he is expected to complete terms for the F-111 purchase, which is likely to run to more than £150,000,000 ($450,000,000).

The Times says the United States already has agreed on a payments system that would avoid pressure on Britain's scanty reserves of gold and dollars.

Whitehall sources discountered recent talk of wholesale resignations from the admiralty. Some commentators suggested favorable terms for the F-111 purchase would allow the Royal Navy to be placated by extending the operational careers of three carriers, the Ark Royal, Eagle and Hermes.

Council Names G. B. Hyde As City Purchasing Agent

The appointment of ex-Mayor Gerald B. Hyde as city purchasing agent and personnel officer, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of A. L. Jobey, was formally approved yesterday by city council.

The appointment did not go without opposition, however, although a rumored organized public protest did not materialize.

City resident Robert Whiten, appearing as a one-man delegation opposing the appointment, said that naming Mr. Hyde to the city hall post would not be in the best interests of the city as a whole, nor in his opinion was Mr. Hyde the best applicant among the 15 persons who had applied for the position.

When the matter came up for formal decision by council, Mayor J. R. Ellis said the appointment had been discussed two weeks ago in caucus with Mr. Hyde being the favored applicant as result of a secret vote.

INTEGRITY NOT DOUBTED

Alderman Douglas Boyle said the matter was of some delicacy.

He said he was a personal friend of Mr. Hyde, but he had objected because it would be a controversial appointment. He did not doubt Mr. Hyde's qualifications or integrity.

To a question from Ald. Dr. J. Russell Scott, city manager J. R. Reynolds said that 12 to 15 applicants had been received for the position, all but two of them from the city. All applicants had been interviewed.

Opposing the appointment were Aldermen Dr. Russell Scott, Doug. Boyle, Kenneth Soden and Arthur Keegan.

After the meeting Mr. Whiten told reporters that he was satisfied with council action.

"The vote was open and there was nothing secret about it," he said.

Council Concurs In Resolution On Subsidies

Belleville city council would like to see a more equitable system of subsidies and roads and highway expenditures for cities in the province of Ontario.

Yesterday council concurred in a city of Brantford resolution pointing out that provincial contributions toward municipal road and highway expenditures is greater for towns, villages and townships than for cities.

At the same time the cost of providing and maintaining roads and connecting links to provincial highways is greater in cities due to traffic density.

Also it is claimed numerous areas designated as townships are in fact urbanized centres greater in area, industrialization and population than many cities, creating an imbalance of distribution of road grants.

MANY WORK ON FARM

Agriculture, with 640,786 in the labor force, is the third largest employer in Canada, behind manufacturing and retail trade.

Will Install Vapor Lamps in Subdivision

Residents of West Park Village are to have 250 watt mercury vapor lamps installed in their sub-division.

This type of lighting was approved by city council yesterday with the estimated cost of the installation being $9,325.

The units to be installed were chosen over 75 watt lamps, which would cost only slightly less per year but which would provide less than half the illumination.

MANY HELD OFFICE

Bolivia had 50 presidents between 1825 and 1950.

Kiwanis Club to Present Colorful Motion Picture

"The Grand Tetons", an exciting and spectacular color motion picture will be presented by Julian Gromer of Grand Rapids, Michigan, when the Kiwanis Club of Belleville presents its next travelogue series this coming Thursday evening in B.C.I. auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Mr. Gromer is a world traveller, adventurer and one of America's skilled professional photographers. The action - packed film is personally narrated and enhanced with hi-fidelity musical background and sound effects, plus gay humor that is enjoyed by all ages.

The majestic Grand Teton Mountains rise abruptly, without foothills, from the valley of the Snake River in northwestern Wyoming, a few miles south of Yellowstone National Park. The sparkling blue lakes at the base of the majestic mountains reflect the brilliant beauty of the rugged peaks that are capped eternally in robes of white.

A visit to the Tetons would never be complete without going to the memorable Chapel of the Transfiguration. On Sunday morning they come from far and near to worship in the rustic church, where through the altar window is an inspirational view of the magnificent mountains. All of this beauty, adventure and action is climaxed with an inspirational poem.

Acting as the good neighbor in assisting the city of Oswego dig out from under a record 102 inch snowfall two weeks ago, cost the city $353, plus the rental of a highway float to transport snow removal equipment to the American city.

This was the figure quoted at city council yesterday by Mayor J. R. Ellis after the question of the cost was raised by Ald. Dr. J. Russell Scott.

After polling aldermen to get their approval, Mayor J. R. Ellis on February 3rd sent three pieces of snow removal equipment and four men to Oswego where they worked for two days.

Alderman Scott and Ald. Arthur Keegan claimed they had not been polled before the equipment was sent on its way but the mayor assured a majority of councillors had been contacted.

One piece of equipment sent by the city was owned by the H. J. McFarland Company which had made no charge for its use, the mayor said.

Public Speaking Contest Here

This evening, at Albert College, representatives of seven district secondary schools, will compete in the Zone Three finals of the Ontario public speaking contest, sponsored by the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association and the Hydro - Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

In these Hastings County finals, with divisions for prepared and impromptu speeches, there will be entries from Albert College, the three Belleville secondary schools, Quinte, Moira and BCI, Nicholson Catholic College here, North Hastings High School of Bancroft and the Stirling - Rawdon District High School.

Judges will be H. Fitzgerald, Q.C. and T. J. Lalley, all of this city. The public is invited to attend.

Hours of Sale for Gasoline In City to Remain the Same

Hours of sale for gasoline in Belleville are to remain the same — from 7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. with a given number of stations opening evenings and on Sundays.

This was the decision of city council yesterday after two delegations of service station operators appeared before city fathers, one seeking repeal of the present by-law and the other asking for it to remain as is.

"It's all very confusing," Mayor J. R. Ellis after council was informed that some of the operators had actually signed both petitions.

Mr. A. Roper, acting as spokesman for the deputation wanting to keep the present by-law enforced, said that 31 of 47 operators had signed the petition.

He said if the hours of sale for gasoline were extended labor costs would increase and the public would suffer through higher gasoline costs.

Two weeks ago Mr. H. J. Kennedy heading a delegation asking repeal of the present by-law said 27 of the 47 operators had signed the petition.

Yesterday Mr. Kennedy said he had nothing to add but could not see why a by-law should protect those operators not wishing to stay open at the expense of those who did.

The funeral of James C. Sullivan was held Monday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. A. L. Sutherland. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. ALEX DENISON

NAPANEE — The funeral service for Mrs. Alex Denison, who died in Toronto at the age of 97 was held there, but the committal service was held in Wartman's Funeral Home in Napanee last Thursday. Although she had left this area many years ago, a surprising number of those who remembered her good life, called to pay their respects and to attend the service. Interment will be in the spring.

Baptized Sarah Jane Edgar, she was always known as Jenny, and in later life, she was "Aunt Jenny" to all who knew her. She was born in Croydon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edgar.

She attended the Newburgh Academy, a famous school in that day and at the age of 16 was teaching the school in Selby. Her sister Katherine (Kate) taught there, also. Following her marriage to Alex Denison, a prominent farmer, she continued to live near Selby until she and her husband purchased a grocery business in Napanee on the Market Square. The business was sold to the Thompson brothers over 45 years ago, and not long afterwards, Mr. and Mrs. Denison moved to Toronto.

After the death of her husband in 1935, Mrs. Denison and her sister, Kate, Mrs. Charles Calnan, made their home together, and Mrs. Denison continued to keep up the home until age and infirmity forced her to close it. She spent some years in the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, and then in a nursing home in Scarborough, where she died.

Mrs. Calnan lived for several years in Cannifton.

Over the years Mrs. Denison frequently visited friends and relatives in this area and all pay tribute to her talent, her cheerfulness, her generosity, and her utter goodness. They remember her wit and her unfailing sense of humor, but no one remembers ever having heard her utter a complaint. They do remember that the giant trees now standing in the school yard in Selby were planted under the direction of Mrs. Denison and her sister, Mrs. Calnan.

Older people are full of memories of the work she did in the Selby Methodist Church. She was active in every organization, was the president of the Women's Missionary Society, and fostered the work of the Epworth League, the forerunner of the young peoples' organizations of today.

In Toronto she continued her good work, and was especially active in welfare work, often in a private capacity.

She is survived by one son, Harold, of Toronto, but no grandchildren. She has several surviving nieces and nephews, and grand-nieces and nephews. Harry Edgar of Robinson Street is a cousin. She was the last surviving member of a large family. But her husband's numerous relatives mourn her as though she were their own. As one lady said "It was always a red-letter day in our house, when Aunt Jen came to visit."

Tenders May Be Called Early in March

Tenders for the development of Belleville's Centennial Park project on Zwick's Island are expected to be called early in March city council was informed yesterday.

Council was told that drawings for the development would be completed this month and would be ready for tender call in March. Estimated cost of the park development project is just over $100,000, part of which would be covered by government centennial grants.

Parking Authority Members Refused Increase in Pay

The request was for allowance of the Authority chairman to be increased from $400 to $600 per year and for members from $300 to $400.

The feeling of council was that granting of the asked for increase in Parking Authority allowances would open the door for other such requests from other boards.

aid to communities whose economies are disrupted.

On other labor matters, the Congress complained of the problems that have occurred in applying the new labor code's 40-hour work week. The labor code, which went into effect last July 1, had not provided adequately for the adjustments needed to fit the 40-hour week to certain industries, particularly railroading.

It praised the decision to create a department of manpower but said this is only a beginning of the task of developing a positive manpower program.

The CLC renewed its criticism of the U.S.-Canada auto agreement, arguing that it should have provided for lower car prices. The program to aid workers displaced by the agreement had been largely ineffective because of the refusal of employers to accept their share in it.

CRITICIZES CPP

Integration of the Canada Pension Plan with other plans was sharply criticized. The government had led the way in this regard when it merged the national plan with its civil service superannuation fund.

The brief also complained about the reduction of railway services, particularly the CPR's withdrawal from passenger lines. It asked for cabinet action to reserve this trend.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.

Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within the heart concealed.

Capital Punishment Not Proven Deterrent R. Temple Tells CWL

Capital punishment by the state brutalizes the individual hence it is meted out secretly behind prison walls, a leading abolitionist charged last night.

Neither has it been proven the deterrent its supporters claim, Robert Temple, Belleville barrister told a meeting sponsored by the Catholic Women's League at Columbus Hall.

Mr. Temple during nearly three years as M.P. for South Hastings was a leading spokesman in the House of Commons on all matters relating to capital punishment.

He introduced two private bills on the issue — one calling for replacement of capital punishment by mandatory life imprisonment.

Last night's meeting drew close to 100, including students, and Mr. Temple's speech was followed by a lengthy question and answer period.

"If hanging is acceptable in our society why then is it carried out so furtively?" Mr. Temple queried.

"Because we are ashamed of it — it brutalizes the individual since he is involved in mankind and any man's death diminishes the individual."

"Is it a deterrent — or a vengeance?"

"The issue was an emotional one," said Mr. Temple, quoting from various letters he had received while leading the abolition movement in the Commons.

STATISTICS NOT PROVED

However, Mr. Temple said statistics did not prove the social benefit of capital punishment.

Surveys by geographic cultural groupings in the United States recently contrasted areas where abolition was in effect with those where capital punishment was retained.

The results showed no notable increase or decrease in crime in any of the areas.

"If in general, the threat of punishment is conceded to have a deterrent effect, then the severer the punishment the greater the deterrent effect. Logically, then, the death penalty should have the greatest deterrent effect of all".

However, a classic rebuttal of this theory dates back to the reign of Henry VIII where hanging was widely introduced to reduce crime. Some 50,000 individual hangings had no great effect on lawlessness. At the beginning of the 19th century some 200 capital offences were still on the statute books.

"The death penalty exerts a disruptive influence on the broad administration of justice," summed up Mr. Temple. "It delays the empanelling of juries, causes jurors to seek to disqualify themselves, draws out the length of the trial, beclouds the issue with emotion and possibly leads to the acquittal of guilty persons.

"Responsible persons who have studied the matter deeply — and from a neutral starting point — have come to the conclusion that the better view is against capital punishment."

Accountants Needed Says Assoc. Head

"The accountant has intimate knowledge of how all actions in the business end up as profit or loss, a knowledge which no one else in that business has. But he must be able to match this and his knowledge of evaluation techniques with the mechanics of the computer to give management what it needs at a cost it can afford to pay." Speaking to last night's meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants, H. A. Pakrul, the Ontario SICA president, spoke on the history of accounting and of the "drastic changes" that the contemporary accountant is being faced with.

Mr. Pakrul, vice-president of the Special Products Division, Rio Algoma Mines Ltd., told those present for the dinner-meeting at the Hotel Quinte that Canadian SICA membership has expanded to more than 14,000, of which about 10,000 are students. "The emphasis of SICA has always been on education," he said. "Our founding fathers recognized that in our particular area of accounting, as in perhaps no other, there would be continued rapid change to keep up with the requirements of a continually changing and increasingly competitive industry. Therefore the society has continuously revised its curriculum to keep abreast of the knowledge and techniques required not just for the present, but also for the future."

"At one time," said Mr. Pakrul, "our scope appeared to be limited primarily to manufacturing. However, it is becoming increasingly apparent that our accounting branch has much to offer in many fields of government, commerce and industry. There is currently a need for more than 100 RIA graduates in Canadian government service."

The chairman of the meeting was Mrs. Marg Bosiak, RIA, of Elaine Footwear, Stirling who called on Mr. Ken Wormald, B. Com., C.A. of Mead Johnson of Canada, Ltd. to introduce Mr. Pakrul. Mr. Art Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, thanked the speaker on behalf of the members present.

LABOR COUNCIL PRESIDENT George Dainard (right) welcomes two guests to the Belleville and District Labor Council meeting last night at Club Canara. From left, Donald Burshaw, district representative of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union, Henry Nokes, Canadian Labor Congress representative, and Mr. Dainard. Both speakers stressed the need for union people to get together and play an active role in community life.

Labor Council Advised To Take More Active Role in Civic Affairs

The Belleville and District Labor Council was advised by two labor experts last night to take a more active role in civic affairs.

Henry Nokes of the Canadian Labor Congress, and Donald Burshaw, district representative of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers, addressed a large audience at the regular monthly meeting of the B.D.L.C. at Club Canara.

Mr. Burshaw, who lives in Belleville and was original president of the B.D.L.C. said, "This Council is the civic government of labor in this community.

"A lot of our local unions have the idea that their interests should be segregated from other locals. They get wrapped up in their own problems and lose sight of the rest of the world. No union can build a wall around itself and survive.

"With technological change and automation in full stride, we must be concerned with what goes on around us. When something happens to one of our brother unions, it may just be around the corner from us.

"The citizens of Belleville have looked down their long noses at labor for a long time. They never knew we were around until they needed us.

"We need the support of all organized labor in this area. We need them to come to our council meetings; to put pressure on city council; to run our men for city council so our voice can be heard, because up until now we have just been a voice in the wilderness.

"I want to see labor having its rightful place in this community.

SHOULD ATTEND COUNCIL

"This labor council should have one or two delegates at every city council meeting to keep in touch with what is happening in the city.

"When you organize a union in a shop, you don't get management to recognize your union overnight. You have to keep pecking away and pecking away gaining a little at a time, until finally, management respects your opinion.

"The same thing holds true in civic affairs. Unfortunately, we have not reached the stage where the city fathers have respected us as having any voice in the community.

"Until we do get a voice; until we become a threat, then our opinions will not be respected.

"We've got to put our own house in order and get the union people, all union people, working in this community. Until that time, we won't have a voice.

"I have some pet projects I would like to see labor supporting in Belleville," Mr. Burshaw said. "This proposed new sports centre seems to be quite a project. Organized labor should get in there and do something about it. After all, it's our children who will benefit.

"Also, we should have a representative on the Industrial Commission of this city. We are affected by the lack of industry here. We want our children to be able to work here and live here.

"I think we should work for a university for Belleville. The average working man can't afford to send his children out of town to university.

"I'd also like to recommend that labor council meetings be in the nature of a supper meeting, with guest speakers.

"If we get together and cement our relationships and work together, then we will make our community realize we're not only interested in our own selfish interests, but we're interested in our community; in the educationals aspects of it, the industrial aspects, the social aspects and so on.

"Then we will have a voice to be reckoned with."

Mr. Nokes outlined the functions of the labor council in the community.

"This council for years was carried by a few people," he said. "We are the mouthpiece of organized labor and in order to have a voice, the labor council must express its opinion of all organized labor in the community.

"The aim of this labor council is to represent and provide service to local unions. We should provide services such as a continual flow of information, assistance in strikes, and representation on all community service projects, local government boards and commissions and elected councils.

"The labor council must organize. Every unorganized worker is a threat to the job of the organized worker.

"Labor councils are usually financed by a per capita tax of locals. The average tax is five cents per member per local per month.

"Locals are entitled to representation on council according to members. They can have three members on council for any number up to the first 100 in their local and an additional member for each 100 there after.

HAVE RESPONSIBILITY

"Each local is entitled to a minimum of three representatives on this council and should have that representation here.

"Everybody in this room as a member of a union has a responsibility to that union and should be represented at the labor council. If you don't think the labor council is doing a job, then you have a responsibility to make sure it does.

"If labor people in the community see the labor council is doing something, then they themselves will be come interested in it," Mr. Nokes said.

"The labor council though can't become interested in things in which they don't participate.

"Labor people are often like the dog sitting on a bee — he'll sit and howl like h - - -, but he'll still get stung.

"We are critical people. That is our function. But if we are going to criticize, then we must participate and make an effort to make our community a better place in which to live.

HAVE OBLIGATION

"You have people now at the head of your labor council who want to do something to make this council a moving thing in this community. As union people, and as members of this community, you have an obligation to help them."

George Dainard, president of the B.D.L.C., said, "We are fortunate for some of the avenues open to us in this community to make our lives better.

"We can't say much about the running of our city unless we become active in the city ourselves. This is the most important part of the labor council's program. We must participate, and to do this, we need people.

"We must co-operate in making this city a better place in which to live."

In other business at the meeting, a motion was passed that organized labor will take "its rightful place in the centennial celebrations of this city."

Hydro Safety Film Shown To Rotarians

Ever heard of anyone being electrocuted in their bath? Well it has happened — and usually carelessness lies behind such tragedies.

As, for example, when a radio sitting on the edge of the bath is knocked into the water by a woman reaching for a towel on the rack.

Then there are the folk who use a knife to pry out bread from a balky toaster. They may get away with it, but this can also result in electric shock.

W. J. (Bill) Killough, Hydro's Eastern Region public relations officer based in Belleville showed the film in the course of an address to Rotarians yesterday.

His talk was a sequel to National Electrical Week, celebrated last week in both Canada and the United States. The observance coincided with the birth date of Thomas Edison, inventor of the incandescent light and other electrical devices.

And add to these, he said, the manufacturers who provide the public with hundreds of appliances.

Noting the wide use of electricity in Canada and the U.S., as well as western Europe, Mr. Killough said two million kilowatts of new generating capacity was produced in Canada last year.

"In the decade ending 1975 we can expect generating capacity in Canada will rise to more than 50 million kilowatts, or nearly double the capacity installed across Canada today."

Mr. Killough spoke of the various uses of electricity, from cleaning teeth to assisting surgeons to perform brain operations. But he also spoke of its dangers, as outlined in the film, and which include the overloading of undersized wiring with high element requirements.

"There is always the chap who still thinks that placing a penny behing the fuse will make it hold. There is, and always will be, the person who treats this invisible energy with contempt. Like any form of energy — like an automobile — electricity demands respect, and for those who choose not to offer respect, the consequences are often more than shocking."

Mr. Killough said that Hydro and its partners, the municipal systems throughout the province, have conducted a tireless campaign — particularly at school-age level — to educate customers through their children on the proper use of electricity.

Rotary President Ernest Burnham presided.

Ottawa at A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

MONDAY, Feb. 14, 1966

The government tabled 1966-67 spending estimates in the Commons totalling $9,318,224,878, up some 9½ per cent.

Maritime Union trustees submitted their annual report, telling of efforts to promote a single union in the maritime field.

The Commons continued debate on transport department estimates for 1965-66.

Opposition MPs again attacked the railways for not moving grain quickly enough to meet heavy shipping schedules.

They also criticized the CPR for trimming passenger services.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said car and ship loadings of grain have improved.

Other MPs concentrated on local transport problems ranging from airports to ferry services.

on Quebec turning down some federal grants under shared-cost programs and choosing wider taxation powers instead.

The figure for the initial estimates tabled for 1965-66 was $8,506,872,232. This has since climbed to $9,079,438,540 with supplementary estimates tacked on as the year progressed.

EXPECT INCREASE

Legislation already on the books or scheduled to go before this session of Parliament includes programs that will involve more spending.

For instance, there is no provision in the newest blue book for the Canada Pension Plan Fund. The government has been collecting payroll deductions since Jan. 1 but first benefits will not be paid until next January.

The Canada Assistance Plan and a health resources fund, both outlining increased federal spending, were proposed in the speech from the throne opening this session. There was no provision for these plans either.

Mr. Benson outlined some spending under existing programs. He said the rate of growth here would be slower than usual. The items included:

—$1,185,488,900 for interest and other charges on the public debt, up $84,432,500.

—$495,047,100 in payments to provincial governments under various federal - provincial agreements, an increase of $136,816,700.

—$162,764,273 for federal contributions to civil services and and armed forces pension accounts, up $25,532,542.

ADMIN COSTS UP

The minister said administration and operating costs in the new year will climb to $3,009,300,000, up from $2,780,500,000. Government investment in building works and equipment will be $740,600,000, up from $647,200,000.

Preliminary estimates for several departments showed a decrease from the current year. There were evident reductions in agriculture, labor, health and transport.

But for most of these departments, supplementary estimates are expected later in the year for such programs as farm aid, winter works and transport subsidies.

A price tag of $1,610,204,100 has been put on all aspects of defence spending for the new year. The figure originally submitted for 1965 - 66 was $1,583,613,800. This grew by about $10,000,000 with supplementary spending.

As proposed in the estimates, the taxpayers' dollar would be split this way: 26 cents for health and welfare payments; 18 cents for defence; 13 cents for debt charges; five cents for subsidies and other payments to the provinces: and 38 cents for all other federal services.

Hockey Players Forbidden on School Rinks

TRENTON — At a meeting of the Trenton Board of Education last night, board member Mrs. Harry Hutchison told the board that school rinks were being monopolized by older youths playing hockey. Mrs. Hutchison said the younger children, for whom the rinks were made, were being "shooed" off the rink by the hockey players.

At the College Street School rink, recently, a six-year-old girl was struck in the eye by a hockey puck, breaking her glasses. The players ignored her plight and a married couple, reported to be parents, were said to have also walked away, leaving the sister of the injured child to notify her parents.

A sign has now been posted at this rink, forbidding hockey. A board committee will consult with Police Chief R. J. Rutherford regarding action at other rinks in the town.

ASKED TO ENTER

The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has set up a system of co-relating various events held by local organizations with a view to forestalling overlapping of dates for tag days, blitz nights, annual campaigns and other fund-raising drives.

Chamber manager, Nostrand Sprague has a "date" book in the Front Street office, and heads of campaigns are invited to dial him at 392-7635 to check the proposed date of their drives before making final arrangements.

Want Trustees To Register Strong Protest

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education has asked the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association to register a strong protest with the Ontario Department of Education regarding the limited amount of notice the local board was given of a CBC television series on the New Mathematics.

Members of the board said last night that it was a known fact the department had been planning for some time to institute educational programs. Yet the Trenton board was only notified of the impending commencement of the New Maths series five days before the programs started. Literature for the use of teachers, arrived later than that.

Meanwhile, TV sets have been installed at Prince Charles and Marmora Street Senior School and the students from Grades 7 and 8 are reported to be attending the weekly TV lectures. Board member Jack Hadley said the local students might have a hard time keeping up with the course, as it was moving fast.

$400 Damage As Car Flips Onto Its Roof

TRENTON — Seventy-six-year old John Freeman of Smithfield escaped with superficial bruises to his forehead yesterday afternoon when his car went out of control on Highway 30, north of Brighton, on slippery pavement and flipped over onto its roof. Damage was estimated by Brighton OPP at $400.

GRANT USE OF HALL

The Trenton Business and Professional Club will sponsor a Careers' Night in the high school cafeteria on Monday April 18, at which high school girls will receive expert guidance in the choice of a career. Hours are 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The Trenton Board of Education last night gave permission for the club to use the cafeteria for the purpose.

TO ATTEND MEET

Public school inspector, E. T. Morris will attend an informal conference of public school and separate school teachers at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville on Thursday. Subjects to be discussed are legislative grants, teachers' salaries, and the Canada Pension Plan.

Student Council Needs Funds

TRENTON — High School Principal, John Garrett, last night asked the members of the Trenton Board of Education to come to the rescue of the school's student council, which has been attempting to pay bus fares for students taking part in out-of-town sporting events.

By selling chocolate bars door to door; sponsoring dances, play nights and musical comedies the council has in the past managed to pay for buses for rugby teams, volley ball teams, and to pay for the publishing of the high school year book, "The Spotlight."

Mr. Garrett said sales of the candy bars had fallen off from between $1,600 and $1,700 three years ago to $700 or $800. The Spotlight costs around $2,300 to publish and sales of the book realize around $1,100.

Mr. Garrett said Trenton was the only school he knew of where the student council undertook to pay for athletics' bus fares. This year, wrestling and gymnastics teams have been added to the list.

The board had been donating $500 towards bus fares, but even at that, the principal said, the council had been facing a deficit of $1,000 for two years. This was "taken up" by the surplus the council managed to acquire in the first few years of good candy sales, but things had come to an impasse, Mr. Garrett said, and the council needed some assistance. He said there would be a 70 per cent grant available to the board on contributions.

Mr. Garrett was asked to present the facts and figures and the finance committee will consider an additional grant at budget time.

Meanwhile, the board voted to give $45 towards an educational trip to the University of Waterloo on Saturday. Twenty three students and three teachers plan to attend the mathematics seminar, and will each pay $5 towards their own epenses.

Chinese Ambitions

It is easy for critics of United States policy in Viet Nam to say the Americans have no right to be there. Yet the obvious alternative to what these people regard as American "imperialism" is Chinese imperialism.

If the communist Viet Cong rebels, with the aid of North Viet Nam, were to triumph in the conflict now raging, it would be only a matter of time before China extended its influence into all Southeast Asia.

China's annexation of Tibet some years ago was a foretaste of Chinese ambitions and designs which since then have been contained only by the American presence in Asia and by the threat of U.S. nuclear might.

On every hand, however, we hear that the Chinese are preparing for and expect a war with the United States. The Chinese people themselves are being conditioned for such an eventuality. From an early age, under Peking's violent brand of communism, the populace is taught to harbor a strong hate for the so-called imperialists. And that is something which is alien to the thinking of Americans, as much as it is to Canadians and British and others who share western ideals of freedom.

The Americans do not want to fight China. Yet everything points to a desire on the part of China to fight the Americans.

Perhaps, the most valid support for this argument is afforded by the views of Morris Wills of Fort Ann, N.Y., one of 21 American GI's who was converted to communism while a prisoner of war in Korea.

Wills, who recently returned to the States with his Chinese wife, found that life in China crushed his enthusiasm for communism. In an article in Look magazine, he has this to say: "I was moving steadily toward the conviction I now have that there are only two courses open to the U.S. One is to get out of Asia. The other is to let it be known that you are going to maintain your presence, even at the cost of a nuclear war. That is the only thing that will keep the Chinese from expanding. China's prime objective is to kick America out of Asia. They are not going to compromise. Once they get rid of the U.S. in Asia, it is just a matter of walking in. America is the No. 1 Chinese enemy."

There could hardly be any stronger argument for U.S. policy in Asia than this. Should it falter in its determination to stop the spread of communism in Asia now, the alternative is the victory of Chinese imperialism in that region, and ultimately, further afield.

Klansmen's Plot

A youthful ex-Klansman's revelations of a series of plots to assassinate President Johnson and Dr. Martin Luther King, blow up the White House and start a civil war in the United States are justification enough for the administration's current investigation into the activities of the hooded racists.

Such a plot might never even have been suspected by the administration when President Johnson ordered the investigation following the killing of a Detroit woman civil rights worker, Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, of Detroit, last year

The evidence of Daniel Wagner, 19, before the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities gives no details of any plans for an attempt on the life of the president. However, he was given specific orders to kill Dr. King while he was delivering a commencement address at Antioch College on last June.

While no reasons were advanced why this plot fell through, Wagner's evidence suggests that the investigation of Klan activities has not come a moment too soon.

The blowing up of the White House may sound like a preposterous idea, like something out of the James Bond film Dr. Goldfinger, in which terrorists raided Fort Knox, but it is indicative of the lengths the Klansmen might have gone had their activties not come under investigation.

Rio Capers

The gay and exotic atmosphere of Rio de Janeiro may have had something to do with it, but Canada's image in Brazil seems to have suffered as a result of the playfulness of our sailors during a goodwill visit to South America.

A report from Rio says a Canadian sailor who pinched a Brazilian girl reporter caused a furor in the Rio press.

Reporter Maria Eli Frachtenberg, 19, did not mention the incident, said to have occurred while she and a photographer and the sailor were riding from the flight deck to the hangar deck in the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

However, she did refer in her story to Canadian sailors "who clown and provoke disorder everywhere, showing their poor upbringing . . ."

Well those are hard words, and may have an element of truth — for there was one picture at least, published in papers here, of two Canadian sailors sporting wigs under their caps as they walked along in downtown Rio.

Such escapades, even if meant only in fun, can give a bad impression. It would be difficult to imagine them occurring in Victoria or Halifax, let alone being condoned in home ports. So there is even less excuse for them happening in Rio.

"Go Slow" Advice On Sports Plan

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Miami Beach, Florida — In your edition dated February 1, the article: "Recreational Complex North of City proposed by local developers" is bound to stir up a fair amount of excitement and enthusiasm among Belleville citizens.

However, constructive criticism should never be frowned upon and my advice to Ted Mowers (whom I have known personally and like) is to move very slowly. And I emphasize the word 'slowly'.

How can a centre of that nature be carried on without great administrative costs and yet the Belleville Arena can hardly get by.

Do you for one moment think that the citizens of Belleville are suddenly going to get out of their lethargic state and become ardent supporters of athletics?

I have lived in your community for 15 years and I know whereof I speak. Sure it's fine for one to say, "Let Ted do it — we'll help", but when it comes down to the finalization of the deed, suddenly they become too busy or are subjected to ill-health.

Arthur Black,
Globe Hotel, Picton.

P.S. I receive your newspaper daily while here, even though a few days late. It keeps me in touch with the home area's activities.

Garbage Pick-up In Winter Time

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading in your paper Mr. Purcell's statement saying that garbage freezes to the side of a straight side pail, making it almost impossible to get out, I can only say this in reply: any garbage that would freeze in one pail would freeze in another regardless of make.

As for the dumping of garbage that is frozen in a garbage container, it is common knowledge the men on the disposal trucks do not have to dump them.

The men on the trucks refused to pick up my garbage for over two weeks because it was in a five-gallon pail.

Now to my knowledge to dispose of five gallon pails as garbage cans Mr. Purcell can only recommend to the city council that five gallon pails be outlawed, then the council has to make an amendment to the by-law as to that effect before Mr. Grayham can order his men not to pick up any garbage that has been placed in five gallon pails.

If I am right about this, then our council should see that the law is obeyed. If I am wrong than I stand to be corrected.

I would like to have it explained to me that with the use of proper garbage containers the cost of collecting would be lower in the long run, when the cost of everything else is going up.

Plow, Not Vandals Damaged Mail Box

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wish to draw your attention to a report published in your paper February 7th telling of rural mail boxes in Sidney Township being damaged and place the blame on vandals.

If you want proof as to who these are just come over to my place and I can tell you and also show you how and when it was done — nine o'clock in the morning after mail is delivered.

I have this trouble every winter.

My box is well off the road and during the winter it is very hard for me to go out and dig my mail box out of the snow. I take exception to the statement that it was vandals when you see the real damage performed right in front of your eyes by the snow plow and the operator.

Curb Pollution

Montreal Star

West Germany's Ruhr River is as good example as can be found of the feasibility of controling water pollution. It runs through an industrial region, but it has been found possible, by means of a system of penalty taxes on discharge of contaminants, to raise painlessly the money needed to keep its waters reasonably clean.

High-Powered Snoring Difficult to Remedy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 69 years old and recently married a woman who is everything to be desired except she's an habitual snorer.

I become nervous and irritable from loss of sleep. She is aware that I am writing you, and we look forward to your advice. — M. L.

You seem to have tried all the common remedies (I deleted much of your letter), even including ear plugs. Perhaps cotton wool, instead of plugs, would be more satisfactory.

Most snorers are not aware of the racket they make. Some jolt themselves awake just as they are beginning to fall asleep, but real high-powered, continuous snoring occurs when the snorer is relaxed and in deep sleep.

There are many causes of snoring, and some remedies. Soft tissues of the nose or throat flutter as the person' breathes. Occasionally defects in the nose (polyps, deviated septum, congestion) or in the throat can be corrected. Sometimes changes of habits may improve the condition. Heavy smokers are likely to be loud snorers because the throat and larynx are irritated and often swollen.

Mouth breathers are inclined to snore, which explains why chin straps to keep the mouth closed are tried. But why is the person a mouth breather? Should some obstruction of the nose be corrected?

Fat people snore more than others, although I've heard some rather devastating wood-sawing from lean folks, too.

As we grow older, flabbiness of the muscles of throat and mouth make snoring more likely. There's nothing to do about that except to make sure that all correctible causes have been sought out and treated to such degree as is possible.

After noting the ear caps worn by people at airports working close to planes, I've wondered if some such arrangement might be contrived to shut out noise from snoring. Maybe the ear caps could be lined or filled with lambswool or cotton batting both for comfort and to deaden the noise.

By its very nature it is not easy to study. Numerous devices and gadgets have been placed on the market, but most of them are either uncomfortable or ineffective.

Dear Dr. Molner: Two months ago we bought shoes for our two-year-old son. They are a new design in which the feet are allowed a lot of room to grow, particularly in the toe areas. We are not pleased with the wearing qualities and wonder if they are such a tremendous health asset. —Mrs. L. M.

There should be room to grow but adequate support of the foot has its values, too. An oxford type of lace shoe is normally suitable. A general rule in fitting is to allow the width of the child's thumb extra in length, and the width of the little finger extra in width.

The shoes may not be giving enough support and are not wearing well as a result. Have your pediatrician take a look.

Note to M.A.: No, shock treatments do not cause sterility. Excessive alcohol and consequent poor health could be factors.

Teachers' Trust

Montreal Star

School commissions have a responsibility to pay teachers professional salaries in keeping with their years of training and experience. But teachers also have a responsibility to the children they instruct. And they abdicate that trust when they walk out in the middle of a school year. Their action, particularly in regard to pupils who must prepare for provincial examinations, could leave indelible scars.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Feb. 15, 1966 . . .

The U.S. battleship Maine blew up in Havana harbor 68 years ago today—in 1898—killing 260 of the crew of 350. The cause was never determined but the disaster contributed directly to war with Spain a month later. However there were more straightforward political reasons for the war as well. Liberals in the United States were anxious to deliver Cuba from years of Spanish suppression and strategists of all beliefs wanted to secure the island as a naval base to shield the proposed Panama Canal.

1860 — The Gananoque (Ont.) Reporter first appeared.

1872—The British Columbia legislature's first session began.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916 — French airmen dropped 158 bombs on Strumnitza, Bulgaria; German troops breached British lines at Ypres and captured 600 yards of front-line trenches.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941 — Henry Ford said in an interview he hoped neither Britain nor the Axis would win the war because both were "motivated by greed;" three German bombers were shot down over England; Japan pooh-poohed predictions of an impending crisis in the Pacific area.

Strictly Personal

The Theory of Creativity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What makes highly creative people different from others? This is a question that has perplexed, and preoccupied, researchers for several decades. It used to be an academic question; now, business and industry, which desperately need innovations, are joining in the search.

Some University of California researchers have turned up with answers that make more sense than most. They suggest that the qualities all creative people have in common, whether artists or scientists, are these:

"A general openness to experience from both without and within; a tolerance for ambiguity, confusion and disorder; strong disposition to be independent rather than conforming; and the tendency to perceive through intuition rather than through the senses."

It was found, for instance, that 100 percent of creative people are intuitive, as compared to only 25 per cent of the general population. They are more easily able to express the opposite sides of their nature, to reconcile the conscious with the unconscious, the rational and the irrational, the scientific and the artistic aspects.

As an interesting sidelight, it was found that in the matter of interests, all creative people studied in the tests, no matter what their own calling, scored high on interests "which might lead them to become psychologists, architects, or author-journalists." And all, without exception, scored low on scales for office workers, bankers, farmers and policemen.

Some of the mystery and contradiction in the creative personality was explained by Frank Barron, of the university's Institute of Personality Assessment, as springing from the fact that "The creative person is both more primitive and more cultivated, more destructive and more constructive, a lot madder and a lot saner, than the average person."

One reason that business and industry have had such a hard time in harnessing and keeping creative people even after they have been discovered, was expressed by Barron: "Almost everything we know about highly creative people suggests that neither they nor their creativity may be used as a mere means to an end, but that both will flourish when respected as ends in themselves."

The real problem for organizations that want to become more creative as well as more productive is to learn to respect intuition as well as facts, to tolerate ambiguity and a certain amount of disorder — and to realize that someone a lot madder than the rest of us may be a lot saner, too.

Ottawa Offbeat

Grits Would Be Lost Without La Belle Province

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Ever wondered why Prime Minister Pearson's Government always seems to bend so far over backwards in accommodating Quebec as to risk falling flat on its face in the rest of the country?

Think about it in terms of elections in the last 50 years, and the answer is obvious.

Opinion?

Well, perhaps . . . except that it is the way the statistical record of Federal elections reads over the last half century.

There have been 15 of them.

The Parliamentary Guide, pages 447 and 452, shows that in nine of those elections, the Liberals drew roughly 50 per cent — often a great deal more —of their total national strength from Quebec.

In three of them the Liberals, massively rejected by most of English Canada, were dirven back to confinement pretty well restricted to their Quebec power base.

And if you count in the French-Canadian constituencies of Eastern Ontario, Northern New Brunswick and Manitoba, then it becomes even more of a statistical fact that the Liberals are wholly dependent on Quebec.

THE RECORD

The Federal elections in which Quebec gave the Liberals at least half their total national vote came in 1917, '21, '25, '26, '30, '45, '57, '58 and '65.

And the three elections out of which they emerged as little more than a Quebec party — definitely a French - Canadian party if you include the French-dominated constituencies of Eastern Ontario — were in 1917, '58 and again last year.

These three, when the Quebec crunch came, are the interesting ones.

The election of '17 was on the conscription issue and 62 of the 82 seats Sir Wilfrid Laurier managed to salvage from the Party wreckage came from Quebec.

From the rest of the country they got only eight from Ontario — the French counties of the East accounting for most of them — four each from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, two from Prince Edward Island, one each from Manitoba and Alberta, and none from Saskatchewan, British Columbia or the Yukon.

In short, they were driven back to their Quebec power base where they were still pretty well confined in the '21 election, getting more than half their seats from Quebec and still only four from west of the Lakehead.

In '58, they were locked even tighter into Quebec which gave them 25 of their 48 seats, with none from Nova Scotia, PEI, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, and with the bulk of their 14 Ontario seats coming from the French-Canadian constituencies.

ALONE

It was then Liberal Opposition Leader Pearson, looking around at his shattered ranks, realized there was little left that didn't come from Quebec-based French Canada.

Without those French-Canadian seats from Quebec and Eastern Ontario, the Liberals would have been only slightly better off than the splinter CCF.

Once again it was demonstrated beyond all doubt that without Quebec the Liberal Party was nothing, and that if it was to survive and come back, French Canada had to be held no matter what the price paid.

The scare that the fire-eater, Real Caouette, gave them in the '62 election when he took 26 of Quebec's seats to their 35 — thereby saving the minority Diefenbaker Conservatives from what would have been certain defeat — really brought home to the shaken Liberals the political "French Fact" that no matter what, they must, before everything else, preserve their power base.

The election last year further underlined it with Quebec providing 65 and French-Canadian constituencies in Eastern Ontario and elsewhere some 15 for a total of about 80 of the Liberals' 131 seats. Between the Ontario line and the Rockies, the Liberals hold only one seat, Roger Teillet's from Manitoba's French-Canadian St. Boniface.

Perhaps even more cruel crunches are still to come for the Liberals. For tradition almost dictates that their next leader must come from French Canada, with Quebec Premier Jean Lesage the leading and perhaps, at the moment, the only choice.

And how is English Canada going to like that?

It could mean a fourth Liberal retreat to its historic Quebec power base, and a political lock-out from the rest of the Dominion.

Consultation Vital

Montreal Star

One thing is certain. We cannot much longer have all 10 provinces and the federal government galloping off in different directions. Part of the answer is in Mr. Allan's [illegible] for better consultation and coordination of federal and provincial plans. Even with a much improved version of both, it will be a miracle if the tax structure committee can find a solution which pleases the two big provinces, maintains a reasonable level of services in the have-not provinces, and still leaves the federal government with money to pay its own bills.

Is No Threat Of Inflation Declares CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern that the federal government "may take action against inflation when in fact no inflationary threat exists" was voiced today by the Canadian Labor Congress in rejecting the idea of a restraint on wage demands.

CLC leaders told the cabinet they would view with apprehension any attempt to dampen down the booming economy or hold back on major programs "unless convincing new evidence of inflationary pressure appears."

The Congress said the best opinion, including that of the Economic Council of Canada, holds to the view that inflation is not an immediate threat.

Its annual brief to the cabinet said there has been much evidence in the recent statements of ministers that some restraining measures are being considered. It was typical of Canadian governments to act prematurely in imposing restrictions on the economy.

There was a need for thousands of new jobs in the next few years to meet the great increases due in the labor force. Federal commitments to introduce national medical insurance, launch a war on poverty, step up aid to education and develop better manpower programs would require heavy expenditures.

"Major progress in these areas would be inconsistent with a nationwide belt - tightening campaign," the Congress said.

This would only serve to cut off Canada's economic advance and reverse the present downward trend in unemployment.

groups included in the medical care legislation, which currently would only apply to individuals, but their amendment was defeated by a vote of 55 to 26.

They also introduced an amendment to the bill—it was defeated—that would require the medical care insurance council to meet in various areas of the province.

The amendment also would require that "one representative from western Ontario, eastern Ontario, Northern Ontario and one from Metropolitan Toronto be included on the council."

Dr. Dymond said he "believes in regional representation" but doesn't think it should be arbitrarily set down. He said also that he did not want to tie the council down by legislation as to where it meets.

The health minister said that "nothing formal" had been done about nominations to the council but that he had made inquiries of certain persons about joining it.

Mr. Wishart told the house that in Saint John he had merely been reviewing the positions of attorneys - general from an historical point of view when he said provincial governments should "explore the possibilities of appointing attorneys-general instead of electing them.

Earlier Monday, Mr. MacDonald and Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said that making the office a non-political one would be a move toward a police state.

Mr. Wishart said his remarks expressed neither personal opinions nor policy.

The New Democratic Party introduced an amendment that would alter section 13 of the Ontario Assessment Act, alleging that the Bell Telephone Co. receives preferential treatment under the section.

Mr. MacDonald said the section "limits, in effect, the tax payable on gross receipts of telegraph and telephone companies to five per cent." He said the City of Toronto lost out in collecting an additional $726,617.88 in taxes from the company last year because of the section.

Two Bridges Will Be Built If OMB Approval Received

The year 1966 will be a busy bridge building year in Belleville if items of a capital works budget approved yesterday by city council gets the okay from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Council approved of a new four-lane bridge on College Street, and at the same time moved ahead one year the construction of the long proposed Dundas Street bridge.

Council on a close vote decided to go ahead this year with the bridge phase of the over-all Dundas Street project, despite the fact that consulting engineers had recommended it as the last item of the proposed three-phase project.

PROJECTS TRANSFERED

Transferred to 1967 was the railway overpass phase of the Dundas street project and a new alignment for No. 14 highway to connect with Dundas Street at the top of the Devil's Elbow.

Alderman H. J. Allin brought in the amendment calling for the bridge phase of the Dundas street project to go ahead first.

He claimed that construction of the bridge would funnel off traffic now going through the city's main Front and Bridge Street intersection and at the same time would allow more time for possible removal of the CPR tracks, thus making the overhead railway structure unnecessary.

Mayor J. R. Ellis disagreed that the bridge phase of the Dundas street project should come first, pointing out that consulting engineers had given clear reasons as to why it be built "after" the railway overpass and construction of the new Dundas street alignment over Devil's Elbow hill.

NO CHANGE IN TOTAL

"I am simply amazed that council can become so expert after receipt of the engineer's report," he said.

Building the bridge as the first item of the proposed three-phase project would result in a bridge without approaches and no way for motorists to get on or off the structure, he said.

Shuffling of the bridge construction date will in itself make no difference in the total figures of the two year capital works budget, although city manager J. R. Reynolds said it still remained to be seen whether the Ontario Municipal Board would approve.

New on the capital works budget, however, was the inclusion of an amount of $150,000 for a sewage pumping station for Foster Ward.

Alderman Art Keegan who brought in the amendment and said some provision should be made for a pumping station if there was any possibility of sanitary sewers being installed in Foster Ward.

He said he realized that installation of sewers would be costly for Foster Ward but intimated this was understood by the residents. Owners on South John Street had already petitioned for the sewer, he said. The petition was tabled pending receipt of the official city plan.

Alderman Dr. J. R. Scott said he was in sympathy with Foster ward residents.

Storm sewers for the Parkdale district were mentioned by Alderman Allin and Ald. Scott, but Mayor Ellis pointed out these were already under construction.

He said tenders were called late last year and the Tatham Company was now installing the storm sewer in the Gilbert street area.

The capital works program was discussed in detail at a special meeting a week ago and was up for formal approval yesterday.

Last night's deliberations mean that the proposed 1966 capital works budget of $2,473,950 will be increased by $143,000, while the 1967 budget will remain approximately the same at $1,973,000.

CPR Whistles Only Blown According to Regulations City Manager Tells Council

Despite complaints to the contrary trains operating on CPR tracks through the city are blowing whistles only in accordance with regulations.

The question of excessive whistle tooting was raised in council two weeks ago with the city manager being directed to investigate and make a report.

Yesterday the city manager reported whistles were being blown only in accordance with regulations, noting, however, that this could be reduced to a minimum if not eliminated if the city agreed to participate in the installation of adequate crossing protection.

Protection is now being installed at Newberry street but no action has been taken with respect to other crossings.

Aldermen Dr. J. Russell Scott and Jack Allin felt this would be a good opportunity for the city to press its request with the CPR for removal of its tracks in the city.

Alderman Scott suggested that rather than contribute towards crossing protection expenses, the railway might consider a proposal to remove its tracks completely.

"Nonsense," retorted Mayor J. R. Ellis. In one instance your talking of thousands and in the other millions of dollars.

Later in the meeting, however, the mayor appointed a special committee of Mayor Ellis, Aldermen Deacon and Allin to continue investigations with the railway regarding possible track removal.

Jury Selection in Denis Trial Takes Long Period

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis' trial stalled at the outset Monday with special procedures invoked in jury selection and a successful defence bid to split the charges against the former aide to the federal immigration minister.

County Judge Frank Costello of Kitchener accepted a motion by defence counsel Louis Assaly for separate trials on the charges against the 33-year-old lawyer.

Denis will be tried first on a charge that he corruptly offered money to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne to have Mr. Lamontagne drop his opposition to bail in 1964 for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

A second charge—that Denis attempted to obstruct justice in proceedings to send Rivard to the United States for trial—was temporarily set aside.

Denis calmly pleaded 'not guilty" in quiet tones to the first charge, formally read to him after a period of argument on Mr. Assaly's motion.

When the court then turned to selecting a jury from among the 49 men and women, most of them with English names, Mr. Assaly produced a new motion.

He served notice that he planned to challenge each juror for cause. A procedure rarely used in courts here, this permits examination of each juror on the panel before he is sworn to determine whether he may be prejudiced.

This second motion caused a further adjournment of proceedings while Crown Attorney John Cassells and Mr. Assaly argued privately before Judge Costello the procedure to be adopted.

Crown and defence agreed to use Sheriff Robert Sloan and County Court Clerk Howard Polk as "triers of fact" to rule whether the prospective jurors showed themselves impartial under questioning about the Rivard affair, widely publicized through a judicial inquiry last year.

The triers found two members of the panel—one man and one woman—partial. The Crown rejected three others and the defence a further three before a jury of 10 men and two women was sworn. The procedure took two hours and court was adjourned until today.

EACH QUESTIONED

Each juror was questioned by Mr. Assaly and Mr. Cassells on his knowledge of the inquiry into the Rivard affair conducted by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

While all except one admitted knowing of the inquiry, only two had any detailed knowledge of the events of the months-long Dorion hearings.

The jury selected included two housewives, three managers, three civil servants, an electrician, a merchant, a painter and a civic employee.

Mr. Cassells has summoned 21 witnesses to testify in an effort to show that Denis had a hand in the affair of Rivard, who now is serving a 20-year prison term in the United States.

Exploitation Of Parks Is Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — National and provincial parks will be doomed if commercial interests are allowed to exploit them, the Canadian Labor Congress warned today in its annual brief to the cabinet.

"There is growing evidence of the determination of private and commercial interests to exploit our national and provincial parks for their own purposes," the congress said.

It called on the government to stand firm in its policy of keeping national parks free from commercial inva-

Rental Units Nearly Ready For Occupancy

Aproximately 30 of the low rental family housing units being provided in Belleville will be ready for occupancy by the end of February or early in March city council was informed yesterday.

The units nearing completion are in the Glen Arden and Union street areas but will see tenants move in without fanfare of any kind, council was told.

Alderman Douglas Boyle, chairman of the special committee on senior citizens and low rental housing said plans were now being finalized for the senior citizens housing complex to be built on Turnbull street. Tenders for the construction were expected to be called in March, he said.

RCMP Band Delights in Music Program

PICTON (Staff) — A near full house was in attendance on Monday night to hear the musical concert provided by the band of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The band concert proved to be a most welcome treat for the citizens of the town and other parts of the county, some of whom travelled far to hear the program. The event was sponsored by Picton's Kiwanis Club.

Following last night's concert at Prince Edward Collegiate the band will play Kingston on Tuesday and Belleville on Wednesday of this week. Picton was the first engagement by the band on their tour which will continue throughout Ontario for the next three weeks.

Supervisor of Music for the RCMP E. J. Lydall put his band through their paces last night with selections which included traditional band numbers, some modern tunes by contemporary composers and some semi classics. Judging from the applause which county listeners gave the soloists and to the band itself the evening concert was an overwhelming success. The members of the band dressed in their scarlet tunics represented all of the provinces of the Dominion except Newfoundland. Picton's Kiwanis club are to be congratulated for sponsoring such an outstanding musical event. Proceeds from the concert, a silver collection, will be donated by the club to Picton's newly formed Junior Band.

VOTE IS STILL NEW

Canada's 60,000 adult Indians on reserves were granted the vote in federal elections in 1960.

According to Hoy

By

Claire Hoy

Diapers A-plenty

It had to happen.

It was simply inevitable.

You can escape it for a while, but eventually it catches up with you. When it does, there is nothing to do but roll up your sleeves and pitch in.

What is it?

Well, I'll tell you. With a baby in the house there are dirty diapers. Dirty diapers. And that means someone has to change the diapers.

New daddy never likes to get involved with diapers. He leaves that up to mommy.

However, there comes a day when mommy isn't available at the time of need, and daddy has to do it.

This happened to me.

I could have done what the husband of a certain Bridge Street West housewife did when he was confronted by a similar situation a couple of years ago. He simply picked the baby up in one hand, a diaper and pins in the other, and marched downstairs to corral the landlady into performing the ceremonies.

However, that's the coward's way out.

No coward I.

It all happened while I was watchng the late commercials on television.

Feeding time.

Time for baby's bottle.

I stalled as long as I could, but baby Paul insisted.

"Waaaaaaaaaaa."

I must admit, I had been warned to be careful when changing little boys' diapers. Babies never stand on ceremony. When the urge is there, the action starts.

So I made my way into his room, gently picked him up, and said, "Hi Paul."

"Waaaaaaaaaaaaaaa."

Hoping the problem would pass, I put him over my shoulder and started patting his little back. One pat led to another and eventually led to his diapers.

Squish.

Wet.

That left only noble thing to do. Change Paul's diapers.

I had a difficult time undoing the diaper pins, what with my big fat fingers, the baby squirming uncontrollably and the dog Som getting his nose in there to make sure Paul didn't get any more love than him.

(Grammatically, doge are supposed to be "it," but Sam's too much a part of the family to be an "it," so he's a "he.")

Eventually, the wet diaper was off. I put the powder on and puffed it around, then turned to pick up a fresh diaper.

That turn saved me a serious problem.

Just as I turned away, Paul's mechanism got into action and soon Paul, the bed and the floor all needed changing.

After cleaning up the mess, I managed to secure clean diapers and pin them on.

Next, I had to put the rubber pants on. I got Paul's leg through the one hole but by the time I got his other leg through the proper hole, the first leg was uncovered again.

The ceremony was repeated several times before I finally had him straightened away and ready to feed.

I don't mind giving him the bottle at all. He eats well. He's like daddy in that respect — he always wants to eat.

Feeling proud of myself, I burped him over my shoulder, rocked him for a while and placed him back in bed.

I was almost overcome with emotion when, upon placing him softly down in his bassinet my hand was once again greeted with a squish in the lower portions of his tiny anatomy.

I had no choice but to change him again.

There's one more little incident to this story that speaks well for poetic justice.

My wife laughed heartily when told of the spraying incident. She thought that was pretty funny.

I told her then the day of reckoning would come and it did, the very next night.

In the words of Benjamin Franklin, "Damage suffered makes you knowing, but seldom rich."

Oh well, you can't have everything.

Susanna's Family Fare

POT POURRI

Dear Susanna: After painting a room or papering a wall, write the name of the colors used, and the quantities, underneath the wall switch plate — for future reference. The left over paint will keep well in a tightly sealed glass jar, and it will be easy to see the amount and the color.

Light starching can give you pillow cases that remain comfortably soft, but stay clean longer.

Snap the neck of party balloons that are difficult to inflate over the cold water tap and fill with water. Then pour out water. This will stretch them sufficiently to take the huff and puff out of blowing them up.

Make a bath mitt from sound pieces of worn out bath towel to hold scraps of toilet soap. Do this by stitching a pocket to the palm of the mit, to hold the small pieces of soap.

Two or three fasteners or even a short zipper will close the top. Saves soap and is pleasant for anyone in the family to use.

I always enjoy your column, Susanna and consider you a better neighbor than I have around me. All the best to you and you informative corner in our paper. — Sincerely, J.M.. — "Waste not, want not"

Third of Food Budget Being Spent on Meat

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are eating more every year and spending one-third of their growing food budget on meat.

And one of the best places to put that money this winter is on pork, says the federal agriculture department.

There are three kinds of pork roasts — shoulder, loin and leg. Shoulder roasts are usually the cheapest. The loin cut is most expensive, but it is all lean tender meat. A leg roast provides a good-sized meaty roast for the larger family.

All pork roasts are tender and should be cooked in an open pan at 325 degrees till the meat is greyish-white and no trace of pink remains.

You can buy loin, rib and shoulder pork chops. Shoulder chops have more bone and are not quite as tender as the other two.

All chops can be pan-fried or baked. Shoulder chops are also good cooked slowly in well-seasoned broth or tomato juice in a covered pan.

The department's home economists caution that spareribs are no longer an economy buy, considering the amount of meat you get for your money.

Pork hocks are inexpensve, as are minced pork and liver and kidney. The nutritionists recommend frying liver with onions and bacon, and using kidney with beef in a stew or pie, or broiling it with sausages.

French Women Demanding More Rights

PARIS (Reuters) — Frenchwomen have taken a stride toward legal equality with their menfolk—but not far enough in the opinion of some of their organizations.

The rigid Napoleonic code provisions on marital status have been abolished by a new government - sponsored law that came into force Feb. 1.

Housewives no longer need their husbands' permission to open their own bank accounts, run their own businesses, continue in a profession, dispose of personal property and private incomes, buy stocks and shares and have a say in where they shall live and how the children shall be educated.

BROKE WITH CODE

The break with the code of 1804 was initiated by President de Gaulle as head of the provisional government after the Second World War when he gave Frenchwomen the vote for the first time.

The new advance has been widely welcomed as a step toward what is called the "decolonization of married women."

But the Democratic Women's Movement and the French League for Women's Rights describe the new law as a "reformette" — a petty reform. Women jurists also have criticized the measure as imprecise and predicted it would be several years before exact interpretations would be achieved.

One woman lawyer, Colette Piat, said "the Napoleonic code was brutal, but at least it was clear."

Secretaries Tour Answering Service

The February meeting of the Quinte Medical Secretaries Association was held at Education Hall last Wednesday evening with 15 members present. Mrs. Mae Cathcart, president, opened the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. Arlene Dempsey, was elected delegate for the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Secretaries Association to be held in London, Ontario, May 17 and 18, 1966.

Following the meeting the group enjoyed a tour of Telephone Answering Service Quinte Ltd. on Campbell Street, owned and operated by Ralph T. Morton. Mr. Morton and Mrs. Jessie Arens, supervisor, explained the system and switchboard.

Mrs. Beth Cunningham voiced appreciation on behalf of the group.

The evening concluded with a social hour and lunch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Morton, Hillside Street, Belleville.

Wedded Valentine Day, Stirling Couple Mark Sixtieth Anniversary

Valentine Day marriage vows exchanged at the Methodist Church parsonage in Tweed back in 1906 were re - lived in Stirling yesterday, as Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, 32 Gore Street, observed their 60th wedding anniversary.

The happy couple were "at home" to friends and relatives both afternoon and evening. Sunday they were honored guests at a family dinner held at the Tops Motor Hotel in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson are natives of Huntingdon township, attended the White Lake public school together, and farmed in the Zion Hill district of Thurlow township for 34 years before moving to Stirling 23 years ago. Since moving t othe village they have operated Stevenson's Ladies' Wear, a business at one time owned by Mrs. Stevenson's sister.

Mrs. Stevenson was the former Stella Fleming.

Times were much different back in 1906 than they are now, the Stirling couple recall.

At the time they were married Mr. Stevenson was working at the then booming Crookston rock quarry where quarrying of rock for railway bridges kept up to 200 men busy.

Three or four trains ran daily to the rock quarry, it was recalled.

At that time experienced stone cutters commanded a top wage of $3.00 per day, while a quarryman or steam drill operator received $1.50 per day, increasing to a "top" of $1.75.

When the stone quarry closed down the Stevensons moved to Thurlow, remaining on the farm until they took over their store in Stirling.

A flood of cards, flowers and anniversary congratulations are being received by the couple, including best wishes from Hon. John Diefenbaker, Hastings-Frontenac M.P. Rod Webb and Stirling village council.

They have two daughters, Mrs. Sheldon (Eva) Calver of Napanee, and Mrs. Clarke (Mae) Rodgers of Stirling. There are four grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Israel's Girl Soldiers Will Look Like Girls

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israel's army brass has finally surrendered to the complaints of girl soldiers who want to look like girls even when in uniform.

Completely new outfits, designed by some of the country's top fashion couturiers, range all the way from lacy brassieres to sandals with straps. Col. Stella Levy, commanding the girl soldiers, calls the change "revolutionary."

The switch followed years of complaints, particularly over underwear, which most of the girls discarded as too rough to be comfortable. They wore frilled civilian issue instead.

Since Israeli girls all undergo compulsory military service, the uniform matters a great deal at an age when girls are acutely interested in clothes. Even the army quartermaster-general finally conceded that it is important for the girl conscripts to like their uniforms.

REPLACE SHOES

Gone are the shapeless, heavy - soled army shoes formerly issued. In their place will be light, comfortable ones—but without stiletto heels. Strapped sandals for summer will be the biggest footwear novelty.

The new look will be most striking, however, in the summer two-piece suit, which replaces a blouse and skirt. A committee consulted top designers before deciding on a short-sleeved jacket reaching to the hips.

It has a waistline but no belt, and is to be worn open at the neck. Special care is being taken with the tailoring.

Changes in winter uniforms will be less extreme. Here the main difference will be in a new wool-and-synthetic material. Officers will wear hip-length tunics and enlisted girls the conventional battle-dress. Officers' uniforms will be made to measure.

OFFER SUMMER HOLIDAY

MONTREAL (CP)—A committee of 14 local people is planning the first summer camp for epileptics in the province. Executives of the 400-member Parents and Friends Auxiliary of the provincial epileptics' association hopes to open the camp this summer.

Women Now Make Up One Fifth City's Real Estate Sales Force

Women have made a place for themselves in real estate in Belleville, keeping pace with a nation-wide trend. Unknown in the city 10 years ago, they now make up one-fifth of Belleville's real estate sales force. Eleven of this city's 53 licensed salesmen and one of its 14 brokers are women.

But contrary to a widespread myth, women have no special advantage over men when it comes to selling houses. Those ladies who make it to the top in the real estate business do so in spite of their femininity, not because of it.

"The woman's touch in real estate is grossly overrated," says Mrs. Marguerite Cooke, who sold over $1,000,000 of Belleville real estate each year for the past two years. "Women do have the edge over men in showing a house, but men have a natural advantage when it comes to knowledge of financing and construction."

Mrs. Mary Colling, sales manager of a city real estate firm, and veteran of nine years of house selling, agrees with Mrs. Cooke. She says men and women are equally good at selling, provided both make real estate a full-time career and put in an eight to 12 hour day.

MINOR PART

Gerald Joyce, Belleville realtor adds, "A woman's strong point, showing a house, is a minor part of the job. She must study to become well versed in financing, law, including local zoning by-laws, and advertising. Those women who are successful are career saleswomen. This is no business for a society girl in lace dress and spike heels. A saleswoman must wade around in the mud of new housing developments with the men and work on the same terms as they do."

In Belleville women are paid on the same terms as men too, making real estate one business in which women are not discriminated against in wage rates.

When Mrs. Colling started in real estate nine years ago, there was just one other woman in the business. "She wasn't very active and left shortly after I came in, so I was the only woman for another year or so," says Mrs. Colling. "In my first year, some men were a little skeptical of my ability to discuss mortgages and financing, but men coming from larger centres like Montreal and Toronto were quite accustomed to dealing with women in real estate and offered no resistance at all. I'll never forget one man though. He was absolutely petrified of women drivers and refused point blank to get into the car wth me."

STICK TO SELLING

Although there are many fields in real estate other than selling — land development, appraisal for succession duty purposes and so on, Mrs. Colling feels a woman should stick to selling. "Selling offers plenty of scope for her talents," she says, "and the tramping through brush and fields involved in appraising is just too rough for a woman."

This year, Mrs. Colling was elected secretary of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board, an honor she feels signifies complete acceptance not only of herself, but of all women in real estate.

Mrs. Colling entered the business because she knew she had a knack for selling, was interested in houses, and wanted to combine the two interests.

Mrs. Cooke starter her career four years ago, answering the telephone in a field office. Gradually she worked into selling because, she says, "I've always been interested in the investment aspects of real estate."

FAMILY CO-OPERATION

The Co-operation of a saleswoman's family is a vital factor, Mrs. Cooke feels, because of the long hours involved. Both Mrs. Cooke and Mrs. Colling work an eight to 12 hour day and often work nights and Sun days showing houses, drawing up agreements and delivering keys: Both employ full - time housekeepers at home. Mrs. Colling, married to a Belleville druggist has no children. Mrs. Cooke has four children ranging in age from six to 19 years.

Women planning a career in real estate must be prepared to study constantly to keep up with new developments in the business. In addition, a saleswoman must be interested in people to the extent of worrying about their needs, and she must have infinite patience.

To this list of qualifications, a local realtor adds: "Before I will hire a woman I make it manditory that she hire a housekeeper, have a driver's licence and a good car and be between the ages of 30 and 50. Women over 50 haven't the stamina for this job and those under 30 don't inspire the confidence of the client.

BECOMING FEMININE CONCERN

One reason for the recent acceptance of women in the real estate busness may be that the buying of a house is increasingly becoming a feminine concern. Today, 60 per cent of the decisions to buy a house and what house to buy are made by the woman of the family.

As Mrs. Cooke puts it: "Most husbands try to please their wives, so you sell to her, then discuss financing with him."

Ann Landers

Cruel Trick to Crush Children's Fantasies

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about something that has been on my mind since before Christmas. It's about my little brother, Howard, who is in the second grade.

Howard is a bright, happy little boy. He believed in Santa Claus and his eyes would sparkle when he asked if Santa knew for sure that he had been a good boy so he would stop at our house.

The day before school closed for Christmas holidays Howard came home in tears. The teacher had told the second graders that there was no Santa Claus — that he was a made-up, story-book person, like Alice in Wonderland.

ANN LANDERS

Howard was heartbroken. It was as if he had lost a dear friend. My mother and dad are very upset. They feel that the teacher had no right to do this. What do you say? — SIS.

DEAR SIS: Some second graders probably knew that Santa Claus was a made-up person because they learned it at home. And home is where they ought to learn it.

It was cruel of the teacher to rob some of the youngsters of their make-believe friend. Fantasies bring children joy. They are a delight and they vanish all too soon.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 26, a college graduate, single, well-heeled, better than average looking, good family, I guess you might say I have just about everything going for me. So why can't I get girls?

I can get a date whenever I want one, but what I mean is that I see some pretty mediocre guys showing up with one knock-out after the other, while I wind up with the dogs.

I know it's pretty hard to advise me, not knowing me personally, so I'll just settle for some general suggestions. What does a guy have to say — or do, or be to score big with the ladies? — MR. 007½.

DEAR MR.: It's like that old line about asking how much does it cost to own a villa in the South of France. If you have to ask — forget it, Bub.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother's wife (I will call her Myrtle) has told me in strict confidence that she has run up some enormous bills in the city's best stores. Most of the things she buys (jewelry, handbags, dresses) are gifts for her mother. The poor girl has always felt neglected and she has been trying to buy her mother's love by showering her wits costly gifts.

Yesterday Myrtle showed me a set of earrings and beads that cost $40. She asked me if I thought her husband would believe it if she told him the set cost $7. I think she get away with it but I said "No," hoping to discourage her. She bought it anyway.

Shall I tell my brother what his wife is doing? He is very understanding person and I believe he would be kind but firm. I feel guilty keeping quiet, knowing that one day the bill collectors will be on his doorstep. On the other hand, my sister-in-law has put her trust in me and I hate to tell on her. Am I — ACCOMPLICE OR BUSYBODY?

DEAR A. OR B.: The roof is going to cave in sooner or later. Let it fall of its own weight. Do what you can to persuade this foolish girl to confess to her husband what she's been doing, but don't betray her confidence.

Comprehensive Report Given by VON Head Nurse at 41st Annual Meeting

By RETA LAWRENCE

"Service for all regardless of race, color, creed or financial status." This is the motto of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The Belleville Branch of the V.O.N. held their 41st annual dinner meeting in St. Thomas' Parish Hall on Monday evening, February 14th.

Archdeacon A. S. McConnell asked the blessing which was followed by "The Queen" with Mrs. Robert Brain as pianist.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. James Nelles who introduced the head table guests as follows Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Mr. Douglas Rector (treasurer), Mr. Millar (past president of Trenton Branch), Mrs. McConnell, Mr. Jack Austin, Miss Olive Root (secretary), Miss Gillies, Miss Dorothy Connor and Mrs. Robert Brain.

Mrs. Nelles expressed appreciation to Mrs. T. E. Smith for organizing the meeting and to Mrs. McKenna and her group for the excellent food provided by them.

INTRODUCES STAFF

Miss Dorothy Connor Reg. N. introduced her staff who are: Miss Grace Connor, Reg. N., Miss Olive Pryce, Reg. N. and Mrs. Wanda Bentley, Reg. N. (Relief Nurse).

Alderman Jack Allin brought greetings from the City of Belleville.

Miss Olive Root presented the minutes of the last annual meeting and the secretary's report. The treasurer's report was presented by Mr. Douglas Rector and publicity by Mr. Robert Smith, in the absence of Mrs. Smith.

HEAD NURSE REPORTS

The nurses' report was most comprehensive, as presented by Miss Dorothy Connor.

"The basic function of the Victorian Order of Nurses," she said, "is nursing care and health teaching in the home on a visit basis."

"From its inception in 1897, almost 69 years ago, this basic function has remained unchanged. However, over the years, statistics show, there have been changes in trends and needs for V.O.N. service. The fee when nursing care is given, is on a sliding scale to suit the family budget. Never, at any time, is service refused because of inability to pay. Where no other solution is realized visits may be free.".

"The referral of patients to V.O.N. may come from several sources, but in all cases the family physician is contacted and no treatment is given without his order".

"The need to develop methods of ensuring continuity of nursing care for patients who have been hospitalized is being increasingly recognized by both hospital and community agencies. One of the most significant developments is ensuring that the patient at home will have the services he needs for his maximum rehabilitation, is the organized or co-ordinated home care plan."

EXTEND BOUNDARIES

"A recent development in the Belleville branch has been the extending of our boundaries to include the whole of Thurlow township. A three mile radius of the city limits into Sidney and Ameliasburg townships is still included in our territory It is hoped that in the near future the Belleville branch will meet the Trenton branch at Bayside."

"It is a disturbing factor that some patients do not realize the seriousness of their complaints and educational visits are much needed."

"The program of the Victorian Order of Nurses is planned to meet the needs of the community in which it operates. One of the activities of the Order is to assist in training nurses in Public Health nursing. In 1965 the Belleville branch provided field experience for two post-graduate students. Also, in order that the undergraduate nurse might have a glimpse into the function of one of the community agencies, 11 student nurses from the Belleville General Hospital each spent a day observing V.O.N. work. The successful operation of a V.O.N. service is the result of a combination of efforts on the part of many people in the community."

"As Sir William Osler said, "You give little when you give your possession. It is when you give of yourself that you truly give." Let us remember, that success is the sum of small efforts plus faith in the thing you are trying to do."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Jack Austin, well known nature photographer from Wooler, Ontario, was introduced by Mrs. Robert Brain. Mr. Austin has won many awards for his color slides both in Canada and the United States.

Photography is just one of his hobbies since his retirement, and he stresses the great necessity to have a hobby with which to fulfil the later years of life.

The slides projected were chiefly of birds, though the showing portrayed the colors of all of the seasons. Mr. Austin's pictures and his commentary were both pleasingly colorful and leave the audience with a great appreciation of the beauties of nature in this immediate locality.

Though the speaker did not quote the following he was kind enough to give this reporter the following, which tells the message of his pictures — "There's nothing common under the sun. The skies or the sea or the sod. There's a purpose in life for everything, For everything is made by God."

Mr. Douglas Rector expressed the appreciation of all present, to Mr. Austin.

Successful Living

"I Have No Home" Is World Call Still

DEAR READERS: An Ottawa reader has sent in a poem which I want to share with you. It is :

DORIS CLARK

WORLD CALL

I planned an ultra modern home
But a Korean widow whispered "I have no home at all."
I dreamed of a country place for my children
But a white Russian lad kept saying "I have no country."
I decided on a new cupboard right now
But a child of Hong Kong cried out "I have no cup."
I started to purchase a new kind of washer
But a refugee woman said softly "I have nothing to wash."
I wanted a quick freezing unit for storing quantities of food
But across the water came the cry "I have no food."
I ordered a new car for the pleasure of my loved ones
But a war orphan sobbed "I have no loved ones."
I planned a stained glass window for the church
But a Mexican pastor said "My church has no walls."

DEAR DORIS: I would like to make a metal locator, that is to locate any metal objects lost or covered with soil.

I have heard of what they sall a "snooper" but think likely it would cost too much for what I have to do with it so would like to make my own. If I knew the principles of construction I think I could go on from there and make it.

Would it be possible to buy a used army mine detector used during the war?

If this is out of your line of help for us subscribers, maybe you could give me the address of someone who could help me.—V.F.H.

DEAR V.F.H.: Hardly anything is out of my line anymore, although I am usually more helpful about human magnets, snoopers and the like, than the electrical kind.

Re the metal locator, I'd suggest a little snooping in your public library, in the technical section. Or a correspondence course in Elementary Electronics, such as is offered by the Secondary School Correspondence Division, Department of Education of British Columbia, B.C.

Canadian Army Headquarters, Ottawa, would be the place to ask where mine detectors go when they are dismissed from active service.

DEAR DORIS: I believe I'm in love. I met a boy named Bob. He was a dirty-minded boy, except to me.

Since he's gone to the army I can't stop thinking about him. For about six months after he left I cried myself to sleep. Twice I've seen a boy that looks like him and I've followed this boy till he missed Bob's house completely. Once I saw this boy in an army uniform that looked like him. I couldn't stop myself from staring at him until I realized people were looking at me. My heart was beating so hard that I thought it would bust open.

Tell me, is this true love? Please help me to forget him as I can't stand it. Even with other boys, I think it's him. — — HEARTBEAT.

DEAR HEARTBEAT: Bless you for asking! You at least have the good sense to question your feelings. No, my dear, it doesn't resemble the real thing. But it is agony while it lasts, isn't it?

You do not respect this boy. The fact that he is dirty-minded and sexy is exciting because you are young and full of physical urges which nature has put there.

Such glamor wears off at the first sign of any adult demands. The antidote is other boys, other things to do. Get busy!

Confidential to SAMMIE: French kissing ranks with petting as a type of sexual stimulation. There are indeed many boys who do not presume to engage in such so-called affection. You find them by conducting yourself as the kind of a girl who has a certain inner dignity and a respect for her own body.

SOFT DROP GINGER COOKIES

Some of our readers were disenchanted with a recipe I gave here for Ginger Cookies recently. So dutifully I made another batch, smoothing out the trouble spots.

This batch makes soft drop ginger cokies and you can make variations. Chopped crystallized ginger and nuts may be added for ginger fans. Chopped dates or peel may be added to modify them, as a second variation.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

SOFFT DROP GINGER COOKIES (6 dozen 1¾" to 2" drops):

2/3 cup butter (or half butter and half shortening), 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 5 tablespoons molasses, 1 cup boiling water, 3 1/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons ginger (it is not too much), 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 2/3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon.

Sift the sifted flour with the ginger, baking soda, baking powder, salt and cinnamon.

In a large mixing bowl cream the butter and sugar together until light. Beat in eggs thoroughly. Stir in molasses and boiling water. Stir in sifted dry ingredients and chill dough 2 hours. Drop from greased spoon onto buttered cookie sheets 1½" apart making mounds 1½" in diameter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 8 to 10 minutes but watch them! Do not let one burn. Cool on cake racks. To retain softness, store in covered cookie box between layers of wax paper.

NOTE:

If you do decide to try a variation—with crystallized ginger use ½ cup finely chopped, with ½ cup chopped nuts. If you decide to use dates be sure they are soft and use 1 cup, chopped, with ½ cup chopped nuts.

I hope this helps you ginger cookie fans. These freeze well. P.S. There are some of my column friends who will like to hear a little news of Eleanor, my former secretary. We visited them over the weekend and I took along a boxful of above Soft Ginger Cookies, to David's delight. It was like carrying coals to Newcastle for she served a full scale Christmas dinner! We missed having Christmas festivities together because of my visit to Germany.

Defence Budget Will Be Cut On New Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer received a setback this fiscal year in his attempts to increase the portion of the defence budget devoted to procurement of new weapons and equipment, federal estimates show.

He had earmarked $263,135,000 or 15.6 per cent of the 1965-66 defence budget to weapons and equipment. But the 1966-67 estimates, presented to Parliament Monday, show that this amount now is calculated at $198,658,000 or about 12 per cent, the smallest percentage for this purpose in years.

Officials attributed the "shortfall" of about $65,000,000 mainly to delay in selection of the Northrop CF-5 as the RCAF's new fighter-bomber.

Mr. Hellyer in the 1966-67 defence budget has earmarked $297,631,000 or 17.3 per cent for weapons and equipment. If this amount is all spent, the increase over 1965-66 will be nearly $100,000,000.

PLANE'S COSTLY

A sum of $52,000,000 is allotted for the CF-5 program, which will cost a total of $215,000,000. It is by far the biggest single weapons program.

The 1966-67 defence budget is $1,572,690,000, an increase of $11,304,807 over the defence allotment for the current year ending March 31, 1966.

The increase is accounted for by an increase in the government contribution to the armed forces pension fund—to $69,510,273 from $58,116,631.

With a reduction in the number of military personnel, pay and allowances for servicemen are down to $530,000,000 from $555,200,000.

20 Murders Are Unsolved

OTTAWA (CP)—Twenty murders committed in 1964 remain unsolved, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The figure is down slightly from 21 unsolved murders remaining from 1963 and 23 from 1962. The bureau's reporting procedure is to identify each murder with the year it was reported to DBS. It may take several years to follow a case through to conviction of the culprit or otherwise dispose of the case.

Readmission of SIU to CLC Key to Trustee Withdrawal

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Readmission of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada to the Canadian Labor Congress is the key to withdrawal of the federal trusteeship over maritime unions, the trustees said in their annual report to Parliament Monday.

The SIU was expelled from the central labor body in 1959 for raiding the membership of other unions. There have been informal discussions in recent months on an application to have the expulsion revoked and the issue may be decided at the CLC's April convention in Winnipeg.

The trustees' report, tabled in the Commons by Labor Minister Nicholson without comment, amounted to an indirect appeal to the CLC to accept the SIU back into its ranks.

It also revealed that the three-man board of trustees has been making efforts to promote the formation of a single maritime union, with one branch to handle ships' officers and another for ordinary sailors.

HELD TALKS

Merger talks were held last year but were not successful.

The trusteeship was established by Parliament in the fall of 1963 on the recommendation of the Norris inquiry which investigated a wave of labor violence on the Great Lakes.

It was given control over the SIU and four CLC affiliates—the Canadian Maritime Union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the National Association of Marine Engineers and 13 marine locals of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The trusteeship legislation is due to expire at the end of this year and the report made it clear that the trustees hope no extension will be needed.

But in doing so they cautioned that the return of the SIU as "an acceptable, active and respected affiliate of the CLC" is one of the main requirements to completing their task this year.

CALL FOR UNITY

In addition to proposing a union merger, the report says there would be greater stability in the industry if the shipping companies would unite in an employers' organization.

"To their own detriment, the employers have been clearly unco-ordinated in their efforts to date," it said.

"The sooner unity of the employers on one hand and unity of the unions on the other hand can be achieved, and the sooner the two parties can increase the scope of their joint industrial relations and manpower activities to provide stable industrial self-government, then the better it will be for the seamen, the unions, the employers and the public."

At present all major shipping companies except Upper Lakes Ltd. of Toronto are linked in an industrial bargaining organization.

back the goose, we also want the golden egg."

In the fourth day of the Commons debate on transport estimates, MPs indicated that they are just warming up for public hearings in which witnesses may be called.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said mayors from eight Prairie cities on the route of a cancelled CPR Montreal-Vancouver passenger train, the Dominion, will be invited to the hearings.

Discussion has zeroed in on the slow movement of grain to West Coast ports and the decision by the Board of Transport Commissioners to allow the CPR to discontinue the Dominion.

SAY IT'S DELIBERATE

Mr. Smallwood and other MPs said the CPR deliberately provided uneconomic and unattractive service to discourage passengers so they could tell the board they lost money.

Mr. Smallwood said the Dominion consisted of two coaches and a baggage car in its last months of operation.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said the CPR attitude that efficiency equates with profit is being upheld by the Board of Transport Commissioners, which is supposed to protect the public interest.

Mr. Orlikow suggested the government abolish the board or let it set up shop at Montreal's Windsor Station, CPR headquarters, and have the CPR pay board salaries.

"Let the CPR pay their salaries, because they are acting as office boys for the CPR."

Mr. Orlikow said he can't recall one decision by the federal board, which has ruled the CPR can scrap the Dominion, that went against the railway.

Other judgment was equally harsh.

STARVES INDIANS?

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson suggested that the CPR is contributing to the starvation of millions in India by slow movement of grain to West Coast ports.

"Millions are going to die of starvation unless something is done, yet we have seen evidence of what seems to be a deliberate slow movement of grain to the West Coast—grain designated to India."

Both Mr. Orlikow and Mr. Thompson suggested that a national rail strike may be in the offing because of low morale generated by CPR pension policies.

Mr. Thompson added that one of the "most significant and evident effects" of CPR policy is the demoralizing effect on retiring railwaymen.

"They expect to have a pass available during their retirement years only to find they have no pass at all because the trains on which the passes could be used are no longer operating."

Mr. Thompson noted that the CPR came into existence Feb. 15, 1881, through a federal act.

GIVEN LAND

In the western division alone, it was given 25,000,000 acres of land, usually with mineral rights. Another $20,000,000 in cash, for completion of the Winnipeg-to-Jasper House, Alta., section, went with the deal.

In addition, there was 50 per cent of all the coal south of the North Saskatchewan River—in other words all the important Alberta and B.C. deposits.

Mr. Thompson said the CPR has embarked upon "a policy of deterioration" to back out of its responsibilities.

Much of Monday's debating time was spent by MPs raising transportation issues affecting their own ridings. These ranged from ferry service to local train or airport service.

MR. AND MRS. PERCY M. STOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Stover Mark Diamond Anniversary

DESERONTO — For 60 years, St. Valentine's Day has had a special signficance for Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Stover of Main Street, Deseronto, as it is the anniversary of their wedding. Thely have been married 60 years and are still alert and active, looking after themselves and each other, attending church every Sunday without fail, and finding time and strength to do good to others.

They have no family, but their many friends and neighbors saw to it that it was a red-letter day in their lives. Telegrams and letters of congratulations reached them from the Prime Minister, Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, from the leader of the opposition, from the Province of Ontario and from friends and relatives across the country.

Friends arranged for an "At Home" during the afternoon and evening, and together with two old friends, Mrs. Oscar Fitchett and Mrs. Fred Solmes, they were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Stewart. Flowers, cards, gifts and a multitude of good wishes are proof of the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Stover are held.

Percy Stover and Gertrude Snider were married in Kingston by the Rev. Dr. Eby in the parsonage of Brock St. Methodist Church. Mrs. Stover remembers that she wore a black lamb coat, with mink collar and lapels over a navy dress. But it is Mr. Stover who remembers the picture hat with its ostrich plumes. Kingston's finest hack drove them to the station where they took the train for Smiths Falls to spend a week with relatives. The hack, which was the taxi of that day, was on wheels, as there was so little snow.

Ever since that time their home has been in Deseronto. Mr. Stover was in business here until his retirement in 1943, at first with others, and then for himself. "I spent 45 years behind the counter", Mr. Stover remarked.

During those 60 years the church has been a second way of life. Both have held practically every office. Only recently did Mr. Stover resign as treasurer of the United Church after acting for 56 years. He is now an honorary elder, but is still active, visiting his share of the church membership.

Since his retirement Mr. Stover has had more time for gardening, but lately he has had part of the land worked by a neighbor. He still raises some vegetables, and helps Mrs. Stover with the flowers. Mrs. Stover has a second hobby. She loves making quilts, and is at present working on a top of one. She plans to donate it to the UCW, who will quilt it and offer it for sale.

The Stovers have seen many changes in Deseronto, and Mr. Stover has vivid memories of the big fire in 1896. He has great faith that some day Deseronto will return to its former days of glory when business flourished. "But it will not be in my day", he added.

Leadership Training School Attended by Junior Farmers

NAPANEE — About 60 young people from the counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, and Prince Edward, gathered at Demorestville Saturday to attend the Junior Farmers Leadership School. Attending from Lennox and Addington were Margaret Woodcock, Gail Klinck, Nancy Morrow, Diane Robers, Ron Paul, Gary Baldwin and Barton MacLean, provincial director, and the Rev. E. Irvine Johnston of Trinity United Church, who assisted with the program.

The young people had a profitable day, and enjoyed a banquet and dance in the evening.

Mr. Johnstone gave the young people some valuable pointers on program planning. He passed lightly over the usual entertainment, such as films, and told them that to be successful their programs must have variety, and must involve participation of those who attend.

PROGRAM PLANNING EXPLAINED

To demonstrate what he meant, he chose all those in a front row, called on each in turn and gave that one a topic on which he or she must speak for one minute. He followed this by copying a TV grogram, complete with singing commercial lauding Selby cheese. The singers were given the song only a few minutes ahead of time. Next he arranged an interview with Barton MacLean, bringing out the facts that he was provincial director, and that he had spent several weeks in the British Isles last summer on a travelling scholarship. Then he turned the program over to Barton, who showed slides taken on his trip and kept up a running comment.

During the afternoon the Junior Farmers heard Captain Jack Rogers of the Prince Edward County Historical Society outline the history of the Quinte area. He advised them on centennial projects which would bring out the history of their home districts.

PRESENTS RECREATION IDEAS

Mrs. Mary Hinan of Peterborough has had wide experience in recreation for young people and gave the Junior Farmers many new ideas to use in their organization.

From Alex Connell, the provincial president, the Junior Farmers learned much about the way in which the provincial body works. He described the way the travelling scholarships were awarded, and what they were, and also took his listeners behind the scenes in such things as organizing public speaking contests and field days.

During the dinner, the young people were entertained by Don Cachrane of Kingston, a professional entertainer and also a student at the Kemptville Agricultural School.

SALVATION ARMY HOME LEAGUE

DESERONTO — Deseronto Salvation Army Home League members entertained members of the Station Street Home League of Belleville Wednesday evening in the Masonic Temple in Deseronto. About 50 ladies enjoyed an evening of fellowship and fun.

Mrs. Stafford Claus welcomed the Belleville ladies and called on Envoy Mrs. Phelps to conduct the devotional period, which included singing, an opening and a closing prayer and two readings by Mrs. Claus.

The recreation activities had been planned by the Belleville ladies, with games and contests and small prizes for the winners, all under the direction of Mrs. Phyllis Lane, secretary of the Belleville branch. Mrs. Phelps then directed a hilarious game of her own, and she too gave prizes.

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP) — "Dear Sir: I have news that neither you nor the tribe will like. I am going to marry a white girl. Her name is Ruth Williams and we love each other. Seretse."

So read the cablegram that Seretse Khama, then a young African law student in London, sent 18 years ago to his uncle, regent of the Bamangwato tribe in Bechuanaland.

"It is a marriage that will split the tribe and ruin us all," said uncle Tshekedi Khama, who had brought up Seretse after the death of his father, the chief, and had ruled the tribe until Seretse finished his studies at Oxford and would be old enough to take over. But Tshekedi was only half right.

At first the tribe did refuse to accept a white queen. Seretse was banned by the British government from returning to his isolated, desert home for six years.

When Seretse renounced all claim to becoming chief, went home as plain Mr. Khama with his white wife and entered politics. Uncle Tshekedi and 43 native headmen went into exile in protest, but the old man died in 1959 after a reconciliation with Seretse, whom he had brought up as a son.

NOW PREMIER

Now Seretse Khama, 45, prime minister of Bechuanaland, rules a united though poverty-stricken country and is in London for independence talks with the British government, opening today. The main subject is financial aid after independence, expected to be set for Sept. 30. A protectorate since 1885, Bechuanaland is to become the sovereign republic of Botswana.

The troubles facing Bechuanaland make the uproar caused by Khama's marriage look petty. Drought has brought on a crop failure described as nothing less than national disaster. Cattle are being slaughtered at the rate of 1,000 head a day—three times the normal rate—because there is so little to feed them The country is dirt-poor, with only five miles of paved roads.

The economic problems shade into political ones because Bechuanaland is surrounded by white-ruled areas for which Khama's policy of multi-racialism is anathema—South Africa, its territory of Southwest Africa and Rhodesia. The country's only railway connects South Africa and Rhodesia and is jointly owned by them.

Cattle exports are Bechuanaland's only known wealth and most go to South Africa. Pressure from opposition African nationalists for a stronger line against neighboring whites is going to be intense. But the opposition is only a tiny minority. Khama's party won all but three of the 31 seats in Parliament in last year's elections.

But the good relations between the races—and his own inter-racial marriage—also may be a goad to Bechuanaland's white neighbors. There are 500,000 blacks in an area three times the size of Britain and only 5,000 whites.

"This will be a country where black and white can live together," Khama says. "An example which will help sway the policies of neighboring territories."

FAMILY RECONCILED

Mrs. Khama, now 42, who did not accompany her husband on this trip, was once a typist in a London insurance office. Her mother, a widow who originally opposed the marriage, now lives in the Khama household in Gaberones, Bechuanaland's dusty capital. Of Khama, she recently said: "He has proved to be a wonderful husband, father and son-in-law."

Says Khama:

"Ruth has been a wonderful support. We regard ourselves as a normal family—husband, wife and four children—and we are very happily married."

In Gaberones, they call the woman once rejected by her husband's tribe "the queen of Bechuanaland."

Kierans Agrees Fiscal Control Ottawa's Alone

MONTREAL (CP) — Health minister Eric Kierans said during a weekend television appearance that Quebec does not want a role in the fiscal policies of the federal government.

He said his criticism of the United States government's guidelines were personal and that there is no implication in his stand against the guidelines "that Quebec claims to have a right or prerogative here."

Mr. Kierans said "there is no question in my mind that there can only be one authority in fiscal and monetary policy."

But he said that under the existing Canadian system "collaboration and co - operation" between the provinces and the federal government are "absolutely necessary" not for any political or constitutional reasons but for "hard economic reasons."

Mr. Kierans said he does not blame the United States for establishing the guidelines.

"I do blame our own people for nor reacting to the guidelines which should not be accepted meekly or passively."

Mr. Kierans said Canada could have reacted to the guidelines by reducing its imports of U.S. goods and services or by reducing the outflow of dividends earned in Canada by U.S. firms.

With the absence of counter-pressure from Ottawa, U.S. subsidiaries in Canada have to go along with the orders they get from Washington, said Mr. Kierans.

Life Returns To Normal In Nigeria

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS (AP) — Life has returned to what passes for normal in Nigeria, Africa's most populous country, a month after the military revolt.

Nigerians discuss the policies of the new military governor, Maj. - Gen. J. T. U. Aguiyi-Ironsi, while sipping palm wine between glances at British or U.S. programs on television.

Few soldiers are seen. The police, who seemed to disappear during the uprising, have again taken up their duties. Trade union leaders who have led two general strikes in three years are promising industrial peace.

Many civil servants have adopted a smug and righteous attitude since the army ousted cabinet ministers and most political appointees.

Prices of staple foodstuffs like rice and plantains increased after the revolt, but were rolled back under army orders. Market mammies complain that persons wearing "military-looking uniforms" demand free food.

Roadblocks inside the cities have been lifted.

STILL SEND PETITIONS

Village petitions for "pipe-borne water and other amenities" now are sent to military authorities instead of politicians.

Nigerian newspapers, most of them shrill political organs before the coup, now use much space praising the military regime.

Mail is no longer opened for inspection, as it was for a week after the revolt. But the government cable office exercises strict censorship on news dispatches. All references to tribalism or corruption in the old government are deleted. Only flattering descriptions of the military rulers are accepted. (This story was sent by air mail.)

London Has 15 Rail Terminals Remnants of National Mania

By PETER BUCKLEY

With 15 railway terminals in the central London area, it requires painstaking precision for that type of meeting.

British rail, the nationalized railway system in Great Britain, claims that London has the largest number of terminals in the world.

The claim is made more in exasperation than pride. However much it costs to keep all the stations open, it would cost far more to try closing some of them and rerouting the railway lines.

Many of the stations have become familiar to Canadians, as the armies of tourists flocked to London on the heels of the wartime Canadian armies who were shunted through Waterloo, Charing Cross, Victoria, King's Cross, Euston, Paddington or one of the other great railway caverns.

"In fact, we're still prisoner of our 19th - century railway building habits," a British Rai official said in an interview.

In the dynamic early Victorian era, when free enterprise was at its most uninhibited and railway building became a national mania, railroads blossomed throughout Britain. By the end of the last century, there were more than 100 railway companies in the country.

The railways were grouped into four main organizations beginning in the 1920s and the whole system was nationalized in 1948.

BECAME FOCAL POINTS

But by then, it was really too late to do much about cutting down the number of railway stations. Many of them, built in the mid-19th century in what was then London's outskirts, had become institutions in their own right, surrounded by the mushrooming city.

Waterloo, biggest and busiest of them all, now handles some 220,000 passengers a day on its 21 platforms. Liverpool Street station, with 18 platforms, takes 210,000 passengers daily and London Bridge another 190,000. In all, an estimated 1,300,000 persons from the suburbs anr farther afield are funnelled through the 15 London terminals on an average day.

With rare exceptions, they're using facilities built for a more leisurely age.

London Bridge, built in 1836, is the oldest of the stations but most of the others were completed before 1870 and have changed little since.

The biggest London stations are vast, dingy, drafty and crowded. The others usually differ only in degree although one or two, like the 65-year-old Marylebone, are small and quiet enough to retain some charm.

COST BARS CHANGE

And attempts at major reorganization or rebuilding have run into the twin problems of zoning and cost. Except for a brief lapse between 1961 and 1964—when the small Cannon Street and Holborn Viaduct stations were rebuilt—government policy is set against any more major commercial projects in London.

In any case, London is filled with railway buffs who could be counted on to oppose attempts to demolish any of the stations.

Each terminal has its own history and its own nostalgic admirers.

Paddington only recently saw the last steam locomotive leave the London area and was long noted for its holiday trains to Cornwall and the West Country. The grimy marble of Blackfriars still bears the names of the express trains which used to leave from there for Berlin, Warsaw and Constantinople. Each of the others has an equal claim to fond memories.

British Rail, which would have liked to put office or commercial buildings above its sprawling terminals, is hamstrung.

The government advanced enough money for a £5,000,000 ($15,000,000) modernization of Euston Station, now nearing completion, but there are no plans at present for major improvements in any of the other terminals.

British Rail is still quietly simmering at the memory of one recent attempt to cash in on its now-valuable property.

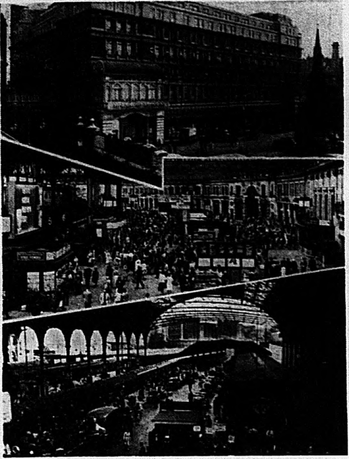
In a continuing reorganization of its freight services, British Rail decided to close down the freight yard at Marylebone Station. The 28 acres of prime west-end land freed by the move would have been worth a fortune if developed privately, British Rail believes, but various levels of government stepped in.

The result is that the freight yard is being sold to Westminster City Council for about £3,250,000 ($9,750,000) and will be replaced by public housing, parks and schools.

Two other areas would seem to be prime prospects for amalgamation. King's Cross and St. Pancras stations are just across the street from each other and their railway lines partially overlap. The same situation exists for Liverpool Street and Broad Street stations.

"But the cost of amalgamating such stations would be terrific," the British Rail spokesman said, "and it's difficult to see where the capital would come from unless we're allowed to include some commercial or office development in the overall plan.

"The future of the London terminals, in brief, looks anything but bright."



BRITISH RAILWAYS TRAPPED BY STATIONS — British Rail, the nationalized railways system in Great Britain, has a system of stations too expensive to maintain and too costly to reduce. The central London area alone has 15 terminals, most of them built in the 19th century. Three of the better-known stations are: (from top) Charing Cross, Waterloo and Victoria. (CP Photo)

Back-bench Liberals Said Grumbling About Lack of Organization

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Pearson government's lack of a majority in the Commons has produced some grumbling among back-bench Liberals about organization in the prime minister's office and some open criticism of the party itself.

They say the prime minister now is relying more heavily on the civil service bureaucracy for advice, and less on the professional politicians.

With the move of Tom Kent, his former policy secretary, to the deputy minister's post in the immigration department, Mr. Pearson, a former civil servant, now gets his political advice mainly from his cabinet.

And a handful of MPs are concerned that the ministers closest to him are those who were ministers or high civil servants in the former St. Laurent and King administrations. They think the government is embarking on a period of perhaps business-like but uninspired work.

TOO LITTLE ADVICE

These MPs, naturally stressing the importance of their own role, argue that the troubles the Liberal government got into during the last Parliament were not because Mr. Pearson received too much political advice but because he got too little.

The prime minister attended, and still does, the weekly sessions of the caucus of party MPs and senators. But informants say these sessions seldom dealt with impending issues. Instead, the MPs were often caught by surprise when an issue or piece of legislation landed on the Commons floor.

They say the prime minister needs regular advice from a person or group who can give a concensus of caucus, which is a reflection of the opinions and feeling of the public.

Some MPs say the prime minister needs an improved press relations office, arguing that a major Liberal failure before and during the last election campaign was to get across effectively to the people the list of government accomplishments.

USED CRITICAL WORDS

In Toronto last Tuesday, Health Minister MacEachen had some critical words for the party itself, and he did not exclude himself.

"I hope that the election experience will serve to dethrone the polls as a guide to public opinion," he told the Toronto Liberal Businessmen's Club.

"Political parties, in Canada and elsewhere, are coming dangerously close to the point where a survey or a public opinion poll is prerequisite to every major decision."

Parties have a tendency to lean too heavily on public opinion surveys "instead of deciding what is beneficial to the country and in the best interests of the public generally."

The grumbling back - bench MPs agree with these words, but claim the ~~only~~ successful way of driving a program home to the public is on a continuing basis. This they say, requires an objective but forceful selling job from the prime minister's office all the time, not just during an election campaign.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

TRANSPORT DRIVERS

A transport driver is one who works for an employer whose principal business is the transporting of goods and passengers and whose duties require him to be away from the municipality or metropolitan area where his employer's business is located.

A taxpayer who drives a truck around the city or area where his employer's business is located is not recognized as a "Transport Driver" and is not entitled to any of the deductions allowed to a "Transport driver."

A transport driver who is away from his employer's place of business in the performance of his duties may deduct any outlay for meals and lodging for which he has not been reimbursed. He must be prepared to substantiate such deductions by the proper receipts. He should obtain a TL2 form, complete it and attach it to his income tax return.

I have received numerous letters from transport drivers who deliver bread and pastries from the central bakery to all parts of their district including various towns and cities, asking why their expense claims were disallowed. Such claims have to be disallowed as the employer's principal business is baking and not the transportation of goods or passengers as laid down in Section 11 (7) of the Income Tax Act.

A transport driver with a regular run will only need to submit receipts for one trip and verification from his employer as to the number of trips made in the year. On the other hand the "tramp driver" or one with no regular run should keep a running record for each trip and submit such records with as many receipts as possible to verify his claim.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am a transport driver on a cross country run. I leave home at 3 a.m. and must use my car to get to the terminal as no buses are running at that hour. Can I claim the cost of operating my car?

Answer: No.

Question 2: I drive a transport between Hamilton and Toronto. I have to buy my noon meal away from home. Can I deduct the cost of the meals?

Answer: No. You would not appear to be away for over 12 hours.

Count E. de Villefranche, French nobleman, sportsman and car enthusiast was skeptical that a new Ford could ride quieter than a hand fitted Citroen Chapron made by the greatest custom coachbuilder in France . . . but then he drove the Ford.

...until he drove the Ford.

Ford's Quiet Man, who recently demonstrated the exceptional quality of the 1966 Ford to owners of some of the world's most expensive cars, here discusses the '66 Ford XL with Count Villefranche at Chateau Villarceaux outside Paris.

Compare your car with the quiet of Ford's solidly built body. Take a "Quiet Test" today.

"Ah, your Ford is not only beautiful, it is quieter!" said Count Villefranche, after driving the '66 Ford.

No wonder the Count was surprised. He drives a very quiet car himself. The Citroen Chapron "Majestic", the most exclusive car made in France today—custom built by the great Henri Chapron. The "springs" of this car are spheres of nitrogen, the body is all leather-lined, even the roof, and every part is fitted by hand.

But when the Count had finished driving the Ford XL, he said "It seems to me most remarkable that a factory-made car like this Ford could be more quiet, more grand luxe, than a car made individually by craftsmen".

Compare your car with a '66 Ford and you'll begin to understand the Count's surprise. Ford's quiet ride is the result of more built-in quality—a strong, solid body with quality to compare with the world's most expensive automobiles. It gives you years of dependable operation, years of satisfying ownership.

You also get Ford's wonderful new ideas for your comfort and convenience. Stereo Tape players. Silent-Flo ventilation. A "Magic Doorgate" on wagons that swings open like a door, or swings down like a tailgate. And a host of other features first offered by Ford.

Drive your car to your Ford Dealer. Then compare the quiet ride you get from Ford's solid quality.

The injury "whammy" getting in its deadly nefarious work may prove the stopping block to Bobby Hull's headlong dash to a 51-goals record this season.

The crippling gremlin struck with devastating force last week. Swollen knuckles after a hassle was bad enough but a leg injury incurred over the weekend may have far-reaching effects.

Six goals separates Hull from a hockey-scoring record and the Hawks have twenty games left. Take out a possible four "misses" and that by simple arithmetic leaves 16 games in which he must score that tough half-dozen.

Staunch Hull fans are concerned over the fact that hockey history is repeating itself. Last season, he scored 35 goals in his first 37 games, suffered a knee injury and accounted for only four more over the rest of the schedule route.

A report from Toronto states that the Hawks superstar will also have a light cast on that bruised hand when he returns to the hockey wars.

It seems that the gods, the whammies, the gremlins or whatever controls the playing destinies of hockey stars have placed a definite "second-half" jinx on Hull.

Point Anne's blonde star will now need everything going for him in his stretch drive for that elusive 51 goals record. The traditional horseshoe of good luck won't be enough. What the gods of good fortune need to throw his way is a blacksmith shop.

The forced layoff, if it stretches to ten days or more will see Hull miss games with Boston twice, New York and Montreal.

On the brighter side of the picture is Hull's uncanny ability of scoring goals in clusters. He has rammed home "bunches of three" twice, "fours" twice and deuces not a few. After all, sixteen games is quite a spread and if he is recovered fully enough to regain his form, that six-goal target may be shot down in short order.

In his record to date Hull has shown he is no respector of goal-keepers. Every one in the league has experienced the vicious impact of his bullet-like drives.

Of his 45 goals to date Hull has scored 11 against Rangers, 10 against the Leafs, nine against Boston, eight against Montreal and seven against Detroit.

Seven times Leafs Terry Sawchuk and Detroit's Roger Crozier have reached behind and pulled a Hull-driven puck out of the net. But they played against him more times than the others.

Gump Worsley has rescued six Hull pucks with Rangers Ed Giacomin pulling out five. Rangers Cesare Maniago and Bruins Gerry Cheevers each have the "honor" of looking behind them four times in a single game and finding a Hull puck in the hemp.

Chico Maki has been Hull's right bower in the helpmeet department. Maki has helped set up 14 goals; Stan Mikita and Pierre Pilote extended a helping stick in ten; Phil Esposito eight; Don Mohns and Pat Stapleton six, "Red" Hay four and Ken Wharram three.

In the meanwhile Hull fans are keeping their fingers crossed. He has remarkable recuperative powers and will emerge, they hope, from his enforced rest with the power and drive that has brought him to within speaking distance of the scoring record.

The goal-a-game caper is not beyond the realm of possibility but it means a personal record only. Hull has played in 45 games, missing five and scoring 45 goals. There are 20 games to go less those missed by the layoff.

'Hockey Night In St. Louis' Assured

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A St. Louis group filed an application and $10,000 for a National Hockey League franchise Monday.

Sid Salomon Jr., an insurance executive, said in a telegram from New York he presented the application to William Jennings, president of New York Rangers of the NHL, head of the league's expansion committee.

Salomon said his son, Sid Salomon III, Eliot H. Stein, an investment broker, and other prominent St. Louis persons will be associated with him.

Although the league had expressed earlier interest in St. Louis for league expansion, no St. Louis group had filed an application and none appeared when the NHL governors and president Clarence Campbell met in New York last week to award six new franchises.

"We were afraid that if no strong St. Louis group showed up, the franchise would go to another city," Salomon said.

BALTIMOR. IN WINGS

The NHL governors did, in fact, decide that Baltimore would get a franchise instead of St. Louis, if no St. Louis group made a satisfactory application by April 5.

A key to the franchise is the 16,000-seat St. Louis Arena. The price has been rumored at about $4,000,000. Its owners, Arthur Wirtz and James Norris of Chicago Black Hawks, must sell it before a local NHL club could operate there.

The price of a franchise is $2,000,000, which will entitle each new club to purchase 20 players from the present six teams. Another $1,000,000 will be needed for operating expenses.

Salomon is scheduled to negotiate today with Emory Jones, general manager of the arena. A later conference is expected with Norris and Wirtz.

The NHL, expanding to 12 teams for the 1967-68 season, gave its other new franchises to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Cooke Spurns County

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"The die is cast," was Jack Kent Cooke's way of explaining why he refuses to locate his new National Hockey League franchise in Los Angeles County's 15,100-seat sports arena.

Cooke said Monday that a proposed meeting with the Coliseum commission to discuss the matter would be "fruitless."

Shortly after he was awarded the NHL franchise last week, the former Toronto broadcaster and sportsman announced he would build a 16,000 - seat, $7,000,000 arena that would also be suitable for his Los Angeles Lakers, a National Basketball Association team.

Officials said the loss of the Lakers and the emergence of a pro hockey club competing with Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League, already based in the sports arena, would leave the county facility little more than a convention centre.

Replied Cooke:

"In good faith, I presented the plans for a new arena to the board of governors of the National Hockey League and in the same good faith they accepted them and me.

"Consequently the die is cast and I cannot in observance of my promise to the NHL board of governors abandon the commitment I have made to them."

He added that he was willing to meet with county officials at any time, but that "such a meeting would be fruitless because I am committed to the building of an arena."

Denies Punch Line

TORONTO (CP) —Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Monday he is satisfied Leaf coach Punch Imlach did not charge the National Hockey League with selling out Vancouver in its expansion plans.

Publisehd reports quoted Imlach as saying:

"Television is the answer to Vancouver's rejection. Montreal and Toronto would have had to share their TV with Vancouver if they'd let Vancouver in. Better to split the loot two ways, I guess, instead of three."

Smythe said Vancouver blew its chance for a berth in the NHL because of a weak presentation to the NHL owners when they met in New York last week.

"Punch made some statements about television," Smythe went on. "But I am satisfied he did not charge the league with selling out Vancouver."

Wysong Nips Dickinson

5-Under 66 Wins Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — On Monday morning Dudley Wysong's official 1966 professional golf earnings totalled zero, he was looking for his first pro victory and he was wondering how he'd ever get into the field for the $200,000 Carling Open.

Today he's $9,000 richer, has joined the winners fraternity and is assured of a trip to England for the big-money Carling event Aug. 27-Sept. 3.

Wysong stormed from six strokes off the pace with a five-under-par 66 Monday to catch veteran Gardner Dickinson Jr. and win the $60,000 Phoenix Open. The victory qualified him for the Carling.

Dickinson led for the first three rounds, but finally succumbed to an ailing back and Wysong's furious charge.

Wysong had roundr of 73-69-70-66 for a six-under-par 278 on the 6,756-yard, Phoenix Country Club course, a par 36-35—71 layout.

Dickinson, who shot 66-69-71-73, finished a stroke back at 279 and pocketed second - place money of $5,000. Gene Littler, who fashioned 17 pars and a birdie into a closing 70, finished third at 280.

Imlach To Scout Europe

Imlach is going to the 1966 world hockey tournament in Ljublajana Yugoslavia.

"It's been suggested that I go and take a look at some of the talent," he said.

The Leaf brass figured it was a good idea, particularly in view of NHL expansion slated for the 1967-68 season.

'Grandpa Stanley, I Presume'

By DAVE O'HARA

BOSTON (AP)—Allan Stanley, the oldest defenceman in the National Hockey League, is whistling a "life begins at 40" tune thanks to an off-season job working with youngsters at a summer camp.

Booed out of New York in 1954 and considered washed up by Boston Bruins in 1958, Stanley, who will be 40 March 1, is completing his 18th season in the NHL as a top defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I feel great and I'm looking forward to playing at least one more season." the six-foot-two 190-pound veteran said. "I'm not even thinking of quitting the way things are going."

Stanley credits his work as an instructor at a hockey camp run by Milt Schmidt, coach of the Bruins, for extending his career in the rugged NHL.

GIVES HIM YEAR

"I've worked at the camp at Byrnell Manor in Fenelon Falls, Ont., the last two years and I'm certain it already has given me one more year of playing," he explained on a recent visit to Boston with the Maple Leafs.

"We go for 10 weeks from late June until early September and I'm on the ice working with kids 7 to 17 at least four hours a day. I don't actually work hard, but I'm skating and keeping my legs in shape.

"The last two training camps with Toronto have been the easiest of my career. All I've had to do is develop my wind and timing.

"The last two years I haven't lost anything around the thighs. Skating has kept my legs in shape year - round. And legs are 50 per cent of hockey."

Kingston Wins Openers

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A couple of late rallies failed to earn Belleville teams a win here last night as the Kinsmen bantams and Western Tire midgets dropped 5-4 decisions to Kingston in OMHA playdown thrillers.

The midgets overcame a third-period 4-0 deficit before bowing in a ten - minute overtime period.

Belleville bantams never did quite catch up to Kingston but made it close with two late goals after trailing 5-2 early in the third.

Second games in both two-of-three series will be played in Kingston on Saturday, as well as the second game of a similar peewee set. Kingston peewees open against Rollins here Wednesday, at 7.30.

Big Mike Healey, Belleville's six - foot plus, 200 - pound defenceman, still bantam age, was both the hero and the goat for the local midgets.

He scored two unassisted goals, at 18.41 and 18.58 of the third period to tie the score 4-4. Seconds later he drew an elbowing penalty and was still off when Kingston's Murray Douglas netted the winning goal at 1.05 of the ten - minute overtime.

Bob Beecher started Belleville's comeback at 4.50 of the third with his club's initial goal. Kingston had two men off when Cal Wilson made it 4-2 at 10.38. Healey's first deflected in off a Kingston skate. He worked in close for the equalizer on the next play.

Kingston potted two in the first, by Jim Murtaugh and Douglas, adding powerplay goals by Ron Plumb and Paul Gavel in the second.

There were 21 penalties in the rugged contest between two solid, well - coached clubs. Belleville took the odd one of the total.

In the bantam battle, the Kinsmen started clicking a bit too late, trailing 1-0 and 3-1 by periods before holding a 3-2 edge in the third.

Bill Buchanan, at 16:28, and Dennis MacCormack, at 19:41, made it a 5-4 game. That set the stage for a dramatic finish, with six attackers in action, but the clock ran out.

MacCormack scored Belleville's second goal after 40 seconds of the period, making it 3-2, but Tom Nesmith and John Dover increased the winners' margin to 5-2 before the late rally.

Earlier, Kingston took a 3-0 lead on Dover's first-period goal after just 35 seconds, and markers by Nesmith and Evan Clark, after Steve Moore had tied it for Belleville early in the second.

There were nine penalties, six to Kingston. Each side scored twice with manpower advantages. A couple of deflected goals, from scrambles, hurt the losers' cause greatly.

Belleville goalies Dave Clarke and Ron Jury, and Kingston counterparts Bruce Landon and John Conner, were called on for some great saves during the two games.

Nairobi Sensation

Keino Looms As Games Star

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Watch out for the name of Kipchoge Keino of Nairobi in the eighth British Empire and Commonwealth Games in Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 4-13.

He's the 26-year-old African capable of making his name ring around the world just as miler Roger Bannister and marathon runner Jim Peters, both of England, did in the 1954 Games in Vancouver.

Remember those Games in Vancouver?

Roger Bannister, the English doctor and first man to break the four - minute - mile barrier, defeated the then holder of the mile record, John Landy of Australia, in a race described by The Times as "The greatest mile race of all."

Landy built up his lead until near the end, then looked over his shoulder and Bannister went storming through to win in 3:58.8 with Landy finishing second in 3:59.6.

Bannister's victory was a triumph. But marathon runner Jim Peters made his name echo by failing to win.

Peters came into the steam heat of the stadium way ahead of his opponents—many said with as much as 15 minutes to spare—but the 26 miles torment had taken its toll.

UP AND DOWN

He stumbled and fell. He got up. And again stumbled and fell. He tried to reach the tape like a drunk trying to make his last train.

Peters failed—but his courage in failing is spelled out in the record books and pictures as though it were a victory.

Bannister's victory and Peters' failure highlight the history of British Empire and Commonwealth Games, first staged at Hamilton in 1930.

Now it's time for the African nations to take over the spotlight.

And Keino, breaker of world records over 3,000 and 5,000 metres, is the man to do it.

"You don't know when a record is going to be broken," he once said. "You go out and run, and I'm going to run like crazy in the British Commonwealth Games."

He could find himself against Australia's Ron Clarke—the athlete named sportsman of the year in most European polls—in the 5,000 metres in Kingston. Keino defeated Clarke over that distance in Australia just before the end of 1965.

Clarke is the holder of the world records for 10,000 metres, three miles and 10 miles.

A record number of entries from 36 countries is expected for the Kingston Games—track and field, boxing, swimming and diving, badminton, cycling, fencing, shooting, weight-lifting and wrestling.

Has Nine 30-Goal Seasons

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Dick Gamble, the American Hockey League's scoring leader, has become the first player in AHL history to put together nine 30-goal seasons.

The veteran, who plays left wing for Rochester Americans, scored his 30th and 31st goals of the season Sunday night against Springfield Indians. Gamble, No. 5 on the league's all-time goal-scoring list with 355, has missed the 30-goal plateau only once in his 10-year AHL career.

Weekly AHL statistics released today show Gamble with 65 points, six more than Gerry Melnyk of Buffalo Bisons, in the current point derby. Gamble, however, is one goal behind Buffalo's Al Caron, the leader with 32. Melnyk tops the league in assists with 47.

Rookie Gary Bauman of Quebec Aces is the leading goalie with a 2.66 goals-against average in 44 games. Bauman, however, is out of action with a back injury and may be through for the season.

HALAS' WIFE DIES

Barkley Return Unlikely

DETROIT (AP)—Doug Barkley, Detroit Red Wings' all-star defenceman, says he will have to undergo additional surgery for correction of a detached retina and it is unlikely he will return to action this year.

Barkley, reached in his hospital room Monday, said he does not know when the operation will be performed or where.

Barkley has been in Detroit Osteopathic Hospital since he suffered an eye injury in a game against Chicago Jan. 30. He underwent emergency surgery after he was struck in the eye by the stick of Chicago's Doug Mohns.

Although it was hoped Barkley would be released from the hospital this week, Red Wing manager-coach Sid Abel said the defenceman would remain there until just before the second operation.

After examination Monday, Barkley said doctors told him he can expect full vision eventually.

Orr Ties Own Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a big week for scorers in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

Bobby Orr of Oshawa Generals tied his own record for goals in one season by a defenceman when he ran his total to 34; Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes opened up an 18-point lead atop the scoring list, and the Petes' line of Lacroix, Danny Grant and Mickey Redmond surpassed the 100-goal mark by nine.

Lacroix has 33 goals and 73 assists for 106 points while Orr is second with 54 assists to go with his 34 goals for 88 points. Grant is third with 39 goals, 44 assists and 83 points. Redmond is fourth with 81 points on 37 goals and 44 assists.

In goaltending, Bobby Ring of Niagara Falls Flyers, idle for three weeks in favor of netminder Dunc Wilson, got back into action and regained the lead with a 3.16 goals-against mark. Brian Caley of Peterborough is second with 3.18.

BACKS AFL TEAMS

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Otto Graham, an outspoken man who never pulls his punches, said Monday that Buffalo Bills and San Diego Chargers of the American Football League could compete with teams in the National Football League. As Graham is the new coach and general manager of Washington Redskins, these remarks at his first appearance in NFL surroundings were somewhat startling.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—It was a great night for hunch bettors at Windsor Raceway Monday.

Owned by J. and C. Foster of Northville, Mich., Love Byrd took the lead in the backstretch and won by 2¼ lengths over runner - up Sugar Hill Mont. Love Byrd, at 8 to 5, paced the mile in 2:10 and returned $5.50, $3.50 and $2.50.

The Feb. 14 theme was carried into the exactor wagering in the fifth and seventh races when horses wearing Nos. 1 and 4 finished first and second both times.

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Napanee Defeats Seaboards

Picton Seaboards may be in first place in the OHA Lakeshore Intermediate league but the tact didn't carry much weight in Napanee last night.

Napanee whipped the Seaboards by a 12-8 count.

The winners never trailed, moving ahead 3-1 in the first and building an 8-5 lead after two periods.

Willie Menard, J. Brady and McNevin shared Napanee's scoring spotlight with three goals apiece. Davy, Cruji and Paul McGill added one each.

Fred James had a big night in a losing effort, scoring five goals for Picton. Roland Berry netted a pair and Claude Schraeder got the other one.

Picton collected seven of the game's dozen penalties. Included were fighting majors to each side.

The Seaboards play host to Trenton RCAF in Picton, at 8.30, tonight.

Won't Know Until Friday

Crothers-Farrell Duel Now Uncertain

NEW YORK (AP)—Tommy Farrell has a tip for athletes: Stay away from that television set. It's tough on the legs.

Tommy didn't. He treated himself to some television a week ago and now it's uncertain whether the little runner from St. John's College, Brooklyn, N.Y., will be able to race against Bill Crothers Friday night in the New York Athletic Club indoor games.

"There's no real answer on Farrell,' St. John's coach Steve Bartold said Monday. "All we can do is pray. We won't know whether he'll race or not until he warms up Friday night.

"Tommy was sitting in an awkward position watching TV last week," Bartold explained. "When he got up, he got a cramp in his leg. You know how it is. You can do the same thing. With an athlete, it's worse."

The cramp came back last weekend halfway around the first turn in a 600-yard race in the United States Track and Field Federation invitation meet. Farrell pulled up and didn't finish.

WON LAST YEAR

It was in the same race last year, the last time they met indoors, that Farrell led Crothers to the tape in an indoor record 1:49.8. Crothers, however, had run himself into exhaustion in an extensive string of consecutive meets and had collapsed in a meet just the week before. He had been a questionable entry until just before race time.

So this year's clash, potentially the top event on a sparkling NYAC card and perhaps one of the top clashes of the season, has a reverse twist to it.

Crothers has been out of competition for two weeks, quietly training for the rematch while Farrell has run himself into trouble. In his last two races he suffered his first defeat of the season and then had to pull out.

"It's the luck of racing," Bartold said. "If they're both healthy, it could go under 1:49. But if Crothers doesn't choose to go in front or Tommy isn't able to, it might not go under 1:50."

Heart Attacks Kill More Hunters Than Do Accidents

By HAL BOYLE

The U.S. now has more than 3,000,000 divorcees. . . . Nearly 450,000 couples part by divorce or annulment each year. . . About half do so within the first six years of marriage.

How hard is your wife on nylons? . . . The average woman uses 12 pairs a year, but some career gals use up to 30 pairs.

Prosperity note from old Nippon: A survey showed that the average touri to Japan spends $29 a day while there. . . . And that doesn't include tips.

Science has found that infants can be born with the "dope habit." . . . If a mother takes a certain amount of heroin intravenously each day, her child at birth will be a narcotics addict.

Quotable notables: "We must interpret a bad temper as the sign of an inferiority complex"—Dr. Alfred Adler.

Arms and the man: More hunters die from heart attacks each season than from firearms accidents.

Sociologists say about 90 per cent of juvenile delinquents show the pattern of their future by the age of 10. . . . They list such warning signs as stubbornness, emotional instability, destructiveness and defiance. (But what parent in the land doesn't feel that is an exact description of his 10-year-old child?)

It isn't wealth that makes you fat—it's poverty. . . , The American Medical Association has estimated that obesity is six times as common among poor women than well-to-do women, twice as common among poor men as rich ones.

Worth remembering: "Always listen to the opinions of others. It probably won't do you any good, but it will them."

Big blow: Insurance adjusters say that Hurricane Betsy probably was the most costly single disaster in American history. . . . They figure the damage at more than $1,000,000,000, $750,000,000 of which was covered by insurance. . . . That is more than twice as high as the calamitous 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire, in which losses exceeded $350,000,000.

Traffic problems are nothing new. . . . Julius Caesar once tried to solve congestion in Rome's business district by restricting the parking of chariots. . . . It didn't work.

It was Margaret Mead, the anthropologist, who observed, "women want mediocre men, and men are working as hard to be mediocre as possible."

"Just Sounding Off"

Campbell Hits Back At CAHA

MONTREAL (CP)—It's ludicrous to refer to Canada as a gigantic slave farm for hockey, Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday night.

Canadians who play hockey are anything but slaves, what with the salaries they're earning, he said.

Campbell, replying in an interview to a statement made in Calgary Saturday by Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said: "I think the man just sounded off."

Juckes had said the announcement of the expansion of the NHL to 12 teams—10 of them in the United States—was the "final sellout" of Canadian hockey as a sport by professionals. "With that announcement went any idea that professional hockey gives a damn about our sport—except as a moneymaker for a chosen few."

JUCKES ATTACKS 'BARONS'

Juckes said: "The money barons of the NHL and their equally avaricious new associates have relegated Canada to the role of a gigantic slave farm."

Campbell replied: "As far as the current National Hockey League teams are concerned, this expansion of the game of hockey as played at the professional level will not materially improve the financial position of the existing clubs simply because we sell all the tickets we can.

"Far from being an effort to relegate Canada's role in the field hockey to a lesser and undesirable status, it has greatly enhanced the status of hockey as a sport. Right to start with, it's created 120 new opportunities to play in the NHL which is the ambition of every Canadian hockey player."

LIKES SOLUNAR TABLES

Dear Sir:

We are originally from Islington, Ont., now in England. People we met in Torquay used to live near Belleville. They are also living here and friends in Canada send them your paper from time to time. They pass it on to us. We like to keep in touch with the Canadian scene. Now, what has prompted me to write to you was an article in your paper published some time ago, which was very interesting, entitled — "You and Your Solunar Periods".

The author mentions solunar periods and the use of solunar tables. Where can I procure one of these? Any information you can give me would be greatly appreciated. In closing, may I say I enjoy your paper for it gives news of places I know so well in your part of Ontario, especially Havelock, Madoc, Tweed and of course, Belleville. Thought you might be interested in one of our local papers which I am sending under separate cover. Our big news of course comes in the London papers published by another fellow Canadian citizen or was. "Baron Thomson Roy" — he seems to be doing pretty good over on this side.

Montreal Anglers and Hunters Fight Against Water Pollution

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—The giant outdoor billboard, usually reserved for pickle or soft-drink advertisements, reads:

Stop Killing Lake St. Louis—Fight its Pollution Now—Contact Anti-Pollution Committee, Montreal Anglers and Hunters.

The sign, with a Montreal telephone number, is one of a group donated to the anti-pollution forces by outdoor advertising companies and is part of a stepped-up publicity campaign being conducted by the Montreal-based conservation group.

Montreal Anglers and Hunters hope such steps will awaken the public to the dangers of pollution and will bring pressure to bear on the provincial and federal government agencies responsible for the preservation of Canada's lakes and streams

Lake St. Louis—a widening of the St. Lawrence River at the west end of Montreal Island—laps on the shores of such fashionable communities as Dorval and Pointe Claire.

It is but one of the bodies of water surrounding Montreal that have become polluted to the extent that they are no longer safe for fish, game or swimmers.

Peter Luke, one of 26 directors of the Montreal Anglers and Hunters organization, says that the lake and some district rivers are so badly polluted they have become toxic.

FACE BIGGEST PROBLEM

"It is always being pointed out that pollution is the biggest domestic problem the U.S. faces," Luke said in an interview.

"But the problem in the Montreal area is as bad as it is anywhere in the United States. I don't think our governments are making the efforts to correct it that the American authorities are.

"There's only one way to get action at a government level and that's to force the politician's hand through the people that elect him to office."

Luke, who with another director, Phil Graydon, handles the anti-pollution work for the organization, said his group has circulated petitions throughout the Montreal area.

"We are aiming for 200,000 signatures, but we expect to gather only about half of that," he said. "When they are completed we will show the petitions to the various mayors of municipalities involved and then present them to Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre Laporte, the cabinet member responsible."

Luke said he understands that in Ontario, the Toronto Anglers and Hunters club has a similar movement afoot.

The urgency of the matter was discussed at the annual convention of the Quebec Wildlife Federation, held recently at Quebec City. It is understood that the theme of next year's meetings will be anti-pollution legislation.

START LOCALLY

The Quebec outdoors organizations realize it will be a long climb to get "cohesion at a federal level," Luke said. "But there's still enough we can do locally to get this thing rolling."

The Montreal outdoors enthusiast said his organization attempted to get backing from other provincial groups at the Quebec meetings, but was unable to muster sufficient support.

"Until we get a united front and our publicity campaign and petitions start to exert pressure, we'll attack the problem from a local level by getting the mayors of various municipalities to study it.

"We'd like to gain enough strength to force the municipalities bordering on water to install proper sewage disposal plants, and to stop indiscriminate dumping of garbage and snow removed from streets into the waters."

He said there is no excuse for Lake St. Louis being polluted with domestic sewage.

Area waterways affected by industrial and domestic pollution include the St. Lawrence, Riviere des Prairies, the Ottawa and the North rivers.

Luke said that his organization and the Quebec Wildlife Federation should have strong evidence to present when the Canadian Council of Resources Ministers meets here in 1967.

Gene Kelly's Show Pleasant One for Valentine Viewers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS had a pleasant valentine for viewers in Monday night's Gene Kelly in New York, New York—A singing, dancing hour-long love note about the big city.

The show spun all over town on a crazy guided tour, breaking out of the usual confining sets that make so many variety shows look alike.

There was Kelly dancing down a real McDougal Alley in Greenwich Village, tripping lightly around the court of the Museum of Modern Art, skating in the Rockefeller Centre ice rink, roller skating in Central Park and touching a lot of other famous bases in between.

Sandwiched in were a couple of comedy numbers by Woody Allen, plus a number of song-and-dance numbers by Kelly and Tommy Steele, a British boy in a current Broadway hit, and Gower Champion, back in his dancing shoes after too long an absence.

The format is one that lends itself to repetition in tuneful salutes to other great cities.

NBC estimates more than 5,000,000 homes in the United States are equipped with color television sets and expects the figure to double by the end of the year. The current figure is 85 per cent higher than it was a year ago and indicates that about one U.S. home in 10 now can see programs in color.

Recommended tonight:
CBS Reports, 10-11 EST, The Divorce Dilemma, a study of a national problem; The Anatomy of Pop, ABC, 10-11, a study of the "music explosion" with Duke Ellington, Tony Bennett and the Dave Clark Five.

Lake Ontario Two Feet Higher Than Year Ago

By A. F. MAHAN

All the lakes are up—from a couple of inches to a couple of feet — compared with a year ago, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' lake survey expects them to keep right on rising until July.

Michigan and Huron, rebounding from 1964 and 1965 all-time lows, already are up one foot, five inches over mid-February of 1965 and are expected to add almost another two feet by the end of July.

The forecast is that Erie and Ontario will add within fractions of another foot. Erie already is 10 inches and Ontario an even two feet ahead of a year ago.

Superior, on which compensating gates were opened last fall to feed lower lakes, is two inches ahead of a year ago and the forecast is for another half-foot gain there.

FELL IN FALL

The big upsurge is due to heavy precipitation in the fall of 1965, which brought that year's average for the Great Lakes basin up to 36.89 inches, compared with only 24.92 in 1963, 29.56 in 1964, and a long-term average of 31.02 inches annually.

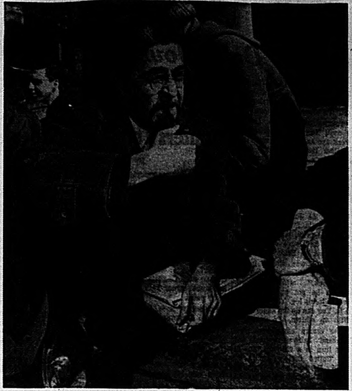
Smaller inland lakes, whose levels sagged with those of the Great Lakes, now are higher. So are streams which feed the Great Lakes and the ground water table generally is up.

Lake St. Clair, a major connecting link between Huron and Erie, is one foot, seven inches up from mid-February 1965 and is expected to gain almost this much more by mid-year.

July levels are expected to be above average for the last 10 years on all the lakes and even above the 1960 - 1965 average on Lake Superior. The Ontario level is expected virtually to be even with the all-time average by next Aug. 1.

SOLD TO RUSSIA

The TV record of the Canadian-Russian hockey game of Dec. 28, 1965, is the first North American TV program to be sold to Russia.



PACIFIST PLAYWRIGHT WITH PASSION FOR POLITICS — Dan Daniels, Montreal playwright, former sailor, actor and editor but constant politician, sits on the sidewalk in front of the U.S. consulate in Montreal during a protest over the Viet Nam war. He was once a member of the Canadian Seaman's Union and the Communist party but dropped the party in favor of a Gandhian-type nuclear pacifism. One project at the moment is to convert separatists from violence to "non-violent direct action." (CP Photo)

Playwright Dan Daniels Tries To Be Several Men at a Time

By MALCOLM REID

MONTREAL (CP)—Dan Daniels has a history of trying to be several men at a time.

When he was a merchant sailor, he would act with Australian drama troupes during shore leaves. In Montreal, he once brought a theatrical troupe to the docks to play for his fellow crew members.

And always he has been up to his turtle-neck in politics. It was a waterfront labor war with political repercussions that ended his career as a sailor.

At 42, Daniels is a bespectacled Montreal landlubber whose main trade is writing. A three-act play of his won a Western Quebec Drama Festival award in 1964. But he is as likely to be found discussing sit-ins with separatists as scenery with a stage manager.

His latest project involves combing Canadian history, particularly that of Quebec, for early traces of "non-violent direct action," the Gandhian technique of resisting one's opponent without doing him bodily harm.

"After the conquest, French-Canadian settlers hid their money from British tax-collectors and their sons when they were wanted for the army," he says. "There has always been a non-violent tradition in French Canada."

BECAME COMMUNIST

Daniels has changed his outlook over the years.

"I used to tell myself 'You've got to be a realist,' but now I'm coming back to the libertarian ideas I had when I was young."

In earlier days he became a shipboard leader of the Canadian Seamen's Union, which grouped the bulk of Canadian Great Lakes sailors, until 1948. He also joined the Communist party, which he saw as the "realistic" weapon for changing the world.

The leadership of the CSU was Communist-oriented, but Daniels insists the union did not take orders from the Communist party.

"The union was run by the men from below, and many times during strikes I told the party to mind its own business, to raise money and leave the strike to the sailors."

During the final days of the CSU, Daniels was already moving from the belaying-pin to the typewriter—he edited the CSU newspaper up to the day the union went out of existence. After the CSU era, he quit the Communist party and hunted around for a revolutionary movement more to his taste, finally settling with post-Hiroshima nuclear pacifism.

He likes to tell younger proponents of non-violence, whom he has taught the principles of the Gandhian struggle, about methods he used in his CSU days—shooting the tires of cars bringing non-union workers to strikebound ships, for example.

"That bothers them," he says. "But I think they should know what you are sometimes faced with in practical situations."

Non violent methods are catching on even with those who first were drawn to violence, he says, pointing to a hunger strike by Quebecers imprisoned for terrorism. He would like to convert the separatist movement, and has been interviewed by separatist publications as one who, despite hesitant French, speaks "the language of liberty"

The two major tests of his philosophy in Quebec have been sit-ins of 1964 at the La Macaza, Que., Bomarc base and the 1965 demonstrations at the United States consulate in Montreal in sympathy with Negro civil rights marchers in Alabama and against U.S. action in Viet Nam.

Daniels says both base guards and the American consul, while unmoved by the demonstrators' message, were forced to react to their approach, a prime aim of the non-violent militant.

During the consulate picketing the other Daniels, the playwright, was a busy man too, preparing his drama "The Audition" for the drama festival. It was the only English-language entry in a full complement of Canadian plays, and was later performed for a week professionally at a downtown theatre.

To everyone's surprise, it had nothing to do with war, peace or politics—on the surface, anyway. It was an allegory about the thin lines dividing reality from illusion, youth from age, set in a theatre dressing room and involving an aged actor who makes a young one trade lives with him.

"I'll always be involved in political struggle," Daniels says, "but I'll always be a story teller, too."

New Showing Professors Praise New "Kwaheri"

University professors and high school teachers of anthropology and world history are elaborate in their praise of the new African film, "Kwaheri."

Educators point out that with the coming of the new supersonic Jets within the next few years, Africa will be but 4½ hours travel time from this country. They believe it vitally important to every young person's education today that they have the opportunity to see films like "Kwaheri" that give audiences a genuine and true insight to other distant lands, their problems, their rituals and customs.

"Kwaheri" was 55-months in filming. Camera work was handled by Mike Carter. Film was produced by veterans Thor Brooks and David Chudnow. This exciting movie is currently showing at the Park Theatre today and Wednesday only.

On the same program "The Walls of Hell" is the blazing saga of the liberation of Intramuros, the walled city of Manila . . Historical Authentic filmed where it happened with a cast of thousands and starring Jock Mahoney. Complete shows are at 7:00 and 8:40 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid, and Miss Sally Potter of London spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Potter, and attended the celebration of their grandparents' 50th anniversary.

Madoc News

School Holds Oratorical Competition

MADOC — Tuesday night before an audience of parents, guests, teachers and pupils, 12 pupils from Grade 5 to 8 competed in the public school speaking contest.

Jayne, a grade 8 pupil, spoke on "UNICEF" while Wendy, a grade 5 pupil, spoke on "Childhood Fantasies".

Jayne Pitts will now compete against nine other winners from other town and township schools in the inspectorate area. This contest will be held in the Madoc Public School on Thursday, February 24th.

Other contestants were: Carrion McCann, grade 6; Sharlene Bertrim, grade 6; Robert Hamilton, grade 7; Mark Orr, grade 6; Judy Marr, grade 7; Gerald Potter, grade 5; Barry Rivers, grade 7; Kathy Mullin, grade 5; Lorraine Wark, grade 8 and Beth Porter, grade 8.

The speakers were congratulated on their excellent speeches. Other talents were also exhibited during the evening. A grade 5 choir composed of Stephen Graham, Gerald Potter, Kathy Mullin, Ann O'Riordan, Karen Kellar, Lorraine Parsons, Wendy Fawcett, Myrna Fleming, Kathy Mills, Barbara Armstrong and under the direction of Miss Sheila Alford sang two songs during the intermission. Two comedy skits were performed by John Burnside, Carl O'Riordan, Linda Barton, Brian Smith, Charles Lummiss and Bill Jones.

Committee Plans Area Operation

MADOC — The first meeting of the Madoc Recreation Committee was held at the Madoe Arena with a good attendance. The election of officers took place with Mr. Doug Pigden nominated as chairman. Secretary is Ken Broad, chairman of the arena is T. C. Barton, chairman of the ball park, Bud Reid.

The meeting discussed the raising of funds to complete the artificial ice project. $6000 is still required to pay for the necessary equipment. This amount will not stop the opening of the arena as the committee members have consented to sign a note at the Toronto-Dominion Bank for this amount. Operation of the arena will be on a voluntary basis with Mrs. Floss Kincaid and Aileen Pigden looking after the food counter. Mr. John Wagner will be scheduling all activities ,including ticket selling. The members of the committee wil lbe acting as caretakers. This will eliminate paying for labor. Contributions, no matter how small, will be deeply appreciated by the committee.

Queen, Prince To Take Drive In Country

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters) — The Queen and Prince Philip today planned to snatch time off from official functions to drive through the sugar-belt countryside of this West Indian island.

The royal couple's crowded program for the second day of their visit here included a private lunch with Lord Avon, former British prime minister Sir Anthony Eden, at his villa in St. John.

A musical ride by the mounted troop of the Barbados police force Monday night provided a colorful climax to the first day of the royal visit.

Actress Claudette Colbert, who has a home on the island, and the Queen's cousin, Gerald Lascelles, whose sugar plantation the Queen will visit today, were among the guests.

Earlier the royal couple attended a garden party for more than 3,000 guests.

Things We Could Do Without - - Santa Acting Like a Lout

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things we could do without:

Young men who look like they're wearing a nest of robins in their hair.

Any new kinds of dog foods, deodorants or dandruff cures.

All cleaning powders or detergents that make a washing machine act like it were 10-feet tall. (We are tired of climbing a stepladder to put clothing into our present high-soaring machine.)

Christmas cards that depict pretty girls in a Santa Claus suit, or Santa himself in a bathing suit chasing a beach maid wearing a bikini.

Any more books by doctors or marriage counsellors on what to do about sex. All the possibilities of sex have been pointed out by eminent authorities many times already. What civilization needs is more good cook books and fewer manuals on sex, as no civilized person ever loses interest in good cooking.

Motorists who say they only want half of the road but decide their half is in the middle.

The telephone company's decision to give us all numbers that only a computer can remember.

Experts at cocktail parties who bore you with long discussions of the perils of travel in outer space.

Wiseacres who, when you tell them you're going to the dentist to get your teeth cleaned, reply, "Why bother to go yourself? Why not just mail them in?"

Anybody who mails your wife another credit plate.

Anybody who mails you another credit card.

From these and other pests, deliver us, amen.

Sanctions Bring Hunger To Rhodesian Negroes But Whites Get Whisky Cheap

SALISBURY (AP) — "These sanctions are terrible, boss," the Negro taxi driver said.

"I have six kids, boss," the taxi driver went on. "Four boys and two girls. If they go to school they all have to have school uniforms and money for fees. I want them to go to school."

To him the problem of Rhodesia's illegal seizure of independence of boiled down to this: He now is working three days a week instead of six.

"What is this Mr. Wilson trying to do to us?"

He was talking about Prime Minister Wilson of Britain, who has cut off trade with Rhodesia.

"I come home from work. We eat and the kids say they are still hungry."

The Negro said he stopped eating during the day so there would be more food for all in the evening.

"A European lady told me we were going to get gasoline from South Africa. Where is it?"

The taxi driver was confirming what almost everybody has seen from the beginning of Britain's economic war against her rebellious colony. The first to suffer is the Negro.

Unemployment figures no longer are published, but Negroes are losing their jobs as industries slow down and business houses retrench. There are more signs saying "hapana basa"—no work. The majority of the population is Negro, numbering about 4,000,000.

"The Africans in the cities will suffer most," said Chad Chipunza, a Negro member of the Rhodesian Parliament who has challenged the legality of Prime Minister Ian Smith's government.

"They have nothing to fall back on when they lose their jobs," he said. "The Africans in the reserves will go on living as before, growing their own food. African farm workers may have their pay cut, but they will go on eating."

Apart from gasoline rationing, the 225,000 Europeans in Rhodesia have scarcely been touched by sanctions so far. A shortage of cereal breakfast foods has developed, and imported cookies are disappearing from grocery shelves.

Imported canned goods probably will be disappearing soon, but Rhodesia produces most of its basic foodstuffs, including meat. Most fruits and vegetables are grown and canned here and locally produced frozen vegetables also are available.

The supply of whisky is so abundant dealers have been able to indulge in a price war. It has been seeling for £1 12s ($4.80) a quart.

There is no noticeable weakening in Rhodesia's defiance three months after independence day and the beginning of the economic war.

Rhodesia May Get Enough Oil

JOHANNESBURG Reuters — Rhodesia may be getting 70,000 gallons of fuel daily from South Africa and Mozambique, The Rand Daily Mail says.

The paper says this would be almost enough for the breakaway British colony to survive under current rationing.

Report on CNR Run-throughs Spotlighted in Labor Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—It was labor day for the Cabinet Tuesday and for much of it the spotlight was on a judge 1,100 miles away in his Winnipeg office.

Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet spent two hours in the morning with a 300-man delegation from the Canadian Labor Congress and another hour in the afternoon with 50 delegates from the international railway brotherhoods.

In both cases the emphasis was on proposals from labor that the government act quickly to adopt the main recommendation of Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman in his report last December on CNR crew run-throughs.

The report called for an amendment to federal labor law that would compel employers to negotiate with unions the terms for any technological change affecting jobs or working conditions.

Employers now may introduce new work procedures during the closed period of contracts when unions are legally helpless to react.

He told the CLC group, headed by President Claude Jodoin, the Freedman report is "an admirable document" and should be commended for bringing this major problem into the open. He did not agree with critics who said the Manitoba Supreme Court judge went beyond the scope of his inquiry.

But Mr. Nicholson noted that the Freedman report also had suggested the railways and their unions get together to work out an acceptable method of introducing crew run-throughs.

He confessed a preference for such voluntary agreements and added: "You can't bring all of these things about by legislation."

There was no formal reaction from the CLC, but after the session several delegates grumbled to reporters that Mr. Nicholson seemed to be opposed to giving legislative backing to the Freedman report.

Speaking to the railway unions, Mr. Pearson said he agrees that the federal government has a responsibility to cushion the impact of automation on workers' job security.

He said the advance of automation, with its benefits to be

Inquest Verdict

Mother, Landlord Negligent In Triple-fatality Fire On Mohawk Indian Reserve

A coroner's jury last night declared negligence by two people contributed to a shack fire in which three Mohawk Indian children perished on the Tyendinaga Reserve.

One of those named was the mother of the three young girls, Geraldine Green, 23, expectant and living on Reserve welfare.

The other was her landlord, 70-year-old Cornelius Maracle, who rented her the 10 x 23 feet cabin for $20 a month through welfare funds, and had it insured for $1,500.

Both were named in an inquest verdict that attributed the death of the eldest girl, three-year-old Christine Hazel Green, to asphyxiation in the fire January 11.

The inquest writ did not specifically name her two sisters, April, 2, and one-year-old Tina Marie, with whom she shared the shack's sleeping area.

Fatal centrepiece of the inquiry was a wood stove, perforated with holes and minus safety bricks in its firebox.

The inquest, before Deseronto coroner Dr. D. C. McVicker at Hastings County Court House, heard that sparks from the stove may have caused the blaze in which the children suffocated while their mother was next door visiting her sister. It also was told by Mr. Maracle that he was seeking a replacement for the faulty unit before the fatal fire.

The jury ruled Mrs. Green "has been found to be negligent in that she left the child alone in the house knowing that the stove was in extremely poor condition."

"The landlord has been found negligent in that he was fully aware that the stove in question was in poor condition and failed to provide a better stove."

CORONER DEALS BRUSQUELY

The three-hour hearing that saw the coroner deal brusquely with several witnesses, also:

(1) Heard the jury recommend that the Reserve council consider establishing a building code to meet "reasonable standards" of construction;

(2) That an inspector be appointed to ensure proper accommodation for Reserve welfare recipients;

(3) Dr. McVicker fine a woman witness $10 for contempt after she failed to appear.

The non-appearance of Mrs. Mildred Maracle, a neighbor of Geraldine Green, aroused immediate reaction from the coroner, who halted the inquest and told police to find her.

"Have you had any notification she wouldn't be here? If not go and pick her up," he ordered.

As OPP officers at the back of the court room hesitated, the coroner repeated: "Have you had any notification she wouldn't be here?"

"No," replied a constable.

"Apparently she's ill doctor," volunteered the constable.

"You've no notification of it—Fined $10 in contempt of court. Make a note of that, stenographer," replied the coroner sharply. (An officer later said Mrs. Maracle was expecting a child).

Geraldine Green was among the first key witnesses called to the stand.

"Do you understand an oath?" asked Dr. McVicker before he swore her.

"I never went through one before," she answered.

Elmvale Stabbing Probed

The hunt for the slayer of six-year-old Michael Kent of Port McNicoll switched suddenly to Belleville late yesterday.

Police searched the city for a Belleville man wanted for questioning in connection with Friday's stabbing of young Kent near the Elmvale arena.

The man was picked up in Toronto last night and released this morning after questioning by Provincial Police detectives. No charges were laid.

The search started in Belleville with the arrival of Inspector John Kay, one of two inspectors of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch in charge of the case.

Through the day police made inquiries around the city for the man — but without success. The hunt was called off after midnight when Toronto police reported he had been found in the Metropolitan area.

An OPP spokesman said "many persons" have been questioned in connection with the death during a province-wide investigation.

Earlier, police said a woman may have seen the boy and his younger brother playing near the Elmvale arena shortly before his body was discovered.

Corporal J. M. Cooper said in Elmvale Tuesday that the woman told police she saw two little boys playing with hockey sticks near the front of the arena before the stabbing is believed to have occurred.

A fish knife, believed by police to be the murder weapon, was found on the roof of a nearby building.

Rewards totalling $3,000 were offered Tuesday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer. The Elmvale police have posted a $1,000 reward and the attorney-general's department has offered $2,000.

Minister Answers Critics

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Oppostion MPs hammered at the Canadian Pacific Railway for the fifth day running in the Commons Tuesday and Transport Minister Pickersgill hit back in a characteristic fighting speech.

The veteran minister accused his critics of holding up legislation with "parish pump" politics, threw cold water on speculation he will retire this year and all but asked Prime Minister Pearson to appoint John Turner associate minister of transport, a new job.

Mr. Pickersgill declined to comment on the controversial cancellation of the CPR's Do-

Gen. Taylor Doubts Viet Nam Will Lead to War With China

TORONTO (CP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former United States ambassador to South Viet Nam, says the Viet Nam war may lead to a confrontation with China but the probability is small.

"At any rate," he told a dinner meeting of the Empire Club Tuesday, "I don't know of anything a great government does that isn't risky."

The 64-year-old former army chief of staff said in a later interview that while he recognized "legal problems involved" he wished Canada could actively assist the U.S. in the war.

"We would like more tangible assistance from some of our friends."

In mentioning legal problems, Gen. Taylor apparently referred to Canada's position on the International Control Commission. External Affairs Minister Martin has said that as a member of the commission Canada could not send military aid to Viet Nam.

Gen. Taylor said the commission is not obsolete. It "still has influence and acts as a stabilizing force."

He told the Empire Club the initiative in Viet Nam now has passed to the non-Communist forces who can move about the country at will.

Flying Saucer Inventor Loses Fight Against Eviction Order

His three-year-old daughter, Julie, looked on, sobbing. As Vukovic was carried to the street where several policemen and detectives waited.

Surrounding the house and on nearby hilltops other policemen watched in the event Vukovic carried out his earlier threat to open fire on the sheriff's men.

He was dragged out, barefoot and in his pyjamas, taken to a police station and charged with obstructing a peace officer. No charge was laid against Mr. Vukovic.

Police surrounded Mr. Vukovic's house and watched from nearby hills in case shots were fired at the sheriff's men. The dog catcher and his assistant were there in case a dog was used to scare off the sheriff's men.

The two men had been served eviction notices and given two extensions before their removal. Their houses were expropriated by York Township to make way for a $2,000,000 civic stadium and recreation centre.

The township offered $8,000 for the house that Mr. Vukovic bought for $7,000 five years ago. Mr. Vukovic refused the offer and demanded $16,000.

Mr. Vukovic shouted: "Big shots, dirty Mafia," as the sheriff's men hauled him from his home

After removing him, the officers moved next door to Mr. Molino's home. One kicked in the door and five officers rushed up the stairs. A gasp went up from the crowd as Sheriff's Officer James Giffor walked out with a single shot, 12-gauge shotgun.

The weapon, which was empty, had been found leaning against Mr. Molino's bedroom wall

Mr. Molino was dragged out to the veranda but went back in to get his shoes. When sheriff's men went after him, they were sprayed by a garden hose.

He was handcuffed and dragged to a police cruiser as onlookers booed.

Following the evictions, township workers began demolishing the homes.

Mr. Vukovic told Police Inspector John Cobb he would return today and dismantle his "flying saucer" in a back yard shed.

It was not known Tuesday night what accommodation arrangements the evicted men had made.

Royal Legs Much Admired, Why Not Raise Skirt an Inch?

LONDON (AP) — Britain's biggest daily newspaper takes a critical look at royal skirts today and suggests that the Queen raise hers a bit.

"The royal legs," writes Daily Mirror fashion columnist Felicity Green, "along with the royal eyes, complexion and general coloring are reckoned to be among the most admired of our first family's characteristics."

"Would it be unsuitable," Miss Green asks, "for the royal skirt to be raised, say, a modest inch?

"Emphatically no," she suggests.

The Mirror, which has a circulation of 5,000,000, takes up the cause of higher hemlines at a time when many British girls are raising theirs four inches above the knee.

The columnist points out that the Queen "has several examples near to home to indicate where the hemline ought to be."

Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, has a hemline "on the knee," Miss Green says.

"Princess Alexandra, the Queen's cousin, and Princess Anne, the Queen's daughter, wear theirs "above the knee but only just."

The Duchess of Kent, the Queen's cousin by marriage, has a hemline "really above" the knee and is "very with-it," Miss Green says, adding:

"It would be a pity if, when she gets back home (from her Caribbean tour), the Queen doesn't do what we're all doing—shortening everything a little or a lot."

Ottawa Will Assist Manitoba In Northern Hydro Project

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has agreed in principle to share in the development of the $300,000,000 first phase of the Nelson River hydro power project with the Manitoba government, Prime Minister Pearson announced Tuesday.

He told the Commons the federal government will build, finance and own a $120,000,000 high-voltage transmission line to carry Nelson power to Winnipeg.

Later, when markets are developed, the federal government would extend lines to international and provincial boundaries.

The prime minister said the initial phase includes construction of a power site at Kettle Rapids and installation of generating capacity totalling 855,000 kilowatts.

Part of the flow of the Churchill River would be diverted into the Nelson near Thompson, Man., to increase the flow of the Nelson, which flows from the northern tip of Lake Winnipeg through the northern Manitoba wilderness into western Hudson Bay.

Total cost of the first phase, restricted to the lower reaches of the 410-mile river, is to be more than $300,000,000. This includes the long-distance transmission lines from Kettle Rapids to Winnipeg.

The federal announcement climaxes years of planning aimed at developing the full 5,000,000-kilowatt potential of the rapids-filled river.

Mr. Pearson said the potential includes "a reasonable possibility" of export of surplus Nelson power to the midwestern U.S. and the "possible sale" of low-cost power to Saskatchewan and Ontario through hydro inter-connections.

Mr. Pearson said federal participation ensures that the Nelson will not remain undeveloped because of the limited demand for power in Manitoba, which prevents the province from bearing the full cost.

The two governments are to draw up an agreement "as soon as possible" to make the federal participation formal. Parliamentary approval would then be sought.

Mr. Pearson mentioned no target date for the start or a completion of the vast project, a planner's dream for years.

The long-distance transmission line from Kettle Rapids to Winnipeg would be leased to Manitoba Hydro, the provincial public power agency, which would repay the federal investment with interest over a 50-year period.

Mother

"That's what I intend to do," said the witness.

STOVE FULL OF HOLES

She said she put her daughters to bed around 9 p.m. and went next door to her sister, Mrs. Daniel Leween, around 11 p.m. Accompanying her was 19-year-old Lloyd Evans Brant. There was sufficient wood on the stove when they left the Green cabin and Brant returned twice before the fire to check the stove and children.

She said the stove "worked, but it was full of holes" and she had spoken to Mr. Maracle about its condition.

Mr. Pringle: "How many times did you ask?"

Witness: "Three or four times I guess."

Mr. Pringle: "Did he ever come in and look at the stove?"

Witness: "No. He just said he would try and get me another one."

She said she first noticed the fire just after the late - night movie started on television.

Brant dashed into the cabin, smashed a window and handed out the children. They then took the children next door to the Leween house and laid them on a couch.

She said she kept wood behind the stove and kindling beneath the heater. In front of it, the night of the fire, was a garbage box — empty save for a can.

Asked what she did after the children were taken to the Leween house, the witness answered: "I just stood there stupid."

"Don't you think it was a little foolish to go and leave that stove going full blast with three children in the house?" asked the coroner.

"You don't think of things like that till after they happen," she replied.

NO WOOD ADDED

"You don't know anything about artificial respiration?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"No I don't. If I had known how to do it I would have done it, you know. But I don't know anything about that."

Lloyd Brant said the first time he returned from the Leween house to check the Green cabin the stove was burning "pretty good" and he did not add any wood.

He made the next check about 15 minutes later and put some sticks on the fire, then returned to Leween's and continued to watch television.

He smashed a window with his hand to pass the children outside. At the time their clothing was not alight. He said he then ran to Mildred Maracle's house to telephone Deseronto fire department.

The witness testified in a low voice intermittently difficult to hear in the courtroom.

"Would you speak up please," requested the Crown Attorney.

"Speak up," ordered the coroner. "If you were asking for a drink you'd speak louder than that."

Dr. McVicker noted the witness claimed he was watching television at the time.

"Were you watching it at all?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Sure you weren't occupied with something else?"

"No."

Cornelius Maracle said the $20 rent he charged for the Green cabin included hydro and furniture.

CROSS-EXAMINED CLOSELY

He was cross-examined at length by both the coroner and Mr. Pringle on whether his tenant ever had requested another stove.

He said Geraldine Green told him she wanted the same kind of stove already in the shack.

Mr. Pringle: "Why did she want another stove?"

Witness: "Oh I don't know. There's a lot of people has been in there and they never said anything about the stove."

Mr. Pringle: "Why did she want another stove?"

Witness: "I don't know."

Finally, after questions from the coroner, Mr. Pringle again pressed the witness: "What was it she said?"

"She said that it wasn't working very good," replied Mr. Maracle.

"She said it wasn't working very good — thank you," answered the Crown Attorney. "And why did she say it wasn't working very good?"

"She never said."

"You weren't getting very much rent — but you had the place insured for $1,500 didn't you," Mr. Pringle retorted.

"That's right," confirmed the witness.

Again Mr. Pringle asked: "You didn't care enough about that stove to go and look, did you?"

Mr. Maracle replied that he had kissed the Bible and didn't know what to say.

"You can say 'yes' or you can say 'no' or you can say 'I don't remember'" snapped Mr. Pringle.

PAID $175 FOR SHACK

"I don't remember," answered Mr. Maracle.

"Is that the truth, or is it the answer I gave you," pressed the Crown Attorney.

"It's the truth," replied the witness.

He told Dr. McVicker he had paid "around $175" for the cabin but it was then only a "bare shack. I had to put all new things inside it."

Peter Morris, Deseronto insurance agent who also drove an ambulance the night of the fire, said Mr. Maracle had a total policy coverage on four cottages of $6,400. The loss on the Green cabin was estimated at $160.

Complete loss of house and contents would have an insured value of $1,500, he agreed.

". . . Would you give $1,500 for that house?" asked the coroner.

"Well — after I had seen it beforehand, yes," said Mr. Morris.

Fire Inspector Del Hope of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office blamed the fire on a spark from the stove.

"There's no doubt in my mind that a spark from the stove fell on combustible material in or around this stove and this caused the fire," he stated.

Later he added: "I felt the fire before being discovered, had been going approximately half-an-hour to three-quarters of an hour."

Asked by the coroner what he thought of the shack Inspector Hope answered: "Well doctor. It's a reconstructed cabin. I certainly wouldn't want to live in it myself. I certainly wouldn't recommend it for any human being — at least as far as I'm concerned."

He said the stove was "defective" and "definitely a hazard."

"There was no firebrick in the stove . . . Eventually you're going to burn through the metal and this is what happened in this stove."

SAW NO DRINKING

Mrs. Helena Hill, a neighbor awakened during the fire, described Geraldine Green as "scared" and "pretty upset" at the time.

She said she had never heard any drinking goining on in the Leeween home that night.

M. W. McCracken, Tyendinaga Indian Agency superintendent, said the Mohawk council could propose a bylaw governing home construction standards which would then be submitted to the Department of Indian Affairs.

"Yes, I think it would be an excellent thing to bring to their attention," he agreed.

A building code for the Reserve also was suggested to the jury as a possible recommendation by the coroner.

He said it was his "firm belief the owner of the property knew for several months that this stove was defective and that something should have been done about it.

"It's a great misfortune that something like this has to bring these things out."

He also charged that Brant was "reluctant" in the witness box.

He told the jurors to "put a little teeth" in their verdict.

There are three children dead as a result of this fire," he added.

"There is blame to be attached here, there and all over the place and it's up to you to assess it."

FRANKFORD PRE-FAB SILO BUILDING FIRM burns early last night following an explosion believed caused by fumes from cleaning solutions igniting. Damage to the building was extensive. Three men working overtime in the building escaped injury.

Pre-fab Silo Plant Swept By Flames After Blast

FRANKFORD — Three men working overtime in a Frankford pre-fab silo building firm escaped injury earily last night, following an explosion and fire that did extensive damage to property and equipment. Although exact cause of the blast has not been determined, it is believed that fumes from cleaning solutions, used in the process for form cleaning, ignited near an end loader stored in the building.

Ed. Leblanc, owner of the newly formed firm, said employee Fred Oshea and his brother, Don, were in the storage section at about 9 p.m. when there was a blast followed by flames. Mr. Leblanc said, "we made a vain attempt to save the nearby office records but had only time enough to escape from the blazing inferno."

Volunteer firemen of the Frankford and Batawa brigades fought the flames and exploding gas cans for two hours before bringing the fire under control. Pumper trucks were sent back to the village for water from the town hydrants.

A section of the building housing a cement mixer and pouring equipment was saved when firemen extinguished fire in a large vat containing naptha gas by placing a sheet of plywood over the vat and suffocating the flames. Water and foam had no affect.

George Montgomery, owner of the 200 foot building, said damage to the partly insured building would be in excess of $15,000. In addition to office equipment and the end loader, a car, tools and many other items were destroyed, possibly to a value of $10,000. The gutted building located on the easterly outskirts of Frankford was formerly operated as Montgomery Motors until six months ago, when Frankford Concrete Products began production of a pre-fab silos. Some seven local residents were employed with the firm, which had extensive orders for silos to be installed this spring.

The number of U.S. troops wounded during the same period totalled 423, and three are missing.

Eighty-nine Americans were killed in the preceding week, while 499 were wounded and eight listed as missing.

The allied forces claimed 624 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 64 captured last week.

Trinity College Choir Heard at St. Michael's

By EUGENE LANG

A very sizeable congregation was in attendance at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel last evening, for a special divine service aiming at unity of various denominations and sects of the Christian faith. Adherents from many local and district Protestant Churches were one with their Roman Catholic brethren in this service conducted by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan and featured the Trinity College Choir, Toronto of about twenty - five voices, under the direction of John Sidgwick. The choral group is made up of young men and women mostly in their late teens and very early twenties, all being members of Trinity College, University of Toronto.

The choir's offerings were mostly from the School of English Church Music by composers of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. These were accomplished with instilled faith and an even fullness of sonority, although a meandering voice was heard a couple of times.

The service was spiritually rewarding in its intent and purpose and it is to be hoped that more congregations such as that of last evening will be seen in Belleville churches in the future, with man's universal faith at last reaching that common denominator that will loosen and unfetter the bonds of sectarianism that have existed during the past four centuries.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Margaret Eleanor Green, who passed away February 16, 1954.

Twelve years since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away,
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts, she liveth still.

—Ever remembered by son Gordon, daughter-in-law Jean, grandsons Gordie and Garry.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Margaret Eleanor Green, who passed away Feb. 16, 1954.

Without a last goodbye,
And in our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep on asking why.
There's a reason hidden somewhere,
In the path God has planned,
We must believe and trust in Him,
And someday we'll understand.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Audrey, son-in-law Gord and granddaughter Carolyn and Dave.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Margaret Eleanor Green, who passed away February 16th, 1954.

Thoughts of you are always near.

—Always remembered by son, Murney, daughter-in-law Clara and grandchildren Gloria and Douglas.

GREEN — In loving memory of a dear wife Margaret Eleanor Green who passed away Feb. 16, 1954.

Twelve lonely years have drifted by,
To speak my thoughts I will not try.
One treasured gift I do retain,
Your smiling eyes in a photo frame.
God took your hand, we had to part,
He eased your pain and broke my heart.
You are beside me in all I do,
Your love will guide me and see me through.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by husband Murney.

Teachers Sign New Contract

QUEBEC (CP)—The last of the province's current run of Roman Catholic teachers' strikes ended officially at two a.m. today when representatives of the Hull regional school board and the 354 teachers signed a new collective agreement.

According to the agreement 7,500 pupils attending 33 French-speaking Roman Catholic schools in the Hull area and northwest along the Ottawa River to Fort Coulonge across the river from Pembroke, will return to classes Thursday.

Less than an hour earlier it was announced that the 2,178 Roman Catholic students of the Papineau regional school board east of Hull, Que., would return to classes Thursday.

Board Chairman Remi Morin said in an interview that an agreement settling the points at issue and setting down conditions for a return to work by the French - speaking teachers was signed by both parties Tuesday.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Hull regional school board for school opening Thursday.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Hull regional school board and its 354 striking teachers were meeting behind closed doors early today with a Quebec government conciliator.

STARTED JAN. 5

The Hull teacher strike for higher wages and better working conditions began Jan. 5.

The teachers' negotiations returned here from Hull Tuesday after an all - night meeting by the teachers to consider a contract hammered out on the weekend with school board and government representatives.

Today, the new collective agreement was getting a clause-by-clause combing. Observers held out hope that signatures would be put to the contract, ending the strike that has kept 7,500 pupils out of school.

More than 30 schools have been closed by the strike in an area that includes the Hull area and stretches north along the Ottawa River to Fort Coulonge, across the river from Pembroke.

Rene H. Lalonde, president of the Hull board, said the agreement would raise cost of teachers' salaries by $228,000.

The total cost to the board of the new two-year contract will rise to $2,590,000 from $2,362,000.

Burn Mortgage At Gospel Tabernacle

FRANKFORD — A happy ceremony was held at Full Gospel Tabernacle on Sunday evening when Rev. Tom Johnstone, General Superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, Rev. F. C. Spring, pastor; deacons and trustees of the local church burned the mortgage of the new brick parsonage built four years ago.

The building was erected shortly after Rev. F. Spring and his family came to Frankford. It contains a basement recreation room used for many youth activities of the church.

A $25,000 addition was made to the Tabernacle recently. The rapid Sunday School growth necessitated more class room space.

The local church board members are: Len Reilly, Charles Wright, Lonnie Reilly, Keith Helm, Gerald Curry and Gordon Grant. Other church board members participating were: Fred Wood, Knowlton Wright, Elgin Payne and George Chapman.

Rev. Tom Johnstone brought a message and words of commendation to the pastor and congregation.

WASTE EMERGENCY WARD

EDMONTON (CP) — Officials at University Hospital here say only about a third of the patients treated in the emergency ward are real emergencies. The others come because their doctors are busy, they don't understand the ward's function, or because their medical insurance plans don't cover diagnoses made outside a hospital.

Urges Psychiatric Treatment For Minor Mental Ailments

No one has total mental health, any more than he has total physical health at all times, a psychiatrist warned last night.

"Why not then seek psychiatric treatment for a lingering anxiety feeling before it develops into a major emotional illness, just as you seek medical treatment for a severe cold before it develops into pneumonia?" Dr. E. B. Conn, director of the Mental Health Clinic here, asked his listeners. Dr. Conn spoke to members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association at their annual meeting held in Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital.

Dr. Conn debunked popular superstitions regarding mental illness. The onset of mental illness is usually gradual, marked by signs such as anxiety, tension, sleep and appetite disturbances, hypochondria, suicidal thoughts, withdrawal, overactivity, and excessive use of alcohol and drugs.

UNFOUNDED FEAR

Dr. Conn said another unfounded fear, that modern psychiatric drugs will make people into dope addicts, was encouraged by a recent program on the television series, "This Hour Has Seven Days". When the drugs are administered by responsible doctors, such addiction is impossible, he emphasized.

The emphasis in modern psychiatric treatment has shifted to the care of mental patients in their own community. Surveys have shown that 95 per cent of the mentally ill can be treated as well outside a hospital as in it, and 75 per cent of the acutely mentally ill do not require long institutional treatment.

Today's treatment of the mental patient is a far cry from that of the past, when the mentally ill were thought to be possessed by evil, magical forces and were isolated from the community, the psychiatrist said. Reformers of the 17th and 18th centuries released mental patients from their shackles and dungeons and doctors of the 19th and 20th centuries sought some physical reason for the disease. Their efforts were unfruitful.

Experience in treating "shell shock" patients during two world wars taught doctors that every human being has his breaking point under stress. Medical officers found that psychiatric casualties could be treated quickly and returned to the field. From this knowledge came the impetus for community out-patient clinics for the early discovery and treatment of mental disease.

VARIOUS AGES

"The 17th century is called the age of enlightenment, the 18th century the age of reason, the 19th century the age of progress," Dr. Conn said. "This century, I believe, can justly be called the age of anxiety. In the United States, personality development books are best sellers, ten billion dollars a year are spent on alcohol, and hundreds of tons of tranquilizers are consumed each year. Surveys show that about ten per cent of all school aged children are in need of psychiatric care.

Dr. Conn said mental health workers can help to overcome the stresses of this age of anxiety by educating the public and overcoming its ignorance and fear of mental disease. Provision of adequate psychiatric services in the community is another vital need.

"With the co-operation of an informed public," Dr. Conn concluded, "I believe Belleville can eventually realize model mental health facilities and a higher standard of mental health for its residents."

Rev. Norman W. Hutchison Heads Mental Health Body

A new word, "psychometrician," has entered the mental health worker's phrase-book. The freshly-coined term describes a school teacher trained in psychology.

Rev. Norman W. Hutchinson, newly elected president of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, used the word in his report Wednesday night at the Association's annual meeting in Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital. Psychometricians will be heard of more often in the future, he said, as a result of C.M.H.A.'s encouragement of psychology training for teachers.

Mr. Hutchinson, local representative to the Ontario Divisional Board, reported C.M.H.A.'s national centennial project wil be a study of the emotional and learning difficulties of children.

In her annual report, Mrs. W. J. Thompson, 1965 president, said "the outstanding event of the year for this community was the opening of the Belleville Mental Health Clinic."

CMHA ASSISTS CLINC

"From our inauguration three years ago we have urged the establishment of this clinic and in a more material way have assisted by undertaking the rental of the clinic premises at 150 Albert Street until the new hospital is constructed," she said. "We would also like to express the pleasure our association felt regarding the establishment of another important community resource — the Family Counselling Service. More recently we have been heartened by the news that Hastings County Council has accepted the need for a county public healtth unit. We see all of these as necessary services leading toward better community mental health."

The treasurer's report, given by Mr. C. Lundy, showed an income for 1965 of $2,589 and expenditures of $2,583, The balance on hand on December 31, 1965, was $671.

Education committee chairman, Miss K. Abott reported two lecture series presented in the spring and in the autumn on the topics "Stress in Modern Life" and "Meet Your School Age Child".

440 MEMBERSHIP

Membership and Mental Health Week chairman, Mrs. H. Reddick reported a membership of 440. During Mental Health Week Mr. Dick Shooter, psychologist from St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto, in a marathon session, spoke to each of four high schools during one morning.

The White Cross Club, designed to help ex-patients of mental hospitals take their part in society, meets twice a month. Mrs. W. N. Hurst, chairman of this committee, said the members seem to enjoy the outing and ex-patients make friends and contacts which help them to return to normal living. Mrs. Hurst's committee also distributed over 822 Christmas gifts to forgotten patients in mental hospitals.

Mrs. Wanda Sine, chairman of the homes-for-special-care committee, reported there are 14 patients discharged from mental hospitals residing in two local nursing homes. Her committee organized groups to visit both these homes regularly, and contributes small monthly sums for spending money to those patients without financial resources.

The hospital visiting committee arranges entertainment once a month for patients in the Mowatt Wing of the Ontario Hospital in Kingston, chairman Mrs. J. S. Fletcher reported. Volunteer workers attended an orientation course in Kingston before beginning this work.

INFORMAL ADULT CLASSES

Lifesaving, Armchair Travel and Millinery for Beginners, three courses of the thirteen being sponsored by the Adult Committee of the YMCA will have their first class tomorrow evening. As it states in the blue brochure available at the 'Y' desk, "The Informal Adult Education Courses provide you with an opportunity for continued growth through participation in classes which are designed to teach you skills, improve and to stimulate thought and discussion. We believe, at the 'Y', that learning is part of living, not just preparation for living. To learn is to grow, and to grow is to live."

The Lifesaving classes are designed to teach both the YMCA Senior and Royal Lifesaving Bronze Medallion course. The 5th Star Card of YMCA or Senior Swimming certificates of Red Cross or their equivalent are necessary to take this course. Miss Mildred Gray and Mr. Bob Howell are co-instructors.

For twelve weeks, Mr. Anthony Warren will co-ordinate the Armchair Travel course which will deal with such things as: the various ways to get to a given area, what to wear, how to pack, and what to look for at a destination. Films, speakers and discussions will highlight these classes.

The two above courses begin at 8.00 p.m. sharp and continue for two hours.

Millinery for beginners is designed to give the busy young homemaker an opportunity to use her creative talents in the form of giving some life to their old hats or making a new one. Girl Treated For Abrasions, Hit by Car

A seven-year-old girl was treated for multiple abrasions yesterday after she was hit by a car on Bridge Street West near Highland Avenue.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital was Linda Carmichael, 161 James Street.

Police said she stepped from amidst traffic which was halted for a stop sign in front of a car driven by Kenneth V. Burkett, 10 Wellington Crescent.

Woman Returns To Morgue

TORONTO (CP)—Alberta Pipher, 57, who was found to be alive in a city morgue after a coroner pronounced her dead Saturday, died in hospital early today.

Cause of death was not disclosed and an inquest will be held later in the day.

The inquest will supplant an investigation ordered by Chief Metro Coroner Morton Shulman after Coroner Dr. Ralph Johns, who pronounced the woman dead, was temporarily suspended.

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, said there is no sure, final test that can be made to tell if a patient is dead.

"It can happen to any doctor," he said. "In this case it doesn't mean the coroner didn't do his job.

Police investigating a call from relatives worried about the woman's health found her dressed in pyjamas and lying on her bathroom floor. They called Dr. Johns.

Dr. Johns said Monday that the woman was cold and had no noticeable respiration and no apparent pulse.

"I examined her twice. After the first examination I made a telephone call then I went back and checked her again. She was cold as death and had the typical pallor.".

HEARD GASP

Morgue attendant Bill Catlender said the woman's body was being carried into the morgue from a van when driver Tim Plait heard a gasp.

Police are examining a glass of liquid and a bottle of pills taken from the woman's apartment.

Dr. K. J. R. Wightman, professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, said Tuesday night that the woman was probably only drifting into death when examined.

Determination of death is especially difficult in persons who have taken large doses of drugs, he said.

The body does not die abruptly as one unit, he said, but gradually and part by part. Body cells continue to live after heart beat and breathing have stopped, sometimes long enough to permit some growth of hair and fingernails.

POLICE HAD SURPRISE

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — The ban on overnight parking here is strictly enforced by order of the town council. Councillor Donald Reid, who usually walks to council meetings, drove there once and had a message from the police pound two days after he walked home. "I forgot all about the car. I thought it was in the garage at home all the time."

'Environmental Protection' In Combat Clothing for Armed Forces Outlined

Ian Lindsay of the Defence Research Board told Kiwanians yesterday he thinks it is desirable for Canada to encourage the newer commonwealth countries in their research efforts in the combat clothing field.

Speaking at the regular weekly meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, Mr. Lindsay said, "We should provide them with information, assistance, guidance and money if we can, because it isn't too long ago since Canada was in the very same position. Canada has progressed so much that she is now considered a leader in this field."

Mr. Lindsay, a scientist with the DRB in Ottawa, is involved in group work on "Enviromental Protection," a section of the DRB concerned with the development of combat clothing.

"DRB is roughly the equivalent of the National Research Council except that the research it conducts is for the three branches of the integrated armed forces.

"As a result, much of our work is classified and the DRB doesn't receive much publicity.

"My work is concerned with the development of protective clothing for armed forces in combat environment. We must develop clothing that will offer protection against the environment itself and against battlefield hazards."

The speaker told of his trip to the Commonwealth Conference of Clothing and General Equipment held in Melbourne, Australia..

POOL RESOURCES

"Research is so expensive now that many countries get together and try to pool their resources, with certain areas of research alloted to each one."

Delegates attended from the U.K., Canada, India, Pakistan, Australia, New Zealand, plus several of the newer commonwealth countries such as Kenya and Ghana. The purpose of the convention is to "develop one integrated clothing system, so by the addition or deletion of a certain article, a combat problem, such as heat or cold, can be eliminated."

Mr. Lindsay outlined many of the problems reserachers have to face in the developing of suitable combat clothing.

"Combat clothing must be impermeable but this poses a problem to us because people wearing this type of clothing, soon prespire so much they will suffer heat stress.

"Another problem we have is trying to get clothing that is both water repellent and biting fly repellent. We find that when an extremely good water repellent was put on with an extremely good biting fly compound, neither one of them was any good. You almost have to decide whether you want to be bitten or soaked.

"We always have the problems of "Add-ons', i.e. weight added on top of the basic textile for extra protection. Unfortunately, by the time you get all the protective substances on, the garment is three times the weight of the original. Either that, or it is too stiff to be used.

"There are many other problems we must face in our research. We have textile physicists, textile chemists, anthropomotists and human physiologists, plus many others, working constantly on these problems."

Postmaster Leaving City For New Post

Belleville is in line for a new postmaster in the near future, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. J. A. McManus, postmaster in the city since June, 1962, will be leaving his post at the end of the month to start a six months training course at Ottawa before commencing new duties as government personnel administrator.

He is one of three postmasters from the Ottawa district selected for a new government department to work in the area of civil service classification and pay.

"I will be sorry to leave Belleville," Mr. McManus told The Intelligencer. "I have enjoyed my stay in the city."

Mr. McManus came to Belleville from Trenton where he was postmaster from 1952 until 1962.

A veteran of World War II, he served as instructor in the RCAF and took his initial training at Belleville.

Transport to Expo

One of the big problems with regard to Expo 67 is that of transportation to and from the site. Without easy access to the island site in the St. Lawrence at Montreal, and adequate parking space, the success of the exhibition could be jeopardized.

Little has been said of this vital aspect of Expo preparations. A brochure setting out some of the attractions notes that "an extraordinary world city" is rising on the group of islands composing the site, and adds: "The theme buildings, the pavilions of the nations, bridges, harbors, underground and elevated transportation systems are being built."

Well and good, but what of transportation by road to Montreal? This could be the great nightmare of exhibition visitors. Has anything been done, we wonder, about improving No. 2 highway into Montreal from Cornwall? Hitherto this has been a narrow ,twisting, bumpy and hazardous link between this part of Ontario and Quebec.

And what about the freeway complex supposed to be under way to facilitate motorists heading for Montreal from New England? It is some time since we first read of such a system being constructed. What progress has been made?

In any venture involving large numbers of visitors — and particularly families with young children — their needs should be considered as much as the marvellous ingenuity that goes into the products and pavilions of the various countries taking part in the exhibition.

As it is, no matter how well organized, no matter how brilliant the exhibition itself, its success from the individual and family point of view may be measured by the degree of comfort in which the island site may be reached and the various exhibits inspected.

Even then, the whole business is likely to be an exercise in exhaustion, as parents attempt to do the rounds with small children and get pushed around by hordes of other parents and small children. Exhibitions are like that.

Consequently, this exhibition to end all exhibitions had better keep such considerations in mind. Driving to Montreal, and in the city itself, has never been a comfortable business. Rather it is nerve-wracking and filled with tension. How much worse will it be with Expo — if transportation requirements are not met.

Probably the best way of getting there and back, so far as this area is concerned, is by train. There is even word that gas-turbine trains capable of averaging 100 m.p.h. and a maximum speed of about 150 m.p.h. may be introduced on the Toronto-Montreal run in time for Expo.

Meanwhile there are other worries — mounting costs, the threat of strikes by construction workers, not to mention the time factor. The Montreal Gazette comments on this theme: "Now that every day counts in the struggle to make Expo 67 ready on time, it may be hoped that renegotiating the contracts for most of the building trades will not cast a cloud over Expo . . ."

We can only share the Gazette's concern!

Manhunt

The recent escape of three convicts from Collins Bay penitentiary near Kingston raises serious questions as to the degree of security exercised at the penitentiary.

A huge manhunt culminated in the recapture of the men by police in St. Catharines. In the interim period the men abducted and assaulted a Scarboro woman.

Meanwhile, the escape has been under investigation by a three-man inquiry board in Kingston. Its purpose, naturally, is to determine how the men got away and to ensure as far as possible against a repetition.

Unfortunately this is not the first time convicts have escaped from Collins Bay, and it likely will not be the last. Be that as it may, the public is entitled to a greater degree of security than evidently is being enforced. The assault of the Scarboro woman is an example of what can happen when dangerous criminals are at large.

Kingston was the scene of yet another escape last weekend. On Saturday evening a 21-year-old man, whom police described as "extremely dangerous", escaped from an open ward at the Ontario Hospital. He too was recaptured.

A doctor at the hospital said the court remand notice (the man was under mental observation following a charge of assault) was routine and did not contain any cautionary warnings. He said further there was little to prevent his wandering off from the hospital.

Clearly, there is conflict here between the opinion of the police and what appeared on the remand notice.

This is the kind of lack of attention to detail, with regard to people who have been involved in crime, that can lead to tragedy in the event of their escaping. There is room for a great deal of tightening up of the custodial powers of the police, as well as those of penitentiaries and mental institutions, particularly where dangerous criminals and the mentally unstable are concerned.

Convulsions Appear To Run in Family

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What should be done for convulsions? My husband had them when he was a child: then our son; now our two grandchildren.

When our son was small, the doctor said to put him in a tub of warm water, then give him aspirin and an enema and keep him warm enough to sweat.

Now the doctors say to sponge children with cool water until temperature is normal, and give aspirin. Which method is right? — Mrs. J. D. P.

Convulsions are not an illness. They are a symptom. The commonest cause in infancy is a high fever. And little ones can have a high fever quite suddenly at the onset of a cold or one of the common childhood diseases, as measles, scarlet fever or the like.

There can be other causes: low blood calcium or sugar; birth injury; brain infection; poisoning; epilepsy. If convulsions continue beyond the age of five or six, careful research should be made for such causes, but the majority of cases are triggered by fever — the infant equivalent of "chills and fever" in an adult.

Why do some children have rather frequent convulsions while others have none, or perhaps only one or two isolated attacks? It appears that some have more sensitive nervous systems which can be triggered into a convulsion. One study showed that in about 50 percent of such attacks, there was a family history of others having had the same experience when young.

These convulsions, while scary for parents to watch, are brief. The first rule is to keep the youngster from hurting himself as his muscles convulse. Just wrapping him in a light blanket gives such protection.

After that, sponging with tepid (not cold) water tends to reduce the temperature. Rubbing the back with alcohol is good, too, but be sure that it isn't too cold. Use just a little alcohol at a time on the palm of your hand which will moderate the coldness.

A small dose of aspirin is fine but nothing should be given by mouth until the convulsion is over. I would not torment the child with an enema, and see no purpose in it. This was advised some years ago, and I judge it was the product of an idea which once was popular, that an enema automatically "helped" whatever ails you. This has long since been discredited, and an enema should be used only when there is some distinct need for one.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read in a magazine that babies are fully developed three months after conception and are the approximate size of a man's thumb. Is this correct? — Miss L. M.

It is correct to the extent that at three months the embryo has progressed to the stage of being a fetus — the baby is about the size you describe, weight about two ounces, and has acquired most of its physical structural features — fingers, toes, ears, nose, etc.

This does not mean that the baby is yet ready for life. It has to develop, strengthen and grow accumulate a little fat, and muscle substance. Born earlier than 5½ or 6 months, the child usually will not even start to breathe. Slightly after that, a small chance of life exists, and improves gradually up to the full nine-month term.

Note to J. F.: Flat feet are normal in infants. The arch develops later on. Eighteen months may be a bit early to determine whether a particular youngster's gait is abnormal, but if in doubt consult an orthopedist (bone specialist).

Union Demands And Cost Spiral

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would have been very disappointed if my letter had not produced a reply. I cannot find anything in their letters which in any way contradicts my statements.

They try to impress me with the number of their membership, but never mentioned any of my suggestions and remedies to prevent the continual clash between employer and labor.

I have no doubt that labor was gratified when a minimum wage was agreed upon, but that was the time when unionized labor should have pressed also for a maximum wage. This of course would have taken into consideration the degree of proficiency of the individuals up to, but not including the specialists.

Price control, down to the point of the cost of the raw material must be strictly controlled and enforced. This should result in some form of stabilization which should preclude any form of excuse for labor to demand any change in the status quo.

One of your correspondents made me smile when he suggested that my surroundings were too restricted. I do not know the gentleman's age but I can assure him that during the life-span that is left to him it would be impossible for him to cover one half of the territory I have travelled during the last 50 years.

Canada as U.S. "Colony"

Willie Chevalier in Le Droit

Her Majesty, Elizabeth II, is the Queen of countries other than England and Canada and they do not consider themselves colonized for all of that. Right now, we Canadians are infinitely more colonized by the United States than by Great Britain, and it 's doubtful that those who deplore this the most are prepared to give up the standard of living that comes to us as a result of this economic, and sometimes political, subjection.

Nationalists of all colors have nothing to gain by agitating over the probable visit of the Queen in 1967, and the cause of the separatists or independentists suffered from the disorders of 1964 in Quebec. Let us begin by putting our French Canadian house and the greater Canadian house in order. The time will come to examine more closely our somewhat blurred ties to the Crown. For the moment, we have many more important problems to solve.

Aussies Are Vulnerable

Peterborough Examiner

The leader of the Australian Labour Party, Arthur Calwell, has specualted that New Zealand and later Australia may have to give up their independence in the face of economic and defence pressures. He suggests that New Zealand may have to become a part of the United States, although he would prefer to see it opt for political union with Australia.

The possibility of New Zealand or Australia joining the United States seems, on the face of it, a remote one. Yet there is no doubt that they are in an extremely difficult position strategically. Australia, by virtue of its size, is practically defenceless and both face severe economic problems in the face of accelerating world competition and their dependance on British trade. Asians regard the (largely white) affluence of these countries and Australia's large empty spaces with envy, refusing to believe that much of Australia is desert or marginal land. Overall hangs the menace of Red China and a heavily armed, expansionist Indonesia.

Geographically Australia New Zealand union makes a great deal more sense. Discussions were, in fact, going on about New Zealand joining the Australian federation in the early 1900s. Today it would undoubtedly cause some economic dislocation to Australian agriculture on the one hand and to New Zealand's less developed manufacturing industry on the other hand. But rather than consider closer liaison with distant western powers, it seems eminently worthwhile for Australia and New Zealand to consider not only closer relation with each other but also with Oceania, which has in the past been totally ignored in preference to old but increasingly redundant links with Europe.

Strictly Personal

The Great American Myth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A little joke I read in a magazine not long ago went: "The man whose great-grandfather built a railroad through the wilderness with nobody's OK now has to get a permit to remodel his front porch."

This is a part of the American myth, and it is surprising how many contemporary Americans still believe it. The fact of the matter is that great-grandfather not only needed permission to build the railroad, but he also was subsidized by the Federal government for doing so.

We look upon our Western settlers and pioneers as the prototypes of the free enterprise system, as hardy competitive types who struck out boldly for themselves, but this is a gross misreading of American history.

Actually, the competition was in the East, in the growing towns and the burgeoning industrial activity of the early 19th century. Many, if not most, of the men who went westward were not able to compete in that vigorous society.

They were offered free land and other inducements by the government. The granting of rights-of-way to railroads, the homestead act, the newly-created land grant colleges — all these were designed to provide an economic cushion as an inducement to get more settlers into the West.

This is not to disparage the admirable traits of some of these settlers, who were courageous, resourceful and hardworking. But it is to suggest that they were fleeing competition rather than seeking it, and usually with government promises of assistance and protection against loss.

The pioneers, assuredly, faced hardships — but these were hardships they chose in preference to other hardships. They opted for space and seclusion, and withdrawal from the market place, and accepted whatever government help they could get to withstand the adversitites and anarchy of life in raw communities.

Indeed, many of them were looking for "security" of a sort they could not find in the Eastern towns they emigrated from. In the hurly-burly of young industrial capitalism, they had only rustic skills that were not adapted to the urban and technical needs of the growing nation. Their westward migration was motivated as much by nostalgia as by the need for independence.

Certainly there were virtues in the pioneer attitude, some of which have diminished or disappeared today. But it is foolish to perpetuate the mythology that those men were rugged individualists seeking new lands to conquer, when in fact they were the foremost beneficiaries of government aid.

Extremists Were Minority

Ottawa Journal

A letter comes from a Canadian of British origin pleading that the Canadian Government advise the Queen not to come to Canada in 1967.

The writer says such a visit would give Quebec extremists another chance to "make an unholy show of themselves" and that would provoke the rest of Canada and fill the land with rancour in what should be a year of celebration.

We must disagree with our correspondent.

It is our belief that there was no Quebec-wide sympathy for the extremists' conduct at the time of the Quebec visit. We believe that if Her Majesty paid a formal visit to Expo 67 the Government of Quebec and its people would be delighted. If she did not pay such a visit they could feel slighted by the Queen and, what is perhaps worse, they would feel that the rest of Canada and the Canadian Government had judged Quebec by her extremists and found the province to be unfit for civilized society.

If the Queen were greeted at Expo with some outcropping of hooliganism or extremism nobody would be misled. The world knows about extremists and juveniles and so do Canadians, and any such demonstrations would be assessed in that knowledge.

On the other hand, if we did not urge the Queen to participate in our hundredth anniversary the world would judge we felt she would be unsafe in her own land. This gross exaggeration of the significance of a squeaky minority would invite outsiders to wonder whether we were still a constitutional monarchy.

Still more important would be the reaction in our own land were the Queen advised not to come. A feeling of uneasiness in the pit of our stomachs would lead to shame that could turn to an anger that would spill itself recklessly to the nation's great cost.

A country has a hundredth birthday only once. The Queen's place on July 1, 1967, is in Ottawa — and while in the country she obviously should visit the international exposition that is so dominant in our celebrations. Quebec would be pleased, Canada would be pleased, and the Queen would be pleased.

Elizabeth II is not the kind of person to run away from political rows.

L.B.J.'s Critics

Ottawa Journal

Strange it is that Mr. Johnson has to remind his critics that he cannot accept the "logic that tyranny 10,000 miles away is not tyranny to concern us, or that subjugation by an armed minority in Asia is different from subjugation by an armed minority in Europe." The academic and liberal protest movement against American involvement in South Viet Nam has taken over the role of the old mid-Western isolationists who wanted the United States to stay out of Europe's quarrels. There was more excuse for the isolationists. The world was smaller then and the United States was mainly a North American power.

Centennial Celebration

Brantford Expositor

The local celebration of Canada's centennial year must be a community effort embracing as many interests as possible. To be successful the program must be carefully co-ordinated and must involve participation by as many as possible.

The newly formed Brant Centennial Commission from the outset has recognized these two essentials. One of its first jobs will be to mail letters to about 700 groups in the city and county inviting their support in planning the calendar for 1967. Some organizations have already given thought to the matter and are busy preparing their projects. The civic centre and the addition to the Brant Historical Museum have received government approval and the promise of financial aid and will in due course be under way.

These are worthy city and county projects whose benefits will carry on long past the centennial year. The commission is more concerned right now with planning the day-to-day program for next year. It will have to co-ordinate the various undertakings in order to draw up a balanced schedule of events. In replying to the commission's invitation ,the different organizations should try to devise projects that can be distributed throughout the full period so as to avoid too much concentration or similarity in any one particular month.

The commission has a mammoth task on hand, but with the co-operation of the public there is no reason why Mr. Richard Verity, the chairman, his committees, and subcommittees should not be able to draw up a program that will meet with general approval and which will be truly representative of the community's interests. The initiative, however, must come from the various organizations that make up the city and county's corporate life. It cannot be imposed upon the public by a commission without their active support.

Any group that has not yet got around to considering its part in the centennial celebrations should give it serious thought immediately. There can never be enough time to plan an event of such importance. Let us make the most of what time remains.

Adoption of a constitution and the appointment of a nominating committee delegated to bring in a slate of officers at a meeting to be held next week, featured the second meeting of the newly formed Belleville Board of Trade held in the Y.M.C.A. The nominating committee is composed of Messrs. Ted Schwab, Cleo Colling, Gerald Hyde, William Bell, Malcolm Robb, O. A. Lloyd and W. B. Lattimer.

At the Belleville Arena the Belleville Redmen downed the Napanee Gibbards by a score of 11 to 4 in the second game of the first round of the intermediate O.H.A. The following composed the Belleville team, — Morton, Ingram, McDonald, Barriage, Pete Morgan and Carl Morgan. Subs, — McElrath, St. Louis, McGuire and H. Morgan. Harry Morgan was the big goal getter of the night as he bagged three of the Redmen's counters.

At nine o'clock this morning the Belleville hockey team accompanied by about 160 admirers left here on a special Canadian Northern train from the south station for Toronto where they will meet St. Andrew's College Juniors this evening at the arena. It was a jolly crowd of players and fans that left here, all confident that Belleville boys would win the game.

Citizens of Belleville and residents in the district who intend to operate automobiles during the season of 1916 will find great increase in the cost of upkeep owing to two reasons: Gasoline is selling at 30 cents per gallon and the price may go higher and the second reason is in the increase in the cost of the licence.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

Feb. 16, 1966 . . .

Lieutenant Stephen Decatur of the U.S. Navy led 75 men into the harbor of Tripoli 162 years ago today—in 1804 — and succeeded in burning the U.S. frigate Philadelphia, which had been captured by the pasha's navy. Only one of Decatur's men was wounded and Nelson called the raid the most daring of the age. Decatur fought the British in the war of 1812 and saw duty in the Mediterranean again before being killed in a duel in 1820. He was also the proposer of the toast: "Our country, right or wrong."

1871—Belfort was ordered to surrender to the Prussians as the Franco-Prussian war ended.

1940—HMS Cossack intercepted the German prison ship Altmark in Norwegian waters and rescued 299 British sailors.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — radar for night - fighters was first mentioned in Britain; the sea approaches to Singapore were mined by the Royal Navy; Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal envoy, returned to Washington from London.

BCI and Quinte Students Win in Speaking Contest

Terry Gerow, 324 Herchimer St., Belleville and Richard Short, R. R. 3, Belleville topped their respective divisions in the Hastings Zone Finals of the Ontario public speaking contest at Albert College last night.

The contest is sponsored by the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association and the Hydro-Electric Power Comission of Ontario.

A Grade 11 student at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Terry Gerow was the winner in the impromptu division. He spoke on current trends in protest around the world.

Richard Short is a Grade 10 student at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville. He took top honors in the prepared speech division with a humorous talk on Russia.

Terry and Richard received cash prizes for their accomplishments. G. B. Hyde chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission made the presentations, on behalf of Ontario Hydro.

The winners proceed to the regional final, scheduled for Peterborough sometime in March. The Ontario finals will be held in Toronto on Easter Monday (April 11).

A small audience of parents, friends and other interested persons heard speakers from Albert College, Moira Secondary School, Nicholson Catholic College, North Hastings High School (Bancroft) and Stirling-Rawdon District High School as well as BCIVS and Q.S.S.

Chris Wilson, head of the English Department at Albert College, is convenor for the Hastings County Zone. He was chairman of last night's contest.

Judges were H. Fitzgerald, president of American Optical Company (Canada) Ltd., E. E. Follwell, Q.C. and T. J. Lally, barrister, all of Belleville. They were pleased with the level of the talks presented by the contestants.

There were seven contestants in each division.

Cramahe Twp. Residents Fired Up Over Hunters

COLBORNE — A group of Cramahe township residents have suggested a delegation approach Cramahe council asking that restrictions be placed on hunting in the township by non resident hunters.

"Something will have to be done soon to stop this indiscriminate shooting" said Chief Constable George Blythe. A resident of Cramahe township said many of these people have little or no regard for life or property. They blast away at township signs and buildings and sonner or later someone is going to be hurt. Some residents have suggested a $50 fee be charged for hunters from outside the township. They claim the heavy influx of hunters will likely increase if some regulations are not instituted by council.

Chief Blythe said he has received a number of complaints from the township regarding damage caused by hunters particularly those from the Metropolitan Toronto area.

He said he realized the seriousness of the situation and would be prepared to head a delegation to place the matter before council members because there are not sufficient conservation officers in Northumberland to properly handle the complaints.

These officers are overworked now and the situation will get worse. He said that while he has received a number of complaints of property damage a great many others have not been reported. One township resident had a cow shot by these hunters. Another farmer found hunters shooting pigeons from inside his barn. These people not only shot a number of pigeons, they blasted several holes in the metal roof. Haldimand township residents are also concerned about the increasing number of hunters from outside the area who are coming into the township and shooting off guns.

Churches Join In Women's Day of Prayer

MADOC — The Women's World Day of Prayer will be held in the Standard Church, Madoc on February 25th at 2.00 p.m. Mrs. McMillen will be in charge of the service. It is hoped a guest speaker and missionary from Egypt will be present. All churches in the district are participating in this annual service.

economy, cannot and must not be halted.

"But in the process, we must see that labor doesn't bear an unfair share of the burden."

Mr. Nicholson hoped that current discussions between the CNR and its unions on crew run - throughs may become a model for future bargaining of this sort.

However, if voluntary methods did not work there might be a need to resort to legislation.

J. A. Huneault, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (CLC), said unions have tried to get voluntary agreements with management, but "it was thumbs down every time."

A. R. Ribbons, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC), said one union is currently attempting to have its new contract with the CNR include a clause that any change in working conditions must be negotiated.

BID WAS REJECTED

He said the proposal has been rejected outright by the railway.

In an interview after meeting, Mr. Nicholson said he has not rejected the idea of a legislative amendment that would force collective bargaining on automation issues.

But he said he wants to hear more views on the subject.

"After all, Judge Freedman spent a year and a half making his report," he said. "I've only been in the labor portfolio for a month."

Centennial Secondary School In West End of City Will Have Experimental Features

Centennial Secondary School, now under construction in west Belleville, by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, will boast of a few experimental features when it opens for Grade 9 and 10 students next September.

Not only will many of the classrooms be without windoes but some of the rooms will have a "poured on" surface, nstead of the conventional tiles, and the typing room will feature floor carpeting to reduce the noise level.

Speaking to grade 8 pupils and their parents at the Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school last night, Mr. W. J. Musgrove, principal of the new school, said that despite normal winter delays and minor hold-ups because of late delivery of materials, there was every expectation the school would be ready in the fall.

COURSES OUTLINED

The new school is being built on Palmer Road immediately to the south of the Drive - In Theatre.

Mr. Musgrove outlined the courses which will be available at the new secondary school. Initially only grade 9 and 10 students will be accommodated, with other grades to be added when the school is entirely completed.

Windowless classrooms may sound a bit unusual for a school Mr. Musgrove admitted. He pointed out, however, this would allow much better temperature control, and lighting could be completely controlled for audi visual instruction.

Although each year sees h creased rural enrolment Belleville high schools, it hoped that running of hig school buses through the ci can be kept to a minimum, a cording to Mr. Musgrove.

DISTRIBUTE STUDENTS

Along with students from th west end of the city, studen from Sidney township a Frankford will attend classes the new Centennial School.

At the same time studen from the north end of the c and from township areas no of the city will go to Quinte Se ondary School, while Thurl and Tyendinaga students will to Moira Secondary School.

Eventually it is hoped th only buses from Ameliasbur township will have to enter city.

Choking Often Begins With Too Much Alcohol

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS:—My wife received a letter from her cousin last week containing some shocking news. Their grandfather, who was 72 years old, choked to death at a family dinner.

The old man had had several cocktails and was in high spirits. He was eating a piece of steak when suddenly he stopped talking and began to cough. Nobody paid any attention until it became apparent that he was gasping for breath. By the time they realized what was happening he was dead.

I have never heard of anyone else who died this way. My wife claims she has read of similar tragedies. Can she be right? If so, please tell us how (or if) such a tragedy can be prevented. — STUNNED.

DEAR STUNNED: Several hundred people die every year in this grotesque and unnecessary manner.

I consulted with my medical authorities and learned that in the vast majority of cases the victim who chokes to death on food has ill-fitting dentures which make proper chewing of food difficult. Usually, there's another factor — too much alcohol.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about an uncle who is in his 60's and will not take his eyes or his hands off our sweet, 21-year-old daughter?

Whenever he is in this girl's presence he wants to hug and kiss her. He pulls her right onto his lap and refuses to let her alone. All this goes on right under his wife's nose. She acts as if she doesn't see a thing.

Our daughter does not like to be pawed and mauled by this old geezer but she doesn't know how to discourage him gracefully. She asked me how to deal with the problem. Can you suggest something? — RUNNING OUT OF PATIENCE.

DEAR RUNNING: A 21-year-old daughter should not need her mother's help to discourage uncle the same way she would discourage any other eight-handed idiot. And the approach needn't be "graceful."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a senior in high school — no brain, just an average student who works harder than most of the kids I know. My college boards were pretty low. This worries me a lot.

Almost every night I'm up till 11:30 or midnight doing homework, so you can see I'm not just lying around waiting for some college to beg me to enroll.

The competition to get into schools today is wild. We are under terrific pressure. So please, parents, don't add to the pressure by telling us about a nut who got into Harvard or a moron who made Yale.

If I sound like a nasty kid I apologize. I'm not always like this. I've got "college nerves," I guess. Thanks for letting me get this out of my system. — TYPICAL SENIOR.

DEAR TYP: I'm glad you wrote in. It gives me an opportunity to get something out of my system. I'm fed up to here with parents who make their kids feel like cases of arrested development if they don't make the Ivy League. Yale and Harvard can't take everybody and it's just as well, because not everybody belongs at Yale or Harvard.

There are many excellent small colleges who want students. I hope parents will urge seniors to consult with their counsellors and take their advice.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

RIVER VALLEY — Mrs. Ernest Carr was hostess on Thursday for the February meeting of River Valley Women's Institute, with 21 in attendance.

Mrs. Glenn Bush conducted the opening exercises. Mrs. J. R. Donohoe reported proceeds of over $50. from four January card parties. Mrs. Vernon Harry read an article on the Royal Theatre Company and Mrs. Roy Tucker gave a talk on the province of Saskatchewan. Mrs. Percy MacMullen reported on the parcel of Institute news she recently forwarded to England. Mrs. R. Tucker read an article from The Countrywomen Magazine which told of the conference in Ireland.

The short course "Choosing and Buying Fabrics" will be held on Tuesday, March 8th, from 10 to 4 p.m. in the school kitchen, with Mrs. Ross Bush and her committee in charge of arrangements.

ADOPTED CHILD SENDS THANKS

A letter from the adopted child in Germany was read. He told what his mother had purchased with the money that had been given by the River Valley Institute.

The W.I. will cater at the Hickson Barn Sales on Monday, February 28.

Mrs. Roy Tucker made a presentation to Mrs. Percy MacMullen to mark the occasion of her receipt of an award from the Ontario Weekly Newspapers Association.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, program convener, read a valentine poem, after which she introduced Mrs. George Burkitt, a past provincial officer. Mrs. Burkitt spoke on resolutions and said the branches should practice drafting resolutions regardless of whether they planned to send them to headquarters. She read examples of resolutions drawn up in proper form. Mrs. Roy Tucker presented the speaker with a small thank-you gift.

Mrs. MacMullen gave a brief summary of the Institute work in the north and urged area branches to contribute to this work. She discussed various centennial year plans and conducted a contest.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

I suppose almost every mother worries about thumb-sucking at one time or another. But most experts agree that if not overdone, it's perfectly normal, rarely harmful. Things that may cut down excessive thumbsucking:

If a young baby sucks his thumb lustily, it could be that he needs more time at breast or bottle.

Toddlers can often be distracted from thumbsucking with 2-way games or do-something toys.

Babyhood basic. All-age babies benefit from specially prepared cereals for the special food values they supply. Gerber Baby Cereals have added iron . . . plus important B-vitamins—thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) and niacin. Gerber Cereals are also prepared with your baby's eating pleasure in mind. Flavours are pleasantly mild, the way babies prefer them . . . the texture extra-nice to the tongue. And they stir to smooth perfection in seconds . . . stay that way right down to the last satisfying spoonful.

Regulating idea. When your baby is ready to go on a 3-meals-a-day schedule, you'll find a change of scene or a bit of attention will help him wait out a half hour or so to meet his new schedule. Babies are adaptable and will usually settle for attention if the wait isn't too long.

Growing idea. Your baby gains more in height and weight the first year than the next two put together. That's why it's important to see that he gets plenty of protein foods . . . the great promoters of growth. Gerber Strained and Junior Meats are an excellent source of protein, extra-low in fat, easy as can be to digest. Made from selected, government-inspected cuts, they're packed in sparkling, slope-shouldered jars for easy spooning and convenient refrigeration of unused portions of the food. Mrs. Hart, now 92, attended the first Home League meeting when it was organized in Belleville in 1916, and through the years has held many positions, and although unable to attend too often of late, continues to work in making items for the annual bazaar. Mrs. G. Graingor paid a tribute to the honored members in a poem she composed for the occasion.

Mrs. Brigadier Bernat was in charge of the meeting and used as her theme, "Praying Hands" based on the painting by Albracht Durer. Mrs. Bernat presented to Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Green a corsage, and a walnut and chrome plaque of the "Praying Hands".

The first Home League meeting in The Salvation Army was held in 1907 in Deytonstone, England, by Mrs. Col. E. Higgins with a membership of 16, now there is a worldwide membership of 300,000 women.

GLUB A DUB DUB

Dear Susanna: If the young ones in your house need encouragement to sit and soak in the tub, introduce them to a submerged plastic bottle noises underneath a floating towel.

Don't give me that look until you've tried it. If bathing a fidgety child is your problem, you will be glad you listened.

Let a hand towel float on the water between his knees. Use only narrow necked plastic bottles such as might have contained hand lotion or bath oil. Let him hold the empty bottle or bottles upright on the bottom of the tub, directly underneath the towel, and allow them to fill with water. Repeat ad infinitum.

Now do you see what is so fascinating? It's those gurgling noises that sound as though they came from the Hall of the Mountain King that get to him.

Your method came through with flying colors. Our victim became so engrossed that we were able to wash and rinse both her ears without one single protest. — SUSANNA

PERILS OF PURCHASING

Dear Susanna: Each week, as I enter the supermarket, I wheel over first thing to the frozen food bags provided by the store and help myself to one.

This particualr bag is not for a frozen food item (that comes later). Instead, itis an extra precaution container for the juicy red liver I always purchase in the self serve section. You know that't the package that always seems to get squashed and tipped in the buggy. "Yechhh."

Since I've been doing this I haven't had a smeared glove or parcel in a carload. —L. D. D.

Did you say, "Yechhh?" Shades of Macbeth, I know just what you mean! — SUSANNA

Craze for Cast-offs Now Prevalent in U.K.

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — "I'm wearing second-hand hats, second-hand clothes,' sings Broadway's Barbra Streisand in her jaunty number Second-hand Rose.

It could well become a London theme song before summer is out. Suddenly it seems there's a craze for cast-offs among the trend-setting chicks of Chelsea and Kensington.

First intimation of the new fashion, if that's the word, came in a Sunday color supplement showing a group of The Observer's designers, writers and fashion artists dressed in clothes picked up at stalls in London's street markets.

The article, by fashion editor Georgina Howell, credited Barbra Streisand with starting the craze when she bought an armful of old fur coats and began wearing them around New York. The Funny Girl star who in one week recently managed to figure in lists of the 10 best-dressed and 10 worst-dressed women in the United States, still occasionally cruises down to Second Avenue in her Bentley foraging for cast-offs.

Georgina Howell remarked that the craze was more likely to survive in London "because at the moment, it's the only place where anybody can wear anything they like and get away with it."

SEEK ANTIQUES

Prize quarry for old-clothes hunters are genuine couture antiques such as a sequined Chanel model of 1920 or a Lanvin dinner-dress of 1934. As old clothes go they are fairly expensive, about $12, but with the 1930s look persisting in spite of geometric op-art fashions, it could be regarded as a neat piece of one-upwomanship to wear a period original.

And as Miss Howell comments, how else can most people afford to wear a real Chanel?

The next indication that old clothes were going up in the world came when Sotheby's, the famous Bond Street firm of fine-art auctioneers, announced a sale of women's clothing dating from 1890 to 1925. Bidding was brisk and all 20 items, including such offbeat togs as a housemaid's apron of 1911, were snapped up at prices ranging from $15 to $165. Top price was paid for a bride's dress of 1890 in ivory satin.

Whether any of the customers would actually wear their purchases in public seemed open to question, but the clients of a second-hand shop that recently opened in, of all places, dignified Belgravia certainly mean business.

The brainchild of a dark, handsome young man named Brian Riley, the new venture is rather more select and up-to-date than the stalls in Portobello Road Market. Its couture cast-offs bear such labels as Dior, Balmain and Capucci, at prices around $30.

Club Activities

PRINCE EDWARD-BELLEVILLE LADIES' CLUB

Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club held its regular meeting at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Baird, who read a poem.

Mrs. Burd's and Mrs. Welch's group had charge of the program. Miss H. Sulman told the story of St. Valentine. Mr. James from the St. John's Ambulance Corps showed a film on poisons in the home and spoke on the Corp's work.

To celebrate the occasion of the club's 23rd birthday, a birthday cake centred the refreshment table, flanked with candles. All regretted that Mrs. Weese, organizer and first president of the club, was in hospital and unable to be present.

CANADA SCORED FIRST

The first electrically-cooked meal on record was served in 1892 in the Windsor Hotel, Ottawa.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society, Afternoon Auxilliary, was held in the Sunday school auditorium with Mrs. H. Elvidge presiding.

In the absence of Mrs. E. M. Shier the secretary's report was given by Mrs. V. Weir. An invitation from the Auxilliary to attend the observance of their tenth anniversary was extended to the ladies. Mrs. Elvidge urged all present to attend the World Day of Prayer Service to be held in Eastminster United Church on February 25th.

Mrs. Weir was in charge of the study period and gave an interesting talk on the life of Dr. Mary Verghese who, although crippled in an accident continued her work as surgeon in the Vellore hospital in India, performing operations from a wheel chair, her chief work being among those suffering from leprosy. She was greatly beloved by all who knew her and through her skill many lepers were able to lead useful lives.

Mother's Helper

OUR YOUNGSTERS shoved the big chairs and hassocks around every time they looked at TV, so that rumpled rugs, worn spots and scratched floors became a problem. We installed ball-bearing casters on every piece of furniture in the TV area. Viewing is easier and the rugs are saved. (Thanks to Mrs. Ray Evans, Bartlesville, Okla.).

W.A. VALENTINE TEA

MADOC — A Valentine tea was held in the Anglican Parish Hall on Wednesday afternoon sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary. President, Mrs. Velma Carman welcomed the many visitors. Pouring tea were: Mrs. Kathleen I. Thompson, Mrs. Foley, C.W.L.; Mrs. Pitt, W.M.S.; Mrs. P. Brownson, U.C.C.; while Mrs. I. Ross, T. Tufts, Elvi Brownson, Edith Hart, Ann Griffin, Leona Griffen and Lois Nickle served tables. Making tea was Mrs. Annie Allt, while serving from the kitchen were Mrs. Mary Ward and Mrs. Alice Mitts. A home bake table was looked after by Mrs. Hugh Empey.

International Night Marked By B. and P. Women's Club

On Saturday evening at Tabernacle United Church a turkey banquet was enjoyed by members of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club and their guests.

Vice-president, Miss Ruth McMullen, conducted the evening's proceedings, the occasion being International Night observed each year by the club. A sing-song conducted by Mrs. Dorothy Brown and pianist Mrs. Arlene Kennedy was enjoyed by all.

Miss McMullen introduced the head table guests, among whom were special guests Miss Joan Wilson, provincial president of the B. and P. Clubs and Miss Doris Wilson from the Ontario Messenger.

Miss Hazel Smith expressed appreciation on behalf of the club to the women of the U.C.W. unit that had prepared the dinner. Out of town clubs were well represented from Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton and Kingston. Mr. William Mann, guest soloist, sang two vocal selections.

President, Mrs. Marie Huffman, introduced the guest speaker Mr. Brian Marshall, liaison officer from the Department of Citizenship and Immigration of Toronto. Mr. Marshall's position finds him mostly concerned with new Canadians and Indian Affairs. Immigrants want to know what it is like to be born in Canada and how they will find things after they arrive here. These people have to seek a sponsor because they have no skill or trade. Those who are unsponsored come to Canada on their own merits with definite skills. It is most important that our new citizens get along in this country. They are most interested in the upbringing of Canadian children. People born in Canada should take more interest in these newcomers, get to know their attitudes and outlooks on the world at large. Foreign languages are a great concern to Mr Marshall's branch. Out attitude to these people must be right, as this will also have a great bearing on what kind of new Canadians these people become.

Mrs. Irene Haig expressed appreciation on behalf of the club to Mr. Marshall.

The "Lights Up Ceremony" commemorating International Night was conducted by Miss Joan Wilson, Ontario Provincial President.

SPANISH TRIED HEAT

Hot chocolate was invented by Spanish explorers who could not drink the cold "chocolatl" offered them by early Aztecs.

Women's Institutes

QUEENSBORO W.I.

QUEENSBORO — The regular monthly meeting of the Queensboro Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. A. Sager on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Harry Declair, 1st vice-president was in the chair.

A draw held on a vase donated by Mrs. Arthur Holmes was won by Mrs. John Thompson.

It was decided to hold a card party in the Orange Hall on Friday evening, February 17th.

Consumers Association Offers Tips on Buying Hair Dryers

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Whether you wear your hair in a Courreges cut or Shirley Temple curls, chances are you spend an hour or two a week under the bonnet of your own home hair dryer.

The Canadian Association of Consumers has tested about a dozen of the more than 50 makes of hair dryers available in Canada, and offers some tips to prospective buyers.

Prices range from under $10 to about $40. Some of the more expensive models come equipped with a power manicure set and hair perfumer. But if you just want to dry your hair, you won't need to get into the higher price range. Average price is between $20 and $25.

Any dryer you buy should carry the mark of the Canadian Standards Association showing it has been approved as electrically safe.

The CAC found that some models which had this stamp failed certain electrical tests, or had a faulty thermostat. The thermostat control should turn the motor off when the air intake is blocked or the fan stops revolving. If the thermostat fails to operate, the element becomes overheated and may burn out or even give off smoke.

HANDS SHOULD BE DRY

According to the CAC, the models that failed the tests may not be hazardous in use—second samples of the same models behaved correctly. But the failures indicate the need for better inspection of some appliances before they reach the consumer and the need for the consumer to return any faulty article and insist on its being put right.

Electrical safety is the user's responsibility, too. The testers warn that dryers should never be handled with wet hands. The dryer shouldn't be left running if you take off the hood to answer the doorbell, and you should pull out the wall plug immediately if the fan seems to have stopped.

Most important, never poke around with a bobby pin or other metal instrument in case it touches a live part and gives you a shock.

Before you buy a dryer, you should check that the hood is large enough for your hair style—extra large ones may be available—and that it has elastic and drawstring to give it a snug fit.

CHECK HOSE

The inside of the hood band should be soft. A rough band will mark your forehead, a nuisance if you want to get out of the house in a hurry.

Hoods are plastic, so after a while even the best ones tend to stiffen or crack. A new one can usually be bought to replace it.

You should test the hose to make sure it is easy to plug into the hood, and that it stays plugged in firmly.

If you like to dust, cook or just wander around while drying your hair, you will need a model with a long cord and hose. Some dryers have a shoulder strap for extra convenience.

A carrying case makes storage easier, and is usually available even if it is not standard equipment.

As a final touch, some models have a soft plastic base, which cuts down the risk of scratches on table tops.

Apply powder smoothly. Don't let it cake along the sides of nose, around eyes or under chin.

Minerva OES Celebrates 40th Birthday

The Masonic Temple on Foster Avenue was the scene of a birthday party on Friday night when Minerva Chapter O.E.S. No. 138 celebrated its 40th birthday.

Prior to opening chapter the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Georgina Rendell and the Worthy Patron, Mr. Wallace Marner, entertained the visiting Grand Officers and present officers of Minerva Chapter at dinner in the reception room of the Belmont Restaurant.

Mrs. Beverly Shaw of Belleville sang a selection when the Worthy Grand Matron and Worthy Grand Patron were welcomed.

There were three charter members present: Mrs. Minnie Moorman, Mrs. Eva Wootten and Mrs. Nellie Clarke. Mrs. Laura Hyde sent her regrets for not being present due to illness.

Twenty-two past matrons and ten past patrons were present with many visitors from this district and Kingston.

Red and white flowers adorned the east and along with the colorful gowns of the visitors made a fitting setting for the birthday cake decorated in white with blue forget-me-nots, made in the form of an open book with a book mark. Mrs. Nellie Clarke, Past Matron; Mrs. Georgina Rendell, Worthy Matron, and Miss Mildred Gray, a member, took part in the cake-cutting ceremony as the voice of the past, the present and the future.

Refreshments were served by the special refreshment committee assisted by the members of the February group.

Successful Living

Worried That Hubby Was Already Wed

DEAR DORIS: I married a man in good faith in 1957. Then his sister told me he had been married before. I asked him and he said he had been living with this woman common law.

Well I gave up being as a wife to him. His folks all told me he was married before. In 1962 his first wife died. The death certificate gave her name as my husband's last name.

DORIS CLARK

Three months ago my first boy friend came back to town. He told me that he still wants me and is still single. I would love to find a bit of happiness. If my husband was married before do I have to go through a divorce in order to remarry? Am I doing wrong to see this old boy friend at this time? — HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

DEAR HOPING: The crux of the matter is: Was your husband already married when he married you? If so, your marriage was illegal, and no divorce would be necessary to free you. If the other liaison was not a legal marriage, then you do not need a divorce. In either case you need a lawyer!

If you value your reputation you'll keep clear of any other entanglements until this is straightened out.

DEAR DORIS: Please tell Grandma "Deeply Hurt" to get up and get down to her son's home to see her grandchildren. Good Heavens, Christmas Day is practically open house to all friends and relatives.

No D.I.L. wante grandma under her feet evey day, but if my mother-in-law waited for an invitation they'd be rare indeed, as one feels one must have the house tidy and something for tea if an invitation is issued.

I get annoyed when my own mother complains like that. They feel they need special engraved invitations. I feel the old folks could do some things for themselves instead of sitting and waiting for the phone to ring. — ANOTHER D.I.L.

DEAR D.I.L.: Hooray! It's not hard to guess there's good cheer and hospitality in your home; nor that your own mother and M.I.L. use judgment as to when they barge in.

Confidential to DRUMMER BOY: Take another look at that church group you've been high-hatting. You avoid the wrong crowd by getting into the right one. Hold your temper and let yourself go in up-and-above-board sports. When parents impose limits that means they care; appreciate them.

DEAR DORIS: Why do you deal with questions of etiquette? Do social workers do this? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: I deal with what people ask about. How to be mannerly in life's high moments, and low, is often crucial!

Social workers are not society's guidebooks, but I have yet to find a caseworker who wouldn't steer a youthful bride or anxious swain in the right direction when it came to doing the Right Thing!

DEAR DORIS: I have a cousin living here. I moved here about one year ago. My cousin was very good to me. I have a grown child living a long distance from here who came to see me. I did not ask my cousin to meet my child as I was told it was her place to ask my child and me to her place.

My cousin is very hurt because I did not ask her to come here. It has hurt both of us. I apologized, as I would do anything before hurting anyone. — ADVICE NEEDED.

DEAR ADVICE: Why both stand o nceremony? Surely the invitation could have come from either direction!

There are times when we should listen to the heart's dictates and forget that old witch, Mrs. Grundy. If Cousin is as good as you say, she'll accept your apology. Then go on from there and make something precious of your friendship.

Private Dietetic Clinic Now Open in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Two professional dietitians have opened a private dietetic clinic here.

Cecile Bouchard-Garceau and Lucile Mercier discovered the need for such a service when they worked together at a Montreal hospital and they expect to have private clients from across the country before long.

"Most doctors will prescribe a diet for their patients but they find it too time-consuming and too specialized to help the patients work out a complete daily schedule geared to their likes and dislikes," Miss Mercier explained.

"Indigent persons can get dietetic service at hospital out-patients' clinics, but the private patient has to be hospitalized to get help."

Both women are members of the Corporation of Dietitians of Quebec and Mrs. Garceau belongs to the American Dietetic Association. Miss Mercier is continuing to work at the hospital, but Mrs. Garceau left her job there to work only at the clinic.

The women prepare therapeutic diets (low-fat, low-salt, ulcer, diabetic, obese, etc.) only on doctor's orders, or if the person has no serious condition but simply wants to shed a few pounds, on a phone call to the client's family physician.

Preparation of such a diet demands a complete history of a person's eating habits as well as of his or her likes and dislikes, Mrs. Garceau said. The success depends on how attractive it can be made.

SAVORY ONE-DISH MEAT COURSE

A variation on the Quiche Lorraine theme is Tuna Lorraine using popular meat-like canned tuna - a determined effort on my part to cope with the high cost of meat.

This is a savory one-dish meat course. To serve with it I am giving you a colorful vegetable aspic for an important-looking salad course.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

TUNA LORRAINE

(9" pie plate - serves 6)

Pastry:

1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour,
⅓ cup shortening,
1½ tablespoons butter,
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cold water.

Filling:

2 large eggs,
one 7-oz. can solid (or flaked) tuna drained and flaked,
1 cup soft breadcrumbs - almost 2 slices bread,
½ cup grated cheese (use up hard odds and ends),
one 6-oz. can (¾ cup) evaporated milk,
1 cup water,
½ teaspoon salt,
⅛ teaspoon pepper.

To make pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork until all flour is barely damp. Press into ball and roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" deep pie plate, allowing ½" extra all around for a high firm fluted edge. Prick pastry with fork tip and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 8 minutes. Do not overbake.

To make Filling, in a large bowl beat eggs and stir in all remaining filling ingredients. Pour into prebaked pie shell. If it will not hold all of the filling, put it into the oven to bake at 325 deg. Fahr. When edges set add remaining filling to centre. Sprinkle top with paprika and bake until set and tinged with gold. Serve hot.

VEGETABLE JUICE ASPIC

2 cups canned vegetable juice (V-8),
1½ tablespoons plain gelatin,
⅓ cup chopped salad olives (include some pimiento),
⅓ cup chopped inner celery and tops.

Soak the gelatin in ½ cup of cold vegetable juice 5 minutes. Stand it in or over boiling water and stir until gelatin dissolves. Add to remaining vegetable juice and chill until it begins to thicken. Add olives and celery and pour into 6 individual moulds or into one large one. Chill until se. Li salad bowls or plates with crisp lettuce leaves, turn out moulded vegetable juice aspic on each, garnish with little mound of mayonnaise and a celery heart or simply serve each individual mould of vegetable juice aspic with cottage cheese mixed with chopped chives or chopped green onion.

"Isn't it wonderful to be young and in love?"

Wife of AP Writer Discovers New World in Saudi Arabia

Lost in the desert, in purple ski pants, the wife of an Associated Press writer discovered a new world. It was a world of cold, of mirages, a lone olive tree, and immense red cliffs, of an insane camel, a 'dancing driver," and one can of corned beef.

By ADRIENNE LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT (AP) — A pearl-handled pistol gripped in one fist, the old Sheikh shuffled across the sand and kissed me gently on the cheek. I thought he was being fatherly, but I was wrong.

We scrambled into the desert car and the driver said to my husband in Arabic: "The Sheikh is offering to give you two of his women if you leave your wife here for him." He dropped the car in low gear and we lurched away from the oasis—before anyone could conclude the deal. The black-veiled women waved from beside the tent.

This was Beir Zhat el Hajj (the well of the Pilgrim) in Saudi Arabia, a little cluster of palm trees, black goat - hair tents and sun-blistered houses of mud brick. Their ofs were held up by pieces of iron track from the Hejaz Railway, blown apart by Lawrence of Arabia and his Bedouin raiders half a century ago.

Now the long-abandoned railway, 519 miles through the desert, was being rebuilt by two British companies, and I was the first woman allowed to travel down the line, over the objections of the construction manager.

"No women are allowed, and that's final," the manager had ruled in Jordan. "It is rough, unsafe country, and the men haven't seen a woman for months."

Fortunately, the mayor of Amman considered this a slur on Arab hospitality, and a possible insult to Jordan's Hajani (camel police patrols), for implying that they couldn't guarantee the safety of a woman.

GRANTED VISA

A quick telephone call by the mayor, and I was granted a visa for Saudi Arabia and loaded into a car with my husband David, an Associated Press correspondent and a native of Toronto, AP photographer Harry Koundakjian, and Eric Greig, the Scottish chief engineer for the Hejaz construction co.

We reached the well of the Pilgrim after a day and a half of hard driving across empty gravel plains, horrifyingly bleak mountains of sandstone called the Wolf's Belly, spine-crunching climbs across dry watercourses, and endless miles of sand. It was empty, desolate, cheerless and shivering cold, for the desert winter was coming on.

At the oasis, a halt for Pilgrims going to the holy cities of Medina and Mecca, I was hustled into a village harem—a carpeted, mud brick room—and surrounded with chattering women who took off their veils, served tea in small glasses, examined my clothes (especially my ski pants), proudly exhibited their male children, and laughed in polite disbelief when I told them I had two sons of my own.

A few hours later we parked the car in a dusty bazaar in the centre of a town called Tebuk.

The curious crowds that surrounded us in the bazaar were on their best behavior. Western women have undoubtedly been to Tebuk before, but I was probably the first one the townspeople had ever seen in stretch ski pants—tight, bright purple one.

WATCHED BY CROWD

I felt conspicuous and a bit uncomfortable as we gradually collected a crowd of 200 or 300, watching us silently and shuffling close behind us as we walked from stall to stall. It was a relief to drive back into the desert.

We spent the nights in construction camps, silver-colored American trailers that had somehow been hauled into the middle of the desert and rigged up with astonishing conveniences — indoor plumbing and even hot showers.

Mile after mile we drove along the remains of the rail line, and then we struck off for Wadi Ramm, a spectacular gorge in south Jordan. As long as we followed the rails, we were safe but here it could get dangerous.

We had no map, no compass, no special sand tires, and our only water supply was a canvas bag hung on the nose of the car. We had passed the skeletons of camels from time to time, bleaching in the sun and reminding us what could happen to lost travellers.

Then it happened. We were lost. An immense salt flat, glittering white, reached out to the horizon in every direction, and all tracks had disappeared.

Each way we drove led to a wall of hills. We seemed to be driving in circles.

SEE MIRAGE

A few minutes later our tire tracks appeared in the salt, and with a nervous laugh of relief we set off. Then we stopped again—this time in amazement. Some desert travellers argue that you cannot mistake a mirage for water, but suddenly an entire lake appeared before us, shimmering and reflecting the hills. We turned around and there was another lake behind us. Reflected in the surface we could see a string of camels, and a tribe of bedouins walking on the horizon.

It was the most spectacular sight I had ever seen—immense blue lakes appearing out of nowhere, but not a drop of real water—and we all got out of the car and stared, awestruck, for 15 minutes or more.

There were other marvellous moments and sights. One of them was reaching Ramm, and driving up the valley between immense red cliffs as the sun set, and sitting with the Bedouin police riders around a fire, sipping cups of bitter Arab coffee.

Then there was the best meal I ever ate, in the middle of the desert when we realized we had no food, and the driver reached under his seat and pulled out a solitary tin of corned beef. Or the chauffeur himself, who was called Geryess, the "dancing driver." No matter how dusty, heavy-eyed and tired he was after a day behind the wheel, he spent the evenings doing doing Arab jigs to entertain the construction workers.

And the only time on the whole trip that I was truly frightened: not when we thought we were lost, but at a desert police camp when we were waiting for our camels. Suddenly a frantic - looking policeman raced into the compound on a shaggy camel that was roaring, rolling its eyes, foaming at the mouth, bucking and heaving, and I said, "you want me to ride that?"

I was terrified, until the sergeant reassured me. "Of course not, sitt (lady). It is only a joke. This camel is insane."

U.C.W. Meetings

WELLINGTON U.C.W. UNIT 2

WELLINGTON — Unit 2 of the United Church Women of Wellington met on Tuesday afternoon in the Centennial Parlor.

(Mrs. Nair was born in the state of Kerala in India and holds a master's degree in mathematics from the University of Madras. She taught at the University of Madras for nine years before marrying and moving to Bombay. During the two years she lived in Bombay she was a free-lance journalist, contributing articles to the Times of India and the Indian Express. Mrs. Nair moved to Belleville last September with her husband, a research officer with the Research Institute on Dundas Street East. Dr. and Mrs. Nair have one son, Krishna, aged 20 months.)

What it is that one expects of the peoples of various countries different in race, culture and background from one's own, I don't know. But what does strike one with suprising directness is not so much the many differences as the essential sameness, dressed as it may be in the most varied of garbs, nursed and tended in surroundings as different as night from day.

When I came to Belleville from India, I was all agog with excitement and apprehension, trying to visualize all I might have to face up to. I need not have worried. If I knew my neighbor in India, I had only to change the attire, language color and habits to have my neighbor in Belleville.

Everything is different every encounter is new, every moment brings a fresh experience Yet, through it all, is the lurking suspicion, a growing conviction, of "haven't I seen this movie before?"

Though the differences are there, and in plenty, life at the core remains very much the same — the work, the play, the loves, the laughs, the harmless (and not so harmless) gossip, a heartbreak here, a heartwarming picture of happiness there, a pique, a friendliness, a feud washed over by waves of harmony, a general striving for something not quite tangible. They are all present, however different the setting. But that setting does present a study in contrasts.

HOMES, FABRICS CONTRASTED

In India houses are designed to let in air, here to shut it out. There you wake in the middle of the night to lower the temperature on the air conditioner, here to raise it on the heater. There the cottons demanded by the weather go lank in the wash and have to be starched stiff. Here the woollens go stiff and have to be softened with a softener

In India the children are woefully spoilt, the teens fettered and the grownups mixed up. Here the children brush the knife edge between discipline and regimentation, the teens are spoilt, and much the same product is tossed into the grown-up bowl. There the final garnishing is done with a sprinkle of philosophy, here, with psychology.

Climatic conditions, history and tradition have joined together to make India, a land "in which it seems always afternoon." The past 5,000 years or more have taken care of the morning's work, and there is plenty of time to get set for the evening. Or so it seemed, till the realization came that there is not enough food in the house, not enough to drink, not enough space.

On the other hand, the bracing cold, the youth of the nation, and an innate drive seems to keep Canada on her toes. Her people, mostly new, that is, people come together in a new land, have the choice of retaining what traditions they like of those they have come with, and setting up what new ones they want. Only these latter are in the chrysalis of individual custom and habit, and have yet to emerge as tradition. And all the way, like any other western nation, Canada has for handmaidens science and industry and an agile push button capacity. On the whole it seems to be the story of a people rising to the challenge of a clean slate with automatic crayons.

CANADIANS SLAVES TO HOUSES

Points of view and living conditions present their own contrasts. In India the home is a shelter from the elements. Here, it is a nest to feather. There, for the average Indian, the floor is something you walk on, possibly sleep on, and so is something to be kept clean—period. Here the floor is what you vaccuum clean, scrub, polish, wax, put a rug on, put something under the rug, clean between rug and what goes under, clean rug, put furniture on, polish furniture, upholster, clean upholstery, put slip covers on clean slip covers . . . If cleanliness is next to godliness I think the choice seats in Heaven are in the process of being reserved for the western housewife. Half her time is used up in cleaning, and cleaning the cleaners. "Would you like to give your mop a new personality? Then use . . ." What I would like to do is scream. In India you wield a broom. You might even delegate that privilege. And when the broom loses its personality you throw it away (could be into your next door neighbor's back yard), and get a fresh one.

The kitchen has its story, too. Take vegetables, for example. In India you eat them fresh, while they are alive and kicking, or not at all. The only snag is that there are not enough to go round, and a good many have to settle for the not-at-all. Here, a fair share and more is anybody's for the asking, of vegetables that have gone to sleep, that have gone "blah" and have to be prodded awake. What happens to the fresh ones I have not been able to discover yet. Possibly, they get put to sleep to have the germs and the pep taken out of them. So with meat, dairy products and most other foods. It could be that there is so much consumer goods that the new and the fresh have to be laid by to go "blah" so that those that have gone "blah" may be touched up to bloom. In India the life expectancy of perishables as of humans, is short, and they get consumed in their prime or even before.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS SECOND RATE

But for the same reasons, where mechanized products are concerned, second and third rate output gets more than a break from India's millions, while the keen competition here keeps standards high. By sheer force of magnitude in demand, anything sells in India. So much so that a safety pin with a rustless tip is hard to find. There is also a curious mixture of a zeal for perfection in the handicrafts and slipshodiness in factory products. A priceless, hand-embroidered bag might be fastened with a zip that does not zip.

Somewhere in her backsliding into privation and poverty India seems to have dropped what was once unmistakably her forte — an attention to detail. Her many sculptures, paintings, domes, minarets and temples are eloquent testimony to that former attention to detail.

In the modern age of science and precision, in a world functioning to a moment-to-moment countdown, India is like an old woman, lined and crumpled, whose every wrinkle reads an unfinished tale, a tale losing its beginnings way back in history, into pre-historic times. Her onetime prosperity and well being had taken the push out of her sons, and their lassitude and bickerings in the face of a barrage of laudable marksmanship from outrageous fortune had all but crushed the spirit out of her

But now she finds new hope in her little ones growing up in a sterner school, and looks past the trials of the immediate past to find solace in the memory of days long gone by. India looks across the tribulations of the immediate future to find promise of fulfilment in an age yet to come.

Ottawa Makes Hospital Grant To Napanee

OTTAWA — A federal health grant of $207,946 to the new Lennox and Addington County General Hospital in Napanee has been approved, it was announced today by National Health and Welfare Minister Allan J. MacEachen.

When completed, the new hospital building will contain 87 active treatment beds, a 12-bassinet nursery and supporting treatment services. The hospital will serve Napanee and surrounding district.

The building is of steel and reinforced concrete construction, with brick exterior facing. Construction of the new hospital was started in December, 1964, and completion is expected early in 1966.

Injunctions Called Threat To Labor Peace

TORONTO (CP) — Court injunctions have "little if any legitimate role in labor disputes and they are now posing a serious threat to sound labor relations," the legislature was told Tuesday.

Ken Bryden (NDP — Woodbine), after a review of the recent strike at the Oshawa Times, said injunctions "are handed out like shirts in a mail-order house on the basis of applications that disclose no danger that anyone is going to suffer irreparable harm.

". . . They are purely instruments for using the power of the state to tip the scale in a private dispute in favor of one party and against the other." Mr. Bryden said during the budget debate.

"The day is long past when employers should be able to decide arbitrarily on revolutionary technological changes without any consultation with the representatives of the workers whose livelihood is at stake."

Mr. Bryden said the "law in Ontario should be changed to ensure that these legitimate interests are adequately safeguarded."

Ontario Tax Boosts Assailed

TORONTO (CP)—The people of Ontario are being pushed around, the legislature was told Tuesday as Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson criticized government tax increases announced in the provincial budget last week.

Mr. Thompson, speaking in the budget debate, described the increases as the "largest wholesale increase in taxation in the province's history."

"Not only are the rights of our citizens being pushed around but their pocketbooks are being pushed around too," the opposition leader said.

minion transcontinental passenger train. But he argued at length that "wasteful and unnecessary" transportation services must be scrapped.

The time had come to integrate railroad, air, water and other forms of transport in an efficient way to preserve export markets and economic growth generally.

The integration of transportation services would have to be carried out by a single department of government. But he added:

"I do think the department is too big for one man."

COMMENTS ON HEALTH

Mr. Pickersgill, 60, said he has been reading a lot of gossipy newspaper stories about his ill health and his retirement plans.

". . . My ill health was in par in the mind of some people who would really like to see me out of my present position."

If the Commons continued at its present pace, the new Railway Act and other transportation bills would not be passed until 1971 or 1972. "At the rate we are going, I do not believe we will get more than one or two bills passed before Christmas."

He said most of the opposition speeches criticizing the CPR for cutting back passenger and freight services were parochial.

Make Progress Toward Ending Trucking Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Progress toward settlement of Ontario's trucking strike was reported Tuesday night by A. C. Dennis, chief of the labor department's conciliation services.

Mr. Dennis commented after meeting in camera with representatives of the International Teamsters' Union (Ind.) and the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing 35 trucking companies. Talks were to resume today.

A spokesman for the bureau said "the number of points in dispute has been reduced to 16, as against 43 a week ago. . . . There are matters on which we can bargain."

REPORTS IMPROVE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Reporting of financial affairs by public companies to their shareholders has improved substantially in the last five years, the executive director of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants said Tuesday. Douglas Thomas of Toronto said in an interview there is still room for improvement in company-shareholder relations.

Federal Govt. Will Be Asked To Share Cost

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Public Utilities Commission is hoping that the federal government will share the cost of the $250,000 reservoir expansion program, because water will be supplied to Camp Picton.

The Department of National Defence has already advised the commission that it has recommended such an arrangement to the federal treasury board. An announcement of the outcome is expected soon.

The project includes a new 1,000,000 gallon reservoir near the present 750,000 gallon reservoir adjacent to Camp Picton. A 500,000 gallon clear reservoir near the water purification plant and a sub-pumping station.

Mayor H. J. McFarland suggested that assistance be sought from the federal government when the P.U.C. approached council for a debenture issue.

County Council Rejects Motion Of Committee

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Council this week passed a motion rejecting the June 1965 report of the County Consultative Committee, which recommended establishment of five public school areas in the county.

The motion was put forward by Deputy-Reeve George Cunningham of Ameliasburgh and seconded by Reeve Kenneth Hicks of North Marysburgh.

It followed more than an hours debate on applications by North Marysburgh and Athol Townships.

Before the motion was passed Reeve Bernard Hepburn, of Picton, acting Warden in the absence of Reeve Harold Bonter of Ameliasburgh, cautioned members that it may be out of order. He said, the Ontario Department of Education may require the county to implement the committee's recommendations.

The 1965 report recommended that Athol Township be consumed by neighboring townships for public school purposes. Athol has fought against the proposal from the start.

Ice banks along the shore at Salmon Point near The Outlet, are bringing spectators by the drove to witness nature at work. The banks, some 40 feet high, line the shore nearly to the tip of the point. A popular summer spot for swimmers and picnickers, it is hardly recognizable at this time of year. Great waves splash against the icy formations sending spray high in the air.

Many Banquets Held Before Boy Scout Week

PICTON — Throughout this week and next Boy Scout troops from the county of Prince Edward are holding their father and son banquets. This year these gatherings precede Boy Scout Week.

The first of these father and son banquets was held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Tuesday night when members of the 2nd Picton Troop entertained their fathers, at a fine banquet. About 50 fathers attended along with about an equal number of Scouts and Cubs.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of Queen Scout badges to six boy scouts. The presentations were made by scoutmaster, Ron Scott of Picton, who spoke briefly on the hours of study and work required to attain this scouting award. Recipients of the Queen Scout badges were Tim Lederman, Gary Nugent, Bob Tolley, Bob Murphy, Lloyd Chapman and Bill Mathews. Following the banquet a film was shown on the Scout Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Canada's Olympic Athletes Unfairly Treated--B. Shipp

An American - born professional Canadian football player last night told the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club that "Canada's Olympic athletes are not getting a fair shake." And no one was about to dispute his word - Billy Shipp stands well over six feet tall and weighs more than a of a ton.

Speaking to the monthly meeting of the club, held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Mr. Shipp told his audience that Canadians don't appear to show any interest in the Olympics until after their team has made a poor showing. He said that, [illegible]ough the performance of [illegible]e athletes is often the centre of much criticism, the lack of adequate training facilities available to them is not taken into consideration. "Not only is the Canadian climate not conducive to sufficient training," he said, "but the interest in Canada's Olympic ventures is far below what it could be."

Mr. Shipp advocated the introduction of Canadian university athletic scholarships as a remedy for some of these ills, and criticized the image of athletic scholarship "dummies."

Mr. Shipp, who has played professional football in both the U.S. and Canada, said that Canadian pro football "cannot compete financially or any other way with the N.F.L.,' and stressed that by keeping the Canadian game as it is now, with no [illegible] changes, "a lot could be [illegible] with Canadian football to promote fan interest." He noted that in American football, because of the smallness of the field and also because of certain rules, the defensive teams can often dominate the play. But he said that the nature of the Canadian rules and the larger field left the path wide open for "an imaginative exhibton of a well - mixed offence," a style of play tailor - made for the football fan.

Mr Shipp has played 12 years in Canadian football, most of them with the Toronto Argonauts. When asked about his team's misfortunes, he reminded the questioner that they were in the midst of a 're-building period." He regretted, however, that the re-building program had thus far taken 10 years.

Mr. Shipp was introduced by Robt. Freestone, and thanked by Tom Dutton. Following the dinner and address, those in attendance had the opportunity to see a film of last year's Canadian Open Golf Tournament, made available by Mr. Shipp.

Ottawa at A-Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Feb. 15, 1966

The Commons turned again to transport department estimates after announcement of a new power project in Manitoba.

Prime Minister Pearson said Ottawa would provide some $120,000,000 toward a $300,000,000 Nelson River development.

The Canadian Labor Congress and International Railway Unions made presentations to the cabinet on various labor matters.

Labor Minister Nicholson made no commitment to accept the Freedman report's proposal on negotiating automation measures.

Provincial officials petitioned for an extension of the government's municipal loan program past March 31.

An application to move Channel 3 to Toronto from Barrie, Ont., was the main subject in the transport debate.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the government was awarding a plum to its political friends.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said Canada cannot continue with its present transport system.

Equipment must be modernized and redundant, unused services cut out.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 16

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to continue study of transport department estimates. The Senate is adjourned until Feb. 22.

Pearson Denies Implications Of PC Chief

OTTAWA (CP) —Opposition Leader Diefenbaker says Prime Minister Pearson advocated on a TV show Monday night that Canada should consider adopting some aspects of the American system of government.

Prime Minister Pearson says he discussed the matter but didn't advocate anything.

Both leaders debated the speech for 20 minutes in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, holding a transcript of the prime minister's remarks, said Mr. Pearson told the television interviewer "that we should give consideration to adoption of the American system. . . . I read every word."

Mr. Pearson wanted to know "where it says that."

DRAWS INFERENCE

Mr. Diefenbaker said that although the exact words might not be there, the inference was advocation of American legislative practices.

He said Mr. Pearson's statement was "that the American system is on some ways to be preferred to ours." This was indicative of a state of mind that "whatever the government says is good and an opposition should not question a government on what it does."

The prime minister had said there were advantages in "a little more independence" and in "not being questioned every hour." This, Mr. Diefenbaker interpreted, meant the prime minister didn't want to give the country full and complete answers.

"We in opposition should be seen and not heard," said Mr. Diefenbaker in summing up his inferences from the speech.

The contents of the speech were "a doctrine of those that would control Parliament, would permit themselves to be considered set apart and a denial of the entire parliamentary system."

United Appeal Officials Urged Not to Stand on Record But Set New Marks

United Appeal officials were issued a challenge to seek continually for new answers to the problems of fund raising and public relations.

Speaking at the eighth United Appeal Annual Meeting, Henry Stubbins, executive - secretary, Community Funds and Welfare Committee Canadian Welfare Council, said, "The challenge of change is faced by every community today. I am sure you are often asked why we need more and more money for our voluntary welfare agencies in this age of great material prosperity.

"It seems to me that the mere asking of the question suggests a measure of confused thinking. It presupposes that overall material prosperity automatically solves the social problems of individuals. In actual fact, such prosperity may increase those problems.

"In a changing situation we cannot merely stand on the record. We have to seek new answers to our problems. Above all we have to demonstrate year in and year out that our planning is sound and adequate."

Mr. Stubbins told the meeting, held in the auditorium of the Ontario Hydro and attended by over 100 persons, that the rapid growth of united funds, the spectacular population growth and shift in age groups, plus the fact that married women make up over 30 per cent of the labor force, means our whole social organization is changing.

"In addition to these social changes," he said, "we are confronted with the problems occasioned by medical advances. To be sure, there are happy problems to the extent that they mean better health and better control of diseases.

NEW FACILITIES NEEDED

"However, the new drugs and new kinds of treatment give rise to the need for new and different facilities, more highly trained personnel and a host of other changes. Certainly the rate of change and obsolescence in hospitals and clinics has been greatly accelerated. Moreover, as we find that we can do more to preserve human health, we are inspired to attempt more — and this is right.

"On the economic front, we are faced with the long-term problem of inflation. This, compounded with population growth has eaten away much of the dollar gains made, since the larger amounts now raised purchase less and services must be spread among more people.

"We still have need to justify federation (i.e. the united way) on the basis that this method, better than any other that has yet been devised, is able to keep pace with all these changes, grow with the community and provide for the social service requirements of the whole community in an adequate and mature manner.

"I might add, that if some other method was proved more effective it would be our responsibility to turn our support to it.

"I do not see this happening. I am convinced that federation is reaching maturity and is adapting and changing to the new problems as they arise."

Mr. Stubbins said our planning must be community centred and problem centred, not agency centred. "A true community planning body is a citizens organization and it should not be solely a federation of agencies. Our problems are too large to permit the luxury of competition between agencies; and agency leaders must be mature enough to test their plans against broader community plans and subordinate their special interests to the larger interests of the community."

NEED STRONG LEADERSHIP

Mr. Stubbins also pointed out we need strong volunteer leadership, top quality staff, closer co-operation between social planning and physical planning and councils need to do a better job of working with government.

"We have demonstrated all over Canada that a single local united campaign can successfully include national and local appeals and health as well as welfare and recreation programs.

"It is imperative then, that the united fund keep its door open for all worthwhile charitable appeals that meet sensible admission standards. It is fatal to restrict the fun to a limited number of agencies which soon take on the appearance of vested interests."

The speaker said the appeal will have to convert to modern business management methods to determine the efficiency and effectiveness of its service because, "while the objectives of our agencies are beyond reproach, this is no longer good enough and I am convinced that the public will expect more than this. They will want to know whether we are giving full value for the dollars invested.

"The best way we can continue to enlist the community's support is to show the public that the united way is not only the convenient way, the voluntary way and the economical way, but that it is also a constructive and effective plan for bringing to the community the full fruits of modern medical and social science."

United Appeal president Gerald Cunningham chaired the meeting. He commented, that the Belleville appeal collected over $100,000 for the first time.

"Despite the fact we are a fund raising body," he said, "there is another more important criterion by which we may measure our degree of success.

HAVE PRODUCT TO SELL

"Have we succeeded in establishing a true community spirit? For in order to ensure a broad basis of community support, you must have a broad basis of community spirit. This is the key to success in community fund raising.

"We are salesmen and salesladies. We have a product to sell, and that product is community co-operation, a recognition by all segments of our community, that there is a duty, and responsibility to join together to help our fellow human beings, who are our neighbors, and part of our community."

Mayor Jack Ellis brought greetings from the city to the United Appeal. "In bringing greetings to a cross-section of the greatest people in Belleville, I find it very difficult to know exactly what to say.

"However, the new Ontario Hydro symbol so proudly on display here, reminds me that this big "U" with United written through it, unknown a few years ago, has come to stand for a group of people helping all people in the city of Belleville.

"It is a symbol of hope and it's a pleasure to bring greetings to the people who stand behind it for the betterment of the city of Belleville."

Mayor Ellis also commended Alderman Don Williams for his work in assuring the development of the Social Services Planning Council in Belleville.

LIMIT OF COLLECTION

Campaign chairman John O'Flynn commented that while the appeal raised more money than ever before, "We still failed to reach our goal.

"Is it more than just a question of raising more money? Is it as much a question of efficient use of money raised?

"With the best organization, there are realistic limits to what can be collected from the community. This may rise each year according to the areas' growth, but it will always be difficult to keep up with the increased demands placed on the agencies.

"The appeal must carry out its responsibility in justifying the faith placed in it by the giving public. It must be a safeguard for the donors.

"Therefore, it is essential that the contributors be assured that every reasonable economy has been carried out by the agencies.

"I strongly recommend that our personnel committee be continued to assure a supply of manpower of top quality, because people make the difference in the success or failure of any campaign. We must broaden our base to include more and more people from the community actively participating in the campaign, assuring them of a realistic demand on their time and efficiency in the use of their particular experience and skills."

Les Gnaedinger, executive manager of the appeal, announced the new slate of officers. They are: Gerald Cunningham, president; John O'Flynn, vice-president; Mrs. S. W. Howell, secretary; K. J. Quebec Plans Big Increase In Spending

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec Liberal government tabled its estimates for 1966-67 in the legislature Tuesday and indicated it is following Ontario's lead with record expenditures, including increases in education and welfare programs.

Legislatures in British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Newfoundland are also in session, while the Nova Scotia house opens today and the Alberta legislature Thursday. The Prince Edward Island legislature opens Feb. 24.

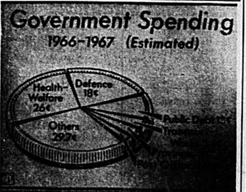
The Quebec government forecast expenditures of $2,304,711,000 with the possibility that supplementary estimates may increase this to $2,500,000,000. Expenditures for the current year now stand at $2,086,243,010.

Queen Leaves Barbados

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP)—The Queen and Prince Philip sailed out of Bridgetown harbor aboard the royal yacht Britannia Tuesday night, ending their two-day visit to this West Indian island. The royal couple headed for St. Lucia, the next stop of their Caribbean tour.

A choir of more than 200 sang hymns just before the royal yacht set sail as the Queen, in a glittering silver gown with a diamond tiara, fame on deck with the prince to listen.

The royal couple's last official function on Barbadian soil tory, in which the Queen's cousin, Gerald Lascelles has interests.



GOVERNMENT SPENDING TO INCREASE — Revenue Minister Benson Monday presented the Commons with the federal government spending program totalling $9,318,224,878 for the 1966-67 fiscal year. The record figure was 9½ per cent higher than that presented a year ago for the current fiscal year ending March 31. Graph shows how the amount is broken down, on a dollar basis, among the government departments.

So "Crime Doesn't Pay"?

Baseball-wise, Willie Mays, the Golden Boy of the San Francisco Giants and Maury Wills, the "Raffles" of the Los Angeles Dodgers, agree from different viewpoints.

The "Say-Hey" kid of the Giants who appeared in 157 games last season and led both major leagues with 52 homers and 350 total bases, recently became the highest paid player in the history of professional baseball.

Willie signed a two-year contract which will send him to the bank with a bundle totalling $250,000 for the two-ply play period.

Maury Wills, whose base-pilfering abilities makes snitching sacks look like the traditional candy-robbing of a four-year-old child, figures he is worth at least $25,000 per season lower than Mays, wants $100,000 for the season's job but the Dodger brass hummed and hawed, didn't say yes and didn't say no.

Willie, 33, holds the record of 104 stolen bases and predicts he will smash that record this season.

Maury claims, and who doesn't agree, that garnering bases one at a time by forethought, study and speed afoot, is a lot tougher than getting them in clutches of four at a time by the simple expedient of parking the ball out of the baseball lot.

Of course the homer is a sure thing as far as runs scored are concerned. Mays trots around the sacks sure of a run on the scoreboard, Wills needs a maximum of three nibbles to get a mouthful of run. It's a lot tougher that way.

Mays' 52 homers provide a powerful argument in favor of a contract worth $125,000 a year. Aiding and abetting is his colorful fielding, his running and that wash-basket catch of long flies.

On the other hand Wills' uncanny ability of stealing bases, which on not a few occasions have helped turn almost certain defeat into victory for the Dodgers, has been no small factor in the Dodger success at the box office.

Maury is fully aware of his value to the Dodgers. Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale will likely draw down a hundred grand for their pitching chores this summer. Wills figures his effort on the world champions lineup is worth at least that much. A lot of people will agree.

"I want to be in the same salary category this coming season as Koufax and Drysdale," Wills says, "but its obvious from my last two conversations with the front office, which lasted seven hours, that I will be a holdout."

"I'm going to stick to my guns this time," he says. "In the past, like in 1964 when we defeated the Yankees four straight, I conceded after holding out one week. But not this time."

Willie and Dodger general manager Buzz Bavasi are reported to have parted on friendly terms but without setting a date for another meeting.

The Dodgers never disclose salary figures officially and Bavasi is reported as saying, "I am not about to negotiate a contract with any ball player through the newspapers."

The didn't-say-yes-didn't-say-no attitude on the part of the Dodger front office has some people guessing that Wills will beat the opening of training camp with his 100 grand parchment in his pocket.

Adding fuel to this conjectural fire is the statement of the Dodger brass: "It is true we have met Wills and have not yet agreed on a contract, but players are not required to report until March 1st.

There is lots of time before a man can become a holdout."

Hull Claims 'Able To Play Tonight'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawk's golden jet, is back in the air, recovered from a crash landing last Saturday.

Hull was expected to be out for a week after he and Claude Provost locked skates Saturday and crashed into a net during a match between Chicago and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

BOBBY HULL

However, just before the Hawks left for New York Tuesday for their game against New York Rangers tonight, Hull showed up and said he will be able to play. He had strained lingaments in his left knee in the accident.

The left winger has scored 45 times this season and has 20 games left to play in which to score the six goals he needs to top the season record held by himself and two former Canadiens, Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion. Hull'a average so far is a goal a game.

To beef up their team for the game, Rangers have called up the Central Pro League's leading scorer, Paul Andrea, a native of North Sydney, N.S., who has scored 32 goals for Minnesota this season.

There are two other games scheduled for tonight, Montreal at Toronto while Boston plays host to Detroit.

BLAKE IS LAUGHING

Meanwhile, almost as astounding as Hull's recovery was the fact that Toe Blake, Canadiens coach, broke predecent and laughed.

TOE BLAKE

"I came here all set to cry," said Blake, "but after reading the papers and wading through Imlach's tears about illegal goals there was nothing for me to do but laugh."

While Blake was boosting his team, Imlach was dressing his crew down. He said his right winger Eddie Shack was the worst player in Boston Sunday where the Leafs tied the Bruins 4-4.

Shack was tagged the worst player on the ice again at Monday's practice and Imlach banished the Sudbury, Ont., native to the dressing room with orders to take a 10-mile ride on the stationary bicycle.

But Eddie, too tired for the saddle, went to the showers complaining of aching muscles.

HAVE OTHER PROBLEMS

Toronto has other problems too. Bob Baun and Marcel Pronovost won't be able to dress because of injuries and Kent Douglas, who will dress, is nursing a sore shoulder.

In Detroit, all-star defenceman Doug Barkley, who suffered a detached retina in his right eye in a game with Chicago Jan. 20, will be operated on a second time and is expected to be out for the season.

Ab McDonald, a winger from Memphis in the CPHL, has been called up by the Red Wings.

Meanwhile, Blake raved about his squad:

"Gump Worsley in goal and the defence has been very good . . . J. C. Tremblay has never handled the puck better . . . Claude Provost has been doing a great defensive job and Dick Duff played well in Chicago and Detroit . . . Henri Richard is holding the second line together and our third line has played well, but it isn't clicking around the net."

NFL Will Expand To 16 Teams

By JACK HAND

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Football League was to continue the job of stocking its new Atlanta franchise today and to talk about expansion to 16 clubs in 1967.

While the Atlanta Falcons were picking the 42 veterans to form a base for their 1966 operation, the owners were to consider the expansion report from the Stanford Research Institute.

The institute's report was confidential. Commissioner Pete Rozelle clamped the lid on all pertinent information about the surveys of Boston, Cincinnati, Houston, New Orleans, Phoenix, Portland, Ore., and Seattle.

"We expect to expand to 16 clubs, probably in 1967," said Rozelle. "I think we will then have two eight-team conferences, each divided into two four-team divisions. The division winners will play, and the two survivors will meet for the league championship."

But that was about all he would say, except that it is likely that the decision will be made at the spring meeting in late April.

FAVORED OVER BASEBALL

Tuesday was a day of surveys for the NFL. Lou Harris, head of an independent research polling firm, turned up figures that showed pro football favored ahead of baseball by sports fans and reported no evidence of overexposure of the sport.

A proposal to increase the player limit to 42 from 40 was rejected.

Atlanta selected one player from a list of 11 submitted by each NFL club. Then the lists were turned back to the clubs who exempted two additional veterans.

Atlanta today will take two more from a list of eight submitted by each club.

At the end of the selection process the Falcons would have 42 veterans, plus the 32 rookies they signed after the college draft and 19 free agent veterans.

When the Atlanta stocking is completed all freezes imposed on trading will end.

The Trots

Popular Grattan won the $1,600 featured pace, coming from second place to win by a length.

The win followed an announcement that a new purse schedule will distribute $11,000 more weekly.

Campbell's Understudy

NHL Creates New Post

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League Tuesday night announced the appointment of Brian O'Neill of Montreal to the new post of administration manager. He is to be groomed as a possible successor to league president Clarence Campbell.

"He will, in effect, be my understudy and will learn all phases of the operation at headquarters," Crmpbell said in a statement. The appointment is effective April 1.

O'Neill, 37, has been business manager since 1962 of The Financial Times, a business weekly.

Campbell said there were two reasons for the appointment.

"The first is the increased work load which has been placed on my job, primarily because of the league's expansion program. The second factor, of course, is the long-range requirement of planning for my successor.

"I think Mr. O'Neill is an outstanding candidate from a very superior group of applicants for the position."

O'Neill, a commerce graduate of McGill University, played intercollegiate hockey with the McGill club.

Before joining The Financial Times, he spent nine years with Wallace Publishing Co. of Montreal where he was responsible for the publication of eight business periodicals.

Parker May Face Knife

TORONTO (CP) — Jackie Parker, veteran quarterback and defensive halfback of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, may undergo surgery on his knees.

Parker, who previously had cartilage removed from the outside of one knee, has been bothered by stiffness and soreness. He is awaiting a report on x-rays to see if further surgery is needed.

Bob Shaw, Argonaut head coach, said Tuesday he had heard that Parker's knees were bothering him but did not know how much because Parker hasn't been in touch with him.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Whistling Sea, winner of the 1965 Queen's Plate, was among more than 200 thoroughbred horses that worked out at the opening of training at Woodbine Racetrack Tuesday.

The training start, 45 days before the Ontario thoroughbred racing season is scheduled to begin at Fort Erie, Ont., is the earliest at the Woodbine track.

BAILEY SOLD

CHICAGO (AP)—Ed Bailey, veteran major league catcher, was sold outright Tuesday by Chicago Cubs to the American League's California Angels for an undisclosed price.

Gan. Skip One Of Two Unbeaten

OTTAWA (CP) — Jim Johnston of Toronto Dixie and Keith Lasha of Gananoque were the only skips to emerge unbeaten after the first two rounds of the Ontario seniors curling championship Tuesday.

Johnston edged Harvey Langdon of Hanover 9-7 in the night round to follow his first-round 8-6 win over Arnold Robinson of Orillia.

Lasha edged Les Hughes of Brantford 7-6 in the second round after an earlier 8-8 victory over Wlater Rotliffe of Hamilton Thistle.

The early favorite, defending-champ Alf Phillips of Toronto Thistle, won his first game, 12-8 over Hughes, but came out on the wrong end of a 10-6 score when he met Rotliffe.

Harve Winter of Whitby rebounded from a first-round 13-2 loss to Langdon to edge Robinson 9-8 in an extra end.

The three-day bonspiel to determine the Ontario entry for the Canadian senior—55 and over — championship continues with three rounds today and two rounds Thursday.

HOTEL STARTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Sod was turned Tuesday for a $10,000,000, 25-storey hotel in centre-town—part of a $30,000,000 project that also is to include twin office towers in a one-block development. The 450-room hotel, the fourth one of Skyline Hotels (Canada) Ltd., is scheduled for completion in May next year.

Big Wilt Adds To Score Mark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wilt Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson, two of the biggest names and the biggest men in the National Basketball Association, backed their claims to fame Tuesday night in leading their teams to victory.

Chamberlain pumped home 34 points, adding to his all-time scoring record with each one, as Philadelphia '76ers charged back with seven minutes remaining for a 121-109 victory over St. Louis Hawks.

Robertson dumped in 31 points as Cincinnati Royals defeated Boston Celtics 136-123. Robertson was back in action after missing a game Sunday because of a groin injury.

In a third game, John Egan, with 18 points, and Bob Ferry, with 15, rallied Baltimore Bullets to a 114-105 win against Detroit Pistons while Los Angeles Lakers rubbed out a 14-point deficit to defeat New York Knicks 132-124.

AUTHOR CONFINED

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) Mary Benson, 46-year-old white author and prominent critic of the South African government's apartheid (racial - separation) policy, was placed under house arrest Tuesday, informed sources said. Ferguson Climbs 'Tough Guy' List

Never Lost Fight

But Nesterenko has inadvertently helped Ferguson to the of the heap of National Hockey League tough guys.

ERIC NESTERENKO

Ferguson, Nesterenko, defenceman Ted Green of Boston Bruins and winger Eddie Shack of Toronto Maple Leafs are customarily rated among the toughest characters in the NHL.

But Green, the most-penalized player in the league with 116 minutes, learned Tuesday in Boston that a knee injury may put him out of action the rest of the season.

It was Nesterenko who knocked the pins out from under the Boston bad boy Jan. 27 when the two hooked up in a scuffle. Green came out of it needing a cast on his knee.

TOPS TIME SERVERS

It left Ferguson, the Vancouver-born belter in his third season with Montreal, with more time in the penalty box than anyone else in the NHL, 102 minutes.

JOHN FERGUSON

It also left him No. 1 on the hit parade since Shack, who goes after his 20th goal here tonight when the Leafs play Montreal, has given up fighting for hockey.

It was ironic that Nesterenko should clear the way for Ferguson by polishing off Green. Last Saturday in Chicago Ferguson and Nesterenko got into a scrap and Eric left the ice soaked in blood.

It took 20 stitches to put Nesterenko back together and as he left the dressing room he murmured: "I just gotta learn to fight."

"He has to learn to keep his stick down," said Ferguson.

The victory was John's second over Eric in two clashes. In last season's Stanley Cup playoffs Ferguson laid Nesterenko out cold with what many observers feel was the hardest punch anyone has thrown while wearing skates.

SAY HE NEVER LOSES

Ferguson's mates in Montreal claim he has never lost a fight, but they allow that Doug Mohns of the Hawks might have earned a draw earlier this season.

Ferguson doesn't get many love letters from fans, but the situation got particularly grim a few seasons ago when he was playing for Cleveland Barons of the American League. His life was threatened in a letter sent by registered mail.

Ferguson told coach Freddie Glover about the note and then forgot about it.

"In fact I scored two goals that night and we won 3-2," he said.

"I don't like to fight, I like to score goals," he added. "But I'm not the best skater in the world so I've got to make up for it in other ways."

Like protecting his teammates, especially the smaller ones.

"Take guys like J. C. Tremblay and Bobby Rousseau. You wouldn't exactly call them scrappers. Now, playing on the road is tough at any time. If the other team knows they have to settle with Ted Harris or me, they'll leave the smaller guys alone. Maybe that will give the smaller guys more confidence.

CFL East, West

Will Hear Report On Merge

TORONTO (CP)—The managing director of Toronto Argonauts says it will take considerable time to deal completely with a report recommending that the Eastern and Western Conferences of the Canadian Football League merge into one league.

Lew Hayman of the Eastern Conference club said Tuesday:

The CFL meets in Calgary Feb. 23, 24 and 25. The first day will be devoted to conference meetings, leaving the second and third days to deal with the 100,000-word report.

The report shows that last season the five clubs in the Western Football Conference—British Columbia Lions, Calgary Stampeders, Edmonton Eskimos, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers—averaged 21,000 fans a game.

The four eastern clubs—Montreal Alouettes, Ottawa Rough Riders, Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats — averaged 19,800. However, B.C. Lions averaged 32,000 a game while the other four teams in the West had a combined average of 18,200.

MONEY COUNTS

While the Lions with 256,000 for eight home games last season outdrew the Argos, who had 147,000 in seven home games, Hayman said that Toronto's total revenue was higher than B.C.'s revenue of slightly more than $900,000.

Hayman felt the delegates in Calgary could approve a recommendation that CFL headquarters be moved to Toronto from Winnipeg.

He also said consideration should be given to replacing G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, who said last year that he would serve as CFL commissioner through the 1966 season, but no longer.

Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton, Herb Capozzi of B.C. and Red O'Quinn of Ottawa have been mentioned as possible successors, but Hayman said he would not be opposed to a man outside football being appointed Halter's successor.

But he would need adequate credentials for the job, Hayman said.

"It would have to be someone like Robert Winters."

Winters is minister of trade and commerce.

BELINSKY SIGNS

Networks Come To NHL

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League is negotiating with three television networks for a possible U.S. television contract, William Jennings, president of New York Rangers, said Tuesday.

Jennings described the Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting Co. and American Broadcasting Co. as "most interested" in televising NHL games.

Jennings, a member of the league's board of governors, said the NHL's addition of six new American franchises approved last week "undoubtedly has changed the picture."

"Instead of us going to the networks," Jennings said, "the networks are coming to us."

Roberts Throws Without Pain

COCOA, Fla. (CP)—Houston Astros of the National League stretched a few more muscles in their third day of spring training today with no serious ailments reported.

New manager Grady Hatton announced Tuesday night that former American League first baseman Jim Gentile has signed with the club.

Robin Roberts, who underwent arm surgery at the end of last season, pitched 10 hard minutes of batting practice Tuesday without pain.

London Ties Flyers 6-6

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last-place London Nationals managed a 6-6 tie with Niagara Falls Flyers Tuesday night and maintained a slim chance for a playoff spot in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

The tie left the Nationals four points behind St. Catharines Black Hawks, who lost to Montreal Junior Canadiens 5-3 in St. Catharines.

Randy Murray's second goal of the game with less than three minutes remaining gave the Nationals the tie. Walt McKeehnie, John Mercer, Len Bazay and Stan Allan scored the other London goals.

For the second-place Flyers, Jim Lorentz scored twice and Dave Woodley, Bud Debrody, Derek Sanderson and Ted Snell scored once.

In St. Catharines, Michel LaPalme, Jacques Lemaire, Lucien Grenier, Christian Bordeleau and Norm Ferguson scored the Montreal goals. Jean Paul Leblanc scored twice and Bob Slcinski once for the Hawks.

Moira Teams Drop Pair

By BARRY CAMPBELL
AND DAVE BRAMMAR

Moira dropped two out of three Bay of Quinte COSSA "A" Basketball games to Napanee last night, both of them by extremely close scores. The bantams lost by one point, 24-23, the juniors were defeated 46-44 and Moira's seniors were victorious 53-52.

Napanee seniors started with a disadvantage having only four regular players capable of participating. The remaining position had to be filled with one of their juniors. However the game was close and well-played throughout.

The first half saw both teams playing well defensively and neither of them held more than a five point lead at anytime. The half ended with Napanee carrying a two point lead.

Finally, in the final minutes of the game, Moira took control of play to defeat Napanee 53-52.

Mark Sheridan led the victors in all departments scoring ten points. He was aptly helped with the playing of Bob Watson and Carm Milligan who both hit for ten points. Rod Glen led Napanee's effort, scoring 19 points.

In junior, Napanee quickly jumped ahead of their competitors by building up an eleven point lead at the end of the first quarter. In the middle of the second quarter, Moira came to life and gradually cut down Napanee's lead. It took them till the second half to tie the game and finally saw them take a two point lead.

Smith with 17 points for Napanee and Wishart with 16 points for Moira put in outstanding efforts. Other scorers were for Napanee Roblin 11 and for Moira Loder 7, Hayman and Lowe 6.

Napanee bantams built up a healthy lead in the first half of their game but Moira retaliated to outscore their opponents 13-2 in the second half.

Napanee was led by Legerer with 10 points and Moira by Pugh with 8.

Edward Todd New Chairman Of Commission

TRENTON — Councillor Edward Todd was elected chairman of the Trenton Community Gardens' Commission at a meeting of the commission Monday night. Vice-chairman is Lorne Williams.

The commission has compiled a budget for the first time in its history and this will be presented to town council. Largest capital expenditure is to be for new dressing rooms on the north side of the arena.

Meanwhile a group of hockey enthusiasts have started a David Johnson memorial fund. The object is to build one dressing room in memory of David Johnson who lost his life as the result of an accident Christmas Eve.

The commission will also offer the recreation committee the use of the upstairs auditorium in the arena as a Youth Centre.

Last month, a delegation from Trenton High School came before council to point out the need for such a centre in the town.

United Church Women Provide Medical Supplies

BRIGHTON — From the heart of Protugal's west-coast African state of Agolia, an isolated Canadian medical missionary's report to a church publication has resulted in spontaneous contributions by Brighton United Church Women to provide medical supplies for his work.

Everyday items, such as nasal mist spray dispensers and vitamin pills, sedatives and ointments, that Canadians purchase at their local drug store are not readily available in Vila Teixeira De Silave, where Dr. Gilchrist's mission clinic is located in Angola. There, he has been treating the sick for nine years, since his last furlough in Canada.

"There are and have been as many people looking to me for refuge when the waves of life's sea rise in sickness as constitute the clientele of all the doctors in Halifax and Saint John" he writes.

Mrs. J. A. Plant, wife of a retired Brighton clergyman, was first to be moved by Dr. Gilchrist's letter when it appeared in a January edition of the United Church Observer.

Today, a package of medical supplies is en route to Dr. Gilchrist, as a result of $8 contributed by Mrs. Plant's UCW unit. Mrs. Plant read the letter at the unit meeting and the money was contributed by those present.

Last week, the letter was again read at another UCW unit meeting at the home of Mrs. Ed Solomon. Again, there was a quick response. A collection produced $11 in a matter of minutes. Another lady has volunteered to contribute toward mailing costs, bringing the total to more than $20.

In addition to the interest in her own community, Mrs. Plant has heard from a Smithfield resident who recalls having heard Dr. Gilchrist speak in Belleville when he was last in Canada on leave.

So far the only disappointment she has experienced is the relatively small amount of drugs she is able to buy with the contributions. But, with the amount of interest Dr. Gilchrist's letter is creating and Mrs. Plant's initiative, his Angolan infirmary where 25 emergency operations were conducted (mostly caesarean) from July to September last year, is certain to have a better stocked pharmacy soon.

Water Levels In Trent River Up Two Feet

TRENTON — Water levels are up in the Trenton River by two feet from what they were at this time last year, Trenton Waterworks' superintendent Clifford Gunter said yesterday. Mr. Gunter said the water tables from the wells in Murray Township . . . the source of Trenton's spring water . . . are up two feet also from last year. The waterworks system is pumping three million gallons of water a day.

There have been no complaints from citizens about the taste of water this year, utility manager James Page said. As east side Trenton is supplied with a mixture of river water and well water during short intervals of the year, a system of adding activated carbon to filtration plant water was instituted last summer, but is not being used during the winter months.

Both Mr. Page and Mr. Gunter said there should be no shortage of water next summer . . . if the town has "a normal summer" . . . . when it comes to water consumption.

Commits Man For Jury Trial

TRENTON — Magistrate R. C. Jackson committed Robert Vincent Orr of 281 Sidney St. in Belleville for trial by judge and jury after a preliminary hearing in Trenton court yesterday on a charge of "being in a dwelling house without a lawful excuse".

Orr was charged on Dec. 20, after police had been told by George Casement of 31 Gotha Street, Trenton, that a man had entered his home around 11 p.m. the previous night and had "taken a swing", at him with a length of lead pipe, which was entered in evidence yesterday. Casement identified Orr as being the man in question.

On the stand, Casement said he had been seeing the defendent's estranged wife for the past three and a half years, and said he was "afraid" of Orr in the sense that "you didn't know what he might do next".

Robert Temple, appearing for the accused, suggested that Casement had been preconditioned to "see" Orr when he saw a stranger in his living room. He said that fear of Orr and a hope that Orr might receive a jail sentence might have led Casement to believe the man he saw in his home was Orr. Mr. Temple brought out that Casement had not had his living room light on, but had seen the man he identified as Orr by the light in an adjoining bedroom, and only for a short interval.

START INDIAN STUDY

OTTAWA (CP) — An $80,000 research study on the special difficulties Canadian Indians have with the law was officially started Monday under the auspices of the Canadian Corrections Association.

Spent Firm's Collections

TRENTON — Joseph L. Cummings told Trenton court yesterday he had spent $68.28 of a wholesale firm's collections in drinking and gambling and then had been afraid to go back and face his employer, Mark Tripp. Cummings failed to turn the money in after covering a route in the Picton area in January, but has since made restitution in full. He said he had an alcoholic problem.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson placed Cummings on a two years' suspended sentence and advised him to re-join Alcoholics Anonymous. He will be placed on the interdicted list.

Will Advertise For Manager Of C of C

TRENTON — At a meeting of directors of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce last night it was decided to advertise for a chamber manager. The directors made it clear that an application from the present manager, Nostrand Sprague, would be given every consideration, but under a new program of re-vitalizing the chamber, it was thought that the democratic procedure would be to advertise the position.

Pleads Guilty In Bigamy Case

TRENTON — Floyd Botting, of the Kingston area, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday to a charge of committing a bigamous marriage with Linda Marlene Mountenay on March 8, 1965.

Botting, who told the court he "wasn't that well educated," said he had only lived with his wife one month, after their marriage on Aug. 1, 1959. He said he thought a separation of seven years entitled either party to re-marry.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson called for a pre-sentence report and adjourned the case until Feb, 21.

De Gaulle Ready To Help Settle Viet Nam War

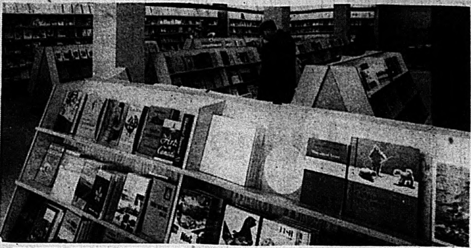
PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle has told North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh he is prepared to "participate actively" in settlement of the war in Viet Nam as soon as a settlement appears possible.

De Gaulle made the statement in his reply to a letter Ho sent the French president Jan. 24. The reply was published by de Gaulle's Elysee Palace Tuesday.

De Gaulle re-emphasized his conviction that a military solution of the war is not possible, and he called again for a political solution leading to neutrality of Viet Nam.

He made it clear he does not consider the time now is ripe for a negotiated peace.

Queen's Printer Operates Bookshops in Major Centres



REACHING OUT FOR PUBLIC BUSINESS — Canada's leading publisher, a federal agency known as the Queen's Printer, is reaching out for more public business. Until a few years ago business was by mail but now the department is establishing attractive stores across Canada, like this one in Winnipeg. The department now publishes 43,000 titles and sells more than 1,000,000 publications a year. (CP Photo)

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen's Printer is the uncrowned king of Canadian publishers.

But his subjects—the Canadian reading public—know little of his activities or of the federal agency he administers, the department of public printing and stationery.

To remedy this the department has been shifting from its role as a mail-order bookseller and now has Queen's Printer bookshops in operation at Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. It plans another for Halifax this year.

All "bona fide" booksellers in Canada "are our agents," says J. G. (Gerry) Leroux, sales promotion manager for the Queen's Printer. He adds: "There are some 1,500 outlets."

The Queen's Printer—the title given the deputy minister of the department, a position now held by Roger Duhamel—came into being in Canada in 1869 and the department in 1886.

The department now publishes 43,000 titles, sells more than 1,000,000 publications a year and, to quote Mr. Leroux, "can provide information on almost any subject."

BUSY SCHEDULE

The department's role: obtaining all printed matter required by the Senate, House of Commons, government departments and agencies; editing; promotion and distribution.

In 1963 as a result of a recommendation of the royal commission on government organization (the Glassco commission) the Queen's Printer and the Canadian Government Printing Bureau became separate entities.

The Queen's Printer, with a staff of 185, basically handles the publishing, while the bureau looks after the actual printing. The bureau employs about 1,500.

The Queen's Printer sells only publications needed or wanted by Canadians but not available through any other Canadian source. It is also responsible for cultural publications, such as those originating in the National Gallery.

For many years the Queen's Printer has been responsible for the publications in Canada of 19 international organizations, such as the United Nations Economic, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO).

Last year it took over sales and promotion in Canada of all publications issued by member countries in the Commonwealth and NATO. This added 18,000 titles to the department's list.

The department is proud of its "best sellers," such as its all-time leaders 5BX and XBX, the booklets commissioned by the RCAF on physical fitness. These have sold 10,000,000 copies in English, French, Italian, German and Yiddish. Spanish and Portuguese editions are planned.

IN HEAVY DEMAND

Other best sellers include: The Canada Year Book, Canada Handbook, The Queen's Choice (a history of Ottawa) and books on Canada's part in the Second World War such as The Victory Campaign and Far Distant Ships.

Canadian Mother and Child remains one of the most popular books, Mr. Leroux said in an interview.

Book prices range from 10 cents for a folder on The Assets and Liabilities of the Chartered Banks of Canada to $34 for a massive UNESCO volume called Education in the World.

Reports of royal commissions always make the department's best-seller lists—more than 5,000 copies. The report of the 1965 committee on broadcasting (the Fowler Report) sold 5,000 copies at $5 each in less than two months last fall.

Mr. Leroux advises Canadians seeking information on any topic to write "both to the department or agency concerned and the Queen's Printer" if they do not know the titles of likely books.

If the right publication is free—and many are—the department will mail it to the inquirer. If there's a charge, the Queen's Printer will send a list of titles available on the topic and their prices.

MORE ENGLISH READERS

About 60 per cent of all publications offered are in English and the rest in French. Mo titles are available in both languages, except for scientific papers, which are often only in English.

The department's decision to open public bookshops followed a survey by the civil service commission. The first trial store opened in Ottawa in 1959.

"It proved twice as successful as we had hoped for in the first year," says Mr. Leroux.

This shop sold $9,000 worth of books in each of November and December, 1964. The Montreal shop, opened in 1961, did a $15,000 business in November of 1964 and $16,000 in December. The Toronto store, started in 1960, had sales of $12,000 and $14,000 in the same months. Winnipeg and Vancouver shops opened last year.

"We're studying the possibility of expanding to London, Paris and New York," says Mr. Leroux.

An Ottawa-area native, he brought a varied background to his position at the top of the book rack.

He was an officer in the Canadian Army at the D-Day landings, a reporter and editor with Ottawa's French-language daily newspaper Le Droit, a marketing officer with the city of Ottawa and current affairs adviser to senior officers of the Canadian Army before assuming his present post in 1958.

The Queen's Printer sold just under $2,000,000 worth of books in the 1963-64 fiscal year and, as recommended by the Glassco commission, now is meeting its costs out of sales—"and showing a small profit," adds Mr. Leroux.

Pork Missing Gravy Train Breeders Told

TORONTO (CP) — Pork is missing the gravy train in Canada and one of the reasons is that it's not lean enough, the Ontario Swine Breeders Association was told Monday.

Kenneth Murray, plant superintendent at J. M. Schneider Ltd., Kitchener, told the association's annual meeting that pork is losing a competitive battle with beef and poultry because of insufficient supplies of good quality hogs.

He said annual beef consumption per capita in Canada increased to an average 83.4 pounds in 1965 from 69.2 pounds in 1960. Poultry consumption rose from 31.1 pounds to 37.2 pounds but pork declined to 49.8 pounds from 55.2 a person, he said.

Mr. Murray said he is concerned about this year's hog sales. The Meat Packers Council of Canada estimated sales for the first three months of 1966 will be down 11 per cent from the same period last year.

He urged the industry to produce hogs with a higher proportion of lean meat to fat and said consumption figures indicate pork is not measuring up to housewives' demands for leanness, tenderness, flavor, consistent quality and other factors.

WON'T TRY SELLING

TORONTO (CP)—The Christian pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal will reach out to people who think they can get along without God, said a Jesuit priest at the unveiling of its design Monday. Rev. John O'Brien said the $1,300,000 display will not try to sell Christianity. It is designed to reach modern man.

JOHN D. LEWARS

Chartered Accountant

217 Pinnacle Street,
Belleville, Ontario,
January 18, 1966.

The Chairman, Directors and Contributors,
The Belleville United Appeal,
Belleville, Ontario.
Gentlemen,-

I have made an examination of the books of account and supporting records of (1) the 1964 Campaign for 1965 operations for the period April 1, 1964 to December 31, 1965 and (2) the 1965 Campaign for 1966 operations for the period March 1, 1965, to December 31, 1965, of the Belleville United Appeal. My examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as I considered necessary in the circumstances.

In my opinion the foregoing Balance Sheet and related Statements of Revenue and Expenditure present fairly the financial position of the Belleville United Appeal for the above mentioned periods in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

I shall be glad to furnish you with such further information as you may require, relative to my examination of this report.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) John D. Lewars, C.A.

- A National Film Board presentation, "Twen Men From Montreal" will portray the lives of two Montrealers who are quite unrelated, except for their complete individualism. "Ladies and Gentlemen, Mr. Leonard Cohen" offers an introduction to one of Canada's most celebrated contemporary poets, and a man of many faces and talents.

"Legault's Place" is about a man who wanted nothing from life except to be left in peace to live with his memories in the familiar comfort of his aging cabin. When that idyll had to end, he faced it with fortitude and humor, and had his own quiet victory — seen at 9:30 on the CBC.)

THURSDAY

- This edition of Telescope (9:30 on the CBC) focuses on "a girl's best friend," and cameras visit the three principal centres of the world's diamond trade: Antwerp, where the stones are cut; London, where the rough diamonds are distributed; and New York, where the bulk of world production is bought. The "wares" of some of the leaders in this multi-million-dollar business will be shown, including some gem merchandise from fashionable Tiffany's of New York's Fifth Avenue.
- Gospel Singer Mahalia Jackson, wire-haired Phyllis Diller, and sultry Julie London are among those on the guest list of this week's Dean Martin Show — (channels 3, 8, and 9 at 10 p.m.)

Rednersville

REDNERSVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Weese are holidaying in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jamieson spent Saturday in Toronto.

The Hi-C Group held a toboggan party on Friday evening. Following the tobogganing everyone went to the home of Miss Sandy Dempsey for refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Summers Dawson, Mrs. Marion Dempsey and Gary and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Doxtator attended the squirt hockey game in Marmora on Saturday.

The senior room of the Mildred Corke Public School made plans for a skating party on the bay but weather conditions made the ice too slushy. The children went to the school where their teacher, Mr. Pitt, showed films and played records.

The Hi-C group was in charge of services in the four churches in the Rednersville charge on Sunday.

The Albury Ladies' Aid euchre was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ken McQuarrie with ten tables in play. Prizes went to Evelyn Peck, Lillian Dempsey, Anna Way, Earle Onderdonk, Jack Jones and Randy Dempsey.

By DONAT VALOIS

STE. ANNE de la PERADE, Que. (CP)—This is a community with a fish story to tell—a true one.

For 10 months of the year, Ste. Anne is a quiet community of 3,500 persons. It displays features common to many rural Quebec villages: The Gothic church, old homes which have been handed down from father to son and some small industries.

But during two winter months this village is invaded by thousands of fishing enthusiasts lured by the tiny tommycod which swarms in its millions in the nearby Ste. Anne River.

During the period of activity, a visitor who crosses the Ste. Anne bridge near this community 45 miles southwest of Quebec City is treated to the sight of what amounts to a sister village sprawled helter - skelter on the river's ice - covered reaches.

The village is made up of the fishing shacks of enthusiasts seeking the tommycod—a fish that rarely exceeds eight inches in length.

This year the village on the ice numbers some 2,500 buildings. Its narrow crooked streets are bordered not only by the fishing houses but also by restaurants and other temporary commercial establishments.

The fishing shacks are generally one-room wooden structures with floors in which a hole has been cut and through which dangle fishing lines baited with pork liver.

EQUIPPED WITH SERVICES

Some of these shacks can accommodate as many as 12 persons and most are equipped with electricity, wood stoves, couches, beds, tables and television.

They can be rented for a few dollars a day.

Christmas generally marks the arrival of the tommycod, which come from the St. Lawrence River to spawn in the quieter Ste. Anne. They remain for six weeks.

During this period a year ago, an estimated 125,000 persons came for the fishing season and organizers of the community on ice say that 1,500,000 have attended during the last nine years.

They expect a record attendance in 1966.

Along with the fishing, a carnival is held. Organizers say that last year the dual event produced some $250,000 in revenue.

The tommycod also provide a boost to the community in general, to the restaurants, hotels and booths set up to sell carnival uniforms—the shirt, tuque and many - colored sash of the coureur de bois.

The fishing village itself is administered by carnival organizers, who charge $2 a shack for maintenance of the roads and a further $1 for garbage collection.

This collection is strictly enforced so as to prevent pollution of the waters of the Ste. Anne, which could endanger the tommycod, the reason for the whole sprawling, spectacular growth.

ENDORSE EFFORT

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A Canada-wide evangelistic effort was endorsed Tuesday as a centennial project in 1967 by the council of the Baptists Federation of Canada. The council, representing 138,700 Canadian Baptists from 1,182 churches, recommended that each affiliated church be encouraged to arrange for a special evangelical program between the fall of this year and the spring of 1967.

Divorce Dilemma Reflects Enormous Range of Opinion

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—With 900,000 Americans divorced every year, with one in four marriages in the United States winding up in divorce, CBS Reports Tuesday night took a calm if necessarily hasty look at a large and complicated subject.

The program — The Divorce Dilemma—reflected the enormous range of opinion on the subject.

As narrator Walter Cronkite said, the subject is confused, each state has its own laws, the rich find it easier to "buy out" of an unsatisfactory marriage than the poor, and children are often the ones who suffer most.

Much of the hour was devoted to efforts around the country to salvage shaky marriages. One such effort is in Milwaukee where in some courts, a child of parents bent on divorce is treated legally as "an interested party" and given a court-assigned attorney.

Cronkite, in summing up, suggested that in the divorce dilemma "we seem to be going downhill in life's most important venture, marriage."

STATES INDIAN AIM

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadian Indians want to work with other Canadians "to build a social pattern . . . we can all be proud of," Indian author Ethel Brant Monture said Tuesday night. "Don't shut us out—just let us go along side by side," she told the London Jaycees Brotherhood Night dinner.

Eviction Assailed By Liberal

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Sargent, Liberal member of the legislature for Grey North, used the term "like a police state" to describe Tuesday's eviction of one of two families from their expropriated homes in suburban York Township.

Mr. Sargent moved to have the legislature suspend normal business Tuesday night to discuss the expropriation of the homes of Frank Vukovic, a 33-year-old Yugoslav immigrant, and his neighbor, Joseph Molino, 28.

He brought up the matter after watching what he termed shocking reports on television during the supper break. He urgent public importance but urgent public important but Speaker Donald Morrow ruled it must be raised before the orders of the day when the legislature sits this afternoon.

Later, Mr. Sargent told reporters: "A man's home is not his castle anymore when they can do this sort of thing. A group of police bust a door and drag a man out—it's like a police state. And there was his three - year - old daughter standing by watching.

"It never happens to the rich people, it's always the small man."

Mr. Sargent said he will be in Montreal today and will not be present to raise the matter in the house again.

Reason for the Battle In Club 21 in Dispute

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Otto Preminger is back at his job of producing movies and the facial scars he acquired in the "Battle of 21" are almost gone.

Preminger, 57, was the victim in last month's encounter in New York's fancy 21 Club, where a glass was thrown in his face by literary agent Irving (Swifty) Lazar.

"I knew I wasn't hurt badly," Preminger recalled, "even though they couldn't stop the flow of blood with eight towels."

The reason for the battle is in dispute. Lazar claimed Preminger made slighting remarks to Mrs. Lazar. Preminger said the dispute involved Frank Sinatra.

And how did Sinatra enter into this?

Lazar was agent for Truman Capote's new best seller, In Cold Blood, which he sold for $1,000,000 to Columbia Pictures. Preminger said Lazar had promised to offer the book to Sinatra. Lazar denies this, and 'round and 'round they go.

MAKE 'RACIAL' FILM

His next film will be an adaptation of the novel Hurry Sundown, which concerns racial tensions in a southern town circa 1946.

"But this will be a picture about people; it will not be a message picture," he emphasized.

"Why was 1946 so important? Because that was when a lot of Negro soldiers came home from the war. Many of them had never been out of the South before, and they didn't realize that conditions could be better for Negroes."

Asked what kind of a reception he expected from the South, Preminger said:

"I think it will be good. At first I didn't plan to film Hurry Sundown in the South. But I have received so many invitations from chambers of commerce in Georgia and other Deep South states that I may shoot there after all."

WILL MAKE STOP

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip are scheduled to stop here en route home from their Caribbean tour either March 6 or 7, Airport Manager Jack James said Tuesday.

Board Will Give Decision On Bell Plan

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners reserved judgment Tuesday on a new employee stock-purchasing plan proposed by Bell Telephone Co. of Canada to start this summer.

The board said it would try to render a decision approving or modifying the plan by the weekend.

Bell employees for 44 years have been able to buy stock in the company through payroll deductions at prices fixed by the board, usually well below the market price. Last March the board approved a price of $42 a share, up from the previously-prevailing $36. Bell common shares later traded on stock exchanges over $60 and now are about $58.50.

Arnold J. Groleau of Montreal, executive vice-president of Bell, outlined the new plan and was cross-examined by Lovell C. Carroll of Montreal, counsel for the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. Mr. Carroll said the plan is too generous and tends to water down the per-share earnings performance of Bell stock held by the public.

SEEK EXTENSION

The new plan would extend the privilege of buying stock at reduced prices to Bell's subsidiaries, including the Northern Electric Co. Ltd. and its subsidiary, Dominion Sound Equipment Ltd., and the Monk Rural Telephone Co. Ltd., operating in the upper Ottawa Valley.

Under the new plan, an employee could have two to 10 per cent of his income turned to the purchase of shares of Bell and the dividends re-invested in further shares at a price amounting to 80 per cent of average market prices during the three months before and at the end of each year's purchases.

The plan requires approval of the transport commissioners because Bell, operating most telephone service in Ontario and Quebec, is subject to federal jurisdiction over its capital structure as well as its rates.

Jean de Grandpre, general counsel for Bell, said the plan has proved valuable in the past in encouraging stability of employment.

May Disqualify 3 Members Of Deseronto School Board

DESERONTO — The meeting of the Deseronto Public School Board Monday evening was more or less routine until near its close when, as Chairman Jack Spence put it, board member John Neal "dropped a bomb".

Mr. Neal, a member of the finance and of the property committee, brought up the question of the legality of three of the members of the board to hold their positions.

Chairman Spence, Donald Reid, vice - chairman, and Mrs. D. C. McVicker are members of the Board of Education, which should have gone out of existence December 31, 1965. However, it must remain until all bills against it are paid and the assets are handed over to the municipality. Still to be paid are monies to both the Belleville and the Napanee area boards for education bought from them to the end of last year. Approximately $31,000 is still on hand.

CANNOT SIT ON TWO BOARDS

Mr. Neal maintains that as Spence, Reid and Mrs. McVicker are members of both boards, and thus they are disqualified, according to section 21 of the Secondary Schools Act. "A member cannot sit on two boards at the same time". Mr. Neal holds. Although it has been disbanded, the Board of Education 'shall remain intact and can sit until assets and liabilities are needed, according to section 19 of the Secondary School Board of Education Act."

After discussion a motion was made by Mr. Neal and seconded by Mrs. McVicker, that the matter be clarified through the board's solicitor, K.G.M. Ross of Belleville.

Voting in favor were Spence, Reid, Neal and Mrs. McVicker; against, William Burkitt and Mrs. Saunders.

If the three members are disqualified according to the law, the decision will have far-reaching effects. Donald Armitage, now reeve, and William Schell, representing Deseronto on the Napanee area board, would also be disqualified, as they are members of the Deseronto Board of Education, supposed to be non - existent after December 31, 1965.

ELECTION MAY BE HELD

It is a mere technicality, but it may mean that Deseronto will be put to the expense and the inconvenience of an election.

Chairman Spence feels that it was a mistake to bring up the matter, but now that the question has been raised, he is as anxious as anyone else to have the whole thing cleared up.

To him such technicalities are not the important thing. "As long as the tax - payers are properly represented and their monies well administered, all we should strive for is to have the best possible elementary education for Deseronto children", he said. To Mr. Neal he said, "You worry about the regulations and the rest of us will do the work".

SHOULD USE SERVICES

WINNIPEG (CP) , Canadian manufacturers who want to enter the export business should make more use of government information services, J. M. McAvity, president of the Canadian Export Association, said Tuesday. He told 150 delegates at a two-day productivity conference sponsored by the Economic Council of Canada that such information often helped firms to break into export markets.

School Board Calls for Budget Reports

DESERONTO — Early in the meeting of the Deseronto Public School Board Monday evening, Chairman Jack Spence requested all committees to meet and report on their budgets.

Mrs. D. C. McVicker announced that she had at last received a certificate from the Royal Canadian Humane Society to be presented to Sharon John in recognition of her bravery several years ago in rescuing a child from a burning building. It was agreed that there should be two public presentations of the award, one in the Public School which Miss John attended at the time of the incident, and a second at Moira Secondary School which she now attends.

A letter from Principal Roach informed the board that Miss Isabel Laird, assistant professor of psychology at Queen's University, would address the staff of his school the third week in March, and that members of the board, and any interested teachers in the area, would be invited to attend. Miss Laird will speak on methods of handling slow learners, and of maintaining discipline.

Donald Reid, chairman of the properties committee, stated that the original deed for the old High School property had been framed, as the board had directed, and is now hanging in the public library, also according to their instructions. The deed, made out in 1889, for some reason was not registered then, but this was remedied last year. The property was turned over to the Public School Board.

Some Want Peace

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — North Viet Nam has disclosed that some of its Communist party officials are "pacifists" who oppose a prolonged war in Viet Nam and want to negotiate a peaceful settlement with the United States. The existence of the group was made known in an article written by Le Duk Tho, a leading party official, which appeared in the Feb. 3 issue of Nhan Dan, the party newspaper.

Gas in Tunnel Kills 17 Men

LOCARNO, Switzerland (AP) Seventeen men were suffocated Tuesday night by a cloud of poisonous gas was a carbonic origin.

Fifteen of the workmen were Italian. An Italian investigation commission arrived today, and details of the inquiry were withheld until its completion.

Police said the dense cloud of yellow gas swept through a tunnel north of Locarno where a power station has been under construction shortly before 15 Italian workers were to end the evening shift.

Lenten Fasts Cut To Two; Meatless Fridays Stay But Exemption Age Raised

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul decreed major changes today in the centuries-old rules of fasting and abstinence for the world's Roman Catholics.

Days of fasting during the pre-Easter Lenten season were reduced to two—Ash Wednesday and Good Friday. The obligation to abstain from meat on all Fridays remains in force but children do not have to observe it until they are 14. The present age is 7.

The pope specified that Friday abstinence applies only to meat—not to eggs, dairy products and soups and gravies made with animal fat.

Ash Wednesday was made a day of abstinence as well as a fast day—meaning no meat can be eaten.

The pope decreed the changes in an Apostolic constitution titled, Do Penance.

The new regulations were first announced in Washington Wednesday by the Apostolic delegate to the United States, Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, through the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Abstinence in the Catholic church means no eating of meat. Fasting means limited consumption of food; meat may or may not be part of the menu.

Lent, the period between Ash Wednesday and Easter, corresponds to the period Christ fasted in the desert. In the Catholic church these 40 days (excluding Sundays) were observed by fasting as early as the third and fourth centuries.

The observance spread but it varied widely and in some cases less rigid rules were adopted.

Vatican sources say that within a year Pope Paul may give bishops an option to abolish the year-round rule of meatless Fridays.

Crisis Looms In House Over Redistribution

OTTAWA (CP) — A major Commons crisis looms unless the government and opposition parties quickly agree on how to handle protests about the recommended redistribution of federal electoral ridings.

George McIlraith, the government House leader, said Wednesday the government and opposition parties must settle the issue soon. But he said only preliminary talks have been held to date.

At the root of the problem is a clumsily-worded section of the act that set up 10 provincial commissions to carry out the first independent redistribution of federal ridings.

The act sets out in detail the procedures for the first 12 months of redistribution following its proclamation in January, 1965. The commissions published preliminary maps of proposed new boundaries, held public hearings and filed their recommendations with the Speaker's office. The reports were tabled in the Commons Jan. 19, the day after the new Parliament opened.

But after providing for the tabling of the reports, the act becomes vague about deadlines for parliamentary action and even vaguer about what happens between deadlines.

TIME LIMIT UNCLEAR

It allows 30 days from the date of tabling for any 10 MPs to object to the recommendations of a commission report. Any objection is referred back to the commission for reconsideration. But the act is unclear whether the time limit for filing objections is 30 calendar days or 30 sitting days for the Commons.

The prevailing legal opinion on this point, informants say, is that the act means 30 calendar days, meaning all objections must be filed by Friday, Feb. 18.

By Wednesday, 15 objections had been filed covering all or some ridings in six provinces. Under protest are all Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick ridings, most in Alberta, some in Saskatchewan, five in Quebec and about 30 in Ontario. Objections are on the way over Manitoba and British Columbia ridings.

Presuming the prevailing legal opinion about the 30 days is agreed to by the parties, the next legal hurdles to be cleared are when, by what method and for how long the objections are to be before the Commons.

If objections are received

Older Workers Aided

TORONTO (CP)—A bill to prohibit job discrimination by employers against workers between the ages of 40 and 65 was introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree.

In other business, the house:

—Heard Attorney - General Arthur Wishart explain the eviction of two families Tuesday by the York County sheriff;

—Listened to Education Minister William Davis tell of grants to school boards for "new Canadian" children.

In introducing the bill, entitled the Age Discrimination Act, Mr. Rowntree said it would protect the employment opportunities "of those older individuals who are capable and efficient workers."

The bill, which gives new statutory powers to the Ontario human rights commission, allows for imposition of fines up to a maximum of $500 against any employer or union found guilty of an offence under the legislation.

Mr. Rowntree said Ontario cannot afford to lose the skills and the contributions of older workers.

ACTED WITH CARE

Mr. Wishart said the sheriff [illegible]ed with great care and patience" in evicting the two families, who he said were "aware of the circumstances" surrounding the expropriation last April of their properties and the filing in December — seven months later—of eviction notices.

He said he would welcome any suggestion from any members "as to how the laws of this land can be upheld by the adoption of another procedure in this type of case, where persons patently refuse to comply with the law."

Mr. Davis said the government now will provide the grants to school boards which provide classes of instruction for immigrant children.

The instruction of immigrant children not familiar with English, he said, is a complicated task and he expected the grants would help the boards finance [illegible] instruction programs.

Russia Says H-Bomber Trips Violate 1963 Test-ban Treaty

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet government denounced the flights of American bombers carrying nuclear weapons today as a violation of the 1963 partial test - ban treaty.

A Soviet memorandum, read to the 17-nation disarmament conference by Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin, said crash of an American B-52 nuclear bomber in Spain last month led to radioactive contamination of the coastal waters of Spain and the Mediterranean.

"The Soviet government considers this a flagrant violation of international law and a violation of the Moscow treaty," Tsarapkin told the conference.

"It may be said that this was merely an accident. But the Soviet government asks the question: What kind of a policy is this which allows such accidents to happen?

"The Soviet government has warned the United States repeatedly of the danger of such flights, but the United States did not heed our warnings. What happened over the coast of Spain shows that our warnings were well - grounded.

"Clearly it is necessary to stop the flights of planes carrying nuclear bombs outside the national borders.

"The Soviet government hopes drawing attention of the United States to these facts will lead to the termination of such flights."

Promises To Exile Officers

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The majority of the Dominican Republic's labor leaders agreed today to end a damaging general strike after President Hector Garcia-Godoy promised to send two top military officers abroad.

The strike leaders acted shortly after the president warned in a radio - television speech that government employees would lose their jobs if they did not resume work today.

He said if necessary he would use police to reopen Santo Domingo's port and airport and other public services.

The president met the strike leaders' terms by promising that the army and air force chiefs who took part in last

Mines Wound 60 in Saigon

SAIGON (Reuters)—Two Viet Cong mines today showered a busy Saigon suburban street with deadly razor-sharp shrapnel, killing 12 Vietnamese and wounding 60.

Two "claymore" mines tied to bicycles went off within two minutes of each other just outside the back gate of the South Vietnamese joint chiefs of staff office.

Quebec Group Seeks Bigger Say on Labor Relations Bd.

OTTAWA (CP) — A militant Quebec labor organization complained to the federal cabinet Wednesday that it is not getting justice from the Canada Labor Relations Board.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, opening a campaign to win the right to take over any group of Quebec workers that it can, entered a bitter protest against the board's recent refusal to certify it as the bargaining agent for 660 CBC stagehands.

[illegible] branded the board's decision "an assault on trade union freedom" and threatened to end CNTU participation in all federal labor bodies if something is not done about it.

A 150-member CNTU delegation headed by president Marcel Pepin also demanded that the Quebec labor body be given increased representation on the federal board and that bilingualism be introduced in board proceedings.

The board now has eight members, four from management and four from labor. Three of the labor members are nominated by unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress and the other is a CNTU appointee.

There should be equal membership for the CLC and the CNTU when the board tackles questions of conflict between the two groups, the brief contended.

There was little reaction from Prime Minister Pearson or the two cabinet ministers who replied to the CNTU presentation.

Immigration Minister Marchand, president of the CNTU until he resigned last year to enter politics, said the group's problem with the labor board is related to the whole problem of national unity.

Labor Minister Nicholson said the matter would be carefully considered and recalled that CNTU executives had discussed it with him previously.

Mr. Nicholson supported another item in the brief, which ranged over a wide field.

He said he agrees with the view that labor laws should compel the new owner of a company to honor the labor contracts negotiated by the previous owner. There would be legislative action in this regard.

Mr. Pearson took note of the brief's concern that the federal government might take steps to dampen down the booming economy as a hedge against inflation.

He said the aim of the government is not to weaken the economy but to strengthen it and guard against a return of the "boom and bust" cycle which had occurred in the past.

"We couldn't agree with you more," he said in reference to the CNTU's appeal for economic independence. But there were difficulties in this field and it should be recalled that most of the other countries of he world, including the United States, were having similar problems.

U.S. Senate Calls Canadians to Give Opinions on China

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The debate on Viet Nam reached an intense new pitch Wednesday in a wordy welter of pros and cons on assorted fronts.

It reached the Senate floor on a resolution to approve another $4,800,000,000 to support the U.S. Army of more than 200,000 men now committed to South Viet Nam.

President Johnson at Atlantic City declared that "our burden is heavy and will grow heavier." But Communism's terrorist tactics will spread elsewhere unless defeated in Viet Nam—"it is as simple as that and as grim as that."

Today the Senate debate continued. Also scheduled was another round of the Senate foreign relations committee's inquiry into the war in defiance of administration wishes.

Taylor was stating the case for current American policy, as a former ambassador to South Viet Nam, an architect of that policy and a continuing consultant to President Johnson.

In a side development Wednesday, the government also increased the interest rate on savings bonds as a curb on inflation and a way of helping finance the war in Viet Nam.

The Senate debate quickly separated the members who oppose growing American military involvement outright or staunchly back it.

Democratic Senator Richard B. Russell, Georgia, asked for speedy approval of the additional military funds.

But Democratic senators Wayne Morse, Oregon; Ernest Gruening, Alaska, and others speedily dissented, repeating often-stated argument that the U.S. role in Viet Nam is illegal, wrong and dangerous.

Democratic Senator Russell Long, Louisiana, deputy Senate leader, said the U.S. will win in Viet Nam unless critics "pull the rug out from under" American forces there.

Long touched off a furious exchange when he complained Johnson's critics were using the televised committee hearings to "express their fears on this issue—that the Red Chinese might come in, and the fact that we are losing some American boys."

Democratic Henry Jackson, Washington, said there should be heavier air attacks on northern military targets and more help from allies.

Jackson said Australia's contribution of 1,500 troops could be raised to 5,000, New Zealand's token force increased and South Korean troops doubled to 50,000. Other nations then might join in.

WASHINGTON (CP) — There is nothing the United States can do at present to relax tensions with China, Canadian industrialist James Duncan told a congressional subcommittee Wednesday.

Charles Taylor of the Toronto Globe and Mail said however, it would be in the U.S. interest to adopt a more flexible attitude to China with particular reference to the eventual seating of China in the United Nations "and get out of the rigid corner in which with the best of intentions you have boxed yourself."

The two Canadians, with Australian educationist Myra Roper, were testifying by invitation to the House of Representatives subcommittee on Asia and the Far East, giving views formed from first-hand experience in China.

Duncan, among other things a former head of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, visited China in 1959 and in 1964.

Taylor left Peking last October after 1½ years as correspondent there for the Globe and Mail.

Duncan told chairman Clement Zablocki, Wisconsin Democrat, that he frankly doubts a Sino-U.S. clash will occur. China is too weak in terms of American power, he said, although there was a danger that a clash might result from an attack on Chinese territory or some strong blow to China's highly-sensitive national pride.

The U.S. by all means should avoid a land war with China, Duncan said, and Taylor said the U.S. could not win such a war.

Taylor said he feels China is anxious to avoid a showdown militarily with the U.S. The hazard in Viet Nam was the importance each country was attaching to events there as a test case and this possibly could cause Chinese involvement on ideological grounds.

Under committee prodding, Duncan said there are five ways the U.S. might take action for better relations—not with any hope of immediate results but at least to put the onus on China.

These included non-reciprocal steps for ending the trade embargo, two-way trade, passports for all responsible citizens desiring to go to China and information and cultural exchanges.

Shortage Of Grain Boxcars

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is expected to wind up a seven-day debate on transportation problems today, but prospects for early legislative action remain dim.

The shortage of grain boxcars on the Prairies sparked another exchange Wednesday before the first item in the 1965-66 transport department spending estimates was passed.

The remainder of the transport estimates likely will be cleaned up relatively quickly because the rules restrict debate closely to each particular spending item once the first vote has carried.

Other extended debates are being forecast, however, on defence and justice department estimates and on MPs' objections to sweeping changes in the electoral map for the next federal election.

After that will come a historic debate free of party lines on the abolition of capital punishment, study of the new estimates for the fiscal year starting April 1 and the six-day budget debate.

The new Parliament completes its first month in session today without having passed any legislation except a routine bill to cover federal spending in February.

The only other decisions reached so far were motions setting up parliamentary inquiries into the adequacy of CPR passenger services and the cost of drugs, and approval of external affairs estimates.

Wednesday's short sitting was devoted largely to the boxcar issue, which has agitated Prairie farmers.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas criticized the imbalance in grain shipping quotas at various western shipping points. They asked what the government intends to do to equalize the quotas.

Finance Minister Sharp, responsible for the Canadian wheat board, replied that record volumes of grain are being shipped. To speed up the flow, it had been necessary to grant higher quotas to Prairie centres closest to the Pacific coast and the lakehead.

He assured the house that the disparities in quotas will be reduced gradually as the crop year progresses.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that a federal controller be named to make sure the railways move the target of 600,000,000 bushels of grain for the current crop year. Transport Minister Pickersgill said this idea will be submitted to the cabinet.

France Now World Space Club Member Orbiting Satellite With Its Own Rocket

HAMMAGUIR, Algeria (Reuters)—France today joined the world's space club behind the United States and Russia after successfully launching its own satellite and placing it in orbit.

A French - made rocket, the three - stage Diamant blasted aloft the satellite packed with scientific equipment at this base deep in the Sahara Desert.

France previously launched two test satellites but this was the first one sent up by an all-French rocket. A previous French satellite was launched by the American Scout rocket from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California Dec. 6 for scientific purposes.

The space capsule, technically called the D-1-A but nicknamed "Zebulon" after a character in a popular French children's television show, was carried into orbit around the earth and will make scientific observations.

Its primary purpose was to test the equipment installed aboard it by the French space studies centre.

A battery lead, accidentally fell away from the rocket's exterior just 20 seconds before blast-off Friday.

The second try was foiled Saturday when a powder charge in the Diamant's first stage failed to ignite when the firing button was pressed.

But today there was only one minor halt in the countdown.

Today's was the first in a planned series of three D-1 capsule firings from Hammaguir and was expected to have a working life of about three months although it probably will go on orbiting for as long as 50 years, French space officials said.

Engineer Agrees Garbage Dump Could Contaminate Bay Waters; Suggests Move or Incineration

The city of Belleville will soon have to be looking for another garbage disposal area, but the big question could be . . . "where to go?"

City council this week was told that the present land fill disposal area east of the Bay Bridge Road would be completely filled in another three to five years.

And in the meantime the Ontario Water Resources Commission is recommending abandonment of the present site on the basis of eventual effects which refuse can have on the bay water if decomposition contaminants leach through the disposal area dykes.

Monday city council approved the OWRC water pollution survey report received last October along with comments on recommendations from City Engineer Wilbur Purcell.

Mr. Purcell said that although it had not been proven that the city sanitary land fill operation on the east side of the Bay Bridge road was contaminating bay water, he agreed the danger did exist and suggested that steps be taken to plan for another sanitary landfill location or for incineration.

JOINT PROJECT POSSIBLE

He suggested that now might be a good time to discuss the subject with the neighboring municipalities to see if a joint venture would be practical.

The reason for the engineer's feeling that contamination of bay water from disposal operations had not already taken place was the wording of the O.W.R.C. report expressing concern over eventual effects "unless adequate precautions are taken."

Dykes surrounding the city garbage disposal area do not have a high class clay core but, according to the city engineer, are wide and well compacted.

He said it appeared the O.W.R.C. believed the leaking problem could be controlled by dyking but that the width of the dyking required is still in question.

Council was told that it was legal for a city to purchase property outside the municipality as a garbage disposal area.

The cost comparison between incineration and landfill garbage disposal was raised by one alderman. He was told the capital cost and operation of an incinerator would be considerably higher than land fill — providing a site for the landfill was available.

APPROVES SEWERS

The O.W.R.C. in its report recommended the city continue its present program of constructing storm sewers in areas at present serviced by combined sewers.

It was pointed out that storm water in the sanitary sewers needlessly increases the hydraulic load on the water pollution control plant and during a period of heavy rains the load is increased to the point that raw sewage must be discharged into the river and bay.

Except for isolated locations, the only areas of the city not having sanitary sewers are Hillcrest and Foster Ward. Provision of sanitary sewers in these areas is a matter to be considered when the official plan of the city had been developed and the end use of the areas can be more accurately determined.

Mr. Purcell noted that it would be uneconomical to consider local sanitary services in either area at this time.

Six St. John Divisions Had Busy Years

St. John Ambulance Divisions are now remitting their returns to Headquarters on their hours of voluntary service, casualties treated and other services rendered during the past year.

The six Divisions comprising the Quinte Corps, which is made up of a combined division in Trenton, a nursing division in Picton and one each of ambulance, nursing, cadet nursing and cadet ambulance Divisions in Belleville have again compiled a fine record.

Numbering 139 men, women and young people the divisions of Quinte Corps rendered first aid treatment to 448 persons, 55 of whom they transported to hospital for further treatment. These 139 unpaid members gave 7,670 hours of voluntary service at a wide range of community activities, from special events to regular weekly duties. These hours do not include any of the time spent in training weekly or receiving lectures from the divisional surgeons and nurses.

From time to time different organizations learn about the voluntary public duty offered by St. John Ambulance but do not contact the division until the last moment. As volunteers members would like to have some previous notice, though of course, they are prepared to "drop everything" in case of an explosion, tornado, air or train crash or similar emergency.

The services here are made possible support of the work through United Appeal. In Trenton and Picton St. John work's supported by the generous contributions of citizens when those communities are canvassed.

During recent years Her Majesty has honored a number of local persons by admission to the order of St. John while the Priory for Canada has honored an additional number with lesser awards. Among those honored in 1965 were Dr. K. M. Douglas, who became a Serving Brother, and Messrs. P. L. Allcorn and J. W. Hodgson who received "Priory Votes of Thanks".

Stratford Firm Gets Contract For New Bridge

TRENTON — Tenders were opened at 1 p.m. on Wednesday for the construction of Trenton's new bridge at the Downsview office of the Department of Highways.

There were three bids for the job and the lowest tender was submitted by the John Gaffney Construction Company Ltd. of Stratford, at an asking price of $1,023,622.10. The other bids were submitted by W. D. LaFlamme and C. A. Pitts.

The contract will be gone over by department engineers and an award may be made at the end of this week or the beginning of next. Part and parcel of any bid accepted will be the (Trenton) Central Bridge bid of $311,796 for the supply of structural steel.

Expect Drive Will Go Over Objective

TRENTON — Daniel Senik, public relations officer for the Trenton chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation said today the current campaign to raise funds for heart research, being carried on in this area, was, by all indications, going to top the 1966 objective of $2,500. The campaign, which started February 14 will end February 19.

Mr. Senik said the campaign committee had had to issue 50 additional kits to an overflow of volunteer canvassers. In one area, comprising 52 houses, (six canvassers), $49 was collected on Monday.

Mr. Senik, Rev. Douglas Wilson, chapter president and Mrs. Warren of Stirling appeared on a television program on the Kingston station on February 10, in connection with the campaign.

Jury Finds Death Was Accident

TRENTON — A coroner's jury in Trenton last night brought down the verdict that 19-year-old David Warren Johnson of Trenton died Dec. 27 as the result of injuries suffered in a Christmas Eve accident on Marmora Street. Death was accidental the jury ruled.

Two recommendations were made: that flares be placed far enough back from the scene of street excavations to give ample warning to the public and police cruisers carry fire extinguishers.

Johnson, who was well known in this area for his interest in hockey, suffered multiple head injuries and burns when his car plunged into a storm sewer trench and burst into flames. Police and firemen rendered first aid on the scene and resucitation was carried out by a fireman, Dennis Smith, in the ambulance as it sped the injured youth to the hospital.

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce yesterday launched a campaign to raise $4,162.47 to wipe off debt (exclusive of the $10,000 mortgage) on the new Front Street chamber office. Letters will be mailed out to industry heads and businessmen and donations from individuals will be welcomed.

The chamber also hopes to increase its membership from 130 to 195 this year and considerations are being given to raising membership fees.

Meeting Monday night, the chamber directors voted to buy a reconditioned typewriter at $100; a duplicator at $165; an addressograph at $150 and $100 towards a new table for the board room.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,

THE MARK OF A REALLY-SMART PERSON

The mark of a really smart person is not necessarily a college diploma or a Phi Beta Kappa key. It might be simply a record of carefully-considered actions.

To "know it all" would be wonderful — if we humans could absorb that much knowledge in a lifetime. Next best is to seek and accept the advice of experts, particularly your Doctor.

Visit him frequently. Follow his directions carefully. Bring your prescriptions to us to be filled, and take the medicine he prescribes regularly.

Such cooperation is the best course possible for preservation of your health, and it marks you as a really smart person.

Quinte Friendship Chapter Honors Scribe E. of 25 Years

The chapter room of the Masonic Temple in Belleville was completely filled with Companions of the Royal Arch when the Officers and Companion of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227 surprised their Scribe E. Ver Ex. Comp. Monty Barlow with a presentation of the 25th Anniversary of being installed as Scribe E.

In a well planned and completely surprised act, Most Ex. Comp. Bruce Smith presented V. Ex. Comp Monty Barlow to Rt. Ex. Comp. R. J. Hamilton, Grand Scribe E. of Royal Arch Masons of Canada who on behalf of the Companions of Quinte Friendship Chapter presented him with a Past Grand Stewards Regalia he had earned words to express his deep feeloutlined the Scribe E. service to the Chapter from his date of joining in 1921.

The Scribe E. although taken completely by surprise and somewhat emotionally upset by the demonstration of the Companion managed to suitably express his sincere appreciation for the Grand Chapter Regalia and acknowleged that for once he was at a loss for suitable words to express his deep feeling of this expression of appreciation by his Companions.

PAST PRINCIPALS CONFER DEGREE

To bring a full business session to a close the Royal Arch Degree was conferred on four candidates by Past Principals of the two local chapters. Under the leadership of Ex. Comp. Carm Guest the following officers demonstrated to the assembled Companions that past officers can confer a degree as near to perfection as is possible. The officers taking part were:

1st. Principal Z. Ex. Comp. Carm. Guest; I. P. Z. Ex. Comp. Bert Adams; 2nd Principal H. Ex. Comp. Bud Gill; 3rd Principal J. Ex. Comp. Clarence Meyers; treasurer, Rt. Comp. Cyril McMullen; Scribe E. Assisting in the ritual were Ex. Comps. Percy Kerr, Morley Hancock and Rt. Ex. Comp. Lorne Vaughan. While Comp. Bryson Reid acted as Outer Guard. Hearty congratulations were extended to Ex. Comp. Guest and his officers.

PRESENTED WITH JEWEL

Ex. Comp. Jack Andrews was invested with a 25 year jewel as an installed principal by Most Ex. Comp. Bruce Smith on behalf of the Grand Z.

Most Ex. Comp Smith in making the presentation recalled some of the events that happened in 1941. It was the year our honored Scribe E. was elected and installed; the Day of Chapter meetings (2nd Monday) was finally settled; the start of Joint Installation of Officers, with Moira Chapter No. 7 was started under Rt. Ex. Comp Harold McElrath and has continued since.

Ex. Comp. Andrews in replying thanked the Past Grand Z's for the recognition from Grand Chapter and was happy to have been First Principal when our Scribe E. was elected and paid honor to his guidance and assistance to all presiding First Principals since that time.

During the business session of the Chapter, the First Principal and Companions welcomed and Grand Honors were extended to eleven Scribe E's and nine presiding First Principals.

Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons of Canada in the province of Ontario was represented by two Past Grand Z's. Most Ex. Companions Maurice Searle and Bruce H. Smith. Grand Superintendents from three districts Rt. Ex. Comp. Allan H. Gray No. 8 Toronto, Rt. Ex. Comp. D. M. Peebles No. 10 Colborne, Rt. Ex. Comp. Cyril McMullen No. 11 Belleville, Rt. Ex. Comp. R. J. Hamilton Grand Scribe E., several members of the Grand Executive as well as the largest group of Past Grand Officers from Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, Belleville and District, Colborne and London.

BANQUET HELD

After the business of the chapter was completed the members adjourned to the banquet hall, where the honored guest and Grand Chapter officers were paraded to the head table to the military strains of Colonel Bogey's March, the regimental march of Ex. Comp. Barlow's old regiment.

Menus and serviettes were made up with name of the guest of honor with a large birthday cake gaily decorated with 25 candles and numerals.

After enjoying a well prepared hot beef dinner, topped off with ice cream and birthday cake which had been duly cut by both the Scribe E for whom it was made assisted by Rt. Ex. Comp. Robt. Hamilton the Grand Scribe E.

Ex. Comp. Reg. Cooper, First Principal of Quinte Friendship Chapter extended a warm welcome to all present, in his capacity as toast master.

Ex. Comp. Percy Kerr, Secretary to the Grand Supt. of Prince Edward District No. 11 introduced the head table guest as well as the First Principals of the various chapters and the fellow scribes of Ex. Comp. Barlow.

Comp. Geo. Mountford, Principal Sojourner in proposing the toast to the Grand First Principal referred to the high quality of those companions who made up the governing body of the Royal Craft.

Rt. Ex. Comp. Allan Gray, Grand Supt. of District No. 8 of Toronto, Ont., replying on behalf of the Grand Z brought greetings and congratulations from Most Ex. Comp. James Girven to EX. Comp. Barlow on his 25th anniversary; the speaker then gave a brief history of the great interest our Grand First Principal takes in civic, social, church and fraternal activities and even has time to belong to several sport clubs.

TOAST TO SCRIBE E

Ex. Comp. Ernie Goodson said it was one of the greatest honors of his life to be asked to propose the toast to our honored guest of the evening.

He said he has known him possibly less number of years than some present, but few had benefited more from his knowledge of the Masonic Order, from his unselfish nature to help others, and his many hours over and above his duties as Scribe E to make sure his chapter and companions were looked after, he did not hesitate to state that the high position the chapter holds today was due to our Scribe E and asked all to drink to his health and many years more in office.

The standing ovation accorded the Scribe when he rose to respond was an indication of his popularity with the members of the Royal Craft. He said he was still quite shaken with the completely surprise presentation in the chapter room. Although he was fully aware that the Masonic Order was a secret organization, he congratulated the membership for keeping night a complete secret from him.

Briefly outlining the institution of the Chapter and a few of the highlights of its earlier days he acknowledged that for the last few years he had ideas of letting someone else have the honor of Scribe E. although the office gave one a great satisfaction of being on the inside regarding the working of the Chapter and Craft in general, of being the father confessor of First Principals for the last 25 years, of being able to guide and assist them brought a sense of importance. He stated that after this wonderful display of appreciation of his years in office, of the warm demonstration of affection he would work the harder for the Chapter and the Craft and would carry on until for him time would be no more.

REPLY FOR VISITORS

Replying to the Toast to the Visitors, proposed by Ex. Comp. Norm Meldrum, Most Ex. Comp. Maurice Searle, Past Grand Z, referred to the years of personal friendship with Mont Barlow. He stated his devotion to the Order was known not only in Prince Edward District but over the whole grand jurisdiction. His example was a challenge for all to emulate and he wished for him on behalf of all the visitors many more years of service to his companions and the Royal Craft.

Rt. Ex. Comp. D. M. Peebler brought greeting of honor from District No. 10 and told the companion that in his district his name and reputation was well known. He also told the gathering that he found out that in April of this year, the Scribe E. will celebrate his 50th anniversary of joining the Masonic Order. An event that comes to very few, but it only comes to Masons of the class of Mont Barlow, who remains active in the interest and teaching of the Order.

Rt. Ex. Comp. Cyril McMullen also had a word of praise for his advice and support on all his official visits and felt sure the harmony that prevails among the Chapters of this District was in a large measure due to the efforts of the companion we honor tonight.

The 3rd Principals toast and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought to a close an evening that may not be repeated for the next 25 years.

Corke Rink Winner of Mixed Spiel

A most delightful day of curling was enjoyed at the Quinte Curling Club on Wednesday, when a businessman's mixed bonspiel was staged. A committee of Dan Crowley, Fred Maund and Bill Meagher was in charge of arrangements, Jim Walker acted as Master of Ceremonies and Archie Row was in charge of the draws. Between the second and third games a delicious dinner was served by the women's section of the club.

A rink of Mrs. Kay Cook, "Ab" Wonnacott, Mrs. Ena Corke and her husband Ben Corke as skip won all the honors with a three-game high score but they were closely followed by a rink of Mrs. Joy Bowerman, Vince McLean, Mrs. Mavis McLean and Doug Ashley as skip. Mr. Ashley had to win the hard way through an extra and after scoring two on the final end to tie.

A rink of Mrs. Sylvia Basch, Stanley Albert, Mrs. Louise Johnson with Joseph Basch won the two-game high score while Mrs. Peggy Chalmers, Ken Chalmers, Mrs. Berne Sills with Jack Sills as skip was runners-up. A Picton rink of Mrs. Helen Lennox, Ray Lennox, Mrs. Doris Cook and Bill Cook as skip won the one-game high count and a rink from Tweed of Mrs. Cassie Moffatt, Wally Moffatt, Mrs. Jennie McCue with Dr. Frank McCue were the runners-up. The no-game winner was a rink of Mrs. Betty Ingram, "Huck Ingram, Mrs. Marabelle Clare and Bill Clare as skip and this rink had as much fun as any rink in the spiel.

Before the party broke up Archie Rowe was presented with some of his favorite cigars for his kindness in running the draws.

The Women's Section of the Quinte Curling Club are busy preparing for their big bonspiel of the season which will see competition for The Intelligencer Trophy and the accompanying prizes. This spiel has grown from modest beginnings to a full entry and in the three days of curling 32 rinks from Lindsay, Missassaga, Kingston, Tweed, Picton, Napanee, Trenton, RCAF Station and the local club.

Sixteen rinks will compete on Monday and another 16 on Tuesday. The three-game winners and the two-game winners each day will come back on Wednesday for the final round which will be a knockout draw. The one-game winners each day will receive a prize before departing for home.

Social affairs have been arranged for Monday and Tuesday with a tea slated for Wednesday afternoon. A full course dinner will be served each day. The bonspiel is under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Jessie Baber but she has a real hard-working bunch of girls behind her and there is no doubt the spiel will be a big success. The public is cordially invited up to watch the girls perform and there are some dandy curlers throughout the Quinte district and some of the rinks could give the men quite a tussle. Good curling and lots of fun.

Church Cries Blackmail

Deputy City Engineer Is Appealing City Hall Condition for Lot Sale

Charges of inequality and "blackmail" were heard at Belleville city hall yesterday during the hearing of an appeal by a city public works official against a decision of the local committee of adjustment.

The appeal, heard before a member of the Ontario Municipal Board, was by deputy city engineer Richard Kraft who claims he is being unjustly required to deed an eight-foot strip of his front lawn to the city as a condition for being allowed to sell the rear part of his lot on Sidney street.

Mr. Kraft claims the committee of adjustment requirement is unfair, while a representative of the group wishing to buy the part lot for church parking told the hearing that the condition of sale amounted to "blackmail."

The city wants the eight foot strip from Mr. Kraft's lawn for eventual street widening.

In support of his claim that the committee of adjustment decision was unjust, Mr. Kraft said the city was "purchasing land for road widening all over the city."

He said it was "completely unfair" for him to be asked to deed property to the city when it was buying property on North Front street for road widening.

He said if the Sidney street widening goes ahead the city would have to the eight foot right of way strip from all the other owners.

On the other hand, the committee of adjustment, through city planning director P. J. Beavis, claims that Mr. Kraft must be treated on the same basis as any other land developer in the city.

He said it was a normal requirement that sub-dividers deed land to the municipality for street allowances.

Mr. Beavis said a traffic survey report had designated Sidney street as an eventual arterial road in the northwest part of the city and plans were to widen the roadway.

At least eight feet on the west side of Sidney street would be required for the street widening, although it was admitted plans had not been finalized.

CHURCH WANTS LOT

The required eight foot strip along several properties on the west side of the street have already been acquired, according to Mr. Beavis. One of the owners (David Johnston) had deeded the eight foot strip to the city as a condition of sale for rear lots on which it is proposed to construct an Anglican church.

It is the same church interests who wish to buy the rear of Mr. Kraft's lot to increase the size of the church parking lot.

Mr. C. R. Whittemore, acting for the Anglican church group, asked why the sale should have any bearing on the city's request for the eight foot strip off Mr. Kraft's front lawn.

He said if the city required property feet for street widening, it should be prepared to purchase the eight foot from all the property owners.

CALLED BLACKMAIL

The city's requirement that Mr. Kraft deed the eight-foot strip to the city was tantamount to blackmail, Mr. Whittemore said.

Mr. Beavis said the requirement by the committee was an attempt to resolve an unsatisfactory situation at the rear of the properties.

Later he explained to the Intelligencer that sale of the Kraft property to the church interests would almost rule out proposals to provide access to the rear of other 300 foot deep lots in the same general area.

Municipal Board member J. V. Ludgate reserved judgment on the appeal.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ontario counties either can participate in provincial programs to replace out-dated local jails or be left behind, says Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutions. Many Subjects Discussed at Board Meeting

It was almost "discussion only" for members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board at their February meeting Wednesday night.

Despite the fact, however, that only a few motions were passed, the meeting lasted until eleven o'clock as members pondered up-coming salary negotiations with the teaching staffs, and heard progress reports on the construction of the new Centennial Secondary School in West Belleville.

Members were told that if all goes as expected, at least part of the school will be ready for occupancy for next September.

The board decided to take out safe burglary insurance for Quinte Secondary School, and mercantile "open stock" burglary insurance for Quinte and Moira Secondary School. Both types of insurance are already in effect at Belleville Collegiate.

Resignations from two staff members were accepted while two engagements for "non-teaching" staff were approved.

Mrs. Marjorie Chapman was hired as a temporary replacement for Mrs. Marian Chatland, senior principal's office secretary at Quinte Secondary School. Also Mrs. Rhoda Mattis was hired as cafeteria assistant at the same school.

The New Dissent

Along with the so-called "new morality" governing the conduct of modern youth, there is another movement abroad today. Martin Knelman, writing in The Globe Magazine, calls it "A Revolt Without Dogma", and a preface to the article says Canadian students "are joining the hippest fraternity going".

"It is all about overcoming The System", says the blurb, "The Establishment, sellouts in liberals' clothing, rat-finkism and bureaucracy".

The article suggests that the young people who sit on the steps of the U.S. consulate in Toronto and demonstrate on campuses all over the continent have no affiliation with communism. Says Knelman: "Pinkos they are not —though most of them would welcome the defeat of the United States in Viet Nam. Ideology, including communism, is irrelevant because the Movement is, as the catchphrase goes, a revolt without dogma. This generation of crusaders does not want to be tied to an ideology that can trap them and smother them in disillusion the way Marxism snuffed out an earlier generation of radicals."

Knelman should know better than to display such naievety. If many of the students belonging to this movement are not communists, it is patently obvious they are at least being used by the communists to create a false idea that they seek peace.

A cover picture illustrating Knelman's article shows a girl with long blonde hair and wearing a blue wool sweater emblazoned with badges of various leftist organizations. "End the War in Viet Nam" says one. An estimable objective — but not at any price.

"Don't Think, Follow. Don't Talk, Shoot — That's the American Way," shrieks another. Now we have a better clue to the origins of this kind of nonsense. Yet another speaks of "International Days of Protest," and it is sponsored, significantly, by the Viet Nam Day Committee. This is a communist-front organization in the United States which is sending letters to individual American soldiers in Viet Nam urging them to give up the fight.

Do these people want peace? If they do, it is not the kind the Americans and their allies are seeking, not an accommodation that will lead to the Vietnamese ultimately working out their own salvation. Rather, it is part of the overall attempt to have the Americans withdraw from Asia, thus paving the way for a complete communist takeover there.

One more thing to illustrate the real nature of the "Revolt Without Dogma", "The New Dissent", or whatever one likes to call it: The Peking government employs several American and British communists in their propaganda organization. Part of their job is to contact sympathizers on university campuses and among the Negro population.

The authority for the above statement is Morris Wills, of Fort Ann, N.Y., an American soldier who lived in China for 12 years after his capture in the Korean war. He has described his experiences in Look Magazine.

Thus, when University of Toronto students sit on the steps of the U.S. consulate, or there is a demonstration on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, urging an end to the war in Viet Nam, the sincerity and political affiliations of the students should immediately be questioned.

U.K. Dilemma

Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government, and particlarly Mr. Wilson himself, seem unable to do any wrong these days. What with trying to throttle the people of Rhodesia, both black and white, by means of trade sanctions, and exercising control on spending and wage claims, the government seems to have the support of a wide body of British opinion, whether right or left.

Victory in a recent by-election and Mr. Wilson's 11th hour success in averting a rail strike, have given Labor a further boost which bodes well for a spring election and a possible strengthening of its present narrow majority in parliament.

In one area, however, the government is in trouble — the issue of whether to rely on American F-111 swing-wing bombers or aircraft-carrier pased planes for its strategic defence.

A London report says the crisis has built up to such proportions that all ministers connected with the Royal Navy and several high naval officers are said to be threatening to resign if the government decides to purchase the U.S. planes.

Obviously this is a matter of prestige. The only U.S. aircraft in use by Britain are in the commercial sphere. To introduce U.S. military aircraft would be tantamount to a lack of faith in the British aircraft industry which hitherto has been one of the country's top dollar earners and has fulfilled the country's own needs adequately.

To Your Good Health

Should Consult Doctor On Cardiac Neurosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of cardiac neurosis? I am a woman of 40, and have painful heart cramps and palpitations, shortness of breath and weakness. Please advise me what to do. — Mrs. M. K.

You have rather well described the major symptoms of cardiac neurosis, which means you think that something is wrong with your heart when there is no evidence to substantiate your fear.

This is quite a frequent situation, enough so that the term cardiac neurosis is in common use. Cardiac means heart; neurosis means an emotional involvement, as anxiety or fear.

Your letter doesn't make clear where you acquired the term. Did your physician say this was your trouble, and you misunderstood and thought he meant something was wrong? Or did someone else mention it to you?

However, let's not speak of painful heart cramps. These are chest pains, perhaps real enough, but they aren't heart cramps. The other symptoms — palpitations, shortness of breath and weakness — can all be manifestations of nervous tension. And so can chest pains, since constant tension can lead to muscle tenseness.

What to do? See a doctor in whom you have confidence, perhaps a heart specialist because what the person with cardiac neurosis needs above all is reassurance. A specialist can examine you with such methods as will show whether you do or do not have any heart disorder: X-ray, electrocardiogram, etc.

If anything needs attention, you'll be told so. If there is nothing the matter except cardiac neurosis, accept that fact. I suspect that you are a worrier by nature. You'll just have to make up your mind that you'll be more comfortable if you select something else to worry about instead.

There's one thing that physicians learn to look for in cases like yours. Often these symptoms can be due to an overactive thyroid gland. Approuriate treatment relieves the symptoms, and helps the patient stop worrying about her heart. Or his heart in some cases, because men can be victims of cardiac neurosis, too.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would the health of children aged 6 to 16 be affected by sleeping in a fully insulated, heated and dehumidified basement which is completely below ground level? — J. M. S.

There must be some ventilation. The hazard of basements is carbon monoxide from furnaces or water heaters, whether the fuel is oil, gas or coal. If you can get fresh air into the basement at night, there will be no harmful effect otherwise.

I note that this basement is dehumidified. This is important. Moisture encourages growth of mold which can be a troublemaker from the standpoint of causing allergies.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to wash the hair too often? My 14-year-old daughter washes hers every other day.—Mrs. M. J. H.

By removing oil from the scalp, too much washing can in time leave the skin too dry Youngsters with their vigorous glands may not suffer. If the scalp is not too dry, washing every other day is not harmful. Shampooing once a week may be all that is really necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have always wanted my ears pierced but my mother is afraid I might get an infection. A neighbor said if it is done by a doctor you don't have to worry about this. What do you say? — B. S.

I say just what the neighbor said. There is danger from do-it-yourself ear-piercing, of course.

Much heart trouble is preventable Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Sndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for your copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Noise of Trains Interrupts Sleep

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Having noticed the item on page 5 of The Intelligencer, February 14, regarding trains whistling at crossings in the south part of the city causing unnecessary noise, particularly during the night, I would like to have some of the city fathers spend a night with me in the vicinity of the Frank Street pedestrian crossing.

For many years, apparently, the yard limit was east of this crossing, which meant the engines of the trains held from entering the yards, were located north of the new city barns, in a location where there were no houses. However, I presume due to complaints from blocking the crossing ,trains were ordered to stop west of the crossing, in the residential area.

With the churning of these stalled diesels at your back door, particularly in the summer, for periods up to an hour and more when bedroom windows are up, it is impossible to sleep. This situation has worsened with more passenger trains and more freights being held up.

I received my city tax bill today and am surely with the opinion the city should pay me to live in this area. There are two remedies for this noise nuisance, (1) as pedestrian traffic should be light to nil between midnight and 6 a.m. trains should be allowed to move down track, out of the residential area. (2) A tunnel or overwalk should be built.

A Sleepy Taxpayer.

Strictly Personal

When Young People Marry

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: What the idealist calls an "uncompromising ideal" usually appeals more to the uncompromising part of his nature; and what the practical man calls "brute fact" usually appeals more to the brute part of his nature; each uses only a portion of the truth in order to shore up the weaknesses of his position.

The worst thing about a college education that isn't seriously pursued is that it takes the student far enough to tell how little other people know, but not far enough to make him aware how little he knows.

When we are zealous to "liberate" others, it is often our unconscious desire to bring them out of their kind of slavery into our kind of slavery.

When two young people want to get married, no argument or force in the world can stop them — not necessarily because of the depth of their passion (one or the other may even feel that the marriage is a mistake), but because they are determined to make their own mistakes as the only form of freedom open to them.

Mankind can get accustomed to anything, except the continual need to get accustomed; it is not the substance of change that bothers us as much as the process.

My middle daughter recently expressed the sense of joy that most of us lose as we get older; when asked to name the best day of her life, she said it was the day she was born, "because I came out and looked around and said, 'At last, I'm out where all the fun is!' "

If people keep referring to marriage as a "lottery," it's going to knock the bottom out of the lottery business.

People who extol the cleverness of dogs always ignore the corresponding stupidity of dogs — for instance, if you chain one to a tree and he runs around in a circle until he is closely bound he never learns to reverse the process and unwind himself without help.

Some women think they are avoiding flagrant bad taste when all they are doing is dressing in quiet bad taste.

An open mind is a good thing to have, but not if it lets out as many ideas as it takes in.

Something in our society makes it easier for little girls to become women than for little boys to become men; and it is my strong impression that male immaturity is the largest single cause of divorce in America.

A philanthropist is commonly a person who won't keep another from falling, in order to have the pleasure of picking him up.

Bob Thompson Pays Dearly For His Powerful Position

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Isn't it amazing that mild-mannered, quietly-unobtrusive professional "nice guy" Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson should continue as Parliament's "strong-man" in the sheer terms of the kind of power it takes to make or break governments?

It was Bob Thompson's Social Credit votes that dramatic February night three years ago that finally toppled the rebel-wracked Diefenbaker Conservative minority administration.

It was the negative nod of Thompson's head that sealed Dief's prime ministerial doom.

As the division bells rang and rang for nearly an hour while the frantic Party whips rounded up every last vote, Davie Fulton, then Conservative Public Works Minister, pleaded with Bob Thompson to string along for the sake of preventing what would be the second election in less than a year, if for nothing else.

It was apparent to all, as they sat and watched from the Commons floor and galleries, that defence counsel Fulton was petitioning for nothing less than Dief's life. And when Thompson denied it, the nod of his head "no" came with all the solemnity of a high court judge putting on the black cap to pronounce the sentence of death.

Then, during most of the first minority administration of Prime Minister Pearson, with his Social Credit votes, "Judge" Thompson found himself with the power of reprieve in his hands. This he used as a stay of execution when votes in the Commons were close, judging it in the public interest to save the government, no matter what.

ULTIMATUMS

His power was such that after the Rivard scandal, he could issue proclamations to the Government to "clean house," as he so bluntly put it, "or else."

Whether he actually ever was prepared to make it "or else," he never was able to demonstrate, because, as he explained it, rebels in the ranks of both the Conservatives and Liberals cancelled out close votes—stripping him of his power of parliamentary life and death over the Government — in the closing six months of the first Pearson minority regime.

The disaffected Conservatives he contended, routinely skipped votes in hopes of further undermining Dief's leadership. And impatient Liberals, trying to hurry the then-reluctant Prime Minister into a Spring election, similarly dodged votes, hoping to topple their own administration.

Result was—and some of the counts in the Commons bore him out — that absenteeism was so uncontrolled as to upset what should have been a tight touch-and-go minority balance between Government and Opposition, destroying the decision-making power of his few Socred votes.

Through it all, Bob Thompson, by some talent of appealing personality, continued basking happily in the warm admiration of thousands of taxpayers — especially older women — who saw him as the parliamentary apostle of order and reason.

But in this second minority Pearson Government things are different.

And for everybody, including Bob Thompson.

Conservatives and Liberals are playing this time for keeps, with nobody skipping votes, and the balance so delicate that twice already Bob Thompson has found himself back on that pinnacle of power with the very life of the Government in his hands.

But for Bob Thompson there's been another change, basic and fundamental enough that it could have an important bearing on his political future.

THE VILLAIN

In coming twice to the rescue of the Government — and his five votes made the crucial difference — he voted against the Opposition's proposed $25 increase in the Old Age Pension to a monthly $100.

And oddly, as thing work out, who's getting blamed for the Pension defeat? The Government whose policy decision it was?

No. Bob Thompson's taking the rap.

From political pin-up boy among the senior citizens he has been transformed overnight into the ogre of Parliament, a despised public pinch-penny.

Vainly he protested that he didn't vote against the Pension increase, but against another election.

But nobody's listening.

And what he describes as 'hate mail' is flooding in across his postal-swamped desk, all of it "abusive," some "vicious," and a section of it "so obscene as to be unfit for reading."

There even have been "threats."

Mail he can dump into his waste-basket.

But the telephone he can't ignore.

Not when it keeps ringing from the time he enters his House of Commons Centre Block office until he packs it up at the post-midnight ending of his parliamentary working day.

Some of the calls, "such obscenities" were so vile as to shake him.

In self-defence, he had to call the phone company to pull the plug on his line.

At home, here in the Capital, "thank goodness," he says, the number is "silent."

The price of supreme power can come high, he suddenly has discovered, and he is paying it in personal political popularity.

Will he continue to pay it for what he calls "stable government?"

Lost Art of Splitting Wood

Windsor Star

It is sad sort of fact that there are growing up on some Ontario farms a generation of lads who know not the art of splitting wood. It once was learned by every rural boy almost as soon as he was able to swing an axe.

In rural Ontario there were two distinct wood splitting jobs. One was in the bush and the other in the woodshed. The latter was the easiest but not always easy, especially when one got a knotty chunk.

In the woods the trees were sawn into stove lengths. The task then was to split these large round lengths into chunks so they could be piled out there to weather and to dry. The wood thus split, in late winter, was left until hauled in for use the next winter. It was an improvident farmer who had to burn green wood.

Menfolk normally did this job in the woods as it was hard work, particularly if one spent the whole day at it. The wood split best when there was a bit of frost on it. On a fine crisp day, with straight-grained wood, it wasn't an unpleasant occupation.

There was a real art to it and not just in knowing how to use an axe. Each chunk of wood had to be appraised by a keen eye to ascertain how it would split best.

The next winter these chunks, now in the woodshed, had to be split again into smaller pieces convenient for stove use. Large, awkward chunks tried the patience of a housewife, and she quickly let a lad know if they weren't split to her liking. It was in the woodshed that the farm boy learned the art.

Nowadays, with so many rural homes heated by other means, there is no wood in the woodshed. The dust and chips of decades provide a musty but pleasant odor. The old axe stands rusted in a corner. And so many farm lads wouldn't know how to use it anyway.

Feb. 17, 1966 . . .

The last local resistance to Louis Riel's Metis government of Manitoba ended 96 years ago today—in 1870 —when Major Charles Boulton and his force of 47 men were captured. The "Canadian party" of settlers which opposed Riel was a small minority and has been identified with the less law-abiding part of the community. This did not mitigate its vehemence and one member, Thomas Scott, was shot two weeks later when he refused either to leave the province or submit to Riel's government. At the time, the Hudson's Bay Company's sovereignty had expired and negotiations for union with Canada were incomplete.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Bulgaria and Turkey signed a non-aggression pact; Brighton, England, rehearsed defences against gas attack; Prime Minister Mackenzie King warned of the dangers of Japan's entering the war.

Jailed 2 Weeks For Striking Younger Boy

While giving directions to a p of teenagers in Stirling weeks ago, a 15-year-old youth was repaid for his courtesy with a punch in the mouth.

The assault brought two weeks in jail for 19-year-old Wayne Barr of Norwood and some strong words from Magistrate Phillip Baker in Belleville today.

Stirling police chief C. E. Hicks said Barr was one of four youths who halted an automobile in the village February 3 and asked Donald Sager the way to the local ice rink.

While the youth was obliging "the defendant got out of the car and hit him in the mouth, knocking him to the ground," said the chief.

"These assaults," commented the magistrate, "rarely take place on someone larger than the person doing the assaulting. They always pick on someone are sure of or they are surded by their cohorts.

"Why did you do this?" he demanded of Barr.

"There was no reason," answered the accused.

"That's obvious," answered Magistrate Baker. "I thought you might have some reason in your mind — apparently you don't even—have that. I think the public is entitled to protection from this kind of conduct. You're to be sentenced to 14 days in jail."

year's civil war would be sent abroad.

The strike broke out last Thursday when a month-long political - military crisis boiled over into rioting and three students were killed in a bloody clash with police.

SUPPLIES SHORT

The strike spread like wildfire. A gasoline shortage reduced traffic to virtually nil. Bread and meat went off the market.

Since the student clash with police, further bitter incidents have brought the death toll to 19 as quiet days pass into violent nights.

Inhabitants of the capital venturing out after dark hear frequent bomb and grenade explosions and sharp rifle and machine-gun exchanges.

Unidentified snipers open fire on posts and patrols of the inter-American peace force, particularly on U.S. troops, which increasingly bear the brunt of ill-feeling here.

Two U.S. patrols were attacked during the last 24 hours. In one attack three soldiers were wounded.

Youth Jailed After Record Read to Court

The 20-year-old father of an infant son today was jailed for four months for driving under suspension after his record was read out to Magistrate Phillip Baker.

"It's almost unbelievable, isn't it," commented the magistrate after hearing a list of driving infractions dating from 1962 listed against Gordon Fowler, of Bowmanville.

Fowler was charged after an accident in the village of Stirling November 5 in which a second car received $200 damage. Police Chief C. E. Hicks said the automobile, driven by Fowler and owned by a friend, left the scene and later returned with another youth behind the wheel who claimed to be the driver.

Included in Fowler's record were three suspensions, the last — and current one — for dangerous driving in August 1965.

"What is it you have for motor vehicles?" demanded the magistrate. "You have some misconception of their use apparently and you're not apparently a very good driver. Would you agree to that?"

"Yes sir," answered Fowler.

Asked if he had ever been in jail before, the youth replied he had been in the cells prior to his court appearance.

"Well this time you're going to be in after you appear in court," retorted Magistrate Baker.

Fowler protested he had only been married last March and was now the father of an infant son.

"I don't know why you didn't think of that before you got involved in this," replied the magistrate. "I've an obligation. You have a son — but the people you endanger when you go on the highway too are entitled to protection."

Crown Attorney John Pringle called Fowler's offence "blatant defiance" of the law.

"There's no rule for any reform of this person. He's going to drive and the courts be damned," he charged.

"Actually, I would say that's just the way it appears Mr. Pringle," agreed the magistrate. "I think the only thing we can do . . . is to protect the public from him while he's in jail."

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

Fine Program Is Given By RCMP Concert Band

By EUGENE LANG

The RCMP Concert Band of thirty-two fine musicians under the direction of Supt. E. J. Lydall presented a varied program of selections incorporating the classical, modern and march repertoire along with instrumental solos and vocal offerings at their concert held in the BCI auditorium last evening. This band has toured widely throughout Canada and the U.S.A., being noted for its precision and splendid performances wherever they have appeared. Their local appearance was sponsored by the Belleville Jaycees.

Opening with their regimental march, the band members made a striking appearance on stage decked out in their bright red tunics. Their works of a modern tinge consisted of a Theme for Tomorrow by Feller, the Third Dance from the Ballet "Fancy Free" by Leonard Bernstein, a short opus with disjointed rhythms which were cleanly chiselled in their rendition and medleys from "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off", "Mary Poppins" and "The Sound of Music". Program annotator Corporal G. Hampson doubled as vocalist in some of the Broadway show numbers, giving a fine account of his talents, but was drowned out by too much (or too heavy) accompaniments by the band in some portions of his pieces.

A group of about a dozen of the players turned singers for a change of pace and harmonized their voices in a medley of Canadian folk tunes as arranged by Howard Cable.

OLD FAVORITES

Old favorites were present in the appearance on the program of the Largo from Dvorak's "New Spring Symphony", the once hackneyed overture to "Stradella" by von Flotow, and Morton Gould's updating of the old American melody "Dixie", this latter dressed up in present day orchestral garb that certainly gave the various choirs of the band ample opportunity to display their prowess in the handling of their instruments.

Four players of the band were featured as soloists and in each case the individual musician gave a most rewarding account of himself. Cpl. Rutherford tackled the Rondo from Mozart's Third Horn Concerte (K. 447) giving an ebullient reading, but was at times heavily overshadowed by the band. "Happy Go Lucky" proved a tricky number, but flute soloist Cpl. C. Hendricks demonstrated his command of this piece (and his instrument) in his clear articulations. Variations on the familiar "Carnival of Venice" exhibited the digital virtuosity of Cpl. D. Brecknell on the accordion. His playing was so well accomplished that one of the loudest applauses of the entire evening was heard following his solo. And finally Const. G. Edmunds gave a very fine account of his ability on the xylophone in his sprightly handling of the vivacious "On the Track". Staff Sergeant Twemlew shared the podium at times with Superintendent Lydall, both men bringing out the most from the musicians under their respective batons.

It was a shame there was not a larger audience on hand for a delightful evening of concert band music such as this, but this could be blamed upon the weather, the "Macbeth" showing here at a local theatre or even the lack of promoting this R.C.M.P. Band to a greater degree by the local sponsor. Those who did not attend were the losers.

As usual, some latecomers clomped to their seats while the band was playing, a breach of etiquette that would not be tolerated in some concert halls, and should be by now a thing of the past in Belleville, but perhaps will always be with us, because we endure it. Would it not show more respect to the performers to wait for the between - number applause for these late entrances? Time and Patience (if any is left) could slowly eradicate this evil.

Three Trenton Women Fined As Shoplifters

Three married Trenton women, who shoplifted a total of $51 in goods from Riteway Stores outside Belleville, today were fined $25 and costs each after their lawyer pleaded against a jail sentence.

Counsel Don Templeman said two of the women had families and the jobs of all three would be jeopardized by imprisonment.

"I'm inclined to agree with him," said Magistrate Phillip Baker. "I should think there should be some concern in your minds that your children would ever discover what you have done."

The trio were among a number of persons arrested in November and December for petty theft from the big chain store. Hitherto, senstences of one week imprisonment have been meted out to the offenders by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

"You can punish yourselves worse than I can punish you and that's all I can say in this type of case," said Magistrate Baker. "I tell you this though: You're now going to carry with you a criminal record for the rest of your lives. And in the event that you see fit to get into this type of action again you can be sure you will go to jail. There will be no question of it."

744 Admitted To Hospital In January

January statistics for Belleville General Hospital released this week show there were 744 adults and children admitted during the month. The number of births registered at the hospital totalled 105.

The average stay in hospital for adults and children was 10.99 and for newborn 6.08 days.

This Diet Stressing Family Togetherness

DEAR DORIS: I read your column daily and enjoy it, especially comments concerning the problems of our lively, young generation — since I have two gals of my own 13 and 11. Although we don't have serious problems as yet, I am trying to see ahead a little and prevent trouble before it shows its ugly face. I'm hoping by doing this I can keep an open mind and not lose their confidence.

DORIS CLARK

Right now we three ladies in our home have decided to "measure up" to good figure control. I have one daughter who is a little on the chubby side and does not participate in activities which give one a little physical exertion. Therefore, we have programmed 15 minutes a day for these exercises. My 13-year-old, I believe, can use the exercise as well to help her keep a good posture.

The booklet I believe would be appropriate was entitled "Be Figure Perfect." An envelope and ten cents are enclosed. — A HAPPY MOTHER.

DEAR HAPPY: Congratulations to three ladies who are off to a good start! You are going about keeping your girls' confidence the right way. I expect you have the bit about the birds and the bees under control too.

DEAR DORIS: Enclosed please find ten cents for your leaflet "What to do if Arthritis Strikes."

I read your column every day — really find it interesting as well as informative.

Today is my seventy-fifth birthday, still in fairly good health; wipe away the arthritis and I would have excellent health. I still do my shopping, walk up town and pay my monthly water, power and telephone bills, all in all aroung eight blocks one way. Yes, to keep presentable I go up once a week for a fingerwave.

Thanking you for everything. — A CONSTANT READER.

DEAR CONSTANT: Happy Birthday! Keeping on the go is the way to keep going on, when you have arthritis. Hope the leaflet will supply a helpful hint or two.

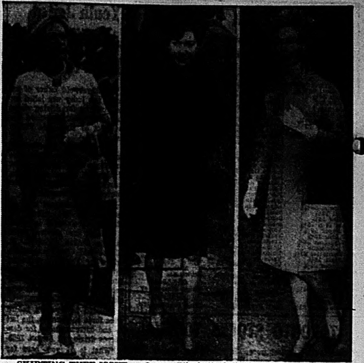
TWEED LADIES AUXILIARY

TWEED — The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Branch of the Ladies Auxiliary of Royal Canadian Legion Branch 428 was held in the Legion hall. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Harold Long. Two new members, Mrs. Donald Meraw and Mrs. Sid Lambert, were initiated by the president. Mrs. Ken Roger's membership application was accepted.

The Auxiliary will hold a card party later in February with Mrs. Yvonne Whalen as convener.

The draw prize was won by Mrs. Margaret Rogers.



SKIRTING THEE ISSUE — Queen Elizabeth, left, should raise her hemline and display a little more of the royal legs, Felicity Green, fashion columnist for the London Daily Mirror, suggests. Even a modest inch, she says. Princess Margaret, centre, has a hemline on the knee, Miss Green points out, while the Duchess of Kent, right, is "very with-it" since her hemline is "really above" the knee. WHA Hears Plans for New Hospital

"Belleville will have a new hospital outstanding in appearance, in quality of accommodation and in efficiency of operation of all facilities for the care of its patients" was the summation of the information given by Mr. John E. Buchan guest speaker at the February meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary held on Tuesday in Education Hall.

Mr. Buchan was introduced by Mrs. M. F. L. Jones, a past-president of the auxiliary, who in her remarks stated that Mr. Buchan is chairman of the building committee of the Board of Governors for the new hospital and has studied all aspects of the hospital during the 15 years that he has served on the Board of Governors of the present hospital.

Mr. Buchan was born in Toronto but spent most of his youth on the west coast. He attended Ridley College and R.M.C. and graduated as a chemical engineer. After the war he came to Belleville and was in charge of building the present Union Carbide plant. He retired as vice-president of the company one year ago and is now spending full time in the planning and building of the new hospital in Belleville.

ENTIRELY NEW

Mr. Buchan in his remarks stressed the fact that this is an entirely new hospital which will be seven stories high in the present planning but can be extended to 14 stories with accommodation for 650 beds. It will be 300 feet long, 200 feet wide, occupy one and one third acres and have 55,000 square feet of floor space.

Mr. Buchan further stated that the south wing of the present hospital will be demolished. All beds will be removed from the central and east wings. The west wing will be retained and will have good first class accommodation. It will have one hundred and thirty beds with seven private rooms. The obstetrical ward and delivery rooms will be on the third floor of the west wing.

The kitchen to service the entire hospital will be the present kitchen and cafeteria.

400 BEDS

When the immediate plans for the hospital are completed there will be approximately 400 beds and it will be rated in the top ten percent of the public hospitals in Ontario. There are only 17 hospitals in Ontario which have over 400 beds.

The landscaping will be attractive and there will be plenty of parking space for visitors. The present entrance will be preserved and will extend along a corridor to the new hospital.

The hospital will be completely air conditioned with everything done for the comfort of the patients and the efficiency of the staff.

Mr. Buchan was thanked for his informative address by Mrs. E. D. Tomsett, staff convener of the Hospital Auxiliary Opportunity Shop.

PRESIDES AT MEET

In the absence of Mrs. W. Dallas, president of the auxiliary the meeting was presided over by Mrs. W. G. Harvey, first vice-president who welcomed new members and visitors.

Mrs. J. R. Blackbourn, secretary presented the minutes of the last meeting followed by reports from the conveners of the various projects of the auxiliary.

The treasurer's report given by Mrs. H. Brown showed a balance on hand of $12,286.60. Memberships are being received for the coming year. A special invitation was extended to the women of Belleville and Hastings County.

Memberships may be obtained from Mrs. W. G. Harvey.

NEED DONATION

Mrs. F. H. Bowler reported for the Opportunity Shop and appealed for merchandise. Household items, dishes, cooking utensils, drapes, curtains, bedding and clothes of all kinds are urgently needed as business is booming. Donations will be picked up if necessary.

The coffee cart has been discontinued for the present. Mrs. A. Duffy and her workers were thanked for the services they had given to this project.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester reported that 2,000 cards had been printed stating the activities and projects of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. These will be distributed to prospective members acquainting them with the work of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Harvey stated that the Samaritan cupboard is well stocked at the present and that the gift cupboard is being moved to the Opportunity Shop.

Mrs. W. D. Leslie, Holiday Treat convener had arranged with the Girl Guides for Valentine favors for the patients.

A pleasant and informative meeting closed with a social hour arranged by Mrs. W. Fox and Mrs. A. E. Miles, social conveners.

Woman Dentist Trims Work To Be With Her Children

TORONTO (CP)—For Maret Truuvert, each day's work ends in a choice between reading fairy tales for her children or dental journals for herself.

Dr. Truuvert is a practising dentist who, when she turns off the drill, opens a door into her own living room where four children are waiting.

Dr. Truuvert left Estonia, where she was born, with her parents in 1944 to live in Stockholm. After graduation from high school she heeded her father's advice to get a good practical education and began dental studies.

It was a good choice. Income tax figures show the average income of dentists in Canada is about $12,500 a year. The Canadian Dental Association says the average income of its members is closer to $15,000.

"It's a bit of a struggle getting started in practice," Dr. Truuvert says. "You have to pay off the debts you build up when you are a student and if you haven't the money to start your own office you have to associate with another dentist for a while."

SHORTENS WORK DAY

Married in Stockholm to Antoni Truuvert, also Estonian-born and now a department manager with Royal Trust Co. in Toronto, Dr. Truuvert had her first daughter, Piret, now 13, before the family moved here. She completed her studies at the University of Toronto in 1956.

About seven years ago the Truuverts bought their west-end home and adapted one wing as a dental office. Before her fourth child, Kaarel, 2½, was born (following Andrea, 9, and Liis, 5) Dr. Truuvert spent 12 hours a day on the office side of the connecting door. Now she trims her schedule to a straight 9 to 5, to permit her more time with the children.

The Truuverts have a farm at Acton, Ont., and spend weekends there.

"We all love cross-country skiing," she says." The children spend their summers on the farm too."

Ann Landers

Sneaking Family Car No Minor Matter

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine is in deep trouble and I'd like to help her out. Linda was 15 in November. She hasn't had driver's education yet but she drives better than most teen-agers.

Several months ago Linda took her mother's car keys and had a set made for herself. She has taken the car out several times but has stayed off the main streets. The police did not see her.

Last week her mother got wind of what she was doing and was wild with anger. Linda's father joined the war on his wife's side.

Linda's punishment is no dates for 90 days and her weekly allowance goes from $5 to $2 during this time. This means Linda will miss out on some of the most important parties of her life. Also she will be like stone broke for three months. I think the punishment is too harsh. Her parents say she must pay dearly for her sneaky behavior. Will you say something to make the punishment lighter? — FRIEND IN NEED.

DEAR LINDA ("Friend" My Eye): Sorry. I wouldn't move a muscle to get the sentence shortened by a day or a dime. I applaud her parents for their refusal to compromise.

DEAR ANN: Our son married a fine girl. Bernice's mother is a nice person (a widow) but, frankly, we have nothing in common. If our son had not married her daughter I wouldn't have one thing to say to her. The woman is a chronic complainer, consumed with self-pity, and a non-stop talker.

Bernice has asked me dozens of times to pick up her mother and take her with us to luncheons and church affairs. I have always obliged. Naturally she sits with us and I drive her home.

Whenever we are invited to Bernice's for dinner her mother is present. I wish it were otherwise but I would never say so.

The problem is that Bernice has put me on the spot three times in the last few weeks by asking me to include her mother when I have had small dinner parties in my home.

I feel our daughter-in-law is foisting the woman on us and I resent it. Am I wrong? I realize this is an explosive situation and I'd like to know how to handle it. — DYNAMITE LADEN.

DEAR DYNA: A blood relationship does not give people the right to exercise unmitigated gall. I'll bet Bernice wouldn't dream of putting her friends on the spot this way — and she should not do it to her mother-in-law either.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I teach in an elementary school where the faculty ranges in ages from 24 to 60. We all call each other by our first names, with the exception of one teacher. Although I call her Geraldine, she insists on calling me Mrs. Olson. Yesterday I asked her why she continues to call me Mrs. Olson even though I have asked her to call me Evelyn. She answered, "I feel more comfortable calling you Mrs. Olson."

Does this mean she wants to maintain a barrier? What should my reaction be? — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: She does not wish to get too chummy and this is her way of letting you know. Drop the Geraldine and call her Mrs. Whateverhernameis. She will soon realize that you have no desire to foist your friendship on her and that she can relax.

FIRST CUP OF TEA is poured at the Belleville Girl Guide Division tea by Mrs. A. Matthews for Guider Mrs. M. Chartrand, right, to serve, while Mrs. R. Taylor, convener, and Mrs. F. Belsey, treasurer, look on approvingly The annual event was held in the new Educational Hall at Holloway Street United Church Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Matthews has been a badge tester for 18 years and has attended every tea in that length of time.

Despite Inclement Weather Large Number Attends Guide, Brownie Tea

Although it was a typical wintry day outside the atmosphere within Holloway Street Church was warm and cheery when the Belleville Division Girl Guide and Brownie tea was held yesterday afternoon. Reminding the many patrons that balmy summer days are ahead was a display depicting Guide and Brownie camping, located in the vestibule.

The annual event this year was convened by Mrs. R. Taylor and was officially opened by the minister of the church, Rev. J. W. Lamb who welcomed the guests and commended those in charge for the work accomplished through the combined efforts of all the districts in the area.

Warmly greeting the guests at the door were Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner and Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Quinte Area International Advisor. Treasurer for the afternoon and in charge of ticket sales was Mrs. F. G. Belsey.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

The focal points of interest in the tea room located in the new Educational Building were the twin tea tables covered with dainty lace cloths and centred with colorful arrangements of blue and golden blooms in silver sprayed driftwood centrepieces. To complete the setting were silver tea services and appropriate serviettes depicting the international aspect of the Guide movement. Each of the guest tables was covered with a colorful Guide blue cloth and centred with a plate of petite sandwiches and dainty cookies divided with a lace doily.

Tea room hostesses were Mrs. T. R. Colden, Commissioner for the South-East District, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, member of Division Committee, Mrs. R. Homewood, Salvation Army Area Commissioner and Mrs. A. Bannon, Commissioner of North-West District. Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were officers of the various Ladies' Auxiliaries and badge testers and these included Mrs. A. Hume, Mrs. W. Monroe, Mrs. A. A. Matthews, Mrs. C. S. Olsen, Mrs. E. M. O'Connor, Mrs. N. W. Hutchinson, Mrs. R. R. Bradshaw, Mrs. C. C. Male, Mrs. B. R. Waters, Mrs. N. A. McMillan, Mrs. T. R. Colden and Mrs. J. E. Kuntze. Tea room convener was Mrs. G. Grenke.

The various bake tables with contributions coming from the four districts were located in the Sunday School rooms and each was laden with a bountiful supply of pies, tarts, cookies, bread and a predominant number of Valentine shaped cakes. The North-West District table was convened by Mrs. N. McMillan and Mrs. L. Wilson; for the North-East District, Mrs. R. Pringle and Mrs. E. M. O'Connor; for the South-East District, Mrs. A. W. Romaine and Mrs. C. J. Bender and the West District, Mrs. W. Hunter and Mrs. B. Waters.

Mrs. Donald Ford was kitchen convener who along with many others contributed to the success of the event.

A candy table with an array of sweets was convened by the members of the Rangers and a nursery for the little tots was in charge of Auxiliary members from the various districts.

THE CHRISTIAN AND MISSIONARY ALLIANCE CHURCH

Recently, the annual meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church was held in the Sanctuary. The pastor, Rev. C. Lawrence Broadhurst opened the meeting. Following a brief time of devotions, reports from all departments of the church were submitted. The pastor's report included a survey of the various ministries of the church. The report also included a brief message. The pastor mentioned that we (the church) must ask ourselves what we are doing to fulfill and execute that which the Psalmist desired. He called to the attention of those present that if the church fails a generation may be lost.

In the statistics it was reported that there were two baby dedications, three marriages, six deaths, a plateua of 214 subscriptions for the official organ of the Society, (The Alliance Witness), and that the church experienced a measure of blessing in an Evangelistic campaign with Mr. Clarence Shrier.

Other reports reflected the growth and outreach of the church. Through the executive of the church, it was noted that Rev. Sackville Palmer, pastor of the church for a period of eight years submitted his resignation and assumed a new pastorate in January. The Rev. C. Lawrence Broadhurst assumed the responsibilities of the church, March 31st. The Executive also noted that a new "manse" was purchased which is located on 16 Hutton Drive.

The missionary treasurer reported an income of $9,000 for both Home and Foreign Missions. This was an all time high for the church. The church family is now looking forward to a banner year in 1966.

Consumers Need Help Women Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada needs a department of consumer affairs, says Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre of Toronto, national president of the Consumers Association of Canada.

"We need someone in the cabinet to speak for consumers," said the head of the 20,000-member association in an address Wednesday to the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club. "Otherwise, our problems just get bogged down in interdepartmental committees."

She said the increasing number of cases of salmonella poisoning caused by bacteria in eggs and poultry showed the need for more bacteriologists in food plants and better government inspection of food products.

Salmonella can cause a disease which in its mild form may be mistaken for flu, but which can be serious especially for small children.

Mrs. Plumptre, who has served as economic adviser to the federal government, and in Toronto and Ottawa welfare societies, said she has seen the desire for more information develop in recent years among Canadians. "They are becoming more discriminating buyers."

Cosmetics For Knees Proposed

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Beauty experts say a woman can't get by just making up her eyes anymore—she needs a knee knack.

With skirts thigh-high, no one looks at her eyes anyway.

"Why stop your beauty treatment at your chin line?" asks Charles of the Ritz, a cosmetics firm. "The knees cry out for attention, too."

Elizabeth Arden, another firm in the beauty business, proposes some knee spanks, 10 knee circles a day and a few old-fashioned knee bends.

TRANSFERS FACE CARE

Charles of the Ritz is ready for the new fashions with a whole beauty treatment for the legs, transferring facial care south of the hemline.

It proposes the use of a facial mask to give the knees proper tone, a lotion to lubricate them and a moisturizer to keep them dewy-fresh.

Then for glamorous evenings, recontoured knees, with a darker shade blushed on to deepen dimples or slim away the knobs and light shades for delicate glow of color.

There is one more suggestion—a glossy iridescent illumination, the pearly stuff more normally found on eyelids.

Fish-eating Days Popular In France

PARIS (Reuters) — The fish seems to be winning the battle of the Frenchman's Tuesday dinner plate.

Following a national campaign launched in Paris and 18 other selected towns in France in October to woo the housewife into serving fish twice a week, officials report a 40-per-cent increase in consumption in those areas.

Aim of the campaign was to establish a second traditional fish-eating day to help expand France's fishing industry and encourage improved fish distribution throughout the country.

The National Television Service promoted a regular series of short movies extolling fish as a delicacy, explaining how to prepare it and, above all, stressing that it would be available in fishmongers' stores fresh from the sea each Tuesday.

CONSUMPTION LOW

The campaign was prompted by figures showing that, although France is among the major fish-producing countries in Europe, its consumption of fish is among the lowest.

The Frenchman was eating an average 25 pounds of fish a year, compared with a Norwegian's 132 pounds.

Organizers of the campaign had to break down the housewives' resistance to fish. Many of them complained it was difficult to cook, it smelled and was messy to clean, and it was not always fresh.

The organizers said three months later consumption generally had increased by 40 per cent on Tuesdays. In three inland cities, Dijon, Nancy and Rheims, they claimed it doubled, and even trebled.

Moreover, they said, the housewife suddenly discovered that fish is cheaper than the ever popular beefsteak.

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal milliner Jerry Yates included all the latest fashion fads associated with the go-go trend in his spring collection previewed Wednesday.

Unlike Irene of Montreal, the other main supplier of millinery for the city's major fashion previews, Mr. Yates did not show any fussy feminine headpieces, except perhaps for a demure daisy bonnet.

But he did consider the modern sophisticate. She could choose from a variety of low-crowned, floppy-brimmed hats, tailored and dashing. Some could be turned up and worn as Breton sailors.

This style also came in white leather. Mr. Yates says leather is becoming more important than suede and has the added advantage of being somewhat weather-proof.

Another style came in lemon straw with a printed chiffon scarf that tied loosely under the chin and was thrown back over the shoulders. Worn alone, it looked like an evening hood.

More conventional were the silk shantung turbans. One in white was called the tulip turban and the multi-sectioned cover-all was attached to an adjustable band.

HATS THAT CRUSH

The youthful spirit dominated the showing. Wide use was made of vinyl fashion's current fabric favorite. Shiny vinyl hats with low but transparent front visors ideal for rain were worn with opish detailed jackets and coats of the same material. Spats completed the effect.

For those who lose sunglasses, Mr. Yates created a James Bond fedora in navy and purple check, complete with above-the-brim loops for the glasses.

Helmets were plentiful. Some had round crowns but framed the face with square lines and covered the back of the neck. Others looked to the increasingly popular bathing cap silhouette.

Cotton granny prints also made the hat scene.

Colors were used liberally and in combination for op-art jockey hats of spots and stripes. Some had the Nureyev look and one came in turquoise, pink and charcoal.

The show concluded with a group of four "poor boy" hats and sweaters in blue, pink, orange and yellow stripes. The helmet and tam styles were worn by models with hipsters and short, short shirts worn with white textured nylons.

Mother's Helper

IN THE EXCITEMENT of baby's being born, be sure and keep some mementos that will some day be treasured. In a small wooden box, store these things: his hospital identification bracelet, a lock of hair (if any!) notes or wires from his grandparents or godparents, and a few lines of your own first reactions and impressions. These gems will be loved some day! Perhaps when HIS firstborn comes along. (Thanks to Mrs. Ralph Hiller, Salina, Kansas).

OFT IN THE STILLY NIGHT

Dear Susanna: Due to the fact that I am a bit of an insomniac, and often get up in the middle of the night to wander about and check on things, I have devised a unique method for locating my bedroom slippers.

I cut a pair of designs out of a strip of luminous orange safety tape (that glows in the dark) and stick them to the outside of my slippers, towards the front. Thus, I can locate them without turning on the light.

In fact, my feet are able to strike home almost as soon as they hit the floor, as the slippers are not only apparent, but the position of the tape indicates which one is for the left or right foot. — Molly Mack

Hay-ride Enjoyed by Alouette Club

Saturday night, the French Alouette Club for Belleville and region celebrated Valentine's day.

The proposed sleigh-ride had to be replaced by a hay-ride in the country due to the previous day's mild weather. The snow was missing but the good spirits were not. Forty members and friends gathered for the ride in the brisk air of the country roads.

In St. Joseph's parish hall, other members waited for the riders to come back and continue the party. Dances and plays went on for the rest of the evening, giving everyone an opportunity to win prizes. At first, the chance favored Mrs. George Bastien who was named "Valentine" for the occasion with Mr. Bastien, and was awarded the first prize. Other winners were: Mrs. Vincent Leguerrier for the "musical chair" and Mrs. Bastien and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Duchesne for the dances.

The president, Mr. J. A. C. Berube, thanked all for making the event a success. Before parting, members enjoyed a substantial lunch prepared by the ladies of the club under the direction of Mrs. Jacqueline Hultquist and Mrs. Adele Berube.

FLANKED STEAK, BAKED POTATOES

At a recent Hi-C church dinner one of the leader-mothers baked 100 potatoes wrapped in foil at 200 deg. Fahr. for 6 hours. When they reached the tables they were hot and popular.

In the same week I received a letter carefully typed on a beautiful letterhead of bond paper giving me a recipe for baked flank steak with instructions to bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours.

I made a complete oven dinner by low slow baking at the same time the flank steak and foil-wrapped potatoes and the ease with which it was done left a sort of time-vacuum on my hands.

My thanks go to Ellen S. for this flank steak idea.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

SUNDAY

Baked Flank Steak with Onions (see Thurs.); Baked Potatoes in Foil (see Thurs.); Broccoli; Shredded Bibb and Iceburg Lettuce with Thousand-Island Dressing; Raisin Rice Custard Pudding; Tea.

FLANK STEAK AND BAKED POTATO DINNER (serves 4):

One 1¼ to 1½-pound flank steak (scored — see below), ¼ cup cooking sherry (or 2 tablespoons each stout and port), 1 tablespoon flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 medium cooking onions sliced ⅛" thick.

Score the flank steak diagonally, ¼" deep on both sides, in parallel cuts, ¾" apart, all over, through long muscle strands to allow marinade to penetrate.

In a shallow glass or porcelain or corningware or stainless steel baking dish that fits it marinate the flank steak in the sherry (or port and stout) in the refrigerator covered for 3 days, turning it 3 times. (Wine is a tenderizer.)

Four hours before mealtime sprinkle both sides of marinated steak with mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Return to marinade. Cover completely with thinly sliced onion, put on lid and bake at 225 deg. Fahr. for 4 hours.

Also put in oven at the same time

POTATOES BAKED IN FOIL:

Scrub 4 medium-large potatoes until perfectly clean. Tear off 4 squares of foil and butter the dull side at centre and wrap up the potatoes as you would wrap a baby in a blanket. Bake at the same time as flank steak at 225 deg. Fahr. for 4 hours.

NOTE:

This method of baking potatoes does not give a crisp outer skin but it does make it tender and butter-flavored. Make deep cross-slits through foil and potato skin, squeeze, then drop a piece of butter in each.

THE SIZE OF THINGS TO COME — Michael Johnston, director of the testing program for the Consumers Association of Canada, works on his latest project, a survey of women's garment sizes. One hitch in his survey, he says,a is the reluctance of many women to reveal their hip measurements, even anonymously. One of the things the survey indicates is that women will usually take a smaller size in an expensive dress than in a cheaper dress or sports clothes. (CP Photo)

Ex-Tommy With Oxford Degree Canadain Consumers' Watchdog

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Before they buy a stove, paper towels or a spool of thread, chances are 20,000 Canadian women consult the words of Michael Johnston, a blue-eyed, boyish Englishman.

The women are members of the Consumers Association of Canada. Mr. Johnston is editor of their bi-monthly bulletin, and director of the association's testing program which puts everything from homogenized milk to hair dryers through independent laboratory tests.

His latest project is a survey of women's garment sizes.

"It's amazing how many women can't bring themselves to reveal their hip measurements, even anonymously," he says. "One woman modestly gave her vital statstics fully clothed. And I got into a tremendous argument about go-go girls with one middle-aged lady."

Although the survey is still being processed, Mr. Johnston says it is already evident that price and type of garment determine the size a woman will need.

SEW THEIR OWN

"She will usually take a smaller size in an expensive dress than she will in a cheaper dress or sports clothes. The problem is apparently driving more and more women to sew their own clothes."

Before he took up the consumers' crusade last August, Mr. Johnston had served in the British army at Trieste, taken a modern language degree at Oxford, and worked for a hemp manufacturing firm in Calcutta, India.

His fiancee travelled to Calcutta for their marriage, and they returned to London, where he joined one of England's largest chemical companies. He managed distribution, then moved into sales control and planning.

Two years ago, he and his wife emigrated to Toronto, where he worked for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, managing five small trade associations. "One of them was the Ontario Pickle, Olive, Peanut Butter and Mustard Manufacturers."

At the Consumers' Association, articles are selected for testing because members have criticized them, or because they are new on the market.

TESTS HAVE PURPOSE

"But the important thing is to know what you are testing for," says Mr. Johnston. "For instance, if we tested electric toothbrushes, it would be no good finding out that the motor worked beautifully if the brush was damaging teeth."

The asociation wants to help buyers elect the best buy from products that are basically the same.

"Often they are practically identical, except for the advertising. But it's no use taking a tilt at ads. Good ones tell you about the product, and help you enjoy using it. Bad ones are just a lot of irrational puff that add to the production costs without being effective."

He finds manufacturers helpful when their product is under investigation. The biggest problem is with the consumers — do they really want to get value for money, and how much time and effort are they willing to put into the search?

"We're planning a survey on milk, including a short examination of the dairy industry. A lot of people seem to think that milk just comes in bottles."

Crisis Looms

within the 30-day period, the act says "the House of Commons shall within the first 15 days next after the expiration of that period that the House of Commons is sitting take up the motion and consider the matter of the objections. . . ."

Despite the words "that the House of Commons is sitting," there is disagreement among lawyers on Parliament Hill whether the Commons must take up the matter within 15 calendar days or within 15 sitting days.

'CONSIDER' MEANS WHAT?

The lawyers are also trying to determine what "consider" means. Does it mean MPs may only talk about their objections and let the reports go back to the commission automatically? Or is there to be a vote on a motion containing recommendations to the commissions?

Since the word objection is used in the singular—and many objections have been filed—there is doubt whether all objections must be considered within the 15 - day period or whether there are to be up to 15 debating days for each objection.

And may one objection be debated for 14 days, with the remainder packed into one?

The Commons Speaker can probably settle some of the issues if the House leaders fail to agree. But only inter-party negotiations are likely to settle the issues the act does not mention.

One clause in the act may prompt MPs to decide that a lengthy debate is futile: After the reports are considered, the commission decisions are final; Parliament may not change anything.

The redistribution is aimed at getting a closer balance among riding populations. Since the last redistribution in 1952 Canada's population has grown by millions and a large proportion of it now resides in urban areas. This has left big differences in population between some rural and urban ridings.

Anti-China Alliance Claim Of Editorial

HONG KONG (AP) —China has told its armed forces that the United States, with the co-operation of the Soviet Union, Japan and India, is "setting up a grand anti-China alliance."

"We welcome an American invasion of China; the sooner the better and the more the merrier," said an editorial in the Liberation Army Daily. It was reprinted Wednesday in parts by the Hong Kong Chinese Communist papers, Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po.

"The United States with a secret understanding from new leaders of the Soviet, Union is moving its troops from Europe to the East," the editorial said.

"The United States is moving its tactical headquarters in Japan from Hokkaido near the Soviet Union to Honshu near China.

"It forced the Japanese government to enter a treaty with the puppet government of South Korea.

"Together with the Soviet Union, the United States has encouraged the Indian Army to invade repeatedly China's border."

Judge Anderson Of Belleville To Head Board

TORONTO (CP)—A wage dispute between the provincial government and the Civil Service Association of Ontario is to be settled by an arbitration board.

Negotiations for wage increases broke down Wednesday and the association called for compulsory arbitration.

The arbitration board chairman will be Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville. The association and the government each will appoint one member.

W. J. Foster, association president, said discussions broke down over the first of the 700 wage categories under negotiation this year: The manual workers and laborers, mostly in the highways and lands and forests departments.

About 2,000 civil servants will be affected by the arbitration board's decision.

Under procedures adopted three years ago, salaries are negotiated by a joint council of deputy ministers and representatives of the civil servants.

Mr. Foster said wages are supposed to be kept in line with those paid by private industry but many salaries are between 40 and 60 cents an hour lower.

He said he thought the government would be anxious to settle the issue swiftly because it is facing a problem of recruiting and holding workers because of wage disparity.

Nielsen Says Old Age Pension To Be Boosted

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for the Yukon, said here Wednesday the Old Age Pension will soon be increased to $100 a person through a federal - provincial agreement.

Negotiations for such an agreement will begin "in the near future if they are not already under way," he told the Prince Edward - Lennox Progressive Conservative Association.

The present pension is $75 a month.

Mr. Nielsen was critical of both the Liberal government and the Canadian people for what he called a "lack of appreciation" of the value of northern Canada. The government can't decide how the north should be developed, he said, and each cabinet minister has his own program.

"Laing (Indian and Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing) would do it with Russian scientists; Martin (Foreign Affairs Minister Paul Martin) with the youth corps; and Matheson (John Matheson, MP for Leeds and parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson) with convicts," he said.

Claims of Prince Entirely False Says Principal

OTTAWA (CP) — A 17-year-old Ethiopian prince has become a drop-out from staid old Ashbury College here, charging discrimination and ill treatment.

The charges were denied emphatically Wednesday by both the school's headmaster and the prince's Canadian guardian, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson.

They spoke of the youth's desire to be treated like the prince he is, some disciplinary difficulties, and the troubles he had managing his pocket money while all his school expenses were paid.

Prince Michael Makonnen, grandson of Emperor Haile Selassie, quit the school at Christmas after more than two years there, saying he was "tired of being a beggar."

Ashbury College is a private boys' school, fashioned after England's most exclusive schools.

District Men Pay Fines For Gambling

PICTON (Staff) — Eight of the nine Picton and district men, who were charged following a weekend raid on January 24 by the O.P.P. Anti-Gambling Squad appeared in Magistrate's Court here Wednesday. All but one man, who is in Florida, were fined. Those men charged as found-ins were fined each $25 while Ross Scott, who was charged with keeping a common gaming house was fined $200 and costs.

Also appearing in court were Dennis Pope, 19, who was fined $150 and costs for impaired driving and middle-aged Norman Aitken who was given 30 [illegible] on a drunk driving charge. Magistrate P. E. D. Baker of Kingston presided.

W. McCabe Heads Liberals For 2nd Term

PICTON (Staff) — The new officers of the Prince Edward Liberal Association were elected at a meeting held Wednesday night at Queen Elizabeth School in Picton.

Elected president for the second term was Wilfrid McCabe of R. R. 3 Napanee; 1st vice-president Dr. Lionel Do[illegible] of Picton; 2nd vice-pres[illegible] Allen Empy from Napanee; secretary, reinstated, is Kenneth Casey of Amherstview and John Munro of Napanee is treasurer.

In spite of poor weather about 100 persons turned out for the elections, and to hear the guest speaker for the evening, Robert Temple of Belleville.

WANTS OMBUDSMAN

Mr. Temple called for creation of a federal department of ombudsman to ensure individual rights.

The ombudsman should be responsible, not to the government, but directly to parliament.

Sufficient government funds should be made avaliable to the department for adequate staff agencies in every major Canadian city.

Staff personnel would make periodic trips through their regions to advise citizens of their individual rights and of the assistance that various government departments could make available to them.

It was insufficient to merely correct injustices as they arise, said Mr. Temple. It was also vitally important that the individual citizen be made aware of his rights in an ever-growing complex society.

AID CRIME VICTIMS

Mr. Temple also called for creation of a fund to compensate victims of crime.

Many years ago a Workman's Compensation Board was organized in Ontario to assist those workmen—usually family breadwinners — who are disabled on the job.

"We also created some years ago in Ontario an Unsati[illegible] Judgment Fund to compensate victims of negligence on the highways," he said. "The day is coming when we must afford like protection to the victims of criminal acts, deprived through no fault of their own of their life savings and their physical well-being."

Bombs Kill 36 Passengers On Assam Train

NEW DELHI (AP)—Two time bombs exploded in a third-class coach on the Assam mail express in northeast India Wednesday night, killing 36 passengers and injuring 53, Railways Minister Ram Subhag Singh told Parliament.

Reports from the area blamed rebellious Naga tribesmen.

Singh said one bomb went off in the rear compartment of the coach, blowing the roof off the car and halting the train. As the dead and injured were still being removed, a second bomb exploded in the front compartment of the coach and caused more casualties.

Young People Enjoy Weekend Of Fellowship

NAPANEE — Under the sponsorship of Miss Lily Jean Rombough and Keith Brown, a number of students from the NDSS spent an enjoyable weekend at Camp Iawahin Inter-school Christian Fellowship. The weekend was a well-balanced program of worship, Bible study and fun.

Friday evening a hootenany gave the schools a chance to sing together and Saturday there was much free time for sports, skiing, skating, broom-ball and volley ball. The Rev. Ted Hubert of Brockville spoke to the young people both afternoon and evening, and they brke up into groups for discussion, led by the sponsors. Sunay Keith Brown was in charge of the church services. Miss Rombough, who is an accomplished musician, led much of the singing.

BOYS OUTNUMBER GIRLS

Boys have a tendency to shy away from religious gatherings but it was not so in this case-Miss Rombough was pleasantly surprised to find that the boys outnumbered the girls. In all there were 29 boys and 23 girls. Young people of all denominations came from five school districts, the Loyalist Collegiate in Kingston, the Sydenham High School, the Ernestown High School, the Tamark district and the Napanee District Secondary School.

Attending from NDSS were: Judy Dale, Bonnie Kelly, David Hutchinson, Greg Wager and Leslie Humphries, all of Napanee; Cameron, Allan, and Paul Salsbury from Camden East; Edward Fluke from Newburgh and Howard Stover from Yarker.

Keith Brown is now studying theology at Queen's University and is very active in young peoples' work when home for the weekend. Miss Rombough is a member of the staff of the NDSS and was musical director for "The Mikado" which the school produced so successfully not long ago. She feels that such projects are valuable in many ways especially in bringing students of different grades together, as in "The Mikado". Several of the members of the chorus were on the weekend, and Judy Dale was a member of the cast. They seemed to be a team which did much to make the weekend a success for everyone, she said.

SEEK GOWNS

SAIGON (Reuters)—U.S. military commanders here have ordered a search throughout South Viet Nam for $7,000 worth of Paris gowns belonging to American actress Carroll Baker. The gowns disappeared late in December while Miss Baker was on a 12-day tour of American bases here as the guest star of comedian Bob Hope's Christmas show.

Activities Continue Despite Storm

NAPANEE — Wednesday's bad weather brought disappointment to a lot of people of this district.

The ladies of St. Mary's Anglican Church have been hoping for nice weather for their annual turkey supper. However, the Evening Guild has probably braced itself for just such conditions, as it is not the first time the weatherman has been unkind to them for this annual event.

Morven United Church would be disappointed also. The UCW carried out their plans for their annual Valentine Tea, snow and all.

But in spite of bad driving conditions, at 6.00 p.m. the Napanee OPP reported only one minor accident in the last 24 hours.

U.C.W. Meetings

NAPANEE—The meeting of Unit 4 of Trinity UCW Tuesday afternoon had two highlights. The speaker, Mrs. Jim Green, home on furlough for the year, told something of her work as a missionary in Africa; and Mrs. Werk Poole, the hostess, had arranged for four of her 1st Napanee Brownie group to serve refreshments, as one of the projects for gaining their Golden Hand award.

Mrs. Poole took charge of the devotional period, and was assisted by Mrs. Lloyd Woolsey and Mrs. Paul Anderson. After the usual routine business, plans were made for the March meeting, when the minister, the Rev. Irvine Johnston, will discuss with them the new study book, "Jesus Christ and the Christian Life". Ladies of the other two afternoon units will be invited to participate.

Mrs. Green has a rich store of knowledge of life in Tanzania, where she and her husband had worked for several years. Although she has spoken in town to women's organizations several times, she always has a different message to give. She also displayed some of the articles of native manufacture.

Serving toast and tea were Kathy Dickerson, Dougal Boone, Carol Wartman and Cindy Johnston. They were perfect little hostesses and busy ones as there were 27 women to be looked after. The unit members were loud in their praises of the ease and correctness with which the girls looked after their wants.

This a fairly regular event in the Poole household, as Mrs. Poole has her unit and also a VON meeting each year, and takes this opportunity to have some of her Brownies take the "tea and toast" test.

Leaders of the unit are Mrs. J. D. Mayhew and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson.

EXTEND AIRLIFT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's participation in the oil airlift to Zambia will be extended until the end of April, External Affairs Minister Martin announced Wednesday. However, the number of RCAF planes in the lift will be reduced to two from four March 1 "because the air transport resources of the RCAF will be heavily taxed in meeting prior commitments."

Rotarians Hosts at Banquet To Agricultural Federation

NAPANEE — Rev. Dr. Arthur Thompson of St. John's Anglican Church in Kingston was the speaker at the annual Rotary Club rural-urban banquet Tuesday evening. The ladies of Hawley Church U.C.W. prepared and served a bounteous repast to over 250 Rotarians, their ladies and their guests.

The Hastings Junior Farmers' trio from Madoc furnished entertainment for the evening. They were introduced by Barton MacLean, president of the local Federation of Agriculture. Beverley Ketcheson, Katherine Burnside and Marilyn Moorcroft added much to the pleasure of the evening.

Jesse MacLean acted as chairman and together with Garnet Mills and Dr. Myron Mills was responsible for arrangements for the banquet.

Dr. Thompson, born and educated in the city, found himself living in the country for the first time when he became a minister to rural churches. He found the people of the farming community different from the people he had known in the city. He said they had a warmth and a sincerity which their urban brothers too frequently lacked. They shrugged off pretence and were right down to earth, he added.

Dr. Thompson was introduced by the Rev. Canon W. L. Simmons, and was thanked by Dr. Ronald MacPherson, who presented him with a gift, the work of the Gibbard Furniture Shops.

At the head table were: Mayor Lorne Smart, who brought greetings from the town and Mrs. Smart; Warden Gordon Plotz; the members of the committee in charge, Jesse MacLean, Garnet Mills and Dr. Myron Mills, together with their wives; Rotary President Donald Hogarth and Mrs. Hogarth; vice-president Robert Wartman and Mrs. Wartman; secretary Gordon MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor; the Rev. Canon W. L. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sexsmith; the speaker, Rev. Dr. Arthur Thompson; Barton MacLean, president of the Federation of Agriculture, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Steinman, and Kenneth Christian.

The event was planned as a return for the hospitality of the Federation of Agriculture, which entertains the Rotarians each summer at a chicken barbecue.

Income Tax Tips

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By D. W. DAVIES, C.A.

REPAIR AND APPLIANCE SERVICE MEN

Expenses allowable to repair and service employees will depend entirely on their employment contractor agreement with their employer. Should the employer supply the vehicle and pay all the expenses connected therewith, then the employee would have no claim at all except the cost of a meal if he was away for over 12 hours.

On the other hand, if the employee is required to supply his own car and pay all the costs of its operation then he may deduct all his car expenses applicable to the extent it is used to earn his income. When the taxpayer is entitled to car expenses, he may also claim depreciation on the car at 30 per cent of the car's value when first used for business; this also applies to the portion of its use to earn the income.

Expenses may not be claimed on a mileage basis. It is the actual outlay that is deductible. When a vehicle is used partly for business and partly for pleasure, it is up to the taxpayer to determine what percentage of the car's operation in the year was for business. If the car was used 50 per cent for business then the taxpayer may claim one half of the cost of operating the car, including one half of the depreciation. He should submit some proof by way of receipts to verify any claim he may make.

I receive a number of letters each year from repair and service men, asking if the cost of tools or depreciation on them may be claimed as a deduction. The answer is always no. There is no provision in the Income Tax Act whereby an employee can be allowed a deduction of this nature.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I am a television service man. Occasionally I sell a new set and my employer pays me a bonus. Is this bonus income?

Answer: Yes. It must be added to your income.

Question 2: I am an appliance service man. I have the use of my employer's staton wagon on weekends. $100 is shown on my T4 slip for this use. Must I add this in?

Answer: Yes. It is considered a taxable benefit.

U.S. Picks New American Boss Of Joint Body on Water Uses

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The International Joint Commission, a unique instrument for handling Canada - United States water problems, has a new American boss.

Matthew E. Welch, 53, former Indiana governor and a loyal Democrat, was named to the $27,000-a-year job of American chairman by President Johnson, filling a vacancy existing for 1½ years. He succeeded Teno Roncalio.

Welch has just finished his first session of the IJC, at Montreal Jan. 17-18, and his first test in harness with his Canadian opposite number, Arnold Heeney.

He is no stranger to the commission itself, which grew out of the Canada-U.S. boundary waters treaty of 1909 and which has become increasingly important as water develops into a major factor in continental affairs.

Some Canadians and Americans believe water will be the most important item in Canada-U.S. relations before long and some are saying the IJC should be expanded in size and range of duties to keep pace. Air pollution along the boundary has become a major responsibility too in the Great Lakes sector.

PREVIOUS JOB HELPS

Welch as governor of Indiana from 1961 to 1965 served one of the eight U.S. Great Lakes states and, he says, the one with the most concentrated lake shore line of them all.

Indiana, heavily industrialized, claims to have the largest concentration of the steel industry in the U.S., among other things.

Welch attended the conference on the Great Lakes called in 1964 by Premier Robarts of Ontario. He has attended IJC sessions and other meetings on water, at Montreal and elsewhere, met Premier Lesage of Quebec and now is in the thick of the commission's project to study the problem of declining Great Lakes levels.

"The problems of the Great Lakes are so great, and the lakes are so important to the Canadians and Americans living around them, that solutions cannot wait," says Welch.

In an interview he called the current studies "probably the most important reference to the IJC yet by Ottawa and Washington," then added: "Well, perhaps I shouldn't talk at such an early stage. The Columbia River was important too."

Welch was referring to the intensive work done by the commission over a period of years before actual negotiations began on co-operative Canada-U.S. control of the western river to provide hydro and flood-control benefits in each country.

RESEMBLES HEENEY

Welch is a distinguished-looking man, not unlike counterpart Arnold Heeney in general appearance. He is slim, of medium height, with neat iron-grey hair, dark eyes, regular features, high forehead and long face.

He handles himself with the deliberation and polish of a politician who knows how the world wags but says flatly that "awareness of water and pollution problems is unprecedented today."

Part of it is due in this country to moves by President Johnson, he suggests. But it is also due to the rising evidence of how vital water is and how far man has gone—especially in the Great Lakes area where one of every eight of the 220,000,000 North Americans live—toward fouling his own nest.

One suggestion for expanded use of the International Joint Commission came last year from Canadian chairman Heeney, twice Canada's ambassador in Washington and successor to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton on the commission.

PREPARED REPORT

Heeney and Livingston Merchant, twice U.S. ambassador in Ottawa, at the request of Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson looked at ways to smooth solutions of Canada-U.S. problems.

One recommendation was for joint examination of the "wisdom and feasibility" of some extensions of IJC duties and responsibility.

Fresh Dominican Uprisings Show Much Determination Against Military Leaders

By BORIS MISKEW

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The renewed rioting in the Dominican Republic indicates the determination of the population to prevent a right-wing military dictatorship from regaining control of the Caribbean nation.

The new disturbances came after right-wing military leaders refused to follow left-wing officers into government-imposed exile in diplomatic assignments abroad.

The foreign assignments was provisional President Hector Garcia - Godoy's formula for easing tensions in the near-bankrupt land pending nationwide elections next June. Ordered into virtual exile were 34 top military leaders of both sides in last year's civil war.

STUDENTS DEMONSTRATE

It was only after student demonstrations protested the refusal by right-wing military officers to leave the country that Commodore Francisco Rivera Caminero relinquished command of the Dominican armed forces and headed for a diplomatic post in Washington.

Caminero's agreement to leave Santo Domingo came only after a compromise was reached with Garcia-Godoy under which both the army and air force chiefs remained in the country.

But the population still was dissatisfied because it felt a genuine reshuffling of the military leadership ordered by the provisional president had not taken place—as had been expected—to assure rebel elements that the June elections would be above suspicion.

The student demonstrations resulted in deaths and injuries at the hands of the police. They were followed by a general strike which is gravely affecting the republic's failing economy, and by terrorist attacks on U.S. Army personnel stationed in the Dominican Republic as part of the force of the Org.nization of American States.

SET UP DOWNTOWN

After the April 24 uprising which ousted the civilian junta headed by Donald Reid Cabral, Caamano and his rebel followers set themselves up in a sector of downtown Santo Domingo with the aim of restoring power to former president Juan Bosch.

Bosch, the first freely-elected president after the assassination of dictator Rafael Trujillo, was thrown out of office by military leaders in September, 1963, after seven months as president.

Caamano had warned after his arrival in London of more trouble in the Dominican Republic if regular army officers in Santo Domingo refused to follow his lead and accept transfers abroad.

Had his warning been heeded, perhaps relative calm would have prevailed in the Caribbean country at least until the June elections, which now appear to be doomed unless stability is soon restored.

Eric C. Naylor Given Degree By University

Eric C. Naylor, District Inspector of the legal enforcement branch, Unemployment Insurance Commission of Canada, has been honored with the degree of Doctor of Laws by The Free Protestant Episcopal University of London, England. The award was recommended by the rector, the Most Rev. Charles Dennis Boltwood, D.D., LL.D., and unanimously approved by the faculty council of the senate.

The citation states that "the outstanding status and professional qualifications of Eric C. Naylor have been submitted to us as worthy achievements in upholding the ideals of Christian social and moral principles and furtherance of goodwill among men of all races; whereby the principles and ideals of our university are upheld, and to show our appreciation and to honor his meritorious work do confer upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws honoris causa."

Dr. Naylor is well known in this city. He was educated in the public schools and Collegiate Institute here and subsequently completed many courses in higher education. A few years ago he was elected a life-time Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society in recognition of his achievements in geographical science and related interests. He is also a member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, another professional, distinguished group. He has travelled to many countries of the world and spent much time in research.

A composer of music, Dr. Naylor has had a number of hymns published. He took a very active part in youth work and was president of the Interdenominational Christian Youth Fellowship here a number of years ago. Some monster rallies were held under his leadership with world figures Dr. Oswald J. Smith and Jack Wyrtzen as guest speakers.

Joining the government service in Belleville twenty-four years ago he was a supervisor in the office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission in its various departments here. Later he was promoted to the legal enforcement branch and at present is attached to the Toronto Regional Office in the position of District Inspector for the Belleville district.

Identify Flu Bug

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The virus that has kept 250,000 Los Angeles children out of school has been identified by the California department of health as Asian flu. The bug causes headaches and stomach upsets more intense than ordinary flu. It first came to California in 1957.

Request Jail

SINGAPORE (AP)—Two Indonesians asked a Singapore court Wednesday to jail them permanently so they could escape from their government. The two were captured trying to reach Singapore in a sampan from the nearby Indonesian Riau Islands. They told the court they had escaped after being jailed on charges of spying for Malaysia. They were sentenced to three-months for illegal entry.

Girls at School in Indiana Stage Axe-swinging Riots

CLERMONT, Ind. (AP) — Rioting flared twice at the Indiana girls school Wednesday as shrieking, axe - swinging teen-agers stormed through the school in pitched battles with police.

Calm was restored for a time, but erupted again as about 20 girls—who were not locked in their cottages after an earlier riot—roamed over the grounds, armed with scissors, axes, clubs and knives.

One group stole a police car, but quickly abandoned it when police shot out the tires.

Some 100 Indiana state police and Marion County sheriff's officers swarmed onto the school grounds for the second time after dark.

The 20 girls who staged the second rampage scattered over the grounds, screaming and attempting to persuade some of the 180 other girls who remained in their cottages to join them.

The school is a correctional institution five miles west of Indianapolis.

Six girls with arm and leg cuts received in the afternoon disorder were treated in hospital. None was severely hurt.

The trouble started, authorities said, when a girl was reported to have attacked principal Coreen Walker in a corridor and other inmates, witnessing the struggle, began breaking furniture and windows. They ran yelling into the open grounds of the school.

Some girls complained of house mothers' treatment and other disciplinary acts.

Wilson May Call Election Late in March

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Faced with increasing pressure to announce a general election, Prime Minister Wilson is reported toying with the idea of calling a snap vote soon after he completes his Moscow trip next week.

Wilson has remained silent though political observers noted he has done nothing to dispel rising speculation of an early vote while his aides quietly conceded that a March or April ballot is entirely possible.

A number of prominent Labor party members have openly pleaded for an early vote arguing that Wilson should take full advantage of his current high tide of national popularity.

But it took the mass-circulation Daily Mirror to push election fever to a high pitch with a sweeping front-page editorial Wednesday pleading with Wilson to name the election date soon after he returns from his Feb. 21-24 Moscow trip.

Byelections have shown a general vote swing towards Labor, despite tough budgets, high taxation and economic restrictions. But Wilson's current majority of four in the 630-seat Commons is no more than his general election margin last October.

"The truth is," said The Mirror, "that until Britain has a government with a bigger majority there will still be too much governmental exhortation and too little governmental action."

Prospect of a spring election provides no balm for gloomy Conservatives whose leader, Edward Heath, finds his Opposition party split on vital issues and his own leadership and popularity under question.

R.C. Teachers In Hull Area Back in Schools

HULL, Que. (CP) — Some 7,500 Hull and district high school students, out of school since Jan. 5 when their teachers struck for better pay and working conditions return to their 35 Roman Catholic schools today.

A two-year collective agreement with the Hull regional school board was signed in Quebec City Wednesday. The agreement is retroactive to July 1.

Students in all grades, interviewed Wednesday, said they are worried about their school work.

Some estimated that as many as one-quarter of their number have decided they can't make up the lost time and have taken jobs.

"The teachers have made their point, and good for them," one student said. "But now it will be us that get it in the neck."

Tuesday, 123 teachers of the Papineau regional school board agreed to resume teaching more than 2,000 pupils on Thursday. They had been on strike since Jan. 10.

The new Hull contract provides for seven salary categories with maximums ranging from $4,000 to $9,750, depending on academic qualifications.

TO GET EQUITY

Women will be paid as much as men starting next year. For the current year the school board went half way in bringing women's salaries level with the men's.

The only thing left to be negotiated now is how to make up for lost classroom time.

The Hull board has suggested a 10-day recovery program, taking in part of the Easter holidays, vacations in May and possibly Saturdays.

The Papineau agreement will give the female teachers 40 per cent of the difference with male teachers' salaries this year. The remaining 60 per cent will be added next year.

Male teachers will receive an average increase of $300 a year.

Hedy Remanded

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Hedy Lamarr pleaded not guilty through her lawyer Wednesday to a charge of petty theft and was ordered to stand trial April 13 in municipal court. The 51-year-old actress is accused of shoplifting $86 worth of merchandise from a department store last Jan. 27.

One Guard's Rifle Didn't Fire, One Didn't Shoot in Time To Prevent Prison Break

KINGSTON (CP) — Warden Fred Smith said Wednesday that plans to prevent a breakout from nearby Collin's Bay penitentiary last week went awry when one guard's rifle didn't fire and another guard didn't shoot in time.

Three of the four prisoners who escaped have been charged with rape and attempted murder. They were recaptured Saturday. The fourth man was caught shortly after the escape.

John Eaton, 25, of Toronto, Thomas Brydges, 18, of Elmira, Harold Dankwardt, 20, of Kitchener, and Thomas Fuhrman, 19, of Kitchener, raced to freedom through the prison gate last Wednesday in a prison truck.

Mr. Smith said an armed guard who was staked out in a surveillance car off the penitentiary driveway failed to fire at the fleeing truck immediately. He got out and held up his hand like a policeman stopping traffic, then fired his .38-calibre revolver at the truck's tires.

But he said the chief factor in the escape was excess grease on a tower guard's rifle. This prevented firing of two cartridges. The weapon fired on the third attempt but by then the prisoners had escaped, Mr. Smith said.

Fuhrman was captured by Kingston police about four hours after the breakout and the others were captured Saturday in St. Catharines. Police followed reports of stolen cars and break-ins. The three have been charged with the rape of a Scarborough woman and the attempted murder of a St. Catharines detective.

Warden Smith said the prison staff knew an escape was planned but "we didn't know which prisoners would be involved."

He said the .303-calibre rifle used by a tower guard did not have protective grease wiped sufficiently from its bolt and firing pin," the warden said.

Mr. Smith did not name the officers involved. But he said there was a serious oversight in not preparing the guard's rifle for effective use.

Mr. Smith said Eaton, who drove the escape truck, either took the vehicle's keys from a key board in the workshops or had them given him by another prisoner. He said 20 prisoners drive trucks in the medium-security prison.

A 75-hour manhunt ended Saturday when Eaton, Brydges and Dankwardt were captured at a roadblock at St. Catharines.

Warden Smith was asked Wednesday what he thought the two prison guards should have done to prevent the escape. He replied that the commissioner of penitentiaries would have to decide that. Then he added:

"Prison staffs today are brainwashed by the do-good societies and the public to avoid violence at all costs. So they're scared to carry out the law which says they have the right to use sufficient force to stop an escape."

Extent of Danger to Humans Not Known Says Professor

TORONTO (CP)—The head of the department of physiological hygiene at the University of Toronto said Wednesday insecticide residues in food can be dangerous to humans but said the extent of danger is not known.

Dr. John R. Brown, engaged in a study of pesticide residues, said remarks made Tuesday at an aerial pest control conference at Guelph University were "inflammatory."

A. B. Swackhammer of the food and drug directorate's technical advisory unit told the conference that an expectant mother can poison her unborn child by drinking milk from a cow that has browsed on forage sprayed by some insecticides.

Dr. Keith Ronald of the University of Guelph said insecticides, coupled with the effect of radioactive fallout, could produce babies with two heads and six fingers.

'SAME AS FALLOUT'

Dr. Brown commented: "We are back in the same business as fallout. Nobody has yet shown that (current) levels of pesticides cause any serious illness or shorten the life span."

Dr. Brown, whose study involves pesticide concentrations in man, said the more dangerous insecticides are the organophosphorous group, not the chlorinated hydrocarbons like DDT, mentioned in Guelph. But he said a cow would probably die if it ate these.

He said fish, which have been known to die from insecticide poisoning, are unusually sensitive to chemicals. Animals have a different reaction to insecticides, and the effect of small dose on man is not known.

More research is needed on the effects on animals, he said.

Retail Price Of Milk May Go Up Again

TORONTO (CP)—The retail price of milk will probably rise one cent a quart across Ontario by the end of the year because of higher payments for farmers, the chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, said Wednesday.

George McLaughlin of Beaverton said in an interview at the annual meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada that the increase probably will not come into effect before at least June.

The rise would be the second this year for many Ontario centres. In smaller cities and towns the price rose in mid-January by one or two cents to 26 or 27 cents a quart for home-delivered homogenized milk. In Toronto, the price rose last Nov. 1 to 27 cents from 26.

Fiscal Policy Discussed In Three Legislatures

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The legislatures of Newfoundland, Quebec and Saskatchewan discussed fiscal policy Wednesday.

Finance Minister Dr. F. W. Rowe of Newfoundland predicted the province will have a balanced budget in the 1966-67 fiscal year, with record revenue, no tax increases and expenditure of $204,131,200.

In Regina, L. M. Larson (CCF—Pelly) criticized the Liberal government's tax concessions to corporations while "the rest of the citizens have to be satisfied with peanuts."

In the Quebec legislature Revenue Minister Richard Hyde said his department, and the education and municipal affairs departments, have set up committees to study the recommendations of the Belanger royal commission on taxation. None of the recommendations would be put into effect before an extensive study of the report by the liberal government.

Legislatures were also sitting in New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia, and Nova Scotia, where the 48th legislative assembly opened its 1966 session. The throne speech opening the Alberta legislature was to be read today.

Nova Scotia — The throne speech outlined plans for increased aid to education and welfare. It said the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Robert Stanfield will increase grants to universities and colleges and make available more money for school-building costs and teachers' salaries.

In welfare, the government promised broader terms in the social assistance act, new rehabilitation services and regional institutions for the care of severely retarded children. A medical health services planning commission would prepare a plan to finance medical health insurance for Nova Scotia.

New Brunswick—George E. McInerney (PC — Saint John City) said an industrial complex planned by Bay Steel Corporations has been "scuttled" by the government.

Premier Louis J. Robichaud rejected the accusation. "A steel industry will be built in the province under this administration," the Liberal premier said. "You take my word for it."

Ontario — The Progressive Conservative government introduced a bill to prevent discrimination by employers and unions against older workers because of their age.

The bill, introduced by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, would give new statutory powers to the human rights commission, enabling it to prosecute employers who discriminate in hiring, treatment or job separation against persons between the ages of 40 and 65 "who are capable and efficient workers." Age discrimination by unions in enrolling members would be similarly prohibited.

Infractions would be punishable by a maximum fine of $500.

Move-Nearer End of Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Teamsters' union and company negotiators are reported to be making progress in their efforts to end a trucking dispute in Ontario which goes into its 28th day today.

The latest encouraging steps Wednesday were said to be further agreements on contract language.

Tuesday night a spokesman for the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, which represents the 55 trucking companies involved said "the number of points in dispute has been reduced to 16, against 43 a week ago."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

When the "It's Hockey Night in the U.S.A." overture sputters from the tonsil virtuosos of the American radio and television booths, come "expansion time" there'll be no Foster Hewitts, Danny Gallivans or Doug Smiths airing the play-by-play activities.

Years ago when an American radio station attempted the broadcast of a hockey game via the play-by-play routines, the sallies of the mike maestro drew more laughts this side of the border than circus clowns draw from kiddies.

The "blueline bulwarks", the "forward walls" and a subdued "it's in the net and a goal" drew many a Canadian chuckle.

No doubt the American network that will spew the golden stream into the coffers of the National Hockey League, will assign its top commentators to the job, like those who handle the pro golf tournaments, football and basketball games.

These men are experts in their field, because they have top knowledge of the sport they cover. But they're entering a phase of professional sport which a lot of American news media experts have long considered as "bush league stuff".

I heard two of them covering a Grey Cup football game a couple of years ago and they confined the most of their gargling efforts to the American colleges and records which backgrounded the American imports on the teams.

A lot of their time was taken in explaining why Canadian football has three downs instead of four; the difference in the dimensions of the field and a rather cynical description of the quarterbacks' plays.

Perhaps a forerunner of this was noted in the recent testimonial dinner given to Jack Adams in New York by the National Hockey League.

Pat Curran, well-known hockey writer and columnist of the Montreal Gazette who was there said, "It was professional hockey's big chance to brighten its image before Manhattan's self-centred deans of press, radio and television and at the same time give the game a clear lift across the continent. Instead the sport drew a series of misconduct penalties that won't be rescinded for a long time."

Old and new executives were there, Curran wrote. Former greats and present stars, big and little minor men and millionaires interested in expansion. "They were joined by others who wanted to know more about a game considered by them as "bush" as compared to baseball, football and basketball."

"Instead of having knowledgeable hockey men as toastmasters, the podium was given to New York's Red Smith who may be a brilliant columnist but hasn't got a clue about our national game. From the time he told a corny racing joke until his reference to Eddie Shore as 'Toots' his talks were ambarrassing to everyone in the room."

"And it wasn't funny" Curran says, "when he introduced the Canadiens' president as J. David Nelson"; Toronto's boss as "C. Stafford Smith" and the Detroit club as the 'Tigers'. After Toronto's Milt Dunnell attempted to give the game some dignity, Red's following remark was a direct insult to hockey".

"This guy has to live with the game" said Smith, and nobody laughed.

"James D. Norris didn't help with his jibes and Irving Felt, the Rangers board chairman, was so engrossed with his pitch about the new Gardens he forgot to present the award to Adams."

"That was the start of the fiasco at New York. The expansion meetings might have restored some class to the sport if they had been conducted on a higher level", said Curran.

Hawks Pull Away; Wings, Habs Lose

By CLAUDE HENAULT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Three National Hockey League games which affected the standings of only the cellar-dwelling clubs were played Wednesday night while talk of anti-trust investigations of the league buzzed about.

Chicago's Bobby Hull moved one step closer to breaking the season scoring record of 50 as he scored his 46th of the season to help the Hawks whip New York Rangers 5-2. He has 19 games left in which to better the record he shares with former Canadiens' Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

PIT MARTIN

Pit Martin scored three goals and set up the tie breaker as Boston Bruins scraped past Detroit Red Wings 5-4 to move out of a last-place tie with New York.

Ron Ellis picked up a pair in Toronto to help the Leafs subdue visiting Montreal Canadiens 3-1.

Top standings remain in the same order: Chicago top with 63, Montreal and Detroit tied at four points behind and Toronto six points behind them. New York is last with 32.

URGES INVESTIGATION

Meanwhile, U.S. Senator Daniel B. Brewster (Dem. Md.) was urging investigation of the league's expansion last week in which six cities were given league franchises.

In a letter to Senator Philip A. Hart (Dem. Mich.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee looking into anti-trust actions, Senator Brewster wrote:

"Congress recently passed legislation exempting certain professional sports from the provisions of anti-trust laws because we recognized the desirability of maintaining the league concept.

RON ELLIS

"However, while granting certain sports, including hockey, this special privilege, we expected the leagues to accept certain responsibilities.

"When a league seeks to expand, it is expected to treat all applicants on a fair and equal basis. Each application should be considered on its individual merits rather than on the economic benefits that might accrue to the owner of an existing league team or a particular stadium owner."

The NHL, he said, "has demonstrated its lack of responsibility to the sporting public" and "I believe that an immediate investigation of the NHL's recent action should be undertaken in order to determine whether further legislation is necessary."

The six franchises awarded all went to U.S. cities. Vancouver's application was turned down.

HULL PROVES FITNESS

Hull made his looping 45-footer count in New York to show he has recovered from the knee injury which sidelined him last Sunday and which had been expected to keep him off the ice for a full week.

Other Hawk scorers were Phil Esposito, rookie Ken Hodge, Red Hay and Eric Nesterenko. For New York, it was rookie Paul Andrea, scoring his first in the NHL, and Earl Ingarfield.

In the Boston upset, Martin's trio was padded out by John McKenzie and Ron Stewart. Detroit scorers were Bill Gadsby, Floyd Smith, Bruce MacGregor and Norm Ullman.

Toronto, whose coach had been moaning about his team before the game, had nothing to cry about as Ellis and Bob Pulford combined to wrap up Canadiens. Hab coach Toe Blake, who had pulled a switch and praised his team before the match, got only one goal from Jean Beliveau.

Musky Season Opens On June 18

TORONTO (CP)—A June 18 opening date for muskellunge and a Jan. 1 opening for landlocked salmon were the most noticeable changes in 1966 angling seasons announced Wednesday by Ontario's lands and forests minister, Kelso Roberts.

The muskellunge opening, two weeks earlier than last year, applies to all Ontario waters except the St. Clair and Detroit Rivers and Lake St. Clair, where the season opens June 4. It closes in the St. Clair waters Dec. 15 and in the rest of the province Nov. 30.

The previous opening for landlocked salmon was May 1. Ontario asked Ottawa for permission to open the season Jan. 1 to make this game fish eligible for fishing through the ice.

Opening dates for all fish are set for Saturdays, a policy adopted last year to meet the request of fishing organizations that the seasons open when most outdoorsmen have a day off from work.

Season for both large and small-mouth bass opens June 25 in most of Ontaro. It opens June 18 in the Lake St. Clair area. There is no closed season in the Lakehead, Algoma, Sudbury and Timiskaming areas. It closes Nov. 30 in most of the province except the counties of Lanark and Leeds where the closing is Oct. 15.

Brook, brown and Aurora trout become available Feb. 26 in most waters with the season ending Sept 15 except in the counties of Carleton, Dundas, Frontenac, Glengarry, Grenville, Hastings, Lanark, Leeds, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Prescott, Renfrew, Russell and Stormont and parts of townships north of Peterborough and Haliburton. In these places, the season ends Sept. 30, except in Algonquin Park, where it is Sept. 15.

Yellow pickerel have no closed season in Lake Superior and parts of Lake Huron, the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair, Detroit River, Niagara River and that part of Lake Ontario west of the Port Hope area. There is also no closed season in the counties of Elgin, Essex, Haldimand, Kent, Lambton, Lincoln, Middlesex, Norfolk and Welland. For most other areas the season opens May 14 and closes March 31.

Parliament Backpats Nancy

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill paid homage Wednesday to 22-year-old Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., Canada's first lady of the ski slopes.

Prime Minister Pearson attended a luncheon in her honor and said the ladies seem to be bringing the most honor to Canada in amateur sports. He mentioned Petra Burka in skating, Marlene Stewart Streit in golf and Miss Greene in skiing.

Their athletic prowess was more than matched by their sportsmanship on and off the playing fields, he noted.

"I wish I could say the same for our hockey teams," he added with a grin.

Health Minister Allan MacEachen, whose responsibilities include the fitness and amateur sport program, introduced Miss Greene later at the opening of the House of Commons. He said she is a champion skier and a great Canadian.

As Miss Greene rose to acknowledge the introduction from her place in the Speaker's gallery, MPs banged on their desks in their customary salute to distinguished visitors.

COMPARES FAVORABLY

Dave Jacobs of Montreal, coach of the national team now in training for the world championships in Chile this August, said in an interview later that Miss Greene compared favorably with former ski champions Lucile Wheeler and Anne Heggtveit.

Jacobs said he would have to rank Nancy over the other two because "everything in skiing has improved" and because the Rossland skier is a triple threat: She competes in slalom, giant slalom and downhill competitions. She was the combined winner in the U.S. nationals in 1965, beating the world's best.

She is capable of winning three medals for Canada at the coming world meet and in the 1968 Olympics, he said.

Miss Greene said she was thrilled by the events of the day.

"It's the first time I've ever met a prime minister. And he seemed to be interested and know a lot about skiing."

She also said the national team's spirit is high because of the government grants and private support for its training program and trips overseas.

"It really makes a difference knowing you are skiing for Canada and not just for yourself or for a club."

Falcons Plucked Good Fare

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dallas Cowboys and Minnesota Vikings agree that Atlanta Falcons fared better than they did in player stocking as the National Football League's expansion franchises in 1960 and 1961.

"I would like to have had that group when we started," said Tex Schramm, general manager of the Cowboys, who finished their first season in 1960 with an 0-11-1 record.

"They are better off than we were," said John Thompson, assistant general manager of the Vikings, whose first team in 1961 wound up with a 3-11 mark.

The Falcons were stocked Wednesday with 42 experienced players from NFL rosters. They averaged 26.2 years in age and about 3½ years' pro experience. The Falcons also have 22 rookies and a large number of free agents, making a total of 94 players.

Rangers Win Over Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series overcame first-period jitters to defeat Halifax Junior Canadiens 7-4 in an exhibition game before 6,000 fans Wednesday night.

The Rangers, the OHA's seventh-place team, fell behind 3-1 in the first period, but recovered with four goals in the second and two in the third.

Canada, U.S. Urge Pro Hockey Probe

Ask Royal Commission

VICTORIA (CP)—Dr. Pat McGeer (L — Vancouver Point Grey) called Wednesday for a royal commission to study "slave trade" hockey in Canada.

"I want to see a federal royal commission examining the status of amateur athletics in Canada and the relationship between professional and amateur hockey," he told the British Columbia legislature.

He said organized professional hockey "is indeed a slave trade for a handful of greedy hockey promoters who are principally in the United States."

Vancouver's application for a National Hockey League franchise was not accepted by the NHL governors who added six U.S. cities to the NHL in an expansion program proposed last week.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Daniel B. Brewster (Dem. Md.) urged Wednesday an investigation into the National Hockey League's expansion action last week in which six cities were given the go-ahead for league franchises.

In a letter to Senator Philip A. Hart (Dem. Mich.), chairman of a Senate subcommittee charged with looking into antitrust actions, Brewster wrote: "I believe that an immediate investigation of the NHL's recent action should be undertaken in order to determine whether further legislation is necessary."

Baltimore was chosen seventh among applicants who sought NHL franchises, but only six franchises were available.

CALGARY (CP) — William Dickie, Liberal member of the Alberta legislature for Calgary-Glenmore, said Wednesday he will introduce a bill next week to ensure that young Alberta athletes are protected from abuses by professional teams.

Mr. Dickie told a press conference he has been working on the idea for several years but the recent announcement of National Hockey League expansion prompted him to reveal the plan.

The bill would declare null and void any contract signed by a minor or the minor and his parents before the athlete's 18th birthday and would make it an offence for any person or organization to enter into an agreement with an athlete before his 18th birthday.

Wirtz Holds The Reins

Trouble Looms In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Al Wirtz made it clear Wednesday that if St. Louis is to get a National Hockey League franchise, it will have to please him and James D. Norris, co-owners of Chicago Black Hawks.

In an interview, Wirtz said that, for all practical purposes, he and Norris control the franchise.

"We are primarily responsible since we hold the building, Central League territorial rights and the franchise," Wirtz said.

St. Louis Braves are a farm team of the Black Hawks and play in the 35-year-old arena, which can seat 16,000 and has been owned by Wirtz and Norris since 1947.

Wirtz said he has quoted no price on the arena, but interested parties report the price at as much as $4,500,000.

If Wirtz does not sell the arena and at his price, it is doubtful that a NHL team will be awarded to St. Louis.

Aside from his ownership of the Black Hawks, Norris' brother, Bruce Norris, is president of Detroit Red Wings. Five of the six league votes are needed to award a franchise.

St. Louis was awarded a franchise conditionally last week, under the provision that suitable owners and buildings were provided. A deadline of April 5 was set.

Wirtz said interest has been expressed in the franchise in the United States and Canada. He said he was well along in negotiating with a non-St. Louis, non-Chicago group that would keep the franchise in St. Louis.

Seals Wallop Aces 13-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A tail-end club on a six-game losing streak booby-trapped Quebec Aces Wednesday night.

The Aces, leading the American Hockey League's Eastern Division by 20 points, showed up for an interlocking game in San Francisco against the last-place Seals of the Western League and absorbed a 13-5 trouncing, one of the worst in their history.

While the Aces were being bombed, another cellar club had less success against Rochester Americans, their opposite numbers in the AHL's Western Division, who breezed to a 7-2 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

Cleveland Barons, rapidly extinguishing Buffalo's hopes of a playoff spot, edged Springfield Indians 4-3 for their 13th victory in 16 outings and a 16-point margin over the Bisons for the third-place spot in the Western Division.

OMHA Playdowns

Rollins Peewees Whip Kingston

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A four-goal explosion in the second period carried Belleville Rollins' peewees to a 6-2 OMHA playdown triumph over Kingston All-Stars here last night.

Second game in the two-of-three series will be played in Kingston Saturday, at 12:30, followed by the bantam game at 2:00 and the midget tilt at 3:30.

Belleville won the flip for third games, if they are necessary, in the peewee and bantam series while Kingston won in the midget.

The clubs tied 1-1 in each of the first and third heats but Rollins appeared a bit sharper all night and proved it in the second frame.

Brian Cousins snapped the 1-1 deadlock midway through the period and seconds later Doug James scored again for a 3-1 lead. Danny Lupenette took over then, scoring twice, at 17:45 and 19:45, for the 5-1 score.

Goalie David Rutherford, who played a strong game, kicked out several tough Kingston drives in the third before Bob Murray finally beat him at 17:32. Two minutes later Lupenette fired his third Belleville marker for the final 6-2 score.

In the first, speedy Rick Meagher gave Rollins a 1-0 lead with a good shot at 2:52. Kingston tied it on a powerplay goal by Murray at 14:49.

There were two minor penalties assessed per team. Craig Gavel, of Kingston, also took a misconduct for smashing his stick in anger after Rollins' fourth goal.

Earlier, in a novice exhibition game, Belleville Riteways scored two third-period goals to edge Napanee 3-1.

Martin Thistle fired one for Riteways in the first and J. Seargeant tied it for Napanee in the second. Grant Goegan and Peter Smrke won it with Belleville's third-frame goals. W. Dainard, with two, Goegan and Thistle, had assists.

Whip Tweed 77-36

Nicholson Srs. Unbeaten

By DAVID HURST

Nicholson Catholic College seniors completed their COSSA "B" basketball schedule without a loss by trimming Tweed 77-36 last night.

Tweed captured the junior contest easily, 55-10, and the bantam game 41-31.

Finding difficulty in getting accustomed to the dimly lit gym, the seniors started slowly and led by a 7-point margin at the end of the first quarter 16-9.

Playing strong defensive ball in the second quarer, Nicholson held Tweed to only 3 points while scoring 12 themselves.

The second half saw a wide open game with Nicholson scoring 49 points, fast breaking very well.

The Nicholson scoring was evenly distributed throughout the team with Peter Gleeson and Doug Meagher scoring 19 points apiece, John Doran 16, and Jim Hawlor 11.

Tweed was led by Len Gray with 10, John Cassidy 7, and Bob Allore 4.

Richard Woolfrey was high man for Tweed with 20 points, folowed by John Cassidy with 11 and Paul Lelt with 9.

For Nicholson Pat Brierne had 4, Ray Duminie and Brad Scully 2 each.

The Tweed Bantam scorers were Dorian Lessard with 13, Paul Woolfrey 10 and Murray Spencer 8.

For Nicholson, Ken Sullivan hit for 10, followed by Hubert Hicks with 7, Paul Keely, and Bernard Howe with 4 apiece.

DOUBTS DAMAGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Wednesday no permanent damage would result if the 1972 Winter Olympics are held in Banff National Park. He said in an interview the Games would not go against the national policy of keeping the parks as a wilderness area.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks super-star just recovered from strained knee ligaments which forced him to miss the last game, scored his 46th goal of the National Hockey League season against New York Rangers Wednesday night.

Hull has played 46 games of the Hawks' 51, missing five due to injuries, and has 19 games left in which to break the season goalscoring record of 50 which he shares with former Montreal Canadiens Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

The Chicago winger also has 29 assists for a league-leading 75 points.

After him comes Detroit's Norm Ullman, who scored one goal and assisted on another as his team lost to Boston. Ullman now has 61 points, two more than Hawks' Stan Mikita who picked up an assist Wednesday.

Detroit's Alex Delvecchio and Montreal's Bobby Rousseau also got an assist each. Delvecchio is fifth with 54 points and Rousseau is three behind.

Another Montrealer, Jean Beliveau, who holds down seventh place with 49 points, picked up a goal Wednesday to bring his scoring total to 18.

STAMPS MAKE MONEY

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference earned a record $69,075 net profit on 1965 operations, the club's annual directors meeting was told Wednesday. The earnings compared with previous high of $59,399 in 1963.

See those giant wide doors? Handi-Van is easy to load and unload. Two curbside doors may be specified, and then there are a number of extra window combinations available.

Handi-Van can turn in a 35.5 foot circle. Lets you scoot out of packed traffic and deliver your goods where and when you promised.

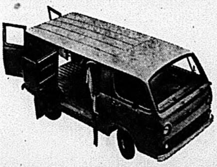
Look at all the space. Handi-Van measures 211 cu. ft. inside. That will hold up to a ton of payload. Loadspace length from engine housing back is over 92 inches.

The engine is a 120-hp engineering gem. And if you want more muscle, you can specify a 140-hp workhorse. Powerglide is available too.

The metal floor is built to shrug off abuse from most any kind of load. In fact, it's a heavy duty floor at no extra cost.

Handi-Van's body and frame are unitized. And the heavy-gauge steel has extra resistance to corrosion, giving you longer service.

You can see how great Handi-Van is from the back.
But the most important thing is on the front.



It's that GMC nameplate that makes the difference. Not the plate itself of course, but what it represents. GMC has a reputation for Engineering Leadership. For instance: realizing most Handi-Vans would be city-operated and subject to road moisture and salt, GMC engineers started at the bottom. Sheet metal in exposed areas is first galvanized, then covered with aluminum paint, phosphated... then, after all that, undercoated! No wonder Handi-Van stands up so well under the worst a Canadian winter has to offer. And no wonder GMC has earned that reputation for leadership. When you're thinking vans—think Handi-Van, by GMC.

Star Indian Bowler To Appear Here

A full-blooded Seneca Indian who is one of the nation's top bowlers will blaze the trail into Belleville on Wednesday, Feb. 23.

Brunswick star Chief Halftown, also a popular Philadelphia TV star, is scheduled to appear at Brunswick Belleville Bowl at 9.00 p.m. According to Art Pfefferle, manager of the Brunswick Belleville Bowl, the Chief will conduct "pow-wows" with local bowlers on how they can improve their game.

The Chief started bowling in the army during World War II and has averaged near 200 in league competition. In 1958, he was a member of the Walker-McDermott squad that captured the Philadelphia team title.

Halftown is a direct descendant of the chief who signed the Seneca peace treaty with the U.S. in 1794. He still receives a token grant of calico and money from the government each year under terms of that agreement.

Chief Halftown will be making an appearance at various schools in the Belleville area and each night at the Belleville Bowl on Feb. 23 and 24.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

By BOB BLAIND

Saturday February 26th is the opening day for lake and speckled Trout in the Counties of Frontenac, Hastings, Lanark, Leeds, and Lennox and Addington. These with browns, and splake are waiting for the hungry fisherma.

Hundreds of local waltons will take to the north country on this opening weekend.

Lets see what we need, a small rod and reel, lines, tip-ups, ice auger or a good sharp ice chisel, minnow bucket and minnows, hooks, sinkers, a thermos of good hot coffee or soup and a lunch, warm boots and clothing, either snowshoes, skiis, or if possible a snow cruiser.

I wonder where we should go this year. Lets see, we could try some of the local creeks if we do not want to go too far, or head north. Bancroft area lakes were good last year also the fishing was good in the Denbigh country. Another hot spot was the Desert, Devil, Canoe Lake basin north of Kingston.

The best bait in past years on opening day has been the live minnow. These can be transported easily in the winter months in almost any type of bucket but the foam or fibre seem to hold your minnows much better and are lighter to carry. Jigging has also produced some nice catches. Almost any kind of wabbler or spoon can be used but Mr. Champ, Tear Drops, Russian Hooks, EGBs and Rattle spoons have been the top bait. Some fishermen have used worms with good results. They could be worth a try.

In most lakes the best way to catch trout through the ice is to try fishing in about 6 to 8 feet of water near an inlet such as a creek or spring entering a lake. If this does not produce results try off points of rocks or islands where deep holes might be or you can fish on the same bars as you do in the summer.

Trout usually travel in schools and if you can catch one, chances are good there will be more in the same area.

Winter regulations state that two lines may be used legally, try a minnow on one and a jig on the other. Jigging is done by lifting the line up off the bottom with a jerk and the letting the line slowly back down again repeating this at regular intervals. Bigger trout seem to be caught in this manner.

Legal limits of lake trout in Hastings, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Lanark Couties, Five (5) per day per angler. Check the fishing regulations for other areas you will be fishing.

Speckled trout limit is, Ten (10) pounds plus one fish or fifteen (15) fish whichever is lesser from waters other than the waters of the Counties of Elgin, Middlesex and Norfolk. Please obey these regulations in order to assure many more years of good fishing.

May the weather and your fishing luck be good this opening day.

Letter To The Sports Editor

Sports Plan Gets Nod From Reader

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With reference to the letter in Tuesday's paper signed by Arthur Black, Globe Hotel, Picton, I disagree with him 100 per cent because Hastings County residents do not have to become "ardent supporters of athletics."

Although I don't like watching or playing many sports, there are some facilities which will be supplied by Hastings Pleasure Gardens which I will be more than happy to make use of.

I have often thought that I would like to play golf, if only once, but it would cost too much to pay membership fees in a country club in order to participate or learn to play.

I also noticed that he said "the Belleville Arena can hardly get by". Well I enjoy skating but I wouldn't go down there because the ice isn't always in the best condition. Besides this arena is small, and half of the seats do not have a good view of the ice.

B. W. Spencer, 364 Stokes St.

P.S. I think that the Hastings Pleasure Gardens will get the 20,000 people that they need and will get a good response for many years after it is completed.

Bermuda Is Looking to Canada For It's Winter Tourist Trade

By NICK FILLMORE

HAMILTON (CP) — The subtropical 300 - year old British colony of Bermuda is loking to Canada for increasing numbers of tourists to inhabit island beaches and night spots during the winter months.

Tourists from the United States keep the colony's facilities operating at a near maximum from spring to fall, but the islands experience a tourist lull for about four months in the winter. Tourist officials here hope Canadians, wishing to get away from their chill North American climate for a few days, will fill the gap.

"We're beginning to concentrate more heavily on luring Canadian tourists here," said W. J. Williams, director of the Bermuda Trade Development Board, in an interview. "Only a small percentage of our tourist facilities are being used in the winter when rates are cheaper and there aren't huge crowds of people."

More Canadians than ever before—19,067—visited Bermuda in 1965 and the 34-per-cent increase over the 1964 total was the greatest for any country. This still represents less than 10 per cent of the islands' visitors.

SUMMER IS BUSIEST

Of the 1965 visitors, about 61 per cent came from Ontario and 28 per cent from Quebec. The Atlantic provinces accounted for 4.6 per cent, the Prairie provinces 3.5 and British Columbia 2.2.

Eighty - five per cent of the islands' 237,000 tourists came from the United States in 1965 and about three per cent from the United Kingdom.

"Our biggest problem has been trying to balance each month," Mr. Williams said. "We're usually full - up from April to September, but could accommodate 125,000 more the other four months."

Although weather conditions are not as attractive as the midsummer average of 79 degrees, winter temperatures range from a pleasant 63 to 68 degrees. On New Year's Day tourists swam in the coral - green waters of the Atlantic.

The Bermudas—a fish bookshaped chain of 150 islands less than 1,000 miles from Nova Scotia—are only 20.4 square miles in area, but every mile has been developed to the advantage of the tourist industry. Seventy - per - cent of the islands' income depends on the tourist industry.

TRAVEL IS EASY

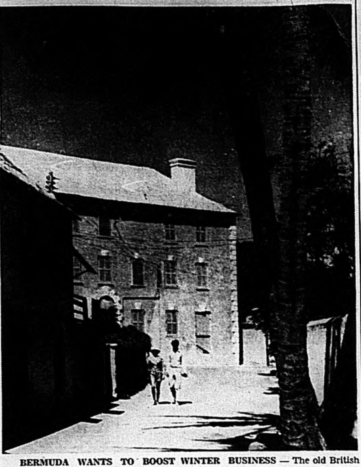
Narrow, paved roads wind their way among gypsum-white houses, surrounded by well-kept, bright gardens. Here and in St. George, the two largest communities, first-class entertainment is available, and motor bikes can be rented for $14 a week to tour the islands.

Shops with gods from all areas of the world have given Bermuda the name of "showcase of the British Commonwealth." Boat and taxi tours go to many secluded areas of the islands, and water sports including sailing, swimming, water skiing, skin diving are readily available.

Bermuda's 45,000 population—three - quarters of them Negroes—take precautions to assure the islands are kept tidy and clean, and the government has placed strict laws on billboard placements, house and apartment construction, foreign investment and vehicle registration. If tourists litter beaches with refuse they may be asked to leave the islands.

FRIENDLY REPLACEMENT

NEW YORK (AP)—Richard S. Salant was named acting president of Columbia Broadcasting System news, effective immediately, it was announced Wednesday by John A. Schneider, CBS vice - president in charge of broadcasting. The appointment followed the resignation Tuesday of Fred W. Friendly in a policy disagreement with Schneider who last week ordered regular day-time programming at the time former U.S. Ambassador George F. Kennan was testifying before the Senate foreign relations committee in Washington.



BERMUDA WANTS TO BOOST WINTER BUSINESS — The old British colony of Bermuda is trying to lure more Canadians to fill the colony's winter gap. Resorts operate at a maximum from spring through to fall but are mostly empty in winter. Although the winter temperatures are only 63 to 68 degrees tourist officials think more people can be encouraged to trade that for the chill Canadian winter. Above is a street in St. George one of the two largest communities in the islands. (CP Photo)

Toronto Seniors Hold Lead

OTTAWA (CP) — Jim Johnston of Toronto Dixie whipped Les Hughes of Brantford 11-2 Wednesday night to maintain his lead in the Ontario Seniors curling championship.

Keith Lasha of Gananoque, who dropped a 9-3 decision to Johnston in the morning round, continued in second place with a 12-4 victory over winless Arnold Robinson of Orillia. Lasha has four wins and one defeat.

Defending-champion Alf Phillips of Toronto Granite moved into a third-place tie with Walter Routliffe of Hamilton Thistle by downing Harvey Langdon of Hanover 9-7. Routliffe, who won three of his first four games, dropped a 15-11 extra-end decision to Whitby's Harve Winter in the fifth round.

The final two rounds are scheduled for today.

Quebec Peewee Tourney

QUEBEC (CP) — Scarborough, Ont., Lions won't leave Quebec City this year with all the silverware that goes to the champions of the international peewee hockey tournament.

The Lions, champions of the class AA division and grand champions of the tournament in 1965, were eliminated by Toronto Tasco Hawks Wednesday after sixth-day play.

Tasco Hawks defeated Scarborough 3-2 in overtime in class AA action.

In class C competition, Hespeler, Ont., bombed Thurso, Que., 10-3.

John Woods netted four goals as Hespeler scored its one-sided victory over Thurso. Jerry Mallard and Mike Zettel added two goals for Hespeler while others went to Bobby Peace and Wayne Longthorne.

Aldridge, who accounted for 11 points on free throws, and Bob Eaton each scored 17 points as the Warriors defeated the Blues 74-63.

McMaster University Marauders of Hamilton defeated Guelph University Redmen 93-48 in the other game of the series.

Ty Burch scored 19 points for the Redmen, but his performance was not enough to offset a 17-point endeavor by McMaster's Paul Allingham and 14 points by Jim Murray.

Raymond Burr Confirms "Perry Mason" Is Out

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will Raymond Burr, also known as Perry Mason, please take the stand?

Q. Now Mr. Burr, there have been all kinds of reports about whether the television series—Perry Mason will return to CBS for a 10th season next year. Will it?

A. I don't know.

Q. But surely, Mr. Burr, as star of the courtroom series, you should. You reported you would be willing to perform on a 10th season, did you not?

A. Yes, I did—at the beginning of this season. I thought it might be advantageous for me to do one more year, for a variety of reasons.'

Q. Yet your producer, Gail Patrick Jackson, has announced that Perry Mason will not be back next year.

A. That is correct. Gail was piqued, as was I, that CBS did not put the show on in color. After all, they put us up against some stiff competition: Bonanza and the Sunday night movie, both in color. That gives the other two shows an advantage at the start.

Q. If the show is discontinued, what are your future plans?

A. I have my own production company, which I will be activating with pilot films, some of them for CBS. I have a play that I would like to do, and there are several film offers.

Q. Would you explain why you have been having top-level conferences in Washington every weekend for the last five weeks?

A. I'm not at liberty to divulge that right now.

Deferment Out For Cassius

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The local draft board is expected today to reclassify heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay from 1-Y to 1-A, making him eligible for military service.

How soon could he be called?

"We expect our March quota any day," said J. Allen Sherman, board chairman. "That quota must be filled within 10 days."

Clay is scheduled to fight Ernie Terrell in Chicago March 29, but Sherman indicated a heavyweight championship boxing match is no reason for a draft deferment.

STARS WERE THERE

"I learned by absorption," says June Lockhart, of Lost in Space, daughter of actors Gene and Kathleen Lockhart.

In their everything wild, winner-take-all world, there was only one way to separate the men from the boys.

British Columbia in Throes Of 'Staggering' Mining Boom

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Behind the facade of a humming market in mining stocks, money is being poured into British Columbia's earth and dredged up again faster than ever before.

"Staggering!" says Mines Minister Donald Brothers.

"This is the big league," says Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C.-Yukon Chamber of Mines.

"British Columbia mining has come of age," the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority said in a recent report.

Mining has been booming in the province for about five years. Millions have poured in from around the world — the United States, Japan, Eastern Canada, even as far off as Chile and Australia. Public investment in the industry is at a record level.

The mining industry now, Mr. Brothers said in an interview, is second only to forestry and related industries in B.C. Some 300 companies, 74 of them major ones, conducted exploration in the province last year.

PRODUCTION SOARS

Mining production for the year is estimated at $174,000,000 and, when all related mineral production such as oil and gas is included, the figure jumps to $270,000,000, up about $10,000,000 from 1964.

Only four years earlier—in 1961—the total combined output had been only $180,000,000. It reached an earlier high of $188,[illegible],000 in 1956 but a price slump sent it down.

[illegible] hydro authority report says [illegible] mines have come into existence at an unprecedented rate and its economist, John C. Dawson, sets out these points:

—More than $30,000,000 has been spent on exploration in B.C. and the Yukon in the last two years, compared with $10,000,000 between 1951 and 1961.

—Ore concentrating capacity has doubled in the last five years and is expected to double again by 1970.

—Capital expenditure on new mines approaching $200,000,000 is committed for the next few years.

—B.C., which had no molybdenum production three years ago, is expected to produce 13 per cent of the world's supply by 1968.

—Five new copper mines have come into production since 1960 and eight more are expected in the next five years.

HAS STABILITY

"We have stability that did not exist in the past," the report says. "B.C. and the Yukon are no longer frontier areas far from centres of demand."

Exploration is becoming more diversified. It includes gold, silver, lead, zinc, copper iron, molybdenum, mercury, antimony and other industrial minerals.

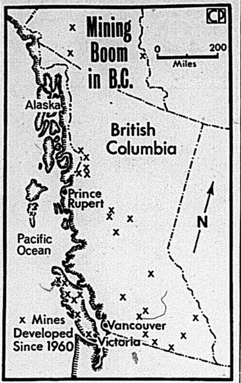
Millions are being poured into mines to bring them into production. It will cost $85,000,000 to bring in Granduc, a copper mine north of Prince Rupert.

There are these companies in various stages of development:

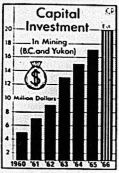
Westfrob (Falconbridge subsidiary), an iron mine in the Queen Charlotte Islands, $25,000,000; Granisle (more than half Japanese interests), copper, northwest of Prince George, $12,000,000; Western Mines, copper, on Vancouver Island, $15,000,000; B.C. Molybdenum, north of Prince Rupert, and Endako Molybdenum, west of Prince George, $20,000,000 apiece.

This is only a sampling.

"Mining has a staggering effect on our economy," says Mines Minister Brothers. "It could very well exceed forestry as our No. 1 industry in time."



B.C. HAS MINING BOOM — Millions of dollars have poured into British Columbia in the last five years in one of the country's biggest, steadiest mining booms. In the last five years mining developments have spotted the map of the province from top to bottom. Developers are bringing in mines for gold, silver, lead, zinc, copper, iron, molybdenum, mercury, antinomy and others. (CP Newsmap)



MINE MONEY POURS IN — Capital investment in British Columbia mining in 1966 is expected to be $20,000,000, four times the level of investment in 1960. B.C. mining properties are attracting money from as far as Japan, Chile and Australia. (CP Newsmap)

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

THOMASBURG GROUP COMMITTEE

THOMASBURG — Thomasburg Boy Scout Group Committee met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Geen.

It was announced that the group will sponsor a social during the summer to raise funds, instead of the variety night originally planned for February.

Sergeant W. Newman read the report of activities during January, in the absence of Scoutmaster Geen, who has been transferred to Toronto by the C.N.R. Cubmaster Allan Howell reported three new Cubs have recently joined the organization.

The president announced that the District Coucil wished to hold a meeting in Thomasburg on March 15. It was decided to hold the annual family potluck supper on March 25.

The necessity of appointing a new scoutmaster and secretary was discussed and it was decided to appoint a new secretary later. For the present, Cubmaster Howell will assume the duties of scoutmaster.

It was suggested by the president, James Seebings, that more mothers be invited to attend the committee meetings in order to encourage their interest.

COMICS BANNED

GIVE POPULATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total population residing in the United States reached about 194,899,000 at the beginning of this year, the census bureau estimated Wednesday.

Colombia's Population Explosion Is Problem

BOGOTA (AP)—A population explosion plus a peasant notion that life is better in a city shack than in a farm house is posing an urgent problem for Colombia.

New census figures show that Colombia's population has jumped 6,600,000 to 18,400,000 in the last 13 years and that 60 per cent now live in cities. In 1952, 60 per cent lived in rural areas.

The annual rate of population increase is 3.2 per cent, greater than most countries in Asia, Africa and Europe.

The flow of Colombians into 24 cities presents urban areas with shortages in housing, schools, hospitals, and transportation. The exodus from the farms has cut into [illegible] production. Government figures show that no more food is being produced in Colombia today than in 1952 when there were 6,600,000 fewer mouths to feed.

Shantytowns are a common sight in Colombian cities and unemployment is rising.

Because of a sharp drop in coffee prices during the last few years, Colombia has curtailed imports of raw materials and industrial equipment. These Colombia buys with revenues from coffee, the chief crop.

Because of the lack of imports, industry is forced to lay off workers. And because farm production is off, food prices climb steadily.

Although a peasant meets hardships when he moves to the city, farm families still have the notion that their livelihood on the farm is even worse, sociologists say. They believe better opportunities await them in factories.

The peasant also feels that in the city he is safe from the banditry that has terrorized the Colombian hills since 1948 [illegible] taken about 200,000 lives, almost 90 per cent of them peasants.

The government now is putting an end to the slaughter.

Redistribution Debate Likely To Be Delayed

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons debate on MP's protests over recommended changes in federal electoral boundaries—scheduled by law to begin Monday—may be postponed for a few weeks if inter-party negotiations work to the government's satisfaction, informants say.

Postponement of the debate would lift the government from the embarrassment of nearing the March 31 end of the fiscal year without having parliamentary approval for its 1965-66 spending estimates. A redistribution debate could run 15 days or so.

Party house leaders met late into Thursday evening and are to meet again today after reporting back to their parties this morning.

The Redistribution Act passed in 1964 gave MPs 30 days after the tabling Jan. 19, 1966, in the Commons to file objections to the recommendations of the 10 independent commissions in the provinces.

A vaguely-worded section of the act had put the parties in doubt over when debate on their objections was to start. Informants said the parties have been told the debate must start Monday.

Since this woukld cut into the current debate on the estimates, the negotiators are working on a method to postpone the redistribution debate.

Informants say it is expected—providing the parties agree with their house leaders—that the redistribution debate will be delayed and the estimates debate will continue until the spending for all government departments is approved.

If the estimates debate is concluded on a Friday, the Commons on the following Monday would open a two-day supply debate that provides opportunities to move non-confidence motions against the government.

Since Commons rules say that a supply debate may start only on a Monday, a debate on whether to abolish capital punishment would open if the estimates were passed before a Friday.

Three more objections against the redistribution reports were filed with the Speaker Thursday, bringing the total to 18. More are expected today, the final day for filing protests.

Objections have been filed against the boundaries recommended for ridings in all provinces except Newfoundland.

ARE SENT BACK

After the MPs state their cases in the Commons, the reports are sent back to the commissions for reconsideration. The commissions are under no

Moscow Jet Crash Kills Eight

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet ministry of civil aviation announced today that only eight passengers were killed in the crash early Thursday during takeoff of a TU-114 airliner.

The ministry announcement, given to the official Soviet news agency Tass, said the crash "was caused by a sharp worsening of weather conditions at Sheremetyevo airport outside Moscow."

"During the take-off run the plane ran into a strong gust of wet snow, veered off the runway and was damaged," it said. "Eight Soviet passengers died in the crash. None of the foreigners was injured."

Earlier, unofficial sources said 48 of 70 persons aboard the TU-114—world's largest airliner — [illegible] died. Western sources placed the number of dead at 38.

A top Communist official and an executive of the Soviet Aeroflot airline were among the dead.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, identified the Communist official as Alexander A. Petrov, deputy chairman of the government committee for cultural relations with foreign countries.

Publication of Petrov's obituary indicated he was the highest official lost when the giant TU-114, capable of carrying 220 passengers, smashed into a snowdrift just after taking off from an icy runway at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport.

The four - engined turboprop plane left the runway and rose about 100 feet, then began swaying violently. One side dipped and the plane started to drop back to earth.

SNAPS IN TWO

It snapped in two from the force of the impact. The rear section burst into flames, causing the heaviest casualties.

Aeroflot's commercial director, Vladimir I. Smirnov, died of injuries after the crash, Moscow hospital sai d.

The chief of the airline's international transport administration, Gen. Yvacheslav Bashkirov, was understood to be in critical condition with first-degree burns.

The plane was on a 7,440-mile flight to Guinea, Ghana and Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo, to inaugurate a new service.

A spokesman at the airport said all aboard were Russians except two from Guinea who es[illegible] with minor injuries.

Claims Morale Is Low

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Integration of the armed forces is proceeding ahead of schedule and with "spirit and enthusiasm," Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Thursday night.

But Conservative MP Douglas Harkness, who once was defence minister, contended that morale among servicemen is at its lowest ebb.

Debate on the 1965-66 defence spending estimates began with a businesslike 29-page speech from Mr. Hellyer, who said integration is increasing efficiency and saving money.

The two-year-old program had cut the number of employees at Canadian forces headquarters by more than 1,000, he said.

A new command structure had been set up three months ahead of schedule, reducing the number of commands to six from 11.

The object of integration was a flexible military force capable of quick response.

Canada's part in the Zambian oil airlift "clearly demonstrated the effectiveness" of the armed forces to meet contingencies.

MISSES MORALE

Mr. Harkness, member for Calgary North, said the Hellyer speech avoided the crux of the defence situation—armed services morale.

Highly-trained officers, NCOs and specialists were among the 600 men a month the services were losing.

An illustration of the decline in morale was that 13,142 men had left the services since the Liberals took office in 1963.

Both Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Harkness spoke in the last hour of debate Thursday night and serious ear-to-ear combat on the estimates will begin today.

The Hellyer speech said more recruits are going to be needed in the next four or five years than for some time because of the number of veterans retiring.

"We fully realize that we have to compete for manpower in a booming economy," Mr. Hellyer said.

The subject of pay and allowances was under active study. But Mr. Hellyer practically invited suggestions from MPs on how to solve the labor problem.

He could get them in spades.

END TRANSPORT STUDY

The Commons spent seven days debating transport estimates and MPs ended by advising Transport Minister Pickersgill that they will have "a Pandora's box of questions" when debate on the 1966-67 estimates rolls around.

Since Parliament assembled Jan. 18, external affairs and transport estimates for 1965-66 have been approved with those of 25 more departments, including defence, to come.

The whole circuit must be made again for the 1966-67 fiscal estimates.

During transport, the Opposition poured a torrent of criticism on the CPR. It was partially staunched by the fact that the Commons committee on transport will delve into the

Will To Fight Is Essential In Viet Nam War - - Taylor

PROBLEMS OF WAR FOR A CHILD — A Vietnamese child clings to his bound father who was rounded up as a suspected Viet Cong guerrilla by "Operation Eagle's Claw" in the Bong Son area, 280 miles northeast of Saigon. The father was taken to an interrogation camp with other suspects rounded up by U.S. 1st Cavalry Division that conducted operation. (AP Wirephoto)

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — More American troops will be sent to South Viet Nam where the tide of battle has improved "very much," a special presidential adviser predicted to the Senate foreign relations committee Thursday.

Retired Gen. Maxwell Taylor, calling his lengthy testimony his personal views, said how many more men will depend on North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong insurgents and their will to continue fighting.

In a televised session of nearly 6½ hours, the continuing debate on the past, present and future of American policy in Viet Nam produced some sizzling exchanges.

Taylor said solid support at home for the American effort in Viet Nam is an essential element in a successful conclusion here.

North Viet Nam and China think the United States will tire if the war continues long enough, said the former ambassador to Saigon and chief of the American general staff.

He argued—drawing spirited rebuttal—that the French withdrawal from Viet Nam in 1954 was motivated more by a softening of will in France than by such military setbacks as Dien Bien Phu. In rebuttal, he was told that Premier Pierre Mendes-France had a mandate to end the war and did so.

TODAY—RUSK

Today, State Secretary Dean Rusk goes before the committee to give fresh support to the policy of expanding American ground forces in South Viet Nam and bombing the north.

No large increase above the present 205,000 troops will be necessary, Taylor predicted, if the current rate of 17,000 casualties a month can be inflicted on the Viet Cong for the rest of the year. Theoretically, that should drain the north of troops, he suggested.

In other Viet Nam developments, Secretary - General U Thant of the united Nations called for scaling down the war's pace and for another halt in the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

A special House of Representatives report said there is no "definitive ending" visible in Viet Nam, where the south now seems to hold an edge in a stalemate, without a major change in U.S. strategy and the scale of the fighting.

Taylor said he favors a slow but steady increase in the bombing of the north, hitting power, petroleum and other military targets.

CHINA NO THREAT

As for the danger of a war with China, a key concern for most senators questioning the American role, Taylor discounted it under present conditions.

Under questioning, he agreed that the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur had been dead wrong in Korea in believing the Chinese would not intervene if United Nations forces drove towards the Chinese boundary.

He also agreed that the United States cannot intervene in all future cases where it thinks a Communist-inspired war of national liberation exists.

"We are not and can't be the gendarmes of the world and we will have to use awfully good judgment in which challenges to meet," Taylor said.

"Selection in applying our resources in future is going to be a major problem for the government." There might have to be a limit of two or three interventions at any one time.

Taylor's toughest exchange came with Senator Wayne

Viet Cong Is Set Up Like Govt.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Evidence at hand and past experience indicate that if the United States dealt with the Viet Cong's political front, it would be negotiating with what amounts to a shadow government prepared to take over in South Viet Nam.

The Mat-tran Dan-toc Giai-phong is organized as if it were the government of a sovereign nation with president, cabinet sentatives abroad and even regular army and police.

In English it is called the National Liberation Front for South Viet Nam. In propaganda it is known by its initials: NLFSV. It has its own flag—red and blue as distinguished from the red flag of North Viet Nam.

The manner of organization recalls classic lines devised by Communists for forces whose ultimate purpose is to develop a nation. Guerrilla and underground organizations have been set up elsewhere the same way for years.

CLAIMS VOICE

The front and Hanoi insist that South Viet Nam's affairs must be settled "in accordance with the program" of the front, which claims a decisive voice as the south's "only genuine representative."

That program was written at the time the front was formed, probably in September, 1960. Its existence was announced in December, 1960.

The program promises practically everything the ordinary people of such areas might yearn for.

The program calls for unity against the foreigner, in this case "the colonial regime of American imperialism." It pledges a liberal, democratic, regime. It promises an independent economy improved living standards, land reform and reduced land rent, distribution of land to peasants who work it and displacement of all landlords.

The program promises culture

Ignoring Licence Suspensions Brings Jail Up to 4 Months

Belleville drivers caught using their cars while their driving licences were under suspension yesterday got short shrift from Magistrate Phillip Baker.

Yesterday afternoon he sentenced one man to 45 days and another to three weeks in jail for driving in the city while their licences were suspended. Their cars also were ordered impounded.

Earlier in the day, he jailed a Bowmanville youth for four months on the same offence.

Maxwell R. Bone pleaded guilty to the charge, laid after police stopped him for driving at 46 miles an hour on College Street, then discovered Bone had received notification only four days earlier of his suspension for impaired driving.

"Here you were going through a radar at 46 miles an hour," said the magistrate. "It's unbelievable. If you were trying to escape the detection of the police you certainly went a good way about it."

He noted Bone had been convicted only six weeks before he was caught.

"The thing that bothers me about this is the nearness to the conviction date," said the magistrate. "It's almost a complete defiance of the court. You will be sentenced to 45 days and the car will be impounded for three months."

The second Belleville man to plead guilty on the charge was George Lorne Masterson, who had not obtained insurance after his suspension had terminated. (By Ontario law, until proof of financial responsibility is shown, a licence is indefinitely suspended.)

Masterson was dealing with an insurance company when he was arrested driving his car on January 25.

"Taking all things into account you'll be sentenced to 21 days in jail," said Magistrate Baker.

Masterson's car also was impounded for 21 days.

Later a police officer said Masterson had asked for a lawyer to see if he could appeal the sentence.

War Between NATO Powers, Soviet Bloc Remote - - Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons moved into study of 1965-66 defence spending Thursday night with a speech by Defence Minister Hellyer that depicted the integration program and capabilities of the forces in glowing terms.

Mr. Hellyer said the "sweeping changes" set out for his department in a white paper two years ago are being achieved. The improvements defence integration was designed to bring—better operational capability of all forces at less cost—are coming about, he said.

Possibility of war arising directly between the NATO powers and the Soviet bloc "is remote and would be disastrous for East and West alike," the minister said. But the political problems in this area had not all been solved and Soviet military power was being strongly maintained.

Canada thus continued to regard her membership in NATO and military support to it as important.

"It is clear that instability in other parts of the world has and will continue to result in conflicts which can endanger our security," Mr. Hellyer said.

Such situations pointed up the need for military forces able to respond quickly and flexibly to meet a variety of demands, the minister said. "I am satisfied that we are well along the road" to achieving such a highly mobile military arm.

The new CF-5 jet fighter would help this force's capability and flexibility, he said. Acquisition of the Voyageur helicopter and Buffalo troop transport also would help.

Two brigades of a special force would be trained to act as the land force for this command with an additional airborne group for added flexibility, Mr. Hellyer said.

Only Minor Boundary Changes Proposed in Ontario Ridings

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario redistribution commission reported to the legislature Thursday for the second time in little over a year, proposing only minor changes to riding boundary lines submitted in 1965.

No changes were made in the three-man commission's recommendation for the creation of nine new ridings, increasing representation in the 108-seat legislature to 117.

The commissioners were asked by the legislature last [illegible] to reconsider their report [illegible] members criticized them for arbitrarily drawing boundary lines to meet population requirements.

The first report, brought in Feb. 3, 1965, created 13 new ridings but wiped out four existing ones for a net gain of nine. Three of the disappearing ridings were in the Toronto area and the other on Lake Huron.

Northern Ontario gained three new ridings, the Niagara peninsula two, and the Lake Ontario area between Hamilton and Toronto two.

Single new ridings were created in the Chatham-Windsor area, Hamilton, Toronto North, Kitchener - Waterloo, Oshawa and Ottawa.

The shuffle in the City of Toronto combines these nine ridings — Bellwoods, Bracondale, St. Andrew, St. Patrick, St. George, St. David, Riverdale, Beaches and Woodbine — into six. They are Bellwoods, St. Andrew-St. Patrick, St. George, St. David, Riverdale and Beaches-Woodbine.

Premier Robarts did not indicate in the legislature what course of action the government will take on the redistribution report. The house could either debate it or a bill could be brought forward based on it, he said.

The commissioners were Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson of the Supreme Court of Ontario; Prof. R. Grant Crawford of Queen's University, and Roderick Lewis, clerk of the Ontario legislature and the province's chief election officer.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance will move across the lower lakes today. Snow associated with this disturbance is quite light and only small accumulations are expected. Skies will clear this evening but another weak disturbance with light snow is forecast to move south of the lakes tomorrow.

Northern Ontario will remain in the grip of the bitterly cold air mass for several days. However, winds will decrease and skies will remain sunny.

Sold Government Land - - - To Government

Nigeria Staging Campaign Against Corruption

LAGOS (AP) — The military regime has opened a campaign to rid Nigeria of corruption which wasted many millions of pounds in the five years since independence.

The campaign ranges from a crackdown on those who try to bribe traffic policemen to a review of tariffs rigged by crooked cabinet ministers to protect their own business interests.

Shocking tales of official graft circulated before Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa was killed and his government overthrown last month. Foreign businessmen planning investments here found they had to accommodate cabinet ministers and their friends with "dash" (bribes), jobs and special favors.

"You can't buy a Nigerian cabinet minister," said one foreign executive, "but you can rent them for the afternoon."

High government officials specialized in real estate deals. Some of the profits were cached in numbered Swiss accounts.

Reclaimed swampland in Lagos somehow fell into the hands of cabinet members who sold it to the government although it was government property in the first place.

Corruption was not limited to political figures. Tourists found customs agents at Lagos airport had a sliding scale of bribes to overlook duties on some articles.

Waiting lists for telephones and other services could be avoided by offering "dash."

This lower level grafting has not disappeared and likely will be harder to eliminate than big-time chicanery.

Julian Gromer Presents The Grand Tetons At B.C.I. Auditorium

By A. HENDERSON

Among the many fine travelogues shown at the Collegiate during the past series by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, none has surpassed "The Grand Tetons" as presented last evening by Julian Gromer, for clarity of color, subject composition, and the delightful narration which accompanied it, enhanced now and then by a sly 'quip' making the portrayal both educational and delightfully interesting.

The Teton mountains, a chain running along the Snake River (so called after an Indian tribe) rise abruptly from the water's edge, without foothills, near Yellowstone National Park and reflecting their snow-crowned heads in the waters of the lakes below, in scene after scene, each one seemingly more lovely than the one before.

COVERED WITH EVERGREENS

The mountain sides covered with evergreens, and gleaming white birch; gushing waterfalls racing down the glacier-torn cliffs to meet with others which ultimately mingle and flow into the great Pacific. Along the lower slopes were seen many lovely wild flowers, including the primeval lichens, and the mosses; the fringed gentian and the dandelion; the red velvety Indian paint brush; the colorful lupins and the mule daisy, so named because its leaves resemble the ears of a mule; the flea bane, and wild geraniums; the pink columbine and the trumpet flower, and at Lake Solitude was seen a little flower peeping through the pink snow, the shade of pink is thought to be due to the pink algae carried by the wind.

SURVIVAL SCENES

There were also scenes demonstrating how one should behave if lost in the woods: do not run around aimlessly, but choose a spot, and make a lean-to shelter; build a fireplace, and a fire, Boy Scout fashion, by rubbing one rough stone against another till a spark is obtained; and if near a river, catch a fish, by means of a wooden hook from the right curved twig of a stout wood, and dig worms for bait ,or use a pant button, as the fish are eager for anything that shines.

Other food may be obtained from the root of the bulrush, and the water - lily bulbs, as well as from wild fruits. Whatever the birds eat, is safe for humans.

NATIONAL PARKS

Places visited along the way included the Teton and Yellowstone National Parks, which are a 'Mecca' for tourists since here are many types of entertainment, as well as delicious foods of many kinds. For $1.25 one may eat as much as he desires. On the Snake River rubber boats are used because of their lightness, and moveability; Speed boats also rush about at 80 miles per hour leaping over high swells caused by large boats. Water-skiing is also enjoyed on water that is 400 feet deep.

"The Church in the wildwood", called the "Chapel of the Transfiguration," was also visited, where, on looking through a window beside the altar, the distant snow-capped Tetons could be seen, bringing to mind the 121st Psalm (David's) "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."

LITTLE CHIPMUNKS

The pictures depicting the little chipmunks endeavoring to solve the mystery of the hidden peanut in a purposely-designed box, was entertaining, as that of the one endeavoring to reach the peanut on the dangling string, which somehow eluded the munk at every leap. But, like "King Bruce and the Spider," he refused to give up, and eventually won.

Other interesting scenes included the Dude Ranch; lessons on mountain climbing in two stages: those beginning went part way up, while those having more knowledge of the 'know-how', ascended to the top. Those climbing the ropes said it was hard going up, but frightening coming down, and were glad when they had "got to the end of their ropes."

Not to be omitted was the Rodeo, hilarious to the spectators, but earthshaking to those who attempted to ride the bucking ponies, as well as to the youngsters who tried to maintain their dignity, but lost it pronto and grovelled on the muddy earth.

BEAUTIFUL REFLECTIONS

An outstanding and exceptionally lovely scene was that of the reflections of silver birches in the gently rippling waters of the Snake River which caused their reflections to assume a curly appearance, much like the dandelion stems became when, as children, we made them curl. There was something most alluring about these reflections, as solemnizing, which tied in with the lovely poem with which the narrator gave as a fitting finale to a most beautiful travelogue, giving to God the glory for the wonders of the lofty hills, and the work of His hands, ending with the irrefutable declaration: "Yes, there is a God."

Mr. Gromer was introduced by John Trafford.

The sustained applause which followed the close of the travelogue testified to the appreciation of the huge audience.

Plans Mardi Gras Ball

The Royal Canadian Legion is staging one of the social highlights of the season at their Hall on Pinnacle Street on Saturday night. The Mardi Gras Ball will be staged and elaborate plans have been made to continue this event as an annual affair. An excellent orchestra has been secured and there will be a buffet supper served before the midnight hour.

R. R. Gryce Dies Suddenly At Court House

A 71-year-old man was fatally stricken with heart failure as he kept an appointment with his lawyer in Hastings County Court House this morning.

Robert Roy Gryce, 43 Murney Street, collapsed and died almost instantly as he entered the court house, Pinnacle Street entrance.

The entrance is approached by a series of steps and terraces from the street.

Mr. Gryce, a stationary engineer at Belleville General Hospital, was on his way to meet Picton barrister R. E. Nourse when he suffered the seizure. He was the plaintiff in a damage suit arising from a car accident and was scheduled to take an examination for discovery — a pre-trial meeting of both parties to a suit where opposing lawyers gather basic information on the action.

Found by a court house office worker, Mr. Gryce was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance.

Born in Brockville, he had lived at Madoc for some years before coming to Belleville. Prior to his employment at the hospital he had been a stationery engineer for 11 years at the Mead-Johnson plant in Belleville.

He was predeceased by his first wife, Pearl Beaudrie, who died 24 years ago. His second wife is the former Lillie Steed.

He leaves three sons and four daughters: Ronald, Belleville; Frederick, Toronto and Percy, Hamilton; Mrs. David (Leona) Fobert, Belleville; Mrs. Ernest (Jean) Pearson, London, Ont.; Mrs. Leslie (Bessie) Smith, Edmonton; Mrs. Wallace (Winnifred) Doxtator, Massassaga.

Also surviving are a brother, William, of Toronto, and 13 grandchildren.

Mr. Gryce was a member of Holloway Street United Church. His funeral will be held Monday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Given 3 Months For Dress Theft

Orville MacDonald, 41, yesterday was given three months imprisonment for theft of a $5. woman's dress from a Front Street store.

Police told Magistrate Philip Baker they found MacDonald in a downtown beverage room with dress — still on its hanger and marked down to $5. for a sale.

MacDonald had been drinking but was not intoxicated.

"I couldn't believe it the next morning when they said the charge would be theft. I couldn't believe I stole the dress," MacDonald said.

"You must be able to handle it pretty well," retorted the magistrate. "The officer said you weren't intoxicated."

Northumberland Remains as Provincial Riding

BRIGHTON — Northumberland County destined to be part of a new federal riding which takes in part of three counties learned Thursday it will retain its identity as a Provincial constituency just after the tabling of the special commission on re - distribution of electoral districts in the province of Thursday's session of the legislature. Northumberland MPP Russell Rowe of Cobourg expressed his pleasure at the report which retains the Northumberland County identification as a provincial seat. Mr. Rowe said "I am pleased to anounce that the report of the commission retains the historic County of Northumberland provincially. The same applies to Durham and Peterborough Counties. Three riding boundaries are affected by the proposed federal re - distribution as outlined in a similar commission report which tabled its report in the House of Commons prior to the last Federal election in June last year.

Behind the "Glass"

The junior curlers from Nicholson College, Quinte, BCI and Moira Secondary schools along with the Ontario School for the Deaf will take over the local curling rink on Saturday for their annual Pepsi bonspiel. They will compete for the Bill Spinelli trophy and accompanying prizes and no doubt during the day will be supplied with plenty of Pepsi Cola. There are 32 rinks entered and those who want to see some real promising curlers take a stroll up to the rink.

Denis Newman, Tom Ingram and Jim Stewart will be in charge of the draws and Mrs. Doris Petticrew and her ready helpers will try and satisfy the hunger of this happy group. Several stereos will likely be in action and between draws a little Go-Go may be on the program. The younger groups have a wonderful time at these spiels and the directors of the club are pleased with the response.

On the nine o'clock draw Tom Sheppard will meet Bruce Ullett, McConnell will tackle Robert Schuttz, Denis Lane will take on Wayne Goulet and Lynda Charlton and Rusty Clarke will tangle.

At eleven o'clock, David Henderson will square off against David Carson, Neil Duffy will take on Harold Geigel, Diane Petticrew will meet John Holyk and Carol Cleary will meet Terry Gerow.

Five Children Burn to Death In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Three rescue attempts failed to save five children from two families who died today when fire swept through their two-storey frame house here.

Dead are Stanley, 14, and Steven, 9, children of Mr. and Mrs. William Thatcher, and Kevin, 11, his sister Tracy, 6, and brother Matthew, 3, children of Mrs. Jean Paul.

Two other Thatcher children, Ron, 19 and Nancy, 16, escaped by jumping 20 feet to the street below from a second - storey window.

The parents were not at home when the fire started.

Ron Thatcher made the first rescue attempt, "but I couldn't get in. The flames forced me back."

The Thatcher youth, who turned in the alarm, said:

"I ran up and down the street pounding on doors for about 15 minutes before the people across the street let me in and I called (the fire department) for help."

A passing motorist, Jake Baranowski, spotted the flames.

Listowel Firm Has Low Bid To Clear Site

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission last night opened tenders for the clearing of a 35-acre site in Murray Township, where the commission intends to build a water storage pond. Lowest tender was submitted by a Listowel, Ont. firm, Mel Willis Construction, and the price was approximately $10,000 lower than engineers' estimates, $137,330, (estimates were $143,199.50). Prices from four other construction firms ranged from $187,000 to $243,000.

The Willis bid seemed to be in order, with a performance bond attached, and consulting engineers hired by the commission will go over the bid before submitting it for approval to the Department of Energy and Resources and the Ontario Municipal Board. (The department has approved a 75 per cent grant on the $472,200 job of clearing the land and building the pond plus a retaining dam along the new development road).

REPRESENTATIONS MADE

The commission also heard representations from council's finance chairman, D. R. Fraser, who asked that the commission prepare its five year capital spending budget by the end of next week and from two representatives of TV cable companies.

Frank Murray, manager of radio station CJBQ and a director of Cableview Belleville Ltd., asked commission approval for using utility poles to string cable for the TV service and O. J. Hanna, of Cable TV of Montreal, asked substantially the same. Whether or not either company gains permission to supply cable TV for the town hinges on approval of the Department of Transport, so the commission members came to no decision last night.

Mr. Murray said that his wholly Canadian owned company had already received approval of the D.O.T. to supply the city of Belleville with cable service.

Parade Will Open "Boy Scout Week"

TRENTON — A special service of worship dedicated to the Wolf Cubs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will mark the beginning of Boy Scout Week, held in honor of the founder of Scouting for Boys, Lord Baden Powell of Gilwell. The rapid growth of the 7th Wolf Cub Pack of Trenton from seven boys a little over a year ago, to a full pack of 24 boys is a tribute to the leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Bonin, and the members of the group committee of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. At the service on Sunday, several of the Cubs will be taking part, including David Rector who will lead in the repeating of the Cub promise; Cub Billy Fox who will give the Cub laws; Cub Robert Cameron and Akela Luke Bonin who will lead in Scripture reading. In place of the regular morning sermon, the minister, Douglas Wilson, will give a special talk to the Wolf Cubs on the subject "Follow Me", taken from our Savior's command to the fishermen disciples of Galilee.

A special feature of Boy Scout Week is the window display of the 7th Trenton Cub Pack in Carney's window on Dundas street where the handwork of the Cubs is shown. On Friday evening, the Group committee is sponsoring a parent-and-son banquet in the Sunday School room for the Cubs and a parent, following which a special program is planned which will be of great interest to each Wolf Cub.

"Better Living" Survey Planned

TRENTON — The Better Living Survey Committee, under the sponsorship of the Community Assistance Association met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. H. Smithrim to discuss plans for the forthcoming survey which is to be held in early May.

The aim of the survey is to promote better housing, and better social, health and recreation services in the town. Householders will be asked to give their views to canvassers on what the town needs in the way of these services. All answers will be kept in strict confidence.

For instance, does Trenton need medical or mental health clinics? Are there enough low rental houses in the town? What does Trenton youth need in the way of additional recreational facilities?

For the survey, 200 canvassers are needed. The drive for canvassers will start March 1. A recruiting office will be open during the last week of March. Canvassers will be given a few hours of training in early April.

In April also, the committee will arrange a public introduction to the survey in the community gardens. A panel will make presentations of the various social services. The public will be asked to attend this pre-survey meeting.

The great need now is for canvassers and volunteers may telephone Mrs. Frederick W. Love at 392-5881.

Seek Donations

TRENTON — A spokesman for the York Road neighbors of Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray Township said today all donations towards assisting the reeve to rebuild his barn, destroyed by fire last month, should be in by the end of this month.

Murray Township residents may send donations to the township clerk, Angus Gunter, and Trenton residents may donate at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in downtown Trenton.

Free Services At Gas Stations To Be Continued

Free services such as inflating tires, checking radiator and battery levels, will continue to [illegible]he motto of Belleville area gasoline service stations.

This was assured today following a Toronto morning newspaper report that one Canadian Tire gasoline bar in the Toronto area had started making charges for the above normally expected free services.

"It's all news to us, it doesn't apply here," stated the local Canadian Tire store manager which operates a service centre on East Dundas street.

The spokesman said that the above checks were all part of the service which customers expected and there was no thought of making a charge.

This also was the feeling of a number of other local service station operators who said the normal free services would continue to be given.

DC9 Features Speed, Comfort

Editor's Note: Sports Editor George H. Carver was a member of a news media party which was taken on a special flight on Air Canada's new Douglas DC-9 twin-jet aircraft.

ABOARD AIR CANADA'S DC-9 — Off we zoomed into the wild fog yonder from Toronto's mist-enshrouded International Air Terminal.

Air Canada's sleek, compact Jaguar of the airways lifted from the snow-slushed runway as lightly as a dandelion fluff.

Twin-jets crescendo'd from a purring warm-up to take-off speed scarcely heard by some 60 news media representatives aboard.

There was no physical sense of take-off. The snow-and-fog blurred airport buildings dropped away from us.

The weather was bad. Visibility was almost nil. The ceiling was 1,000 feet and a "mass of weather" up to 23,000.

There was a momentary flash of checkered fields and highways through the blur of weather, then the thick opaque of fog.

CRUISED AT 3,000

Minutes later we were "cruising" at 3,000 feet at 250 miles per hour. Operational maximum speed of the craft is 550 mph.

To me, it was a horse-and-buggy - limousine transition from the "Beep-Beep" airlines craft of my last trans-Atlantic flight.

We "slid" effortlessly through the foggy smog, flying, the captain informed us, by radar. Outside my window the world was a greyish solid opaque mass.

Inside the DC9 there is no noise. The jets are located near the tail of the aircraft. There is no "jarring or jolting." Brimming champagne glasses served on trays did not spill a drop.

We spoke in conversational tones. The only sound was the hum of talk.

The bucket seats three abreast on one side, two on the other are the last word in comfort. They can be "tilted" at a sleep - easy angle. Overhead a push - button system gives three shades of light, oxygen and an emergency oxygen mask.

A flip of a finger provides varying degrees of temperature for your seat. Soft music is a melodic background. News flashes come at intermittent periods over the public address system. A small ivory shade table drops in front of the passenger for cards, writing and meals.

Three attractive hostesses in dark green uniforms with tall - crowned "fedora" hats looked after us. When airborne, they discard their tunics and hats and appear in lovely "cocktail blouses" topped with modern hair - dos which add a delightful touch of femininity.

It wasn't hard to accept the champagne they served during the flight.

The all-too-brief flight was the last word in aerial travel comfort with its arm - chair relaxation, no sense of speed and total lack of jar and noise.

The twin jets have a 12,000 pound thrust. An innovation on this type of craft is "brakes" on the wings to reduce landing speed. At the rear is an emergency exit in case the craft is grounded and fire breaks out forward.

Approaching the airport, we dropped from 3,000 to the 1,000-foot level before we broke the fogbank. Again flashes of checkered fields and highways as we "fluttered" gently to the landing strip. Contact was a scarcely noticeable "bump."

Speed, comfort and the efficiency of pure jet power will be extended to Canadian air travellers in April this year with the introduction of the DC9 on domestic routes.

The 72-passenger short-to-medium range twin jets will be introduced on a route between Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver on April 24 providing the first non-stop air service between Montreal and the prairie capital.

At the same time the airline will inaugurate three flights a day between Montreal and New York city with the sleek 550-mile-an-hour jet.

Flying times are two hours, 55 minutes to Winnipeg while Vancouver will be two hours, 45 minutes from Winnipeg. Flying time between Montreal and New York will be just one hour, 15 minutes with the latest addition to Canada's all-turbine fleet.

As additional aircraft are delivered, the airline plans to introduce a daily return service between Montreal, Toronto and Tampa, Florida and two daily return services between Toronto and Winnipeg.

It will take delivery of six 72-passenger DC-9's in 1966 and twelve DC-8's in 1967.

All aircraft employ a unique spray de-icing system for clearing surfaces of ice and snow.

Bilked Former Working Mate Of Over $1,000

A Belleville man who bilked an elderly former workmate of more than $1,000 yesterday was ordered to wait two weeks in jail while his sentence is pondered.

Leslie Potts, 43, former city works employee and taxi driver, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Phillip Baker to five counts of uttering forged cheques on the savings account of Clinton Hannah, aged about 60 years.

Potts cashed the cheques at the Bank of Montreal over a five-week period from November 12 to December 6 last year. They ranged from $125 to $310.

Detective Inspector Harold Reid said Potts had been with Hannah on public works crews when the man had given loans to Potts. Hence, said the officer, the accused man was familiar with Hannah's bank account.

Asked by Crown Attorney John Pringle if Hannah "was highly literate in being able to draw a cheque and issue a cheque" the officer replied:

"No, I would say he's very slow."

Potts, who admitted he was a heavy drinker, said he would reimburse his victim.

"There's not much to say sir," he told the bench. "I'm guilty. I know I could make remuneration to Mr. Hannah but it wouldn't be the whole thing at once."

The magistrate asked for a pre-sentence report to include a probe of the accused's drinking habits.

Pleads Guilty To Assault On Constable

A 23-year-old Belleville man yesterday was remanded in jail to await his sentence for a scuffle with a police officer that had unexpected consequences.

The constable later was found suffering severe kidney injury and is now under sedation and private-ward care in Belleville General Hospital.

Bruce Symons pleaded guilty to assaulting Constable George Cole when the officer stopped him for careless driving — and blamed his actions on the fact he had "a couple of drinks."

Testimony showed Symons was driving along Pinnacle Street with his windshield and car windows frosted over Tuesday night. His erratic driving caught the officer's attention who halted him after Symons' car headed into the sidewalk curb. When told he would be charged with careless driving Symons turned belligerent and had to be handcuffed. In the scuffle Cole was kneed in the back.

NOT INTOXICATED

Inspector Ralph Blatchford said Symons smelled of alcohol but was not intoxicated.

Later, Cole complained of being in pain and was admitted to hospital with kidney injuries.

Symons said he had never been in court before.

"What caused you to act in the manner you acted on this particular night?" demanded the magistrate.

"Because I had a couple of drinks sir," said Symons.

"The officer has given evidence you weren't intoxicated," said the magistrate.

" . . . I didn't take any tests sir," replied the accused.

"I want to get more information on this matter," said Magistrate Baker. "Remanded to February 24."

"Is there any bail sir?" queried Symons.

"No sir," concluded the magistrate.

Some 500 New Building Lots Created in Belleville Region

An indication of the rate of growth of Belleville and the surrounding area was given in the annual report of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, tabled at the Board's regular meeting last night.

In the planning area, consisting of Belleville and adjacent parts of Sidney and Thurlow, 157 new lots were created during 1965. Tentative approval was given to the creation of an additional 65, and 230 are under consideration.

In these parts of the planning area not under subdivision control no definite figures are available, but the Board knows of at least 300 additional residential lots created during the year.

The report called for the development of "progressive planning policies in view of the potential growth in the planning area" and for "a greater degree of inter-municipal co-operation."

Final recommendations on the Turnbull Street senior citizens' housing were sent to City Council. Mayor Jack Ellis said a tender call on the units may be possible by April 1. He set late fall as a tentative date for completion of the building complex.

APPROVE SHOPPING CENTRE

Following a brief public hearing, the Board gave final approval of contractural rezoning of the north west corner of North Front and Donald Streets to permit erection of a shopping centre. Mr. A. Storey, representing the developer, Mr. S. Spiegel, spoke in favor of the centre. One objection to rezoning, based on the fear of increased traffic congestion, was received from a resident of the area.

ISLAND UNZONED

Zwick's Island, site of the city's centennia, park project, will remain in its present unzoned state until an official plan is prepared, the Board decided. Planning director P. J. Beavis, in a report prepared for the Board of Parks Management, said "no harm will be caused to the public interest if it remains unzoned for the time being."

The city needs a site for a small pumping station to serve the Zwick's Island park. Best location is on nearby Bushy Island, now owned by H. McCabe and occupied by his fish processing plant. Present industrial use of the island makes the cost of acquiring a small portion for a pumping station too high for the city's budget. Because rezoning would increase the costs to the city, Alderman D. G. Joss suggested the Board file the report away and leave Zwick's Island an adjacent land-fill areas unzoned.

TO CLOSE TO LINE

Mr. Beavis told the Board that the Ontario Municipal Board had, in effect, sustained the Committee of Adjustment's decision that a carport at 325 Victoria Avenue contravened city by-laws. Mr. T. Neill built the carport within a foot of his side lot-line, then applied to the Committee of Adjustment for a sideyard variance. His application was turned down, and he appealed the decision to the Municipal Board. The Municipal Board dismissed his appeal. The carport's fate is now in the hands of city hall staff and its solicitor.

Developers of Hastings Pleasure Gardens have been offered the services of the Planning staff should they want technical advice, Mr. Beavis said. He said it was his personal opinion that, "if the project goes forward on the scale envisaged, water, supply sewers, parking, and surface drainage may present problems."

Purchasing Agents Hear Of Education and Industry

The members of the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario held their regular monthly meeting at the 401 Motel, Kingston, where the management of their companies were guests. This was the annual meeting of purchasing officers from companies covering an area from Trenton on the west to Smiths Falls on the east.

Bill Templeton, professional development counsellor said the dynamic nature of business progress today is placing heavy demands on management of industry, for up - to - date methods, the best equipment and above all education.

President Leroy McBrien, Mead Johnson of Canada, Ltd. Belleville, gave a brief summation of the progress of the Association from its formation in 1951 with 35 members to a present membership of 58.

Peter Stalker, chairman of education, reported on progress of the value analysis competition, where each member is expected to present a cost saving suggestion.

"Education and Industry" was the timely subject of the guest speaker, Mr. D. W. Patterson, Inspector of Schools for Eastern Ontario. He stressed the need for guidance from all walks of life in the placing of students on a job after they have left school or completed their education in a secondary school. He mentioned that approximately 10% only of the persons attending schools today would further their education by attending a college or university.

The Department of Education is working towards developing skills in those who are emotionally handicapped or show retardation in learning. This is proving most successful.

Mr. Patterson was very emphatic on the point that education is everyone's responsibility. "Consider the cost per year to give a young man a vocational education, whereas the upkeep of a young man in a penal institution is $2500, he said.

NEED FLEXIBLE POLICY

The lack of opportunity to develop talents of their own is a frustrating fact for many young people leaving school today, and guidance of these people to help themselves by their own efforts is one of paramount importance, he said.

Industry must use a more flexible and imaginative selection pattern when hiring and it has been proven that on the job training, in many cases with people of mediocre education, has proven more successful than hiring a person with a degree.

There is a definite lack of understanding between the Department of Education and industry on just what each has to offer. It has been suggested that industry should co-operate more with the Department in their selection requirements.

Persons attending from the Belleville area were: F. W. Newman and F. C. Ethier (plant manager), Stewart Warner Corp. of Canada Ltd.; D. A. Laundry and J. L. Acton (secretary-treasurer), Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., E. E. Palmer and F. B. W. Sheffield (materials manager) Northern Electric Co. Ltd., P. Stalker, P. R. Huddleston, V. L. Tax Spectre

Revenue Minister Benson's planned 9½ per cent increase of spending to $9,318,224,878 in the fiscal year 1966-67 is very much in line with the times.

Some examples of the increases in federal spending are a boost of $11,304,807 for a total of $1,035,000,000 in defence expenditures; family allowance payments up $6,500,000 to $559,500,000 and smaller increases in CBC and Centennial Commission spending.

Other proposed expenditures include a further $10 million set aside for work on the Prince Edward Island Causeway, and $1,208,500 for the initial pilot project of the Company of Young Canadians.

Some unexpected decreases leaven the whole, however. They include a drop in the Labor department budget to $10,513,400 from $150,171,100, resulting from the transfer of manpower services to the new manpower department. However, the budget for the latter is likely to make up the difference.

Foreign aid has been reduced by $6,500,000 to $84,100,000.

On the inflationary side again is $186,585,000 in payments to provinces for new technical training schools and related services, compared with $159,018,000 in the current year.

The big fear, of course, as far as the public is concerned, is whether these increased expenditures are going to mean higher taxes. Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's tax program will be in his budget, expected late next month or early April.

The fact remains that expenditure is rising in almost every sphere. Everything costs more, from food to television sets. On the national sphere are such considerations as defence and extravagant election gimmicks like the Prince Edward Island Causeway. The latter is the kind of project that could have been easily postponed.

If federal taxes go up soon, as provincial taxes have in Ontario, no one need be surprised.

On Toward 1984

The Christian church today might be forgiven for feeling it is fighting a losing battle against materialism and secularism. Modern developments in industry and science tend to lend credence to the theme, for example, of "Man and his World at Expo 67.

The world is drawing closer to the kind of society visualized by George Orwell in his startling novel, 1984, not only in terms of time as measured in years, but in spirit.

More and more we are becoming an automated, computer-run society. Today the machine is even being used to speed up and remove the uncertainty from the business of match-making. College kids are served up their dates by computers.

Fortunately, though, the age-old mystery of love still eludes the hard and fast dogma of the robot. The machine may be able to pair up the young people according to their personalities and tastes. But after that they are on their own.

Yet, are we not getting too close to 1984 for comfort? The churches are still attended by substantial numbers of people, but for the clergy is it not a case of "preaching to the converted?" What about the great mass of people who do not attend church, either because they are caught up with a growing trend of disbelief or because they feel the church no longer has a message for them? And those who do go, the "converted" as we have termed them, is the word of God, as it relates to a swiftly-changing world, getting across to them?

Canon R. F. D. Wright, of Belleville, is one who has affirmed his belief in eternal values. "The church is dying — that it may be reborn," he told Belleville Rotarians recently.

Thus, while acknowledging that the Godlessness of an automated age is battering at the gates, he was certain that in the ultimate it would not prevail. Rather, righteousness and faith, and belief in a supreme being would triumph.

Other leaders of the church have been indulging in some soul-searching lately. The Rev. Ray Hord, secretary of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service, said recently that the church is confused by the sociological changes occurring in Canada, the proponents of the "God-is-dead" theology, and "the new morality."

But he too is sure that in Christianity lies man's mankind's only salvation. At the same time he said the church must become more involved with man and his world.

"No longer can theologians develop their systems in library or ivory tower but, through prophetic involvement in the social and political activities of our time . . ."

And in this statement is the crux of the challenge before the church. The Christian ministry cannot afford to remain aloof from the extraordinary challenges facing mankind today. Too much is happening, and too swiftly, affecting the moral and spiritual and material welfare of people, that this may be regarded as the greatest era the church has ever faced. The church may be bowing under the pressure — even dying, as Canon Wright put it, but the opportunities for its rebirth, as evidenced by the challenges of our time, are unlimited.

Trade With Britain Reviewed

Ottawa Journal

Trade Minister Winters as a businessman can do no less than pay prompt attention to the complaints of Britain, a very good customer.

The British irritation over what they consider unfair Canadian treatment of their exports is real and sustained. Lord Brown, Minister of State at the Board of Trade whose chief concern is exports, recently made a hard speech to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in London in which he said:

"My job involves many visits to British companies but when I raise with them the issue of exports to Canada I am constantly faced with details of nagging difficulties which on investigation usually prove to be very real. Now Canadians have often said to me 'British companies often don't seem to realize how important the Canadian market is.' I would respond by saying 'I wonder if the Canadians really realize just how important Britain is as a Canadian customer."

Canadian exports of manufactured goods to Britain are about 30 per cent higher than they were a few years ago and Lord Brown suggests their path has been easier than those of British exports entering Canada. In any event, Britain's share of the Canadian import market has dropped from 10 per cent in 1961 to less than eight per cent. Her deficit in trade with Canada in 1965 was $750,000,000 and she is concerned that Canadian concessions granted her under the Customs Act are not being administered as expeditiously as she hoped.

In Lord Brown's words is the suggestion that unless British exports enter Canada more easily it can become more difficult for Canadian goods to enter Britain. Trade with Canada is responsible for 28 per cent of the total British trade deficit. Mr. Winters, as a businessman, has had experience in dealing with dissatisfied customers. Here is one that demands his attention or Canada may lose valuable trade.

Strictly Personal

Gossip a Symptom of Vanity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Shortly after the French election, some visitors from Paris were discussing at dinner the personal morality of one of the candidates, with several scabrous accusations flying wildly about the table.

Most such gossip, I am convinced, is not so much a symptom of the world's wickedness as of its vanity. Some gossip comes from spite or malice, but the greatest share comes from a deep desire to seem important. People will say shocking things about celebrities they have never met, not because they dislike them, but simply to impress their audience.

It is a form—and more pernicious form — of name-dropping; only, in the case of gossip, the name is not so much dropped as thrown up for grabs by someone who wants desperately to seem in the know.

This is most obvious, and most flagrant, in the case of theatrical celebrities. During my more than 20 years of tenure as a drama critic, I have been solemnly assured that 98 percent of the personages in the theatre are alcoholics, dope addicts, psychotics, perverts, and almost any other unspeakable epithet you could think of.

And I have heard these slanders about many men and women I have known personally, who were models of rectitude to the point of dullness. It does no good to challenge such statements, for the gossipers assume one is merely "defending a friend."

Almost all this dubious, and downright false, information comes from people who have never met the luminaries they so vulgarly malign, but this makes no difference to them. The need to seem superior is so intense in some personalities that the only way they can associate themselves with the celebrated is by smearing their names in the dirt.

Even when there is no dirt involved, many people simply enjoy pretending to others that they know more about the private tastes and tendencies of the famous than they really do. One innocent example was President Franklin Roosevelt's reputed fondness for the song, "Home on the Range," which visitors to the White House said he admired. Actually, he hated it, and winced every time it was played in his presence.

The need to be in the know reminds me of a characteristic anecdote told by George Arliss in his autobiography. While playing "Disraeli" in Boston, he hurt his hand and for several weeks played the part with his right arm in a sling.

Audiences were surprised to see this, and it gave rise to much discussion between the acts. Arliss got frequent reports of people saying, "Why I never knew Disraeli used only one arm," and almost invariably a "well-informed" friend would reply, "Didn't you? Oh, yes, he always carried his right arm in a sling!"

On Youth and Discipline

Derniere Heure, Montreal

Grants to schools and universities are increasing at a phenomenal rate; scholarships multiply; organization to modernize teaching at all levels accelerates and perfects itself to such a point that it's a true revolution.

Never, therefore, has youth been the object of so much solicitude by the public powers; also, never has the insolence and agitation of irresponsible student groups been as rife. Certainly youth has always been active. Each of us at university was an active or passive witness to noisy marches and fracases that were more or less innocent; but we also knew that "it's by smithing that one becomes a blacksmith" and that the world owes us nothing if we have nothing to offer it in return. In a word, nothing, absolutely nothing, can replace the law of labor.

It is possible that the principle of authority has been destroyed in whole or in part by the holders of authority themselves. This perhaps begins in the home. The head of a household has in general lost the notion of being a head. Theories said to be psychological and psychiatric have led teachers to direct by flattery and laissez-faire rather than by firmness. Our politicians have manoeuvred in such a way that youth believes it has all the rights and none of the duties, that all is free and that the law of labor is replaced by that of least effort.

The present mentality has other causes. . . . We have even succeeded in making the infants believe it is up to them from now on to teach their fathers how to produce children. . . . They should be told: "My little man, youth is neither a profession nor a way of life. It is transitory. When you are 40, unless you are an idiot, you will look at yourself as you were at 20 years of age and say:

"'How ignorant and stupid I was.'"

Fading Away Not for Him

What a man is George Pearkes who'll be 78 on Feb. 26 and is going back to work as Lieutenant Governor of BC after a bout of illness'

He is, formally, Maj.-Gen. the Hon. George Randolph Pearkes, VC, PC, CB, DSO, MC and he came to this country from England at 18, homesteaded in Alberta, joined the Mounted Police, saw service in the Yukon and enlisted in the army as a private in January, 1915. He was a lieutenant-colonel when the war was over, having won the VC at Passchendaele and other awards for courage and ability. He was a brigadier when the Second World War came and took an infantry brigade overseas and rose to be major-general. He left the army and was elected to Parliament in 1945, becoming Minister of National Defence in 1957 and lieutenant-governor in 1960.

Enough in that for a couple of books of adventure, but George Pearkes is too busy for books. It's just back to work, at 78.

Sound Therapy Is Form Of Heat Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the ultrasonic sound therapy for treatment of arthritis. — G. H.

• • •

I can explain a bit about it except why it helps arthritis. We know that heat helps ease the pain of arthritis. But exactly why it does is another question.

We know from experience that a heating pad or a hot bath gives relief. We know that sometimes a hot climate makes sufferers feel better insofar as creaky joints are concerned!

Well, sound waves can create heat, too.

As to ultrasonic, it is a pitch too high to be heard by humans. You doubtless know about special whistles that are used to call dogs. The pitch is too high to affect our ears although the sharp ears of dogs can hear the "whistles."

Sound is a vibration. For ordinary speech, it is vibration of the air, yet if we are under water and something makes the water vibrate, we can hear the sound. Sound can penetrate anything which can vibrate. Sound is a certain type of movement and movement represents energy.

If you whack the outside wall of a galvanized iron shed with a hammer, it makes a lot of noise on the other side of the wall — especially to a person who may be inside the shed. The vibrations travel through the galvanized iron.

But back to ultrasonics — a low note from the Buffalo Bills is a slow vibration, a low-frequency note. A high, squeaky note as when Jack Benny plays "Love in Bloom," is a high-frequency note.

Very high frequency sounds—ultrasonic — can penetrate the body. We can't hear them but the vibrations make the tissues vibrate, and the vibration causes friction and heat.

So ultrasonic waves penetrate and cause heat as deep as two inches below the surface of the skin. It is possible to aim these sound vibrations very accurately.

Arthritis isn't the only ailment helped by the form of "penetrating energy," but it is the principal one.

As I said, I can't explain why this deep heat does so much good, but it does. Other forms of heat whether from the sun, a hot water bottle, a heating of exercise, also help. But pack or even the warmth that's a brief explanation of ultrasonic treatment. It puts the heat down into the joints.

Dear Dr. Molner: My father has very bad sinus trouble and is taking allergy shots. He has done everything except get rid of his cat, a long-haired Persian which he brushes and fondles continually.

I don't believe he has told his doctor about the cat, but he has lots of confidence in you, and never misses reading your column. Can cats help cause sinus trouble? — Mrs. a. n.

Yes, sometimes, because allergy is often a factor and animal danders are an allergen which affects quite a few people. Won't dad let you board the cat out for two or three weeks to see whether its absence makes a difference? In any event if he won't tell his doctor about the cat, you should. Desensitizing treatment may be possible based on that information.

• • •

Note to L. K. No, so far as we can determine, psoriasis is not due to allergy.

First-born Are Brainy

Windsor Star

Two separate studies in the United States indicate that first-born children are, on the average, significantly smarter than those which come along later. One of these, in a survey of two-children families, finds that in scholarship two-thirds of the brightest were first-born. And, in three-child families, 52 per cent were first-born.

There is nothing new in the theory which these figures support. It was evolved back in 1874 by Sir Francis Galton, an Englishman who made a study of heredity and is regarded as the father of the science of eugenics.

Stastistics in this, as others involving human elements, must be taken with a grain of salt. There are plenty of exceptions to the rule above and below. We know one man, prominent in Quebec affairs, who was the 17th child and he undoubtedly possesses an unusually fine mind. He wryly admits he doesn't believe in birth control. Had it been practised, he wouldn't be here!

MP's Phone Concession

Kitchener Waterloo-Record

Not a dissenting vioce was heard in the House of Commons when Parliament adopted a measure providing free telephone long distance calls for members of the House.

Perhaps free is the wrong word. Obviously the Canadian taxpayer will have to pay for the service, which represents an additional bounty, taxfree, to the MPs.

They already get $12,000 a year subject to tax, $6,000 free of tax, unpaid air tickets once a week to their constituency, unlimited free transportation by rail and free mailing privileges. The total worth of all these extras, it has been estimated, raises the real salary of an MP to about $23,000.

Just an Old Wives' Tale

Vancouver Province

The Tracers Company of America, which specializes in finding runaway husbands and offspring, has some statistics which raise hob with the "other woman" theory.

Of 35,560 American husbands who fled wife and fireside last year, says the company, only one per cent did so because of another woman. Most of them were running away from their mothers-in-law and debts.

The message for worried wives is obvious: Don't blame George's pretty secretary or the divorcee down the street if you suspect he's saving up for a one-way ticket to Mexico. Take a look instead at Mother and your budget!

If the former is too close and the latter too far out, then family unity is indeed in peril.

Mothers-in-law are already a much maligned group, and it seems a shame to heap more coals on their heads. But there it is. "Cherchez la femme" is out, and those mother-in-law jokes are here to stay.

Chances are George doesn't plan to take his secretary with him when he runs away because he knows she has a mother, too. Ors else her credit rating is bad.

Expo Budgets Vary Greatly

Maclean's Magazine

—Perhaps the most interesting budgetary statistic about Expo '67 is not "how much" but "why?" exhibitors are spending assorted sums on pavilions at the fair.

Understandably, Canada is the biggest spender — $21 million. Equally logically, Quebec leads the provinces, $7 million. The reasoning behind the size of other allocations is anybody's guess:

Ontario has a $5 million budget, the same as that of the Scandinavian countries (Sweden, Norway, Finland, Denmark and Iceland) who are building a joint pavilion.

The Western provinces (BC, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba) and the Atlantic Provinces (NB, NS, PEI and Newfoundland) are spending each about the same as Switzerland and Austria — $1 million apiece.

Other big spenders are Germany and France who have budgets of about $9.5 million each. Britain has $7.5 million. Somewhere between Ontario and Quebec and the Western and Atlantic Provinces are Belgium ($3 million) and the Netherlands ($3.6 million).

Ides of March !

Ottawa Journal

They have a light touch with their political arguments over in Britain. The Guardian reports the following exchange from the meetings of Labor leaders at Chequers on Sunday:

Prime Minister: "Not if you include April in March.

Today in History

Feb. 18, 1966 . . .

George Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, was secretly executed in the Tower of London 488 years ago today —in 1478—by being drowned in a barrel of wine, according to tradition. He was in fact killed after being tried by the king and a "court of chivalry" and not, as Shakespeare shows it in Richard III, by his brother, Richard of Gloucester. Later historians found that Clarence's own way of disposing of people was to charge them with a capital crime and have them summarily executed before the news could spread.

Second World War

Cheese Truck Dumps Load on Top of Car

PICTON — It is not known if Mrs. Irene Thompson, 54, of R.R. 1 Demorestville is a lover of cheese but yesterday afternoon, she had four tons practically drop in her lap.

A freak car-truck accident which occurred just outside the village of Demorestville left the woman shaken but uninjured. She managed to crawl from the wreckage of her car unaided although the heavily laden truck was overtuned on top of the front portion of her car.

The truck, belonging to Kingston Creameries, was driven by 38-year-old William Perry of 31 Greer St., Kingston.

It is alleged that the Thompson car and the truck were proceeding in the same direction out of the village when in trying to pass, the truck struck the rear of the car, causing the rear windshield of the car to explode out and forced both vehicles into the ditch, with the truck landing on top of the car.

Both drivers were alone at the time of the accident which was estimated to be at 3.50 p.m. Thursday by the OPP Detachment at Picton who investigated.

Damage to the late model Thompson car was estimated at $1,000.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

"At least he claims to be a self-made man . . . I have someone who tries to pass the buck."

Gen. Howard D. Graham, Stock Exchange President, Will Retire on June 30th

TORONTO (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham will retire June 30 as president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, it was announced Thursday.

The 67-year-old former chief of staff of the Canadian Army declined to elaborate on his future plans other than to say he was looking forward to "a more peaceful period after June 30."

No successor has been named.

Gen. Graham said: "I never did intend to stay around the Toronto Stock Exchange too long. I stayed on until this time because I felt I would be able to help in some way in action taken on the Windfall and Kimber reports."

The exchange has been sharply criticized in financial and political circles following publication of the reports which uncovered many deficiencies in exchange operations.

The Windfall report, resulting from a royal commission investigation into the rise and fall of shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. on the exchange in July, 1964, suggested that the Toronto exchange operates as a private gaming club.

The Ontario attorney-general's committee under John Kimber investigated the securities industry and made recommendations for changes in the province's securities laws.

Last June, President Graham announced a "blueprint for the future" which was intended to clean up the public image of the TSE.

Primarily the blueprint called for exchange staff to take administrative power out of the hands of brokers in order to avoid conflict of interest charges.

Gen. Graham said at a press conference Thursday that in his 5½-year term as president one of the most important changes was the shift of administrative responsibility from brokers to the staff.

Marhsal Stearns, exchange chairman, said Gen. Graham has done a tremendous job since coming to the exchange and all members will be sorry to see him go.

STANDARDS RAISED

During Gen. Graham's term at the exchange it has become tougher for companies to get a listing, education standards have been raised for floor traders, companies with little in the way of assets have been thrown off the exchange, listed companies have been directed to make statements explaining unusual market activity and customers' orders must be given priority over traders' orders. Additionally, there have been technical changes regarding underwriting stock and professional trading.

Gen. Graham said after the announcement of his retirement:

"By nature I'm a very impatient man and if there was a major disappointment while I was president, it was that more hasn't been accomplished since I took over the job."

Playing Mining Stock Market Thing to Do in B. C. These Days

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Playing the market on mining stocks —or talking about it—is the thing to do in British Columbia these days.

You hear of the postman who made $200,000 on Pyramid, a Northwest Territories lead-zinc prospect that caused frenzied trading.

There is the old lady who picked up thousands of dollars of capital-gain cash from her broker and stuffed it in a bag, and the doctor who made $10,000 on a tip from a patient on Dynasty, a Yukon copper prospect.

At any party, the chances are there will be someone who has been, or will be, or thinks he is, in on a good thing. The talk is of making a killing, or at least a lot of money.

Not heard so often are stories of those who lost their shirts when the bottom fell out of a stock.

FEVER RUNS HIGH

Speculative fever is reflected on the Vancouver Stock Exchange where trading, mostly in mining shares, exceeded 300,000,000 for the first time in 1966. The total value of turnover was more than $300,000,000.

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C. Yukon Chamber of Mines, a clearing house of mining information, says the B.C. public has never displayed such interest in mining.

The market boom which is expected to continue throughout the year despite urgings of caution from some officials, is an integral part of the surge that has hit British Columbia and the Yukon and Northwest Territories mining in recent years.

As in the old Klondyke days, the boom is accompanied by a rush of fortune-hunters from the eastern side of the Rockies. They range from big corporations to sleazy promoters.

While authorities warn small speculators to study up on a stock before they plunge and to use only money they can spare, others say too much restriction will dry up the market.

WHOSE MONEY?

Who are the people who keep the market hopping?

A spokesman for one of the largest brokerage houses said the trading is about half by promoters and other professionals and half by the public.

"The little guy is coming in as never before. Where the hell he's getting the money, we don't know."

He said much money comes to the market from Eastern Canada. Then the easterners follow it out, like what they see and stay here. Some of the migrants are not considered desirable by those in the mining industry.

"But you have to have promotion," the broker said.

Mr. Elliott says most of the major mines in the province have been discovered by small companies or individuals, though eventually most wind up in the hands of major mining companies.

Big discoveries have been made by small outfits because they are venturesome and inclined to gamble, he says, and he looks on market speculation as healthy, provided there are controls.

"Mining is a game of chance," he says. "I think the public is ready to take the gamble. But they are entitled to all the protection they can get."

That way, the little company gets enough money to work a property that eventually would become a Craigmont Copper, a Brynnor Iron or an Endako Molybdenum, all now multi-million-dollar enterprises.

Allow Outsiders On TSE Board Exchange Plan

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange, in its continuing drive to improve its public image, Thursday, announced new policies and ideas following a meeting of members.

In a statement, the exchange said members had been told that the board of governors thought two non-brokers should be added to the board of governors.

The new governors would be selected by the membership subject to approval by the Ontario Securities Commission.

The exchange will change its professional trading rules, cutting the number of the professionals to 35 or 40 from more than 100 and increasing their responsibilities.

The professionals will be expected to maintain an orderly market in stocks by buying and selling for themselves.

Marshal Stearns, exchange chairman, said all details have not yet been worked out, but that the membership had approved broad principles for professional traders.

The exchange also said it would welcome the appointment of a member of the Ontario Securities Commission staff to the committee that reviews statements which listed companies are required to submit if they propose to make a material change in their affairs.

3 Congregations of Plainfield Pastoral Charge Vote to Unite In One United Church Body

In a vote held this week the congregations of the Plainfield Pastoral Charge of the United Church have expressed their support of a motion that will unite their three congregations into one church body on June 30th of this year. In a move which may set a pattern for this area, the members and adherents of Plainfield, Roslin and Bethel-Zion Churches have agreed that a committee of 30 people (ten elected from each church) will make the decision as to which one of their present church buildings will serve as the place of worship of the amalgamated congregation The committee will also make recommendations to the Official Board regarding expansion of facilities or buildings to meet the Christian Education needs of the new congregation.

The vote, just completed Wednesday evening, was conducted over two days "to enable all who wished to have opportunity to express their opinion". The motion of amalgamation, recently passed by the Board of the Church, required that at least 66 percent of those voting must be willing to support amalgamation; the requirement was exceeded.

The reasons given for the action that led to amalgamation were the increased difficulty for multi-point rural charges to get ordained clergy supply, the economy of maintenance and upkeep, and the increased facilities and opportunities available in a single church over a multi-church arrangement.

The amalgamation will still be subject to the approval of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church, but no difficulty is anticipated in getting this approval.

The minister of the pastoral charge, Rev. George A. Southall, expressed satisfaction at the outcome of the vote, and termed the decision of the congregations to be one of wisdom and vision.

Two Years in Prison For Man Jumping Bail

Failure to appear at his own trial for which a 60-man jury panel had been called sent a Belleville man to Kingston penitentiary for two years yesterday.

Robert Mondeville, 34 jumped bail before his trial for possession of burglary tools in June, 1965. He was missing until Saturday — when police arrested him in Trenton.

"Where were you in June?" demanded Magistrate Phillip Baker.

"I was out of town," answered Mondeville, who pleaded guilty.

"Alright," said the magistrate. "There'll be a conviction registered."

"As a result of his non-attendance at the general sessions (of the county court) in June there was a whole jury panel subpoenaed of some 60 jurors," said Crown Attorney John Pringle. "Costs alone for the jury amounted to over $300."

He revealed Mondeville, with a record dating from 1949 was actually to stand trial in November 1964 — but was given a sympathetic extension to June last year because he had broken his leg.

"He was accorded some defree of leniency due to his injury and violated that small item of trust that was placed in him," he said.

The magistrate said Mondeville's attitude "to the courts and society is quite clear."

"Laws don't apply to him as they do to other people — that's his belief. You'll be sentenced to two years in the Kingston penitentiary," he concluded tersely.

The Crown Attorney also revealed that Mondeville jeopardized his mother's property by jumping bail.

"She put up a house — it had a nominal value of $2,000," he told the magistrate.

However, he said, the Crown had made no move so far to exact the bail terms.

Failure to postpone the redistribution debate would embarrass the government because there is a question of the propriety of government going through more than 11 months of a fiscal year without parliamentary approval for its spending programs.

The government has been given money on account to the end of this month through interim supply bills. Although it is uncertain whether any law prohibits a government running to the end of a fiscal year on interim supply, it hasn't been done before.

Shrove Tuesday Pancake Contest Has Girls Giggling

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — Giggling and blushing, with frying pans in hand, the fleet - footed housewives and factory girls of Buckingham will race down the main street of their country town Tuesday in the third annual Shrove Tuesday contest with Bell's Corners, Ont.

And given any weather short of a deluge, about 3,000 of the Buckinghamshire community's 4,500 residents will be lining the street to spur on the competitors.

Buckingham's honor is at stake. The English town 50 miles northwest of here has won the two previous transatlantic races.

It's all very informal, Anthony Archdeacon, the friendly borough clerk of Buckingham, insisted in a telephone interview Thursday.

Recalling that a similar race has been going on for 16 years between the women of neighboring Olney and Liberal, Kans., he said with faint disapproval: "At Olney, they use starting pistols and they're terribly organized. For us, it's more of a lark."

RESULTS TELEPHONED

The race is run in both Buckingham and Bell's Corners, near Ottawa, against a stopwatch over approximately the same distance. The results are passed on by transatlantic telephone or cable and the town with the fastest time is the winner.

The 415-yard course usually requires little more than a minute to run. During the race, the runner has to toss her pancake at least once.

'Mind you, I wouldn't like to define a pancake for the purposes of the race—at least I wouldn't like to eat it after," the borough clerk said.

Pancakes have a long-standing connection with Shrove Tuesday, the day before Lenten fasting begins. In preparation times, all the butter and eggs in a household had to be eaten before Lent and pancakes seemed the best way to use them up.

Various rituals developed in England as a result of the combination of pancakes with the traditional revelry associated with Shrove Tuesday.

THROWN OVER WALL

In one town, for instance, a pancake is tossed over the local school wall and a guinea ($3.15) goes to the boy who gets the largest piece in the general scramble that follows.

The Pancake races seem to have originated in Olney, however. There, the housewives traditionally ran from their homes with pancake griddles in hand at the sound of the morning church bell, racing to the church to be the first to give a pancake to the bellringer. From that, apparently, the current races developed.

P.C. Women Hear Report From M.P.

The Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association had a report from Lee Grills, M.P. Hastings South at their regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Stuart Howell the president was in charge of the meeting.

The secretary Mrs. Haggarty read greetings from Mr. Grills and gave an outline of some of the business of the riding with which Mr. Grills had dealt.

Mr. Grills made representations to the C.N.R. and C.P.R. officials and then to Ottawa City Council and others officials in connection with train service to Ottawa, since established with three trains daily.

The residents of Thurlow had a problem over the calling service to Belleville and after consultation with Bell officials a free calling service and complete listing with Belleville came into effect February 6th.

Mr. Grills has been appointed to the Agricultural Committee and the National Defence Committee, as well as several caucus, committees.

Mrs. Harry Yorke submitted a report appointing various members as chairmen and poll workers.

The following were appointed: Ward 1, Mrs. H. McKay, Mrs. Meens, Mrs. Shore; Ward 2, Mrs. Maude Rollins, Mrs. Olive Patterson, Mrs. Vic White, Mrs. Lil Stenson; Ward 3, Mrs. D. Tugnet, Mrs. E. Ostrom; Ward 4, Mrs. Lil Mulholland, Mrs. Ruth Bateman; Ward 5, Mrs. Agnes Yorke, Mrs. Lil Jordon, Mrs. Shelba Cox; Ward 6, Mrs. M. McWilliams; Ward 7, Mrs. A. Dickens, Mrs. Lena Murray.

Co-ordinator of social activities is Mrs. Rose Locke.

Among various social activities the association will sponsor a St. Patrick's pot luck meal in March. An outstanding speaker will address the association April 19. A dessert bridge and euchre will be held in May, also a bus trip early that month.

A report regarding the national centennial project of the Macdonald-Cartier library endowed by the National Women's Conservative Association and supported by the Women's Associations in Hastings South was submitted. To date it is estimated that approximately $50 has been subscribed locally.

A letter from Mayor Ellis was read regarding participation in a centennial project in Belleville. This matter will be dealt with at the March meeting.

The meeting closed with the Queen.

Secretaries Very Much Dislike Beggar Roles

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a two-girl office and we have had it. Sue (for pseudonym) and I work for top-level executives whose incomes are way up there.

We don't mind doubling as waitresses (we make coffee every morning at 10:00 a.m. and again at 3:00 p.m.) nor do we object to washing the cups and saucers and bringing fresh cream every day, but when we ask the tycoons for $1 each on the first day of every month to pay for the coffee, sugar and cream we get dirty looks.

Sue and I ante up $1 each to pay for the coffee we drink. We don't resent the expenditure, so why do they? Any suggestions? — SAD SECS.

DEAR SECS: March in two strong and tell the bosses that you refuse to pass a tin cup like beggars every month. Ask for $12 from each of them now as their annual coffee assessment. If they refuse, close up the kitchen and take your break at the joint downstairs or next door.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl who needs a job. Here is why: I live in a house with 12 other people. Right now there are 19 people under this roof because my sister and her husband and their four children moved in. My brother-in-law was laid off and they were evicted.

I have three older sisters so I get hand-me-downs worn by three other people before they get to me. I haven't had a new dress in so long I forget what it feels like.

Last spring I needed a blue sweater for glee club. My dad said he couldn't spare the money so I had to drop out. He felt bad about it but there was nothing he could do. All the kids in the glee club knew why I dropped out and I wanted to die of shame.

Please don't suggest baby-sitting because my older sisters get first call on the jobs. The last time I got to sit was New Year's Eve.

Don't tell me to talk to my school counsellor because I am tired of having people feel sorry for me. What I need is a part-time job. — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE: I am going to suggest that you see the school counsellor and I hope you take my advice. Don't worry about anyone feeling sorry for you. If you don't feel sorry for yourself, people will admire your dignity and your willingness to earn your way instead of looking for handouts. Chin up. — and get moving.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son and his wife both work. June goes to her job at 7:30 a.m. and gets home at 4:30 p.m. Jim works from 5:00 p.m. until midnight.

Their little boy is not quite three years old.

Jim sleeps until noon, but the youngster gets up at 8:00 a.m. He's a good little boy and stays in his bed until his dad comes and gets him.

I would be happy to pick up the child in the morning and take him to my place until his mother comes home. He is no trouble and I enjoy him. Would I be an interfering grandma if I suggested it? — GRAM.

DEAR GRAM: I certainly feel sorry for the little guy from 8:00 a.m. until noon. How nice, however, to be able to spend several hours a day with his dad. Why not offer to come over and get your grandson about 8:00 and bring him back to his father at noon? This would not be interfering. It would be a generous offer and an excellent solution.

ST. JOSEPH'S C. W. L.

A short meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council was held in the Parish Hall last Monday.

Mrs. B. Beirne chaired the meeting. Because of the death of a relative, the president Mrs. D. Duminie was unable to attend and only the most necessary issues were dealt with. The spiritual convener Mrs. J. Hanley reported there would be a special program arranged for the Lenten season. It was noted that Mrs. Ellen Smith the new Captain of the Girl Guide Company would apreciate receiving help with the Guides.

Mrs. C. Murphy, bazaar convener reported Mrs. A. Dustin would co-convene the bazaar with her and that most of the booth conveners had been appointed. The bazaar will be held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday November 9th. The business meeting adjourned.

Mrs. C. Murphy introduced Mrs. R. Huffman the guest speaker for the evening, who spoke on "Citizenship" as it effects women. The speaker mentioned citizenship must involve taking part in legislative deliberations or judicial activities and could exist only in a free state. Women could participate by exercising their franchise, keeping informed on public affairs, by voting intelligently and could also offer themselves as candidates.

Organizations such as the C.W.L. could participate by raising the moral level of politics, demanding freedom from corruption, take stands on moral public issues, help integrate new Canadians and eliminate useless criticism with no alternatives offered. Women should ask themselves "how I or we could do something."

Mrs. Huffman concluded her remarks with several personal experiences and observations and mentioned the satisfaction she herself had experienced by participating in public affairs.

St. Andrew's WMS Marks 10th Birthday

A special program marked the 10th anniversary of the organization of the Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church at a meeting held this week in the church parlor.

Members of the Afternoon Auxiliary. W.M.S. and of the St. Columba Presbyterian Women's group were invited guests. The meeting was opened with a worship service conducted by Mrs. Cathy Allan and Mrs. Mary Miller, on the theme of the Presbyterian World Alliance held in Frankfurt Germany, "Come Creator Spirit."

With the assistance of five past presidents and executive members of the Evening Auxiliary, highlights of the years 1956 to 1966 were reviewed.

The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Athalie Read, who is a director of Christian Education for the Women's Missionary Society, W. D. of the Presbyterian Church. At present she is on her first furlough at home in Canada since 1961, when she began her work in the Essequibo River area of British Guiana.

Miss Read illustrated her address with many beautiful color slides and gave an intimate portrayal of the backgrounds and personalities of the rural women among whom she works. She spoke with pride of the authoritative role being taken by native pastors in the Church government and in education, and stressed the value of intercessory prayer to strengthen bonds between missionary teachers in their fields and the missionary study groups in churches in Canada.

Mrs. Jessie Craig expressed to Miss Read the appreciation of all present and stated that the address on British Guiana had added a new highlight to the history of the Auxiliary. Rev. A. Laurie Sutherland also voiced thanks to the guest.

Mrs. Esther Scott executed the musical arrangements for the program.

A social hour followed during which the decorative birthday cake was cut by Mrs. Betty Sutherland, honorary president of the Evening Auxiliary.

A New Straw Hat Can Lift One's Morale

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Just about now, with spring still tantalizing remote, a new straw hat can lift your morale several notches.

To a woman there's nothing odd about a straw hat in winter. Nor does it strike her as odd that felt appears in late August or coincides with the September fairs, usually held in oppressively hot weather. Men, however, seem to be astounded every year at this feminine idiosyncrasy.

So if you're planning to invade a millinery department, keep this rule in mind. This spring, hats are intended to fit in with the Total Look. Consequently you should take inventory of your actual or proposed [illegible]ing wardrobe and buy your [illegible] to consolidate the effect you wish to create. This isn't a season for impulse buying.

However, there are a few millinery trends to guide you. Off-the-face brims and shallow crowns are dominant. For one thing, they are youthful and, while fashion has placed a brake on the way-out young look of last year, there is still a certain youthful feeling even in the new elegance.

ROLLERS IN FRONT

Rollers are popular. Lily Dache creates a diamond-shaped roller of narrow straw braiding in a high swirled effect and Miss Mary uses criss-cross open straw braiding for a high-rise roller. Mr. John slits open the back half of a rounded poke bonnet brim and brings it forward to button under the [illegible] for a complete face [illegible]er.

In fashion again are large brimmed sailors, usually gripping the back of the head in a most precarious upward-pointing angle.

Turbans and scarf hats add a softness and individuality to your wardrobe. Turbans can even have a scarf tied around them to match your costume. Emme showed a cocoa-scarfed turban in the recent spring presentation by the Millinery Institute of America, held here. Sally Victor tucked a matching blue printed scarf around a plump circular turban, with the scarf end falling over one shoulder.

Mr. John placed a red-and-gold silk scarf down the back of a peaked visor hat. And Miss Alice interpreted a Foreign Legion cap with a buttoned-on scarf that covers the back of the neck and frames the face.

BONNETS ARE POPULAR

Last season's bonnets — or baby caps as they are being called now—and the type of hat worn by ballet dancer Nureyev are top favorites with the young fashionables. The bonnets, however, aren't only for the teens.

Sally Victor is quite partial to bonnets this spring—the bonnet styles seen on the children in famous paintings. Naturally Mrs. Victor's version is more sophisticated. But you should leave the real bow-tied baby caps for the extremely young and the teen-agers.

Emme especially likes flowered hats this spring. This is an individual taste. Flower hats do not dominate the fashion scene as they have in some spring seasons. Adolfo still prefers his helmets and stark shapes to complement the boyish Sassoon haircut with a slash of hair across one eye. Mr. John, usually an extremist too, has created this spring what is for him a most subdued collection of various silhouettes.

In millinery, it's certainly a spring to highlight your own individuality. But do remember, elegance goes with elegance and kookie styles definitely are for the teen-agers.

Susanna's Family Fare

COOL IT, FOLKS!

[illegible] Again: Did you know that [illegible]st of meat and butter cakes have a small peculiarity in common?

Immediately after cooking they both behave much better if permitted a cooling off period prior to handling.

The Sunday carver at the head of the dining room table will be indebted to you if you allow the roast to stand for at least 15 minutes before presenting it to him. During this period, the meat sets so that it carves much more easily — and certainly seems to go a great deal further as well.

Allow a butter cake to stay in the pan about five minutes before removing, then just see how obligingly it will turn on to a cake rack.

SEASONAL HINTS ON [illegible]USE PLANTS

The time has come for many house plants to take five.

During the late winter months a rest is in order, say the horticulturists. Nothing alarming, mind you, just a few simple suggestions:

Reduce watering this month and do not feed the plants, except in special cases where they are in bloom.

The amount of watering required for plants in clay pots and ones in plastic containers will differ, as the soil in plastic pots does not dry out as quickly.

The key, of course, is to only water the plants that have soil which is dry to the touch.

Remove all dead leaves.

Make a special point of inspecting for insect pests — if discovered early, they can be easily controlled.

The recommended adjustment for plants sitting in a window or near the light, is to give them a quarter turn every other day.

That's all folks. — SUSANNA

MARMORA — The annual grandmothers' meeting of the Catholic Women's League took place in Sacred Heart Parish Hall, Monday evening. Mrs. Breen O'Connor, president, welcomed the 50 members, including 28 grandmothers, present, and conducted the business meeting.

In connection with the World Day of Prayer to be celebrated in Marmora Free Methodist Church in the near future, Mrs. O'Connor and Mrs. Charles Lajoie offered to attend a meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Ritchie Wells.

An outline of the visit to the Parish by Sisters of St. Joseph, Peterborough, was given by Mrs. Paul Brady.

Members were asked to consider request by Rev. Father W. V. Hamilton, Diocesan Director, to take foster children into their homes.

The National C.W.L. Scholarship of $1,500 was explained by the education convener, Mrs. Donald Shannon, Sr.

Miss Gertrude Maloney showed a film from the National Film Board dealing with immigration and citizenship which proved of much interest.

The president urged members to attend the public educational lectures being given at the High School, the topic on Feb. 10 to be "A Fresh Look at Evolution" by Dr. Norman Radforth.

It was decided that two groups would convene the weekly euchre parties in an effort to increase attendance. Parties will be advertised on local radio stations as well.

Some changes were made in the groups and a motion was passed that group conveners hold positions for a period of two years.

After adjournment, Mrs. Charles Brady gave a talk on some of the history of the parish, tracing family relations of early settlers from Ireland. Mrs. O'Connor read an appropriate poem.

Prize-winning grandmothers in contests were: Mrs. Charles Lajoie for having the most granddaughters; Mrs. Donald Shannon Sr. for having the most grandsons; Mrs. Arthur Sheridan for having the oldest grandchild; Mrs. Dermot Bedore for having the newest grandchild, and Mrs. Bill Meehan Sr. for having birthday nearest meeting (Feb. 16).

During the lunch served by group 6, all the grandmothers were presented with boxes of Valentine chocolates.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Would appreciate a copy of your casserole dishes for the freezer. I read your column every day and enjoy it very much and get a lot of help from you . . . Mrs. D. P. P.

ANSWER:

. . . I do not have a large supply of recipes for casserole dishes for freezing but since I received so many requests for them after I barely mentioned some in a previous column I will go to work on more and give them in the near future. Meanwhile here is one that is tested and is a repeat from May, 1960.

BEEF AND BACON CASSEROLE (will freeze):

This is delicious. It will serve eight people economically for a dinner party or a family of four for dinner leaving enough for the next day's lunch or dinner.

In a large frying pan, cook 10 slices bacon until crisp. Drain. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons fat. Set aside for use later. Finely mince 1 cup onion and saute until golden in the 2 tablespoons fat. Add onion to 2½ pounds ground beef and 2/3 cup stale bread crumbs in a large bowl. Stir in 2 eggs. Season with 2½ teaspoons salt and a dash of pepper. Mix well. Form into 1¼" balls. Brown well, using a little of the bacon fat you have set aside. Remove to large casserole. In the same frying pan, saute until limp ½ pound sliced mushrooms, adding more bacon fat if necessary. Stir in 2 cans condensed mushroom soup and 1 cup condensed consomme. Mix well. Pour over meat balls in casserole. Sprinkle crumbled bacon on top (If desired, cool and chill and pour into freezer containers and freeze, placing crisp bacon separately into double cello bag and clipping it to top.) Bake covered at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

FRIDAY Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Cream of Mushroom Soup; Tuna Lorraine (see Wed.); Vegetable Juice Aspic (see Wed.); Butterscotch Pudding with Whipped Topping; Tea.

NOTE:

If frozen, thaw before turning into casserole, sprinkle with crisp bacon. If desired, when it is hot, add tea biscuits and bake uncovered at 450 deg. Fahr. about 12 to 15 minutes. A round cardboard carton of frozen tea biscuits is ideal for this purpose.

Successful Living

Religion Confusing Couple in Love

DEAR DORIS: My boy friend and I are very much in love. The trouble is we are of different religions. We had plans of marriage but what do we do in a case like this?

I've spoken to a priest and his only solution was that we break up. Well, Doris, you cannot imagine how often we have tried to stop seeing each other. It doesn't work. I cry myself to sleep every night worrying about what to do next. He is determined not to change religion and I'm so confused, I don't know anymore where to turn.

I've even tried to like another boy. But Bill is the only one for me; I'm the only one for him. He is actually the boy of my dreams, he's "special." Tell us what to do, Doris. I'm 17, so is Bill. — BEWILDERED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BEWILDERED: This is really tough! If you have found the Real Thing, it won't be easy to go into marriage with divided loyalties.

Since you are only 17, there is a chance that your regard is infatuation and will wear off. We have reliable statistics which tell us choices made at 17 have about one chance in six of being the right ones.

So here's my advice: Keep an open mind, both about boys and about religion. Study Bill's religion; get him to learn about yours. Share ideas about other things, like music, sports, psychology.

When you date, resist the desire to spend long periods in each other's arms, in favor of exploring each other's hobbies and fun activities.

The time may come when you will grow up and away from each other. If indeed you only grow closer, a more mature wisdom will help you decide whether your religion means more than unity in this important part of your life together.

I'm sending you my leaflet "What Is Love?" (And this one may be had by other teen-agers writing in and enclosing ten cents and a stamped envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Could you tell me what to do for a short neck and a big face? — MOONFACE.

DEAR MOONFACE: Hold head high — and smile — and let make-up help. If you are overweight, reduce! (Some of the fat will come off your cheeks and chins.)

I'm sending you neck exercises and some hints about posture. Your make-up should accentuate a triangle line; hairdo should be short, V-shaped at the back of the neck, upswept at the sides, with height added at the top. Avoid round, high collars and high necklines.

* * *

Confidential to TROUBLED: You and your children are being shortchanged by this neglectful and unkind husband. In case there is the slightest chance for salvaging your marriage I would urge you to go to the child care agency for your area and talk things over with the caseworker.

Such a worker will also know whether your situation is bad enough that you would be justified in taking your children some place else and suing your husband for support.

DEAR DORIS: I am a 17-year-old boy interested in U.S. space activities. Where do I write for more information regarding the Apollo project? — INVISIBLE ASTRONAUT.

DEAR ASTRONAUT: To the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Office of Educational Programs and Services, Washington, D.C. 20546. The booklet, "One, Two, Three and the Moon" describes and illustrates America's manned space flight program. All Canada shares in the excitement over such out-of-this-world ventures.

* * *

To M. F.: If you care about Dolly, you won't go around discussing her virtues — or lack of them — with the fellows. With her upset background, no girl ever needed a loyal friend more; and from what you say, I'm predicting she'll respond if you show you'll stand by.

Dave's Hideaway

By

Attention parents of Mod Music Makers . . . Your son or daughter has reached the age where he or she desires social enjoyment, and is responsible enough to be part of a city-wide teen club. I understand many of you have been misinformed about this organization formed a few weeks back. This group represents 90 per cent of the teens in this city. Their object is to establish an after school meeting place, not a hangout, so they can talk, gossip, laugh and discuss. A suitable space has been allotted them in the Arena through the city recreation department and Bob Burrows. Later plans include the establishment of weekly dances when the ice is out. All profits made are turned back into the betterment of the teens of this city. The mechanics have been expressed and explained enough. What is important, mom and dad, is that you voice your support for such a great effort by the teens. This has nothing to do with their school, and is strictly extra. The Recreation Department, the Belleville Police Department, and other interested adults are behind this group 1,000 per cent.

There is a group of people, leaches, existors, who take pride in creating loopholes, or problems which don't really exist. These "parrots of nonsense" are to blame for the miserable accommodation this city has to offer for the action set. If you are truly concerned and can spare an hour of your time how about dropping in on our next general meeting which is Monday, February 28, at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. Norm Carter, myself and mod music makers will be on hand in full force to answer any questions and clear up any problems which might concern you about the set-up. Remember nothing is perfect, there will be times when a problem will arise, but with such massive support thus far shown, the solution to that problem will be easy to come by. In conclusion, "Be a Supporter not a Destorter."

Flash from Toronto . . . Belleville and district is one of the most active supporters of Canadian talent in Ontario. Let's keep it rolling.

Thus far we have had some great gigs . . . in Belleville and Trenton. Last Friday was the topper of them all as J. B. and the Playboys brought down the full house at "Teen Club 106." The boys are going to New York on February 28 and will be touring around the U.S. hoping to hit it big. Boy are the States in for a surprise. Received a post card from Tommy Graham of the "Big Town Boys" appearing in the "Big Town" of New York, and doing sensational. They have been offered other jobs in all parts of the U.S., which speaks well for the calibre of Canadian talent. Their new record is too, too much, "Hey Girl Go It Alone." It's well on its way. Getting back to the Quinte district from our excursion across the border, you lucky people are in for some real thrills in the next few weeks; and I don't mean exams. Starting things off this Friday at Teen Club 106 the return of the Fanatastic "Shays." Their wonderful wax "This Hour Has Seven Days" is moving on the file. "Sounds Incorp." will be there for intermission and a bunch of other stuff was kindly donated by Rod Rodey that fellow fatty who also eats Onion Rings. Thanks Rod . . .

From this Friday on I think that we all take a break from funning it and make the scene with the books . . . exams and you know . . .

Pass now and avoid the June rush . . . Brad Dumbly says . . . Why not? So no laying eggs on those Easter Exams. After the exams are all over be ready to "Loop De Loop." Remember the Mod concert I was talking about. It's all going to happen at Trenton High School the week examinations are over. Entitled "The Sound of Music 66" concert number one, featuring Quality recording artists Dee and the Yeomen and Roman records proudly presents the "Shays." Both the Yeomen and the Shays have great Canadian records on the Twin Twenty File. And for extra color and excitement the "008 Ya Ya Girl" from Toronto and the "Firey Flames," two of the best go-go dancing groups around. For your added color, "Sounds Incorp." will be present too.

Mod Music Maker No. 1: "I understand Dave Charles is going to wear a wild new suit especially for the show."

Mod Music Maker No. 2: . . . "You're kidding."

Mod Music Maker No. 2: "They tell me it's orange with blue pockets ! ! ! "

Mod Music Maker No. 1: "I guess we'll just have to wait and see."

Mod Music Maker No. 2: "Gee . . . I better take my sun glasses."

P.S.: There are other great shows in the planning stage for weeks to follow so have no fear, the best is yet to come.

Let's look into Dave's Cave for another week and find out what's happening. Simon and Garfunkle are hitbound with "Homeward Bound." Dino, Desi and Billy, those amazing teen swingers, are comic book crazy winging and singing about "Superman" . . . looks good . . . Two Canadian discs are receiving lots of requests on Voice Your Choice and they are "Hey Girl Go It Along" with The Big Town Boys. Dee and the Yeomen have a Monster record with "A Love Like Mine." . . . Phil Fantastic's find of the week is by Shirley Ellis and a title that could fill the "Youth Page" by itself . . . here goes "Did You Ever See a Diver Kiss His Wife While the Bubbles Bounce Above About the Water?" That's hard on the tongue. Sgt. Barry Saddler sings "The Ballet of the Green Beret" into File A for the first week. This timely song is popular with everyone and destined for greater heights. "Elusive Butterfly" is the one to watch in weeks to come.

I would like to say before I run out of space that Belleville Mods are on the move. Constructive enterprizes are in the planning . . . if you have something to say . . . speak up . . . If not, please don't stand in our way . . . Shangri-La.

Is Dylan Offering A Message?

YVONNE ARMSTRONG (QSS)

Lately there has been a lot of controversy about protest songs. Are they justified or not?

One of these protest singers is Bob Dylan. He seems to want to say a lot which he believes is the truth.

I can't fully agree with everything he says, but he does cause us to think.

When I first heard him, I was under the impression that he believed that everyday was full of distress and not a thing could go right. He seems to have this distressed outlook on life itself. It doesn't mean anything that we are trying to bring peace. Most of his songs are about war.

I think sometimes he forgets that we are not in a country that is wracked with war or where we are not guaranteed equal rights. We are free to go where we please, to speak, and to worship without anyone to dictate to us.

Bob Dylan does come out with some very good points. He states in one song that people today are so involved with themselves they don't have time to help one another. I really don't know what to think about this. I've never really run across this situation. Maybe these songs will wake people up to the facts about things. I don't fully agree with everything he says, but I do believe he is trying to tell us something.

If we listen carefully maybe we will discover for ourselves who is right. Whether he is right about the things he tells us or we're right about what we believe.

Commends Page

Editor,
The Intelligencer

Just wanted to commend you for setting up a Youth Page. I only hope all the youth of the city will get behind it and make it a real success. This is an excellent opportunity for them to voice their opinions and ideas.

I for one am enjoying reading the articles they contribute. Certainly many of them have been excellent. One on Viet Nam and another by Linda Kerr on the Canadian government were especially good.

Our youth today are well informed and especially interested in world affairs and social problems. They are very capable of making the youth page a lively and interesting one by their writing contributions.

Nothing To Do! Humbug!

By GAIL NICHOLS (QSS)

Recently, there has been much discussion among the people of Belleville and vicinity, especially among the teenagers concerning the allegedly discouraging lack of things with which the teenager can occupy himself. It is my opinion that this is all a bunch of malarky. The only thing really lacking is imagination and initiative on the part of the local teenager.

I hear there is a crying need for a recreation centre. Nuts! IF the 'teens want fun, all they have to do is open their eyes. Belleville is well equipped with theatres, bowling alleys, restaurants, and libraries (including school libraries). She has arenas, a pool and a gym near M.S.S. Every Friday night there is at least one dance — usually two — at the local high schools.

Each school has an outstanding extra-curricular timetable affording every student with a large variety of clubs for every imaginable interest, and a lively sports timetable including vollyball, basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, etc. Music plays a role with lessons often and practice for the individual any day of the week and that concerns not just the school. Plays, variety shows and concerts are held from time to time providing a chance to assist in their production as well as to be part of the audience.

Besides all the indoor activities, there is skiing and tobogganing in the winter and riding, swimming, beach parties —even walking in the spring, summer and fall.

But the 'teen should not spend all his time at these things. What about all that homework, housework, taking out the garbage, shovelling the walk, washing the car, babysitting, hobbies, writing letters and sleeping? There is a wealth of things to do, places to go. I only wish I had more time in which to do them.

Certainly a coffee house or two and a big, expensive rec centre would be marvellous but these things are very costly to build and to maintain and they require plenty of supervision. As a local D.J. said, how long will the interest in these things last and will it warrant their construction?

Show me a teen in this vicinity with nothing to do and I'll show you a lazy, unimaginative, narrowminded child who has to be told what to do and how to do it. That is what is discouraging, not the recreational facilities, but the teenagers themselves. Anybody for a little fun? Belleville, here we come!

Comments on Downtown Albert College Mystique

By JIM RUTHERFORD (ALBERT COLLEGE)

What kind of impression do Alberts' give downtown? Perhaps some of the ideas conjured up about Albert need presenting from the point of view of an Albert student so that these half-truths can be seen as false impressions. Perhaps the glass house that we seem to live in needs shattering so that the impressions of snobbery can be dispelled.

White shirts, ties, cuffed flannels and (for the girls) white blouses, and flannel skirts, rules regulations and conformity have not changed us and do not cover up the fun-loving teenagers we really are.

The impression of everyone getting a $20 a week allowance is wrong — in reality $3 to $5 is far from $20; yet the downtown merchants treat us with open arms thinking that we have 20 non-existant dollars. The sooner downtown merchants realize that we aren't candy baskets of money, the sooner everyone will realize that $3 allowance doesn't go far.

Great times go on at Albert, but not the wild frolicking times that everyone enjoys at home. So many people think that here a privileged few (a jet set) have gathered for fun and games. Most people are here to study, to pass their year, to escape home tensions and disruptive influences — but not to have a good time.

Alberts' are partly to blame for the image of haughtiness and arrogance that downtown see; but most people see what they expect to see. Too often this is well behaved, well-moulded uniformed and conformed adults — not fun loving teenagers ready to have fun, releasing the pressures of a residential school.

Perhaps if Albert students try more earnestly to dispel the mystique of Albert downtown and the downtown kids realize more readily the normalcy of Albert students, we would all attain a better understanding.

Teen-age Canada Asks What Youths Plan for Centennial

By JACK HUTTON

So you've heard by now that Canada is launching her 100th birthday on Jan. 1, 1967 — just a few short months from now. It's called a Centennial.

What are you planning to celebrate the occasion?

What's that? You plan to be sitting in a classroom for years and nobody has given you the vote yet to decide on matters like Centennials?

Friend, you couldn't be more wrong. Canda's Centennial means more to citizens under the age of 25 than anyone else. All the big things still remain to be accomplished by the coming generation.

And now is the time to be planning your own Centennial project — either as part of a class, as a family project or strictly as an individual. Here are ideas if you're stuck for them.

1. Have you ever thought of adopting a child in another country through UNICEF? It costs $60 a year which can be split into instalments.

This is probably an ideal school project: letters to the adopted child can serve as a springboard for any number of classroom projects in current events, geography, history.

2. I'm a tree fan from way back. Why not plan to plant a tree, either at home or at the cottage? Years later you can tell your own children it was planted for Canada's 100th birthday.

3. There's no substitute for seeing the country. And you can do so as cheaply or expensively as you wish — by family car, bus, train, bicycle or foot.

OPENED BY VOYAGEURS

This country was opened up by voyageurs and their canoes. Is there a canoe route nearby that you and friends could tackle in the summer of 1967? What about organizing a race?

If you want to see a more ambitious chunk of territory and do it cheaply, I'd suggest writing to the Canadian Youth Hostels Association, 210 Somerset Street West, Ottawa, for its annual list of summer trips.

The 1966 list, which includes cycling in the Rockies, canoeing in Ontario's Algonquin Park and camping in Europe, will give a good idea of what will be available in 1967. And you can start saving now.

4. Canada's Centennial year will be a paradise for stamp collectors. Why not check your local library for books on how to get started on this hobby? It could cost you as little as $5 to get the basic essentials.

5. Why not start a diary (and thanks for your letters about our recent diary column) that can keep up all during 1967? It will keep you chuckling years from now.

6. If you plan to work during the summer of 1967 why not start planning a different sort of job that will be interesting and challenging — even if it doesn't pay that much.

Those are only a few ideas but should be enough to start you thinking. If it's to be a school project your plans should be completed this spring to go into effect next fall or early winter.

Any more suggestions? Drop me a line and we'll pass them along to other readers through the column.

TIMELY REMINDER

Sorry to be a worrywart. But it is that time of year again: scholarships are won by people who start getting organized for study right now, and the best summer jobs go to those who start scratching this month.

PARENT'S LAMENT

And, finally, I pass on this plaintive note from a Vancouver mother who signed herself "Aging Female slave to Four Teen-Agers."

"I read with interest," she wrote, "the adults chosen by your readers as models they'd like to imitate."

"I'd feel better if only one of your readers had mentioned his parents. But perish the thought. Our job is to look after them, provide three meals a day and make sure the bed gets changed. Who could expect gratitude for that?"

SPOKE TO WORLD

The BBC's first world service, the Empire Broadcasting Service, began in 1932.

JEAN ANN HISTED AND JACKIE COOK, Moirantics dancers, go through their paces in preparation for the big show tonight and tomorrow. Both girls will be featured in solo dances. The show boasts 28 separate acts, including a take-off on Elvis Presley, a fire dance and a hootenanny.

Moirantics 66 Opens Tonight at Moira

The students and staff of Moira Secondary School are presenting their annual Moirantics show tonight and tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Moira auditorium.

As usual, the students and teachers have produced acts which present their many, varied, and ofttimes surprising talents. The show has a well-balanced program of skits, music and dance.

The teachers are featured in a portrayal of the assassination scene from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar, in musical numbers, and in a special marionnette act. The students show their versatility in several dance numbers, with the spotlight on dance numbers by Jackie Cook and Jean Ann Histed. They came forth with their own humorous dramatic presentations in several skits. They also show their ability with musical instruments in other acts. Climaxing the musical selections are songs by Moira's own Folk singers.

All the facets of this presentation have been blended skilfully to create a single theme: "It's a Teenage World!"

Turtle in the Spring

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

An old legend tells about a stream that flowed through a mountain village. The villagers drank the water from the stream. From time to time, they noticed that the water that [illegible] always been so clear was muddy. So they decided to investigate and found that a large turtle had found its way into the spring. Everytime it buried itself in the mud, it roiled the water that flowed out into the stream.

This is a picture of human nature. The Bible says man was made in the image of God. But something has happened to roil the spring. "The heart," said Jeremiah, "is deceitful above all things and desperately corrupt." (Jer. 17:9) "If ye then, who are evil" was the way Jesus spoke of human nature. (Matthew 7:11) A few good deeds cannot hide the problem of wickedness in the human heart.

In Paul's day, Corinth was so corrupt, a play-boy, whether he lived in Corinth or not was known as a "Corinthian." Looking out over Corinth as he wrote [illegible] letter to the Romans, Paul commented on the corruption of many of its citizens. "Claiming to be wise," he wrote, 'they become fools." (Rom. 1:22) Then he illustrated his remark by listing some of their wicked acts to show the depths of degradation to which human nature can sink when it forgets God, and seeks only its own pleasure.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 20: "Man is a Sinner," Genesis 3:1-13; 22-24; Romans 1—18 through 2:11 Mark 7:14-23; I John 1:5-10.

And what is the source of this wickedness? Jesus said it lies in the human heart. "For from within, out of the heart of man, come evil thoughts, fornication, theft, murder, adultery, coveting, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, foolishness. All these evil things come from within, and they defile a man." (Mark 7:21-23) Not what other people do to him, but what comes out of his own unrestrained imagination and undisciplined passions, these are what corrupt an individual.

CIVIL WAR WITHIN

Paul used more sophisticated language to describe the struggle between good and evil that goes on in every person's life. "I do not understand my own actions," he wrote, "For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate . . . For I delight in the law of God, in my inmost self, but I see in my numbers another law at war with the law in my mind and making me captive to the law again." (Rom. 7:15-23)

Many modern writers are saying the same thing. They are exposing the ugliness that lies beneath the veneer of civiliza tion. They are exposing the lust, the despair, the tragic emptiness that lies beneath the surface of life. Indeed, the exposure of wickedness in the human heart seems to have passed from the pulpit to the modern novel and the movie screen in our day. A Pollyanna philosophy will not fit the facts. Jeremiah's terrible indictment of the human heart is closer to the truth than an easy optimism that fails to take the evil in the heart of man seriously.

KARL MARX' Mistake

One of the many points where Karl Marx' writings were utterly unrealistic was in his view of human nature. Do away with economic evils, put all property in the hands of the workers, [illegible] giving the false promises of religion, and he believed Utopia would come. The need for any restraining government would wither away.

Democracy is more realistic than that. Democracy is the best form of government, not because men are good, but because even the best of men can be tempted to hold on to power once they get it in their hands. There must be checks and balances. There must be a way to change leaders without a bloody revolution.

And what is the turtle that muddies the stream? The first book of the Bible says it is the defiance of the will of God. (Gen. 3:1-13) Man wants to live life on his own terms. He is unwilling to accept restrictions from God. He does not want to be told there is anything he cannot do. He wants to live in a state of rebellion against God. Let weak-minded fools turn to religion. He will show his superiority by doing whatever he pleases even if, like Samson, he brings the whole structure of God's moral law down on himself and his world.

But there is hope. If men did not know how to purify water, every city in the land would go thirsty. And the God of light has shown men through the revelation of His love how life can be purified. Through faith in Him, hearts can be changed and lives can be purified (I John 1:5-10)

Morse, Oregon Democrat and ouktspoken critic of President Johnson's foreign policy.

Morse, arguing that the U.S. role is illegal, said he believes "it isn't going to be too long before the American people, as a people, will repudiate our war in Southeast Asia."

Retorted Taylor: "That, of course, is good news to Hanoi, senator."

"If the people decided the war should be stopped in Southeast Asia, are you going to take the position that that is weakness on the home front of a democracy?" Morse asked.

WOULD BE MISLED

"I would feel that our people were badly misguided and did not understand the consequences of such a disaster," said Taylor.

"Well, we agree on one thing," said Morse. "That they can be badly misguided, and you and the president in my judgment have been misguiding them for a long time in this war."

Spectator applause was quickly halted by the chairman, Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.).

Fulbright, who scheduled the committee hearings in direct challenge to Johnson and his desire for little or no debate, tangled repeatedly with Taylor.

He said Taylor's answers on how far the United States will go militarily in Viet Nam were "very unsatisfactory."

"No one on the committee is saying we ought to turn tail, scuttle and run," said Fulbright. "It is purely a matter of judgment we are concerned with."

Any way the Vietnamese situation is sliced, Fulbright said, the outcome likely will be the same, because "'I' doubt we can create a fine democratic regime" in the south.

whole question of CPR operations.

The application "by Liberal partisans" for transfer of a television station to Toronto from Barrie, 50 miles north, also spurred lengthy debate.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) hit marine and highway- construction policies hard in the last hours.

URGES REVISION

He urged swift revision of the Canada Shipping Act to provide for minimum crew levels and other safety standards.

Mr. Howard said the transport department must shoulder some blame for lives lost in shipping accidents that caused millions of dollars in damages last year.

Mr. Pickersgill said his department is experimenting with a "traffic information and control system" on the seaway. It also was "encouraging bridge-to-bridge communication."

and education. It promises a national army — but abolition of unpopular conscription. It would abolish all "foreign military bases" and offer clemency to lesser collaborators with the Americans such as "simple soldiers" or lesser officers.

A lawyer, Nguyen Huu Tho, 55, is chairman of the front's central committee presidium.

Tho made it clear this week that the front is set up along lines of a government which is prepared to take over. It has, he reported, its own "main force army" in addition to regional armed units, militia (police) and guerrilla forces.

The front has set up "people's self - administration committees" in areas held by the Viet Cong. These form the basis for provincial and village - level government. The front also claims to have distributed to peasants in those areas about 4,000,000 acres of ricefields and other lands.

The front's central committee chairman is the equivalent of a chief of government. Vice-chairmen are potential deputy premiers. The head of the commission for foreign relations would become a foreign minister. The members representing "liberation trade unions" would be a labor minister, and so forth.

The front encompasses, at least nominally, all manner of groups: The People's Revolutionary Party, the socialists, the "South Viet Nam Democratic party," the National Minorities, the Buddhists, the Hao Hao and Cao Dai religious sects. One member of the central committee, Joseph Maria Ho Hue Bang, is described in propaganda as a "son of devout and patriotic Catholics." Also represented are "liberation associations" of women, peasants, youth and others whose organizations are linked with Communist - controlled federations abroad.

The front has missions in Moscow, Peking and all Communist countries, and in a number of non - Communist nations. These missions would become the front's diplomatic corps.

icopters would help that service in its anti-submarine role.

New weapons coming into service with the NATO brigade group in Europe would give it "greatly enhanced operational capability," the minister said. These included a new armored personnel carrier and anti-tank guided missiles.

The RCAF units in Europe were being equipped for both a nuclear and non-nuclear strike role, making them more useful to NATO. Two reconnaissance squadrons operating from France "are now fully operational," Mr. Hellyer said.

The new BUIC system—back-up interceptor control — would be introduced by 1969 into the North American Air Defence Command system. BUIC is essentially a computer system that supplies information for defensive weapons deployment.

Purchase of 20 additional Hercules transport would beef up air transport command.

9th Belleville Troop "Scout Rally" Winner

About 100 Belleville Boy Scouts from each of the eight city troops last night mustered in the Armories for the first "scout rally" to be held in Belleville. After they had assembled and were inspected by District Commissioner A. J. Fort, the various troops settled down to the business at hand — a program of competitive events to enable the boys to show how well they had learned their scout training.

The scouts showed their prowess at everything from tying knots to reviving imaginary drowning "victims," and when the cheering had subsided after the last closely-contested event, the 9th Belleville Troop members were the proud winners of a large green pennant in recogition of their best overall performace.

Commissioner Fort said that the turnout was excellent, and that he was pleased with the calibre of the local boys' scouting. He said that the rally was intended to be a "kick-off" for Boy Scout Week, which is next week, and expressed the hope that the interest in local scouting would become such as to merit a similar event annually.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

BELLROCK, Ont. (CP) — A mother and daughter who lived in squalor with 15 cats and a dog have been removed to the Ontario Hospital in Kingston, 25 miles southeast of here, for observation. The women — Mary Revelle, 77, and her daughter, Gladys, about 50—were taken from their home earlier this week following protests from village residents about the living conditions.

Wants Denbigh Included In Land O'Lakes Region

TWEED — The February meeting of the Land O' Lakes Steering Committee was held at the High Schol in Cloyne recently.

Mrs. Jeanette Whitfield, chairman of the 1966 Land O' Lakes brochure reported that all ads had been received and were in the hands of the printer. The new brochure will be ready at the end of February and will be mailed to all members and to various sportsmen's shows and tourist centres across Ontario.

An interesting feature article on rocks and rock hounding, submitted by Nadine Brummell of Kingston, is to be printed in the new brochure.

Mrs. E.V. Trotter of he Department of Highways mentioned that certain points regarding the boundaries of the Land O' Lakes were not clear to him or the Department With the help of the committee and Warden Plotz these points were soon clarified and steps will be taken to have certain signs erected in the proper locations.

Ted Courneya, Bruce Huyck, Ron Wilson and Don Hogarth served as a delegation to Lennox and Addington County Council regarding a grant for the promotion of tourism. County Council is well aware of the importance of the tourist industry to everyone in the County and was agreed that extra monetary help be given.

TOURIST OPERATORS CRITICIZED

Mr. E. R. Pearson,, Reeve of Pittsburg Townshins criticized tourist operators in Land O' Lakes area for not upgrading boats, tourist facilities and fishing. Adverse publicity had been received in the respect to leaky boats.

Reeve C. Barr of Bedford asked where the boundaries were in relation to his township as the maps in use now have no boundaries shown. It was explained to Reeve Barr that since the south part of Frontenac County is in the Rideau Lake Tourist Region, it would detract from the map to remove the southern portion of the County and the city of Kingston.

A committee consisting of nine men was appointed to meet with officials of the Department of Lands and Forests regarding fishing problems.

Warden Gordon Plotz spoke regarding the Madawaska Valley Region sign erected at the entrance to Denbigh. He said he had been instrumental in forming a Guides' Association in the Denbigh, Ardoch, Plevna, Cloyne and Northbrook area, known as the Land O' Lakes Guides' Association. The name, Land O' Lakes, was used because it was the name of the tourist association to which the townships of Denbigh, Ashby and Abinger belonged. The Association was disturbed when the sign at the foot of Eagle Hill read, "You are now entering the Madawaska Valley Tourist Region". No permission by their Township Council or Lennox and Addingtn Council had been sought or given for the wording. In 1963 a motion was passed by County Council for a petition to the Department of Tourism and Information asking the Department to remove the townships of Denbigh, Ashby and Abinger from the Madawaska Valley Tourist Region and put them in the Land O' Lakes Tourist Region. Nothing has been done about the petition.

In 1965 when Ted Courneyea spoke to County Council, he asked if Denbigh had been put back in the Land O'Lake region. Mr. Courneyea said that Denbigh had been in the Land O'Lakes before the Department of Tourism was formed and Land O'Lakes feel an injustice was done.

President James Arbuckle asked for more information regarding hospitality seminars Mr. John Savigny is to secure this information and report at the next steering committee meeting.

An advertising committee of three men, Ted Courneyea, Hugh Hillier and Bruce Hughes was appointed to explore the possiiblities of increasing the amount of Land O'Lakes advertising to newspapers across Canada and the United States.

HEADS ARCHITECTS

TORONTO (CP)—Warren M. Smale, 42, of Simcoe Thursday was elected president of the 1,000-member Ontario Association of Architects at the association's annual meeting. Norman W. Critchley of North Bay is treasurer.

Who's on first?

Obviously, when Expo 67 opens, there'll be radio and TV, teletypewriters, picture transmission machines — and phones. And the microwave and cable equipment for almost all of them will be supplied by Bell.

But it may surprise you to hear that Bell people were among the very first to work on the Expo site. They not only helped plan things from the very beginning — they were right in there with mobile or temporary phones as soon as the first machine got to work.

Because: without communications (and that means much more than merely phones) there's practically nothing that can happen these days. That goes for the important big jobs like Expo, and the important little jobs like getting your phone installed. Each one requires a lot of work and effort — long before the first message ever goes through.

Long-Range Planning—one of the reasons why Bell Communications serve you so well.

DUNDAS ST. W. (HWY No. 2) Formerly known as the TRENT ROAD BELLEVILLE ACRES OF FREE LIGHTED PARKING

SPORT SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

His 290 pounds of Alabama muscle upholsters a six foot four frame and the distribution does not, by any stretch of the imagination suggest the foundation of a middle-age spread.

Billy Shipp, one of the prime carriers of the Toronto Argonauts football fleet, eased himself into the chair, drew on a George Burns size cigar, and said "its a pleasuhre suh."

He spoke in that lovely soft Alabaman drawl that has none of the harshness of Kentucky nor the broad flanginess of the Texan range.

Bill graduated from the cloistered halls of the University of Alabama and laid the groundwork of a long professional football career on its gridiron.

Bill not only developed exceptional football ability but a warm personality that has, and is, paying off not only in popularity but financially as well.

He is a goodwill ambassador for not only the Argos but the Seagram's Distillery as well. He was the guest speaker at the Belleville Sales and Ad Club the other night.

Shipp was drafted by the New York Giants after college graduation and played a year with them before signing with the Montreal Alouettes as a tackle. He played 4½ years with the Larks then went to the Argonauts where he has been a mainstay for the past seven seasons.

"How about this years Argos" he was asked.

Bill rubbed his chin, thought a minute and drawled "I think the Argos will finish in a playoff spot because of Coach Bob Shaw's extensive rebuilding program.".

Quarterback trouble has been one of the Argos big problems of late. They traded Billy Liske. "What have they got now."

"Shaw has signed Wally Gabler, whom I think will blossom into one of football's superstars" said Shipp. "He has been watching this youngster for a long time and when he graduated secured his services. I think he'll be the answer, or one of them, to the club's quarterback troubles."

Canadian athletes have proven themselves in many fields, Shop said. He thought the reasons more American scholboys and college players appear better than the Canadian product is because (one) they get better coaching (two) they play football like Canadians play hockey — from the time they're old enough to throw or kick one.

"Besides" Billy added "American universities have tie-ins with the pro football clubs. Over here that is not the case. The weather too is another factor. Like golf, football can be played the year round down there. Here, like hockey, it is limited to seasonal weather.

"The difference between football teams," he said "is their ability to do something better than the other fellow. Take a club that can do everything well, and I'll show you a champion. Some clubs are better equipped, player-wise in certain phases of the game. Their strong spots are the other fellows weak ones."

Fantastic bonuses and pension and retirement plans in the USA are some of the reasons American players are not willing to play in Canada, was Billy's opinion.

"The first question American boys ask Canadian scouts when approached is "What is your retirement plan?".

This likely will develop under the player's organization but until it does, we (I'm naturalized) may have trouble.

"If I were back ten or twelve years and conditions were as they are now south of the border with, bonuses, pensions and what not I would never sign with a Canadian team".

Billy is 35 years of age and I asked him how many more years he expected to remain in harness, "Five?".

He smiled. "Five what? Games or plays?".

As a parting shot I repeated, "So you think the Argos will make the playoffs this year?".

Billy stretched his 290-pound six-four frame and smiled. "If the quarterback is good and we get some good defensive linemen I would say yes."

Wings Get Bruins' Boivin, Prentice

RON MURPHY

LEO BOIVIN

DEAN PRENTICE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While National Hockey League teams took a breather Thursday some behind - the - fronts action saw four players moved about in the seemingly never-ending game of trades.

A two-for-two exchange sent Ron Murphy and rookie defenceman Gary Doak of Detroit Red Wings to Boston Bruins in return for veterans Leo Boivin and Dean Prentice.

Boivin, 33, will help to fill the gap in the Wing's lineup left by the absence of all-star defenceman Doug Barkley, out with an eye injury. Warren Godfrey will also be off the Red Wing's roster for 10 days leaving another hole in the club's defence.

Murphy, 32, was in his second season with the Red Wings but missed 19 games earlier in the season due to a knee injury. He has scored 10 goals this season. Doak, 19, is in his first year of professional hockey.

Prentice, also 33, is in his 13th year in the NHL having scored 236 goals, seven of them this season. Red Wings coach Sid Abel said both Prentice and Boivin will play with the Wings against Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night but has not fitted them into the lineup yet.

Boston will receive an amateur player, under the agreement, to be named later plus an amateur draft concession.

BRASS BUSY

All the teams began a two-day rest Thursday while league officials assessed the implications of a call for a United States Senate investigation of the league's franchise grants by Senator Daniel Brewster (Dem.-Md.) and a charge of "slave trading" by British Columbia MLA Pat McGeer (Lib.—Vancouver Point Grey).

Brewster, in a letter to Senator Philip A. Hart (Dem.-Mich.), urged that the Senate investigate the expansion action which saw the league grow from a six-team circuit to 12 teams.

Baltimore was chosen only as an alternative to St. Louis if that city does not fulfill conditions by April 5.

Senator Brewster charged the NHL with thwarting certain United States legislation which exempts certain professional sports from the provision of anti-trust laws.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, passed off the charge as "strictly a local pitch." He said the complaint did not come "from the actual applicants from that city.

"The people who applied for the franchise in Baltimore have dissociated themselves from Senator Brewster's representation."

ASKS EXAMINATION

McGeer called for a royal commission to study "slave trade" hockey in Canada. He told the legislature he wanted an examination of the status of amateur athletics in Canada and the relationship between professional and amateur hockey.

Campbell refuted the "slave" charge as not based on fact. "I've, been here (NHL headquarters) for 20 years and I don't think in that period of time there have been more than five hockey players that have ended up playing for a team they did not want to play for," he said.

"Anything we are engaging in, we are happy to expose for public scrutiny," he said.

All teams will be back in action Saturday night with Chicago at Montreal, New York at Toronto and Boston at Detroit.

Chicago lead the league with 63 points and Montreal is tied for second with Detroit with 59 points each. Toronto has 53 points and Boston has 34. New York is in the celar with 32.

If Muhamed Ali Appeals

Draft May Not Halt Fight

By BILL MANN

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Chances are the heavyweight title fight between Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell will be staged on March 29 as scheduled, despite Clay's 1-A draft classification.

"I don't think he would be included in the March call if he appealed," said Winifred K. Phillips, chief clerk for Jefferson County's 10 draft boards.

Clay, in Miami training for the fight, said he will appeal the classification assigned him Thursday by Local Board 47.

Miss Phillips said the quota was expected today, and that Clay's name won't be placed on the list of eligibles until 10 days after his reclassification.

After the reclassification, Edward W. Jacko Jr., who identified himself as Clay's personal counsel, said ground for an appeal hasn't been determined.

Miss Phillips said the April call will be issued about the middle of March. Should Clay be included in that call, he would have a mandatory 10-day appeal period from the day his induction notice was mailed.

The fight, then, though still uncertain, has a better than even chance of being staged in Chicago as planned.

Clay had been classified 1-Y, unacceptable for military service, because he scored less than the required standard on the mental aptitude tests of his pre-induction examinations.

But the army lowered its standards, due to the increased power needs in Viet Nam, and Clay's qualifications satisfied the new requirements.

The champion was bitter when informed of the new classification, which means almost certain induction since he is 24 years old and unmarried.

"Why me, why me?" he asked. "I can't see how they can reclassify me as 1-A, why they're so anxious to push me into the army out of all the people in Louisville officially classified 1-A.

Texan Leads Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Charles Coody, a 28-year-old Texan, shot a five-under-par 67 to take the first-round lead in the $60,000 Tucson open golf tournament.

The Fort Worth pro caught fire on the front nine, which he played last.

One stroke back were Dick Lotz and Mason Rudolph.

Grouped at 69 were Larry Griggs, Joe Campbell, George Archer, Doug Sanders, Jay Dolan, Gardner Dickinson Jr. and Bob Johnson.

Scores generally were better than expected on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Course, a sprawling par 36-36—72 desert layout.

All-Stars Tie With Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba Senior Hockey League all-stars came from behind to register a 3-3 tie with Canada's national team in an exhibition game Thursday.

The Canadians are scheduled to play one more game at home—on Saturday against the Manitoba old timers' team—before they leave for Europe Monday to play in a five-game exhibition warmup series before the 1966 world championships at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia.

Playing-coach Jackie McLeod, Ted Hargreaves and Paul Conlin scored for the national team. Fred Dunsmore scored two for the all-stars and Doug Overton the other.

Crothers-Farrell Duel Still In Air

Russ Track Debut

NEW YORK (AP)—A flock of Russians will be making their New York debut and John Pennel once again will go for 17 feet, but the highlight of the New York Athletic Club games tonight still has to be the clash between Tommy Farrell and Bill Crothers.

If it comes off.

Farrell, the tough little St. John's runner who ranks as this country's best half-miler, is still nursing a balky left leg and won't know until he warms up this evening whether he will run against the formidable Crothers in the 800.

Crothers, the lean Markham, Ont., pharmacist, generally is regarded as the finest indoor middle-distance runner in the world, practically unbeatable at distances from 600 to 1,000 yards. He's undefeated at that range this season.

Farrell has beaten him only once, in the half-mile in this meet a year ago, leading Crothers home in an indoor record 1:49.8. Crothers, however, had run himself into exhaustion in an extensive string of competition and had collapsed in a race just the week before.

Now, it's the reverse. Crothers has been out of competition for two weeks training for the rematch, while Farrell has run himself into trouble, pulling up with a muscle cramp in a 600-yard race last week.

If both are healthy, the race could go under 1:49. Others in the 880 are Robin Lingle, the former Missouri star, ex-Seton Hall ace George Germann and Russian Remir Mitrofanov.

The other Russians are Viktor Kudinsky in the two-mile, Gennady Bliznetsov in the pole vault, Sergei Mosbanov in the high jump and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan, who will oppose Olympic champion Lynn Davies of England and New York veteran Charley Mays in the broad jump.

The Russians also have entries in the three women's events, half-miler Tamara Dmitryeva, high jumper Taisia Chenchik and broad jumper Tatiana Schelkanova.

College Playoffs Close

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First place has been settled, but there will be a battle for fourth and final playoff berths as the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Intercollegiate hockey and basketball schedules close this weekend.

Sir George Williams University has clinched first place in the hockey standings and Loyola, in second, and University of Ottawa, third, are certain of playoff berths, although Ottawa could tie Loyola for second place.

Royal Military College of Kingston holds the fourth and last playoff spot with a three-point edge over Carleton, but both have two games left and the Ravens could overcome the gap.

RMC closes the season on the road, against University of Ottawa today, then the all-important game against Carleton Saturday.

Carleton won't have an easy time either. They meet second-place Loyola today.

CARLETON IS FIRST

In basketball, Carleton is set in first place with 14 wins and one loss in 15 games. While second-place RMC could tie them for points, Carleton would take first on the basis of two wins over RMC in their meetings this season.

Bishops and Sir George Williams are tied for third and can't improve their standing, but fifth-place Loyola still has a chance to join the post-season play.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Hiland Lark, a six-year-old gelding, scored his first victory in seven starts at the winter meeting of Windsor Raceway when he won the featured eighth race Thursday night.

The gelding, owned by F. Bradette and Al Morency of Montreal with Eddie Bradette handling the reins, paced the mile in 2:09 3-5 and returned $7.40, $4.50 and $3.40.

The daily double of Tysondale and Beaver Boy returned $42.40. The exacta of Intrusion C and First Nibble paid $23.50.

A crowd of 3,512 wagered $248,684.

Whisky Versus Champagne

Scottish Goliaths Meet Davids

DINGWALL, Scotland (AP) Two cases of champagne against a bottle of whisky—that's just one bet on a soccer match that has the Highlands hopping.

The match is between the little known part-time players of Ross County against mighty Glasgow Rangers in the second round of the Scottish Cup Saturday.

The players of Ross County work in the local whisky distillery and they've been keeping fit by leaping on and off the hundreds of casks of whisky stored there.

Glasgow Rangers, as the soccer world knows, are the most admired in Scotland. Currently the Rangers lead the Scottish major league standings.

It's a David-and-Goliath affair.

Just take note of a few things happening in these remote parts of the Scottish Highlands, all because of this match.

COMING BY BOAT

An armada of fishing boats is being marshalled in the Outer Hebrides to transport 500 Gaelic-speaking soccer fans from the islands of Harris and Lewis.

Fans in the glens and mountain hamlets are all set to advance on Dingwall.

Ross County will be led on to the playing field by the skirl of bagpipes by a kilted pipe major.

Extra police are being sent into tiny Dingwall, population 3,000, for the match.

And 200 miles away, in Glasgow, a bookie said he has struck a bet of two cases of champagne against a bottle of Dingwall whisky that Ross County's giant-killing days will end Saturday.

The part-timers knocked out second division Alloa 5-3 in the first round of the cup.

Roadblocks are going up within a few miles of the Dingwall ground, capacity 8,000, to prevent fans without tickets from getting near the gates.

A television appeal went out to Rangers' fans to stay at home if they have no tickets. But police still expect thousands of them to make the 400-mile round trip in the hope of getting a ticket.

Rollins Face Do-Or-Die Weekend

It's a "do-or-die" weekend for Belleville Rollins in a three-game set-to with Trenton and Kingston OHA Junior "B" teams.

Rollins play host to Trenton Apple Kings here tonight at 9.00; travel to Trenton for a 3.15 clash Sunday afternoon and meet the league-leading Frontenacs here Monday night at 8.15.

In another key weekend game, which could decide first place, Oshawa visits Kingston Saturday night.

Belleville's other remaining games are both in Oshawa one of them next Friday. The date of the second, a postponed tilt, is to be set.

Kingston holds first place with 40 points and four games left to play. Oshawa is second with 38 and four left; Peterborough third with 31 and three left; Trenton fourth with 30 and a big six games left; Belleville fifth with 28 points and five left and Cobourg, out of the running, with 11 points and four games remaining.

Two of Peterborough's remaining games are against Trenton, in Lakefield Monday and in Trenton Wednesday. The other s in Cobourg on February 28.

It adds up to the fact that Rollins need every point they can get, and especially against Trenton, if they are to grab one of the playoff spots. First and fourth meet in one semi-final, second and third in another, likely best-of-seven series.

Biggest crowds of the year, in both centres, are expected for tonight's battle here and Sunday's game in Trenton.

U.S. Loops Declare No Truce

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Football League, with all 14 teams showing a profit for the last two years, is ready to continue indefinitely its dollar war with the rival American Football League.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said at a press conference that there was no discussion of any truce with the rival league at the annual meeting of the NFL that closed Thursday. Rozelle said there had been no consideration of a common draft and absolutely no talk of a merger.

The main business transacted was the stocking of the new Atlanta club which will compete as the 15th league team this season. The club was stocked Wednesday with 42 experienced players from the other teams.

Rozelle said no definite timetable had been set up for adding another team, but the league hopes to have 16 clubs in 1967.

The commissioner said the confidential survey by a research institute had not eliminated any of the seven cities proposed as sites. They were Boston, Cincinnati, Houston, New Orleans, Phoenix, Portland, Ore., and Seattle.

Ter-Haar, SACO Win Two In Row

SACO and Ter-Haar Daubers moved a step closer to a berth in the Quinte Hockey League finals last night - but for SACO it wasn't easy.

They nipped Grant's Realty 3-2 in overtime in a tidy tussle.

Ter-Haar had an easier time whipping Stinson - Horlock Combines 10-1.

Both SACO and the Daubers lead the four-of-seven sets two games to none, with third games slated for next Thursday here.

Grant's and SACO played a scoreless first heat with each side potting singletons in the second and third. Don Forsythe triggered the winning goal in overtime, assisted by Doug Hallam and Gary Genereaux. Forsythe also scored SACO's second goal and assisted on the first, netted by Genereaux, who had two assists. Larry Potter also helped on one.

Keith Osterhout and Jack Boulter were the Realty marksmen. Don Adams, Bernie Boulter and Norm Boulter collected an assist each.

There were three minor penalties per team and the winners' D. Bradshaw also drew a misconduct.

Ter-Haar scored four in the first and had a 6-0 lead after two periods against Stinson - Horlock.

Jack Calnan spearheaded the Dauber's well-balanced attack. He scored two goals and assisted on three. Ron Urch and Ron Pointer each had two goals and one helper. Donnie Moore scored a pair, Hubert Pointer one goal and two assists and Lucian Hamelin one of each. Frank Cris and Al Ruttan drew two assists apiece and Harold Bunnett one.

Bill Genereaux netted the lone Combine marker, aided by Doug Weese.

There were but two minor penalties assessed per team.

Invitational Skiing

Nancy Favored For Title

QUEBEC (CP) — Nancy Greene, a Nelson, B.C., stenographer, is rated Canada's main hope in the invitational skiing championships, to be decided this weekend in the second half of the international ski series at Mont Ste. Anne, near here.

Miss Greene, 23, won the ladies slalom at Banff, Alta., by a strong three-second margin and from this obtained a big edge in the race for the championship.

Chief opposition to Miss Greene, ranked first in the world in slalom and giant slalom, is expected from Austrian skiers Heidi Zimmerman and Christl Haas. Miss Zimmerman was runner-up in both events last weekend, while Miss Haas, Olympic downhill champion in 1960, won the giant slalom race but placed third in the slalom.

Other top women racers competing include Karen Dokka of Burnaby, B.C.; Madeleine Bochatay of France; Madeleine Felli of Switzerland and Germany's Burgl Faerbinger. All placed among the first seven in the series opener at Banff.

In the men's competition, Canadian stars Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., and Rod Hebron of Vancouver are trailing their European rivals. Kurt Huggle of Switzerland won the giant slalom last week—followed by Gerhard Nenning of Austria, while Nenning won the slalom over Louis Jauffret of France.

Would Ruin Canadian Football

MONTREAL (CP) — A National or American Football League franchise in a large Canadian city could ruin the Canadian Football League, Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, said Thursday.

"It's not that Canadians would prefer American football," he said at the annual awards dinner of the Sportsmen's Association of Montreal. "But sharing of revenue could eventually force some of the smaller clubs out of existence."

He said that CFL clubs did not make large profits. "We have to compete with the NFL and AFL by paying the same salaries, but we don't offer those bonuses like they do."

Dixie Rink Senior Champions

OTTAWA (CP)—Jim Johnston's Toronto Dixie rink won the Ontario seniors curling championship Thursday, sweeping all of its seven matches in the round-robin playoff.

Second in the eight-rink competition was Toronto Granite's Alf Phillips, the defending champion, who finished with five wins and two losses.

The two Toronto rinks both won their last two matches Thursday. Johnston walloped Harve Winter of Whitby 13-5 and then shaded Walter Routliffe of Hamilton Thistle 7-5. Phillips beat Gananoque's Keith Lasha 11-8 and Orillia's winless Arnold Robinson 6-4.

Lasha had started the day in second place, but finished third after losing to Toronto Granite and managing only a 3-3 tie with Hanover's Harvey Langdon for a record of four wins, one tie and two losses.

ROUTLIFFE FOURTH

Routliffe, with a 9-4 victory over Les Hughes of Brantford before his afternoon defeat by the new champion, ended up fourth with four wins.

Hughes, with Thursday's loss to Hamilton and a 5-4 win over Whitby's Winter, finished fifth with three victories.

Harvey Langdon of Hanover, who clobbeed borillia 15-6 and tied with Gananoque, was sixth with two wins and a tie.

Whitby with two wins, lost both matches Thursday and finished seventh. Robinson of Orillia, with no wins, brought up the rear.

Homenuik Ties At Panama

PANAMA (AP)—Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot an opening-round 69 Thursday in the Panama open golf tournament and tied for first place with Art Wall of Honesdale, Pa., and Bob McCallister of California.

The Canadian had a 35-34 for his 69.

Wall, the only player in the 10-year history of the multi-tournament Caribbean tour to gain a championship in every tournament, fired a three-under-par 33 on the front nine and settled for an even par-36 coming in for his 69 total.

McCallister shot a 37 going out, then fired a brilliant 32 on the back nine for his 69.

Among other Canadians entered, Leon De Caire of Downsview, Ont., and Alf Shand of Lachute, Que., were grouped with eight others at 74.

Jack Bissegger of Montreal had 75, and Alvie Thompson of Willowdale, Ont., who was runner-up to Homenuik in the 1965 Canadian PGA championship, shot 76.

BOXING BANNED

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Boxing was banned in Czechoslovakia Thursday following the death of a young featherweight injured in a bout Sunday. The Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka said the ban will not apply to scheduled international contests in Czechoslovakia. Ceteka added that the ban would be lifted after measures had been taken to prevent fatal accidents in the ring. The decision follows the death in a Prague hospital Thursday of Frantisek Maracek, 19.

Britons Vote For "Freedom"

LONDON (AP)—Britain's top international athletes voted 61 to 9 Thursday against competing in South Africa unless there is complete freedom from racial discrimination.

The decision will not affect South African invitations already accepted by Olympic broadjump champions Lynn Davies and Mary Rand.

Davies and Mrs. Rand plan to tour South Africa for three weeks in April and Mrs. Rand explained her position by saying: "I want to find out for myself."

The referendum held by the British International Athletes Club arose out of invitations to Mrs. Rand, Davies, middle-distance runner John Boulter and sprinter Janet Simpson to tour South Africa.

Martin Hyman, organizer of the referendum, said: "We shall not be disappointed if Mary and Lynn make the trip. The decision was not meant to be binding on the individual athlete nor is it intended to be a form of moral blackmail."

Oaks' Price Leads Seniors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Left winger Jack Price of Oakville Oaks took the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series scoring race this week, but there is still a tight traffic jam among the top contenders.

Price moved ahead of centres Joe Hogan of Galt Hornets and Bobby Robinson of Woodstock Athletics to take a one-point lead. He has 29 goals and 28 assists for 57 points.

Robinson and Hogan are deadlocked with 56 points each. Robinson has 24 goals and 32 assists, while Hogan has 20 and 36.

A 10-point spread exists between Robinson and Hogan and the next two players—Earl Balfour of Galt and Ted Power of Woodstock.

Harold (Boat) Hurley leads the goaltending department with a 3.40 average.

REF STOPS FIGHT

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Jack Bodell dropped Ski Goldstein for a seven-count and then stopped the American heavyweight in 1:45 of the third round of an eight-round bout at World Sporting Club Thursday night. Referee Pat Floyd intervened to save Goldstein from further punishment. Bodell weighed 203, Goldstein 189.

Ontario-B.C. Meet

Neither Side Favored

VANCOUVER (CP)—Neither Ontario nor British Columbia is a clear favorite in a two-province track and field meet here tonight for the Challenge Trophy, says Lloyd Swindells, coach of the B.C. team.

The B.C.-Ontario centennial match is a lead-in to the Achilles international track and field meet here Saturday.

Swindells says the teams are so closely matched that the Challenge Trophy—the closest thing in Canadian track and field to the Grey Cup—probably will go to the province that can dominate in the relays.

He believes first-rank stars like B.C.'s Olympic sprinters Harry Jerome and Irene Piotrowski will be offset by Ontario's indoor world record holders Hyke Van Der Wal in the mile steeplechase and Nancy McCredie in the shot put.

The men's relay is a medley —440, 220, 220, 880—and the women's is a half-mile run in four 220 segments. Under the challenge's unique scoring system, the winner of the relay earns 10 points and the loser three.

All other events will be scored on a 5-3-2-1 basis.

The centennial challenge tonight and Achilles international Saturday are expected to draw 412 athletes from 11 countries. Included are 20 Olympians and nine present or former world champions.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Many readers have inquired, "is it cheaper to rent or to own?"

There are numerous opinions but no direct answers. For information and guidance of all readers, I have undertaken voluminous calculations and considerations to answer this letter:

Dear Mr. Meltzer: You are the only person I know with the courage and expertise to give a straight answer to a controversial question. My question is, "Is it cheaper to rent an apartment or own a house?" I have asked the question of many in real estate. Always, the answer is biased to reflect the activities of the individual being asked the question. — "Must Know"

Answer: Strictly on a dollars and cents basis, excluding the relative amenities of the two types of living space, the verdict is that for a short period it is cheaper to rent; in the long run it probably is cheaper to own.

Home - owner costs are higher than rents primarily for two reasons. Initially it costs less to build an apartment unit.

The second basic reason is that the cost of operating and maintaining an apartment unit is less than for a house. This is true for most items, ranging from real estate taxes, through heat and utilities, to such factors as decoration and repair.

However, in spite of higher costs, the home owner gets back a portion of his monthly expenditures in the form of mortgage reduction. In the early years of home ownership equity growth through mortgage reduction is small; in later years it becomes larger.

A home owner benefits from the creeping inflation which has been characteristic of our economy.

When all these considerations are calculated and weighed, in typical cases, home ownership is more economical in the long run, but for short periods it is cheaper to rent.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I bought some upholstered chairs at auction but it appears that I got more than just the chairs. Little crawling insects are coming out of the woodwork. I constantly spray but it appears to do only a temporary job. What is the best way of getting rid of these crawlers before they infect the whole house? — "Good Housekeeper"

Answer: Let me give you an old country method that will solve the problem without fuss or cost. On the first clear, cold day (preferably with temperature of 15 degrees or less) take the chairs outside and leave them over night. The cold weather will kill all crawlers and the eggs. This is an excellent way to rid any household article of infestation without the expense and inconvenience of fumigation.

BROCK SIGNS CONTRACT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Lou Brock, St. Louis Cardinal left fielder, has signed his 1966 contract, the team announced Thursday. Brock hit .288 last season, drove in 69 runs, hit 16 homers and stole 63 bases, for a team record.

Secondary Schools

Brawl Blanks Title

BROCKVILLE (CP) — There will be no champion this year in the St. Lawrence district of the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Basketball Association following a brawl Tuesday.

Vernon E. Stetler, principal of Brockville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said Thursday the championship between Brockville and Cornwall has been terminated and no winner will be declared this year.

He said the decision was made by himself and the principal of Cornwall St. Lawrence High School Thursday following a telephone discussion on Tuesday's incident.

His announcement said: "For the unsportsmanlike conduct of the players, the principals of the high schools have talked this over by telephone and agreed to call off any further basketball play and not to name a champion."

The teams were slated to play the second game of a two-game, total-points series in Cornwall today. Cornwall won the first game Tuesday, 72-59.

Players from both sides and some spectators brawled after a fight broke out between two players in the final quarter of the game. Play resumed after order was restored.

CLAIM GABBING RECORD

DURHAM, N.H. (AP)—The University of New Hampshire's radio station claims the "intercollegiate marathon broadcasting record" after Bruce Theriault, 20-year-old sophomore, stayed on the air for 63 hours continuously. A previous record of 60 hours had been claimed by the University of Rochester.

World to Need More Uranium In Next Decade

MONTREAL (CP)—The president of a Canadian mining firm said Wednesday uranium production in the western hemisphere in the 10 years following 1980 will have to reach 400,000 tons, an amount equal to the total production in all years before 1980.

W. M. (Bill) Gilchrist, president of Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., told the Montreal Institute of Investment Analysts that three times this amount must be produced in the 10 years after 1990.

He hoped future Canadian uranium resource development would be done in "a manner less wasteful than in the hectic period 1954 to 1958."

He felt it should be possible for Canada to assume the role of a world-wide prime contractor who guarantees delivery, in packaged form, of reactors, fuels and "knowhow."

Canada's ability to penetrate the early stages of the expanding uranium market would depend on the procedures' ability to maintain reasonable prices. He said prices in the 1966-to-1972 period would likely range from $6 to $8 a pound.

Danny Thomas Will Do Three Specials Next Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene:

Danny Thomas managed to finish taping the fifth and last of his NBC specials despite illnesses of co-stars Bing Crosby and Bob Hope. Thomas had the famed pair signed up for a Road to Lebanon spoof, but he had to settle for a walk-on by Hope, who was battling the flu.

Bing also tangled with the flu bug. He figured if Batman couldn't beat it, neither could he; so he checked into St. Joseph Hospital after the Thomas rehearsals. The hospital is next door to NBC, and Bing found the accommodations so pleasant he returned the next night, instead of going to his hotel.

Danny figures to do only three specials next season.

"I've got a going company, and I can't expect my partner, Sheldon Leonard, to watch it all the time," Thomas says. He'll devote his energies to a new series, My 15 Blocks, starring Dean Jones. Thomas - Leonard shows also include Andy Griffith, Gomer Pyle, I Spy. . . .

Connie Stevens made her first film with Jerry Lewis; now she's back with him in Way . . . Way Out, her first movie after settling her Warner Brothers contract. "Already I'm making double my Warners salary," she says.

Connie had signed to do a picture a year for the next six years for her old home lot. . . .

Guess who volunteered for a Batman villain—Otto Preminger. Producer William Dozier thinks it's a great idea, and it could happen. Preminger, who once played Nazi villains (Stalag 17), has also been sought to play Khrushchev in a movie and a gestapo boss in a TV spy series.

Patricia Neal was upset last year because no mention was made of her illness—she had been scheduled to present the best-actor Oscar — during the Academy Awards. Only a brief announcement was made at the end.

The academy is rectifying the oversight with this year's event. A television crew descended on her English home to film a clip of Miss Neal to be used when the awards are televised.

Harlem Life in Twenties To Be Shown as Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Variety programs are hardly treats any more—there's one on television just about every night.

Neither are appearances by the few dozen stars who, without shows of their own, travel a profitable circuit from Ed Sullivan to Andy Williams, from Dean Martin to The Hollywood Palace and then start all over again.

The next one—on CBS Monday night—will be a show called The Strolling 20s, in which Harry Belafonte is the producer and only an incidental performer. Stars will be Sidney Poitier, Diahann Carroll, Sammy Davis Jr., Duke Ellington and Nipsey Russell, among others. The show was written by poet Langston Hughes.

"We're showing Harlem in the period of the black renaissance," Belafonte said.

"But it is not one of those show biz things or a theatrical recap. We're going to try to show some of the fine things as well as the stench of ghetto life, some of its fun and pain."

Belafonte was born in Harlem in 1927—the time his show will recreate—and he says he owes a lot to it.

"I think growing up in Harlem gave me a sense of values and a lot of positive things like energy, humor, a folk wit and a love of life and humanity. And that's how this show came about—I called Sidney and a lot of the others one day and said 'let's do a show about home'—and everybody was for it, just like that.

"But it's not nostalgic because we all feel that Harlem still has a lot of future Poitiers and Lena Hornes growing up there—probably more now than ever before."

CBS joined NBC Thursday in providing full coverage of the sessions of the Senate foreign relations committee, all six hours of them. Today all three networks will drop regular daytime programming for Secretary of State Dean Rusk's testimony before the committee.

Recommended viewing:

Tonight—The Way to Geneva, NBC, 7:39-8:30 EST; An Evening With Carol Channing, CBS, 8:30-9:30, with David McCallum and George Burns.

Sunday — The Daughters of Orange, NBC, 6:30-7:30 p.m. EST, special on the Dutch royal family; This Proud Land, ABC, 8-9, with Robert Preston guiding viewers through The Way Out West.

Former Free Auto Checks Now Cost Money

TORONTO (CP)—A Canadian Tire Corp. Ltd. service station has started charging motorists for tire inflation and other formerly free auto checks.

A. B. Malcolm, manager of the corporation's service stations, said Thursday it is an experiment limited to one station, but could spread to other outlets in the group if it proves successful.

The charges are 15 cents for inflating tires, 10 cents to check the liquid level in power steering units, and 10 cents for a combined battery, radiator and automatic transmission fluid check.

Astrological Forecasts

by SYDNEY OMARR

For February 19

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Realize friends don't mix with money, business. No matter how well-meaning some appear . . . there is tendency toward deception. Be informed. Stick to principles in face of opposition.

TAURUS (Arp. 20 — May 20): Relationship with one in authority now improves. There is greater mutual respect. Seek harmony . . . don't argue over trivial matters. Family members deserve special attention.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Added freedom, independence indicated. Good lunar aspect highlights. Travel, publishing added knowledge. Base actions on facts — and potential. Look ahead . . . be perceptive.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Figure out problems. You will find they are amenable to solution. Your judgment, intuition provide answers. Member of opposite sex may be overly temperamental.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Better to do more listening than asserting now. Be observant. Accent public relations. Contacts made early bear fruit in future. Get files in order. Outline plans. They'll soon be fulfilled.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Avoid scattering forces. Journey may be unnecessary. Call or message could solve dilemma. Some restrictions are removed. Evening favors entertainment, relaxation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check expenditures. Budget discussion may be in order. One close to you is not aware of all facts. Be frank. Honest discussion accomplishes wonders!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23— Nov. 21): Emphasis on home, residence, condition of family members. Key is being realistic. Do what must be done. Good time to go on record for basic beliefs. Attend to details early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Tendency exists toward self-deception. See persons situations as they actually exist. Get down to issues. Tonight — be glamorous! You can impress others favorably.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Check possessions. Don't be careless. Avoid loss by taking extra precautions. This could save time, money, embarrassment. Added responsibility due. Accept it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Cycle continues high. Fine for making contacts, starting projects. Define aims. You may not have to spend as much as anticipated. Read fine print for clue to actions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Welcome new experiences, challenge. Special hobby, study proves beneficial. Don't be discouraged by friend who is unusually timid. Speak up. Express thoughts.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you have spark which attracts members of opposite sex. No limit to heights you can achieve once you obtain greater confidence.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Sepcial word to Scorpio: Condition that currently exists need not be permanent.

Two Plead Guilty to Armed Robbery

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — John Clarence Hance, 37, formerly of Hamilton, and Edward Mocon, 27, of Oshawa, pleaded guilty Thursday to the armed robbery Jan. 11 of a Peterborough branch of the Royal Bank of Canada

They pleaded not guilty to charges of obstructing a provincial police officer and to armed robbery of his gun, parka and cruiser.

No pleas were taken on charges against the two of possessing a .303-calibre rifle and the cruiser and equipment of OPP Constable Ernest C. Steacy of the Norwood detachment.

Hance and Mocon were arrested a few minutes after the bank was robbed of $13,863. The money was recovered.

Constable Steacy was held up at rifle point Jan. 10 when he stopped a car containing three men he wanted to question.

He was forced into the back seat and his gun, parka, cap and badge were taken from him. One man put on his equipment and drove the cruiser to the Peterborough dump. The officer was handcuffed to the abandoned car of the trio who drove off in his cruiser. He freed himself two hours later.

The hearing is continuing today.

Construction Roundup

The Canadian Tire Store at Coleman and Harriet streets in the city is having a two-storey addition constructed at the rear of the present building.

Manager Doug Boulton says this will mean an extra 6,000 square feet of shopping and storage space for the store. The new section will house a "sports chalet", mezzanined office space and a second-storey tire storage area.

Mr. Boulton points out that the entire store will be re-aligned and a larger wall display will be set up in the existing part of the store.

The construction, made possible by the purchase last fall of two adjacent lots and houses on Harriet street, is being carried out by W. de Jong Contractors of Stirling, and it is estimated that the project will be completed within 90 days.

The jury brought in the following verdict:

"According to evidence we the jurors consider that Gordon and Patricia Faulkner met their death when hit by the train due to the slippery condition of the road at the time of the accident.

It appears according to the evidence that the driver of the car was driving at an excessive speed considering the condition of the road at the time of the accident.

"The storm was apparently over for several hours preceding the accident and the road had been sanded on one side, and we, the jurors, recommend that all approaches to the railroad tracks should be sanded immediately after all storms."

Foreman of the five-member jury was Percy VanVlack of R. R. 5, Napanee. Other members were George Chalk, R.R. 6, Douglas Amey, R.R. 6, Gordon Topping, R.R. 5, and Joseph Tustin, Napanee. The jury took a little over an hour to bring in the verdict.

Engineer Joseph Boyle of R. R. 1, Foxboro, said he saw the accident coming, but hoped it could be avoided. However, the car seemed to put on speed as is the case when the brakes are applied during a skid.

The Faulkner car was going west on Highway 502, and Edward McIntosh of Kingston who was driving east was an eyewitness to the event up to the time the train obscured his view.' He testified that he could not' be positive that Mr. Faulkner was driving, but that he was of that opinion as he could see a man's hat on the driver's side. It was brought out that Mr. Faulkner was the driver when the car left the Shell service station earlier.

Mr. Faulkner and his daughter were making a quick trip to Toronto to see Mr. Faulkner's mother, who was ill.

Constable William Exley of the OPP was the investigating officer.

It was the last meeting of the association as both a provincial and federal riding group. As a result of re-distribution, Lennox and Prince Edward will be in separate federal constituencies.

Deseronto Personals

DESERONTO — Mrs. Ernest Dorey of Main Street returned Thursday from the Kingston General Hospital following major surgery.

Sister St. Agnes Carmelita of St. Agnes Convent in Toronto, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dorey of Main Street. It was the first weekend she had spent with them in five years, and she was allowed to do so because of her mother's illness.

Mrs. Charles Cole of Main Street is excited because of callers who dropped in in the midst of the snow storm Wednesday afternoon. Five purple finches, the first of the year, came for the afternoon but left hurriedly when a flock of evening grosbeaks elbowed them rudely out of the way.

Bible Students Visit Church

DESERONTO — Students from the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough visited Deseronto Pentecostal Church to help in the weekend services.

Friday evening the Young People's C.A. service was conducted by the local president, Mrs. Glen Topping, assisted by Mr. Gordon O'Coin, Bible student.

Other students taking part were Miss Fern Parker from Napanee as pianist, Miss Zelma Clemence from Sarnia leading the singing and Miss Lorraine Cole from Newfoundland as guest soloist.

Special speaker for the evening was Mr. Keith Goodman from Belleville. Mr. Goodman spoke on the importance of living a Christian life and witnessing to others about Jesus Christ.

Both Sunday services were well attended. During the morning service communion was served. Rev. J. McEwen, pastor of the church spoke at both the morning and the evening evangelistic services. Miss Clemence and Miss Cole each gave personal testimonies and sang several numbers.

Deseronto Pentecostal choir sang two anthems with Mrs. Floyd Hodge, Mrs. Gaynor Rendell, Mrs. A. O'Coin and Miss Joan Moore singing as a quartette.

Students were entertained at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Toppings and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Miller.

Centennial Park Tenders Called for

NAPANEE — Tenders have been called by the Federal government for a wharf at Centennial Park in Napanee. The property was purchased from Harry Vine about four years ago, following a fire in which his buildings were destroyed.

Since that time improvements have been made. The property was cleaned up and fill has been added to make a parking lot along Water street. This will remain. Meanwhile the dock has remained as it was when Mr. Vine used it in his coal and wood business. There is a boat ramp of sorts, and boats do tie up at the wharf, but it is a poor arrangement.

Napanee plans a green belt along the Napanee River, extending beyond the town. Little by little the town is working on this, purchasing property as it is available. The new wharf will be a step in the development of this planning.

Plant Owner Refuses to Meet With Union

TORONTO (CP)—Harold P. Pammett, one of three owners of a strike-bound Peterborough plastics plant, refused to meet with union representatives Thursday, the city's Progressive Conservative member of the legislature said.

Keith Brown said "Mr. Pammett refused to meet with union representatives and he would not budge from this position. He is simply not interested in talks with the union."

About 35 members of the Textile Workers of America (CLC) went on strike Dec. 14 against Tilco Plastics Ltd. They are seeking higher wages and union security. Top hourly wages were $1.12 and the union is seeking a 10-to-12-cent-an-hour increase.

The plant has continued to operate.

Mr. Pammett met here Wednesday with Thomas Eberlee, Ontario's deputy labor minister, A. C. Dennis, chief of conciliation services, and Mr. Brown.

The owner produced photographs at the meeting showing what he said were pickets massed at one of the plant's entrances.

On Dec. 20 both union and company agreed to a court injunction that set a limit of 12 on the number of pickets. Just before the strike started, the company and union appeared on the verge of signing their first agreement.

STAGES DEMONSTRATION — About 1,200 demonstrators, shouting "Yankee Go Home" and carrying placards bearing slogans like "Bomb Johnson for a Greater Society" marched in front of the United States Consulate in Montreal Friday in protest against U.S. action in Viet Nam. (CP Wirephoto)

Yale Man Tells Montrealers U.S. Is Guilty of War Crimes

MONTREAL (CP) — Prof. Staughton Lynd of Yale University, who had his United States passport lifted because of a recent visit to North Viet Nam, Friday likened the U.S. government to Nazi war criminals "punishable under the judgment of the Nuernberg tribunal."

He told a public rally that his government is guilty of "torture and murder of unarmed prisoners, bombing unprotected villages, and . . . execution of Vietnamese who peacefully protest these barbarities."

In his speech, based mainly on newspaper dispatches, he quoted one story of the slaying of a Viet Cong suspect, who laughed at his captors.

The story read: "The Marine said, 'He ain't goin' to laugh no more,' as he pumped the prisoner full of bullets," said Mr. Lynd.

Prof. Lynd, from New Haven, Conn., was speaking at a rally sponsored by the Committee for Peace and Self - determination for Viet Nam. It was attended by about 1,000 students and a few adults.

The 37 - year - old professor termed U.S. President Johnson's recent "peace offensive" a "metallic dove."

He said the U.S. actually "escalated the war and North Viet Nam de-escalated their side of the war," during the peace drive.

He based his statement on newspaper reports.

Just prior to a standing ovation by the audience, Prof. Lynd said:

"I believe the United States is systematically and deliberately committing war crimes, punishable under the judgment of the Nuernberg tribunal, against the Vietnamese people and is deceiving the people of America and the world about the nature of its policy."

He also charged his government was not letting out the full picture of what is happening.

Mme. Therese Casgrain, past president of the Voice of Women, was chairman of the rally.

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks

"What if your dad doesn't believe we've been necking at a drive - in?"

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly 1,200 chilled, noisy but disciplined demonstrators withstood 10-degree temperatures Friday to chant bilingually on the United States consulate doorstep: "Yankee go home," and "Viet Nam aux Vietnamiens."

When their 30-minute demonstration ended, they left about 150 assorted placards on the consulate lawn. One of them read: "Bomb Johnson for a 'greater' society."

The late afternoon protest-march was a prelude to the appearance of Yale University Prof. Staughton Lynd., of New Haven, Conn. He spoke at a rally sponsored by the Emergency Committee for Peace and Self - determination in Viet Nam.

The demonstration began in downtown Dominion Square at 4:30 p.m. when the crowd, composed mainly of university students and some adults, huddled in the wind - swept square to receive the placards.

About 10 organizers of the march kept the group in check with orders shouted via loud-hailers and with hand signals.

City police officials had not issued a permit to demonstrate.

While the demonstration was under way, a smaller group held a meeting to support the U.S. stand.

Extreme Cold Will Continue For Another Couple of Days

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A bitterly cold air mass stretching from the Prairies to the Maritimes sent temperatures to the 40-below range early today in some areas and established several minimum temperature records in Ontario.

Hamilton and Centralia both recorded four below, breaking records of zero and three below set in 1959 and 1920 respectively. Muskoka's reading of 27 below was eight degrees colder than the previous record set in 1944.

Killaloe, 40 miles south of Pembroke, broke a 22-year record with a reading of 29 below, four degrees colder than the previous minimum record.

On the Prairies, Manitoba centres reported the coldest readings with Winnipeg caught in the grip of a frigid 45 below. It was 12 below at Calgary and Regina registered a 24 below reading.

Quebec City shivered under an early - morning reading of 23 below and Montreal recorded 14 below, one degree warmer than Ottawa.

The Maritimes, enjoying relatively balmy weather until the cold snap, reported 14 below at Charlottetown and 13 below at Moncton. It was one below in both Sydney and Halifax and St. John's recorded four above.

The cold snap started Thursday night on the Prairies, in Ontario and Quebec. Nearly every centre in Manitoba reported early Friday temperatures lower than 40 below zero. At Brochet in northwestern Manitoba it was 60 below.

Northwestern Ontario plunged to near 60 below Friday night after Thursday's frigid temperatures that dropped to 59 below in Graham, 100 miles northwest of the Lakehead.

Extreme cold in Saskatchewan was expected to continue until Sunday.

Southern Ontario, after several days of mild temperatures, had highs of five and 10 above zero Friday.

Quebec City and Noranda, Que., had readings of 20 and 30 below respectively early Friday. Montreal was expected to be the warmest spot in the province today at zero.

Arctic air also moved into the Maritimes Friday. The temperature didn't rise above zero in northern New Brunswick. Warmest spot in Nova Scotia was Greenwood at 23 above.

More Aussies May Go To War While U.S. Reviews Policies

CANBERRA (AP) — Following talks with U.S. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, Prime Minister Harold Holt announced today that Australia may increase its troop commitment in Viet Nam.

"We hope to announce soon what Australia can do to supplement our present forces in South Viet Nam," Holt told a joint press conference.

He added that Australia has been considering for some time what more it can do in Viet Nam but that no conclusions had yet been reached. Australia now has about 1,500 combat troops in Viet Nam.

About 150 anti-Viet Nam war pickets surged toward Humphrey's car today as he emerged from Parliament House following a meeting with Holt.

They screamed "We want peace" and called Humphrey a "warmonger."

Police kept the demonstrators away from the vice-president, but one bearded student got close to the car before he was pulled back.

ROWDINESS UNUSUAL

The noisy demonstration lasted about 10 minutes and was the rowdiest seen in Canberra in many years. Police said there were no arrests.

Some of the pickets came from Sydney, 200 miles from Canberra, and Victoria, 450 miles away.

They displayed placards some of which said: "Humphrey war criminal", "Johnson talks peace, makes war" and "Big brother is here."

It was the first hostile demonstration that Humphrey has met since he started his current tour of Southeast and South Asia and Australia. He flew here Friday from India.

The vice-president seemed to take the demonstration in good humor. He told a luncheon audience that he thought to himself on seeing the pickets: "What the prime minister will do to make me feel at home."

A national newspaper today carried a paid advertisement addressed to Humphrey, calling for peace in Viet Nam. The signers were listed as educationists and clergymen for the most part.

DOESN'T ASK

Humphrey told the press conference he did not make "any request to the government of Australia for additional forces in Viet Nam."

"The government of Australia will do what it feels it can do and we in America have faith in its judgment," he added.

Both Holt and Humphrey noted that Australia, a country of 12,000,000 population, has roles elsewhere, such as in Malaysia and in the Asian Development Bank, and that its resources are not unlimited.

Canada Covered For Yanks

TORONTO (CP) — A former member of the International Control Commission said Friday that Canada's observers in Viet Nam were under subtle pressure from United States officials to play the game or pay the consequences between 1961 and 1963.

H. H. Campbell, a retired RCAF squadron leader who was in Viet Nam during those years, said in an interview that the Canadians only saw violations of the Geneva ceasefire agreement that they were supposed to see.

"Otherwise, we would have been extremely unpopular with the Americans," he said.

Mr. Campbell said the presence of U.S. ships and material in Viet Nam was a contravention of the agreement.

Now a civil defence co-ordinator on Vancouver Island, Mr. Campbell is in Toronto to speak today at a conference on Canada's role in Viet Nam.

He said he did not see anything "in print that we should cover for the Americans, but at the same time, if you did not, you'd be in a very difficult position."

Polish members of the commission did the same thing, he said. "They covered up for their Communist buddies."

India is the third member of the commission set up as an observer group after the Geneva agreement of 1954 which created north and south Viet Nam.

John Powell, a former administrative clerk with the external affairs department in Viet Nam between June, 1964, and June, 1965, said he was "shocked at the breaking of agreements. This is one of the reasons why I left the department."

Defence Policy Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—For the last 18 months Canada's soldiers, airmen and sailors have been getting special bonuses and grants for leaving the forces.

Now they're going to get bonuses for re-enlisting.

The about-face in defence policy was announced in the Commons Friday by Associate Defence Minister Cadieux. He said non-commissioned officers and men who sign for further duty will get bonuses amounting to $200 a year for each year of future service.

During the last 18 months some 500 aircrew and 912 other military personnel were compulsorily retired to help reduce strength of the three services. They got bonuses and grants upon leaving.

In another move calculated to plug the leak in defence manpower, Mr. Cadieux announced interim pay increases for the forces starting Oct. 1, final increases for the ensuing two-year period will be decided later.

OPPOSITION HOSTILE

Both announcements came as the Commons went into its second day of debate on 1965 - 66 spending by the defence department. Opposition MPs came out fighting with charges that 7,200 men are leaving the service each year because of low morale.

Former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness said Defence Minister Hellyer was dealing out propaganda with his talk of cutting defence costs. Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said recent Canadian purchases of weapons are making the country "the junkyard of obsolete American equipment."

Mr. Cadieux said the bonus will cost the defence department about $27,600,000 in the year ending March 31, 1966. Officials said this will come out of the $65,000,000 set aside for weapon purchases but not spent.

David Groos (L—Victoria), a former naval officer, said the bonuses will save money in the long run. Money would be saved in keeping trained men. He only wished the bonus was higher.

Mr. Harkness called the WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk, President Johnson's chief foreign policy spokesman, has invited Congress to vote again on Viet Nam war policy "if there is any doubt" about it.

Rusk voiced his belief the vote would be as overwhelming as it was in 1964 when Congress handed Johnson the resolution authorizing him to act in Southeast Asia.

"We'll give him a chance to find out next week," Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) told the Senate foreign relations committee Friday as the group concluded the public part of its probe of the president's Viet Nam policy.

Morse, the most outspoken among Senate critics of U.S. involvement in Viet Nam, said he intends to force a vote on rescinding the 1964 resolution. The House of Representatives approved it by a 414 to 0 vote and the Senate went along, 88 to 2.

Morse's move drew no support from other members of the committee.

ENDS SESSIONS

Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), the committee chairman, ended the sessions at least temporarily after hearing Rusk give a lecture on the roads to war and peace.

When Rusk left he was closely guarded by a security detail reinforced after a Baltimore television station reported it received an anonymous telephone call from "a woman with a husky voice" who said: "Dean Rusk will be shot right between the eyes when he leaves that building in Washington."

As the committee rung down the curtain on the hearings that have become the storm centre of Viet Nam debate, one committee member put out an invitation to the president for some private, heart-to-heart talks.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem. Tenn.) threw out a broad hint to Johnson:

"I have the feeling we should have our sessions with the secretary—and the president—behind closed doors for awhile. This has reached, I hope, a fruitful point from which some unity can be achieved in the country."

DEBATE CONTINUES

Although the hearings dominated congressional activity, debate continued on the Senate floor over the administration's request for $4,800,000,000 for military supplies.

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem. Ga.), chairman of the armed services committee, charged opponents of the administration's Viet Nam policies were directed at members of the foreign relations committee.

"I would like at least to have some alternatives to our present

Bombers Use New Technique

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers using a new technique of hitting their targets twice in a row, struck at Viet Cong concentrations two miles from the Cambodian border today.

They hit three areas of western Tay Ninh province, about 75 miles northwest of Saigon, in a repeat of twice-daily raids they have made on the sector for the last week.

The air force adopted the two-raid technique because the Viet Cong had felt it fairly safe to come out of hiding after one strike.

Another innovation was a new bomb fusing device designed to bore straight down and penetrate Viet Cong tunnels.

Air force and navy carrier planes continued Friday to bomb North Viet Nam in an effort to choke off Hanoi's support for the rebels in the south.

Ground action in South Viet Nam was at a near standstill today for lack of contact with the Viet Cong.

The biggest allied show was 300 miles north of Saigon around Bon Son and the An Lao Valley produced skirmishes Friday and today with another 51 Viet Cong reported killed by U.S. spokesmen.

South Vietnamese units reported 91 Viet Cong killed in heavy fighting Friday north of Ban Me Thuot, about 160 miles northeast of Saigon.

Train Wrecks Car Here; Occupants Only Scratched

WRECKED by CPR freight train near Highway 2 level crossing at Belleville's west city limits this morning, this car carried a preacher and his son who escaped with minor injuries. John Howard, 30, of Kingston, a Seventh Day Adventist minister, and his six-year-old son, John Jr., were driving out of a side-road when their car tangled with a Montreal-bound freight drawn by three diesel units. Taken to Belleville General Hospital by a passing motorist they were released after a checkup revealed no injuries save a few scratches. Traffic was briefly stalled on the highway before the train crew split the freight and moved it off the level crossing.

Men Most Venturesome Cooks Says Local Home Economist

CHEF MUELLER

Many men are more venturesome when it comes to cooking than the average women says home economist Dorothy Batcheller. They will experiment more readily, trying new seasonings and food combinations. Perhaps it is because the amateur chef is an "occasional cook" and not required to prepare the traditional "three squares" a day, week in and week out, and struggle with a food budget that frequently refuses to remain balanced.

Last March the adult education committee of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. sponsored a series of gourmet cooking classes for men only which proved so popular a new series of four classes is being sponsored again this year. The series starts next Tuesday evening at the Kiwanis Centre.

Chef Mueller of the Sun Valley Motor Inn, one of last years popular guest lecturers, will conduct the first class and demonstrate bone of meat, preparing poultry for the broiler or barbecue and carving. These skills are all of keen interest to the average man. A host who carves well is the envy of men who have not mastered the trick. Unfortunately, points out Mrs. Batcheller, more and more carving is being left to the homemaker, who performs the art in the kitchen. This is really a shame, since one time the host or father can hold the spotlight at dinner is when he carves well.

TEACH SALAD TOSSING

Mrs. Eileen Hickman home economics director of Lawry's Foods Limited of Canada and a nationally known home economist, will be guest lecturer in March. She has a way with a salad that is unique and will make the host the centre of the party even if he can't carve.

A lecture on choice and service of wine and barbecue cooking will be the feature of the third class on March 22.

Finally, Miss Rosemary Bellagh, who has just completed a similar series of classes for several hundred men in Toronto at the Consumers' Gas, will demonstrate some of the favorite recipes from her Consumer Gas Company "The Gents a Gourmet," on March 29.

Because of limited space, the numbers signing up for the course, either in advance at the Y.M.C.A. (in person or by telephone), or at the door Tuesday evening will be restricted to 75. It is hoped this number will be reached says Miss Batcheller, who has been organizing the classes.

Name Committee to Study Home for Teen-age Girls

A committee consisting of Mrs. E. E. Follwell, Joel Mazer, Alderman Enos David, Reeve M. J. Hamm, Deputy Reeve Jack M. Bush and Councillor D. R. Fraser of Trenton has been appointed to explore the establishment of a Children's Aid Society group home for teen - age girls.

The decision was made at the monthly meeting of the Board of the Children's Aid Society this week.

The subject had been discussed in both board and committee meetings on innumberable occasions in the past and, it was pointed out, there was in the minutes a motion authorizing the establishment of such a home.

Mrs. A. S. Lewis, vice - president of the Society, presided. She welcomed Councillor D. R. Fraser, the appointee of the Council of the Town of Trenton, and Rev. Patrick Kelly to the Board.

It was announced that the Society's estimate of expenditure for the year 1966, in the amount of $217,598 had been approved by the councils of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton, and had been forwarded to Queen's Park for ministerial approval. The Province of Ontario has already advanced $20,000 of its share (which amounts to more than $25,000) to assist with current obligations until such time as formal approval is granted.

PRAISES GOVERNMENT

Local director Bruce Kerr said: "While I may have been critical of the Ontario government for its attitude, or total lack of attitude, toward child welfare in the past, I am certainly impressed by what is, beyond a doubt, a sincere effort on the part of the government to effect a worthwhile change. I think there are better days ahead."

In his report, Mr. Kerr stated that there were 138 children in the care of the Society at the end of January; nine having been admitted during the month.

It was duly moved and seconded that the agreements with the County of Hastings and the City of Belleville in respect of protection and other family services be terminated, the provision of such services now being covered by statute.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Mrs. James Musgrove reported for a committee comprised of Mr. George Wishart, Mrs. A. S. Lewis, Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson and Joel Mazer which recently reviewed various policies and considered necessary amendments to bring them into line with the recently introduced child welfare legislation. The committee's recommendations were approved.

Oriel Griffiths moved that the Society's by-laws be amended to bring them into line with the new child welfare legislation. Mr. Griffiths stated that a small committee had reviewed the by-laws and that they had been given the approval of the Society's solicitor, Mr. John Lennox, Q.C., who had stated that they met the requirements of the Act.

The new by-laws provide for the appointment to the Board of three municipal representatives by the County of Hastings, two by the City of Belleville and one by the Town of Trenton and for the appointment of an executive committee consisting of the president, the treasurer, four municipal representatives and three other directors. The by-laws will now be submitted to the Minister of Public Welfare for consideration and approval.

Farm Workshop Season Opens Will Run Till End of March

It's farm clinic time again. Starting next week and running through until the end of March, winter meetings and other special events are scheduled for Hastings county farmers.

The first of this year's farm clinics will be a mastitis workshop scheduled to start in the community service building in Stirling on Friday, Feb. 25th, commencing at 10.00 a.m. and lasting through until 4.00

The day's program will be conducted by Dr. Neeley and other staff members from the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph. It is hoped that at least 100 Hastings county farmers will attend this meeting.

The farm news letter, announcing the clinic dates, notes that mastitis is a very complex and often somewhat mysterious disease, with a recent survey revealing that over 50 per cent of the cows have the disease in some form or another.

The purpose of the workshop is to illustrate the step-by-step procedures that are practical and effective in controlling mastitis. Those attending will be shown by demonstrations, films and other means just what is involved in controlling this very costly disease.

The second county farm clinic for this winter will be on the organization of a county milk committee and will be held at the Stirling community service building on Monday, February 28th, the meeting to get underway at 1.15 p.m.

On Wednesday, March 2nd there will be a clinic on "Swine Managemet and Housing" to be held in the Canadian Legion Hall at Stirling, commencing at 10.30. Professor R. P. Forshaw of the OAC, plus an engineer on housing, will be in attendance.

Other farm clinics on other topics will be held March 10th, 17th, 23rd and 29th.

One Man's Opinion

I've been called worse names, but I am the official tourmaster of The Intelligencer.

I escort one or two groups every week on the average through our beautiful new building, showing them how pictures are made, how type is set, how the press runs.

(Before I get into trouble with my cohorts in crime around here, I'd better clarify that last remark. I don't really show the tours these things, I simply guide them to the people who know how to do them. Those people show them.)

Have to think of relations with my fellow employees you know.

Meanwhile, back at the tour or back at The Intelligencer, or back wherever we were, I have discovered an interesting phenomena concerning school-age groups.

A delightful group of 37 grade nine students from Nicholson College came through the building yesterday. The boy-girl ratio was about half and half.

While I took the boys through The Intelligencer, the girls and their teacher went with Dave Charles through CJBQ.

When the boys were finished looking at the newspaper part of the building, they went through CJBQ and I took the girls through The Intelligencer .

The whole thing sounds confusing doesn't it?

Don't let that worry you though. It was confusing.

Anway, as I have said, I took the boys through first. They marched along, in orderly style, though stopping once in a while to punch each other, taking in every part of the building.

The 15 or so boys crowded into the dark room — a room meant for two or three persons — to watch a demonstration by Mrs. C. on the techniques of developing pictures.

They stood politely by, watching every new operation involved in the picture making process with great interest.

Then on through the editorial department — the "brains" of any newspaper — and out into the composing room.

No problems.

Except for the odd question and the fact that you could see them, a person could have walked through the composing room without realizing the 15 boys were there.

(A herd of elephants could stampede out there and some of of those guys wouldn't know it. Especially Bill — I'm safe in saying Bill because everybody out there is named Bill.)

In the press room downstairs it was the same story, the boys gathered round, listened intently, then trooped off to CJBQ.

Now the girls.

Don't get me wrong. I'm in favor of girls and all that but . . .

I'm not singling out these particular girls. I mean, it could have been any similar group of girls.

I admit, I look funny, but they didn't have to giggle about it quite as much as they did.

And you should have seen them in the dark room. Rather, you should have heard them.

Oh boy. (Or should that be, oh girl?)

Whenever we wanted to go to another department we had to wait until the five or six little clusters of girls got together again.

I'd start explaining something and about half of them would wander off looking at other things, then quickly lose interest and start to giggle about my looks again.

I don't really blame them for not wanting to listen to me. I heard myself on a tape once. It was terrible. Not only that, the tape recorder broke.

Anyway, back to the theme of this column.

Really, I enjoy taking these tours through. And there's a lot to see here.

I think I get a special bang out of the school-age kids, such as those who came through yesterday.

They were a real good group.

Nevertheless, there's a moral here.

Men, even from youth, are quieter and more interested in things about them than women are.

It takes a real pro to get a word in edgewise at a woman's tea party.

Even the women have problems.

But women's aren't all bad.

They're nice to have around sometimes . . . anytime.

Anyway, they're prettier than men.

Moirantics '66 Plays To Packed Auditorium

"Come mothers and fathers of the land. What, you don't understand?

"For the times they are changin'. . ."

And on went the Hootenanny, singing the song that exemplified the theme of last night's Moirantics '66 — "It's a teenage world."

Playing to a packed house, the cast of Moirantics went through a total of 29 skits, tracing the history of man, with emphasis on the teenager.

Off they went on a zany trip through history, from a prehistoric night club, through Egypt, Rome, Elizabethan England and on through to Elvis Presley and the Hootenanny.

Some of the highlights were the fire dance with Jean Ann Histed; Eric Maher as Cleopatra; three teachers, Mrs. I. Raney, L. Holland and M. Irwin as Peter, Paul and Mary; E. Terry an his puppets; the Hootenanny and Jackie Cook in "A taste of honey."

The show is fresh and alive and the enthusiasm of the participants adds to every skit.

The show runs again tonight at Moira Secondary School. Gate time, 8 p.m.

John Bailey is director, assisted by S. Bennett and L. Shoebridge. Stage manager is P. Ellis with Mrs. A. Kennedy and E. Terry as staff directors.

Jim Wright, George Mason, Susan Bennett and Sonja Holleman are emcees.

Company Will Operate Despite Mass Picketing

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — An official of Tilco Plastics Ltd. said Friday the company intends to keep operating despite threats of mass picketing by the Peterborough Labor Council.

About 35 of the company's 65 employees 8 most of them women—have been on strike for higher wages since Dec. 4. The company is continuing to operate with recently-hired workers.

President William Mulders of the labor council said Friday mass picketing is the only way to settle the strike by the Textile Workers of America (CLC).

D. G. Tripp, vice-president of Tilco, said in a prepared statement the company "intends to continue operating its business and can provide work for those employees who seek to exercise their rights and come to work."

An injunction Dec. 20 limited the number of pickets at the plant to 12. Mr. Mulders said the mass picketing will be a battle of civil rights to get rid of the injunction.

The company has asked Attorney-General Arthur Wishart to intervene if the mass picketing is carried out.

TRENTON — The Trenton Centennial Planning Committee, under the chairmanship of Robert Carleton will advocate that Trenton take steps to gain city status before Centennial Year, 1967, according to a report released on Friday by the chairman.

Mayor James MacDonald touched briefly on the city status theme in his inaugural speech at the first of the year, but the planning committee feels this should be explored in depth.

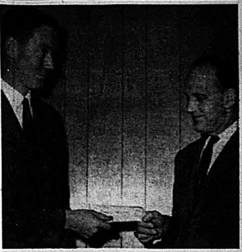
Theme of Trenton's 1967 celebrations is "Out of the Past . . . Into the Future."

Letters will be sent out to merchants, industry heads, churches and organzations, asking for ideas to carry out the theme, and these organizations will be asked to carry out projects of their own to mark Canada's 100th birthday.

TALK ON BROTHERHOOD

Ranjit Hall, an East Indian by birth and head of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration at Toronto was the guest speaker at Thursday night's "Brotherhood Week" meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Hall said that brotherhood should not just be something set up as an ideal but should be practised by all in relationships with all people.



At a directors' meeting of the Trenton Lions' Club Wednesday night, Lions' president, Sproule Currie, right, presented a cheque for $5,000 to John Downs, a member of the Trenton swimming pool committee. Late last year the Lions voted to assist the Rotary Club in the project and Trenton Kiwanians have also offered to assist in raising money for the $55,000 outdoor pool.

Uneasy Calm

The middle East is a region of mystery and intrigue. Its topography is a vast kaleidoscope of desert and sun-burned hills which merge with fertile coastal areas and land made productive by irrigation. It combines the harsh and the inhospitable with the lushness and freshness of the Mediterranean lands.

Here Christ was born and performed his early ministry, where today Arab and Jew live in uneasy proximity, in lands whose borders are heavily patrolled and international "incidents" are frequent. It is a region of great oil reserves and sheikdoms whose rulers have profited from the riches of the earth and who live in medieval splendor and isolation from the mass of the people.

It is a potentially explosive region which, since the last war, has managed to survive in comparative calm. There was, of course, the brief conflict between Israel and Egypt during the Suez crisis a decade or so ago, which increased traditional Arab-Jewish rivalry and created a climate of hostility which survives to this day. Only the Canadian-inspired UN peace force keeps the rivals at bay. And there was the coup in Iraq in which the young King Feisal lost his life. Today there is trouble in Saudi Arabia, as witness the fighting between Arab irregulars and the British forces in Yemen and Aden.

The wonder is that generally speaking the Middle East is at peace. The various frontier incidents and occasional rebellions against established order have never led to large-scale fighting. Meanwhile the countries concerned grapple with such pressing problems as poverty, the population explosion and the need to introduce modern methods to peoples whose way of life has changed little since the time of Christ. The plight of the Arab refugees from the conflict with Israel is another issue which continues to disturb Middle Eastern governments which espouse the Arab cause.

Yet while peaceful pursuits and economic advancement are not being neglected, there is the fear that the Middle East ultimately will become yet another pawn in the east-west power struggle.

Recently there was news that the United States had been shipping Patton tanks to Jordan. And in Ottawa last week, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said he sees no end to the "spiralling arms race" in the Middle East.

Mr. Eban said Russia is shipping arms to Egypt in almost unlimited quantities, and that Western shipments to some of the other Arab states are increasing the danger. The U.S. shipments to Jordan would clearly come under the latter heading.

Only time will tell whether the Middle East is to become a major battleground once again. As matters stand around the world, the conflict in Viet Nam is worry enough without further outbreaks. The world can little afford such eruptions without increasing the danger of a major collision between the great powers.

Macbeth

Long queues of almost exclusively high school students for the recent presentation in Belleville of the film version of Macbeth testify to a youthful interest in the classics.

Granted that such strong interest stems from the fact that Macbeth is a popular choice of study in the English curriculum, along with Shakespeare's other works. And yet, the rapt attention given the powerful performances of Maurice Evans as Macbeth and Judith Anderson as the malevolent Lady Macbeth, had as much to do with a natural respect for their distinguished performances and for the language of the bard, as it had from the fact that Macbeth is required reading in school.

There were some in the audience who became a little fidgety toward the end and, inevitably, there were those who found humor in situations that warranted no such response, as in the masterly way in which Miss Anderson characterized Lady Macbeth's growing madness.

For the most part, though, you could hear a pin drop. Even the tyrannical rustling of candy paper and popcorn was almost entirely absent, as the beauty of Shakespearean language, in one of the bard's most dramatic works, set against the wild grandeur of the Scottish highlands, wrought its spell.

Ottawa Service

Canadian National is doing brisk business on its Ottawa run, which it took over recently from the Canadian Pacific.

During the pool train service shared by both companies between Toronto and Montreal, Canadian Pacific averaged only 23 passengers daily on its connecting service between Brockville and the capital. Now the two dayliner services are filled to capacity, with about 160 in each. Extra sections are required at weekends.

Many of the additional passengers, of course, are people who formerly took the Canadian Pacific Service to Ottawa, via Smith's Falls, now discontinued. Nevertheless, the boost in traffic to the capital, via Brockville, indicates that such a service was needed.

Ottawa Offbeat

Tory Member Probes Cost Of Ministerial Junkets

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Used to be that if you wanted to see the world you joined the Navy.

But that usually got you only lower deck service and a lot of work scraping rust and painting HMCS.

If you want to travel First Class these days, join the Federal Cabinet, or even the Civil Service and go VIP.

Like La Judy.

Miss LaMarsh, it is officially recorded in Parliament, in her two years as Health and Welfare Minister, visited at public expense with you and other taxpayers picking up the tab, such Faraway Places as:

Britain, Scotland, Holland, West Germany, France, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Austria, Italy, Switzerland.

And as close to home as Washington, DC.

Judy gets around.

On Federal Government business, too, which gets her all the fringe benefits of the junketing VIP, such as Embassy bashes, conducted tours, ministerial cocktail splashes, official 12-course - with - all - the - prescribed - wines dinner spreads and assorted fun and games that so make political life worth the living.

La Judy's no different, though than all the other Federal VIPs on these all-expense ventures abroad except that she's had to account to Parliament for her globe-trotting.

But not very seriously — since with foreign travel all the Ottawa rage, who really wants to blow the whistle?

Just one young hard-hearted realist, it looks like.

THE BILL

Where did Judy go, asks Robert Coates, Conservative MP for Cumberland who is making something of a Commons career for himself poking into Cabinet ministerial travel accounts, and how much did the trips cost?

Here's where and how much:

To England, Holland, West Germany, Denmark, Sweden and France for $1,684.55 "to meet," says La Judy, "officials of these countries and discuss with them their various pension plans."

To Austria and Italy for $1,796.60 "to attend the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck and to consult in Rome on the Summer Games."

To London for $940.30 "to attend the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill."

To Finland, Germany, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland for $1,430.70 "to visit national sports centres and interview officials on medicare programs and also to attend a conference in Geneva of the World Health Organization."

To Washington for $262.18 "to attend the annual meeting of the Pan-American Health Conference."

To Edinburgh for $540.63 "to attend the Commonwealth Medical Association convention."

Dig those odd cents which give the impression of such meticulous accounting.

It all adds up to $6,654.96.

But for travelling in style at public expense, Judy actually is a piker.

If you really want to live it up as a junketing VIP, you just don't buy a ticket, courtesy of the taxpayer — you take the whole plane and fill the seats with your associates and friends.

Like, it now turns out, thanks to the curiosity of the same Robert Coates, was done by Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve.

BE MY GUEST

Mr. Sauve took a Transport Department Viscount, loaded it up with his top administrative hands and their families and flew out for a weekend on the snowy slopes of old Quebec.

Explaining it to the Commons, Mr. Sauve says the trip was "to attend the official opening ceremonies of a major ARDA (Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Agency) project at Beaupre."

The project, grins Robert Coates, slyly, was really a nifty new ski development, and almost everybody had a swinging time . . . almost, that is, since spoil-sport Bob claims that some of the junketeers, after landing in Quebec City, didn't bother going on the 25 miles or so to Beaupre.

How come that some of Maurice Sauve's departmental pals plus their families got to go, and on the return flight, Quebec Liberal MP Jean Berger and two members of his family were able to aerial hitch-hike?

"since the plane was going on an officail trip, and plenty of space was available," explains the Transport and Forestry Departments, adding that anyway, why get so excited when this "has frequently been the practice for many years."

The "practice" perhaps, but not so as anybody really noticed. Until now.

Remember the fuss back in the '50's when former Trade Minister Howe loaded a Transport Department Douglas DC-3 with some of his departmental cronies and took off, as he had the grace to laugh when explaining it later, on "a business trip" to Northern Ontario that ended up in Toronto conveniently on the noon of a Grey Cup day?

Old "CD" had dropped in, momentarily, on a Northland call, then zipped out immediately with his chums still aboard for the great Fall classis in time for the kickoff.

There was a mighty upraor in Parliament about it then—will there be an echo now?

More Libraries Required

Oshawa Times

In this era of emphasis on education in Ontario, woeful inadequacies were revealed recently in what has been long considered a very basic branch of learning throughout the province. The deficiencies have been found in the Ontario libraries.

The study commissioned by the Ontario Library Association was presented by Education Minister William Davis. It revealed one in four Ontario residents is without library service; less than half the municipalities in Ontario have public libraries; majority of elementary and secondary school libraries are substandard; most university and college libraries do not meet accepted undergraduate standards. A chronic shortage of trained librarians is reported, several million dollars are wasted each year by the province's 475 public libraries in duplicating orders.

The report prepared by New York library consultant Francis R. St. John left no doubt that public and educational library facilities in the province fall gravely short of what should be minimum requirements.

Mr. St. John recommended that the government legislate the establishment of minimum library standards. He urges that all elementary and secondary schools with enrollment of 150 be required to have libraries. An increase of $1. per capita from the present 43 cents is suggested in provincial grants to public libraries in the next 10 years. At least $16,500,000 is estimated as the annual need to support university libraries during this period.

A key recommendation, however, calls for the creation of a provincial network of regional co-operative libraries and reference centres operated in association with a reference centre in Toronto. Such a program would make every library book in the province available to every citizen in the province. Close liaison is also suggested between university and public libraries.

Spending Up In 1966-67

Windsor Star

Estimates of federal expenditures for the fiscal year 1966-67, tabled in the Commons, don't hold out much prospect of tax reductions. Indeed, as they are up some 9½ per cent over those of a year ago, there could be some tax increases.

These estimates are separate from the budget but inevitably influence the budget. The estimates show how much the Government plans to spend. The budget reveals how the money is to be raised.

There are two key factors in revenues. One is the level of taxes; the other the state of the economy. The same rates of taxes provide much more federal income in a good year than in a bad one. Receipts from corporation and income taxes and other levies rise when the economy is prosperous.

That is the best hope of no tax increases and a balanced budget. The spending isn't going down. It is just possible the revenues will rise proportionately.

No Reason to Worry About Fatty Tumor

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a fatty tumor removed from my back two years ago. Now I am getting another in almost the same place. Could the doctor have failed to get it all? Is it common for tumors to come back? Could the physical activity of my job, or my diet have anything to do with the problem? — H. D.

A lipoma (fatty tumor) usually causes no more trouble once it is removed, but there can be exceptions, as in your case.

A lipoma is a simple overgrowth of tissue in the fat layer of the body. It is not cancerous. Unless it is bothersome there is no reason for removal. If it is unsightly, or large enough to be a nuisance or happens to press on a nerve and cause pain, then removal is indicated.

The cause of lipomas is not clear. One theory is that the fat cells have a different growth rate in a localized area. If this is true, then it is possible that missing a few such actively growing cells could lead to growth of another tumor. It is also possible that an independent tumor may have formed at almost the same place, since people with this tendency often have multiple tumors.

Deciding which may be the case is no doubt difficult. The important thing is that this situation does not warrant worry. If the new tumor becomes large enough to annoy you, that is time enough to have it removed.

Neither your physical activity nor your diet has anything to do with it — except that obese people are more likely to have fatty tumors. Lean people occasionally have them, too, but this is uncommon.

Dear Dr. Molner: I work as a seamstress and can see no reason why I should have leg cramps and foot pains, because I am not on my feet. Please tell me how to get rid of them. — Mrs. T. A.

Maybe you can "see no reason," but if the cramps are bothering you, there must be a reason. Such cramps aren't necessarily (or even usually) the result of being on your feet all the time.

The explantaion requires more space than I have in a column, and that's why I wrote a booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." To get a copy send 20 cents in coin and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please give me some information on sickle-cell anemia. — I. B.

It is a form of anemia in which the red cells are shaped like sickles or half-moons.

The disease, transmitted by heredity when both parents carry the trait (not necessarily the disease) is found principally among Negroes and people from the Mediterranean countries.

Not nearly enough is yet known about sickle-cell anemia, and it is being studied vigorously. One theory, or suspicion, is that it may be a natural preventive against malaria, but this has not been proved.

This form of anemia (although not all sickle cells result in anemia) is dangerous as well as disabling and painful: headaches, general weakness, pains in muscle and joints, fever and other symptoms result from it. Blood transfusions help but do not cure.

"Warning Signals" on Costs

Brantford Expositor

The 31.1 percent rise in living costs last year which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics has just reported, is one of the "warning signals" Governor Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada says it would be "dangerous to ignore."

About the time he was speaking, the Ontario government's department of economics noted that of the 9.1 per cent increase in the total value of goods and services in the province last year, three per cent represented higher prices — the largest increase of the current expansion. It attributed this mostly to a reduction of the slack in the economy and the build-up of pressures on existing supplies.

Both are characteristics of an economy operating near full capacity. Such a condition usually generates further price rises leading to the point where demand for goods is checked, factory-orders fall off and payrolls are slashed. This further shrinks consumer buying power, shopkeepers sell still less, more workers are laid off and depression deepens.

This is the stark meaning behind Mr. Rasminsky's talk of danger signals that must be heeded "if we wish to avoid bringing the expansion to a premature end." The danger looms the warning has been given, and not by him alone. Who will do the heeding he urges be done?

Appeals to the individual citizen to hold back are futile amid the scramble to keep up with rising incomes and costs. Only the government has the effective means to check the inflation spiral. So far it has shown no signs of willingness to act. Perhaps that is why one of its chief Rasminsky, has spoken out publicly on the danger of inaction.

Women Have Upper Hand

St. John Telegraph-Journal

A professor says married men are becoming quieter, meeker and less demanding, while married women are becoming more talkative and aggressive.

But the researcher says more information must be gathered in other parts of the country to produce a representative picture. Maybe his next city should be Paterson N.J., There a man, showing not a trace of meekness, belted his wife during an argument whether the television set should be on or off.

In the ensuing assault and battery case, the judge came to a prompt decision. "The master of the house," he ruled, "has the right to turn off his own TV."

It's a decision sure to be disputed by the real masters of the household, the children. Let father try to turn the set off on them!

A British fleet of obsolete warships began the bombardment of Turkish forts in the Dardanelles 51 years ago today—in 1915—with the primary purpose of distracting German concentration on the Russian front. Winston Churchill and Admiral Fisher, however, wanted more than this. They proposed a serious attempt to force a passage through to the Black Sea, and the commander of the fleet was instructed not to spare his expendable ships in the effort. However, he withdrew when his command reached minefields and the operation was later reorganized as a land invasion—the disastrous Gallipoli campaign.

We Pay for What We Get

Winnipeg Free Press

Manitobans may commiserate with their Ontario neighbors. In this province we know what it is to pay high prices for cigarettes, liquor and gasoline, and even a surcharge on electric light and telephone bills. So far we have avoided a retail sales tax, but this state of affairs may not last forever. If Manitobans want the provincial government to spend more money on health, education, welfare services and so on, they must be prepared to pay more money to the province in the form of higher taxes. The sales tax, while it may be a last resort for Mr. Roblin, is a resort; and Ontario's action is not going to weaken the premier's hand if and when he decides that Manitoba must have such a tax.

The two provinces are hardly comparable when it comes to size, population, government spending. Manitoba's expenditures in the coming year will probably be around $200,000,000, where Ontario spending is estimated at $1,800,000,000.

No matter what the size of a province's income may be, the principles of raising the money it needs are the same. In the end the taxpayer must pay for the services he demands; this principle Ontario recognizes and has acted accordngly.

Mexico's Puerto Vallarta No Longer a 'Dead' Village

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexi- — With its long-standing re-ation as a place to grow a beard and comb the beach instead of your hair, P. V. — as Liz and what's-his-name always call it — has become something of a legend among resorts.

Straddling the mouth of the Cuale River where it meets the mountain-ringed sapphire curve of Banderas Bay on Mexico's Pacific coast, 125 miles west of Guadalajara, its image is that of a sleepy fishing village with nary a phone or highway.

The last part is true enough. If you want to communicate with anyone in town, you go to see him or send a messenger; out of town, you send a wire. And the only way to get in or out, other than by private yacht is on one of the predictably jam-packed DC-6's of Mexicana Airlines from Los Angeles, Mexico City and Guadalajara. P.V. may have the best airline service of any town of 10,000 in the -rld.

-ut as for it being a sleepy fishing village, those days are gone forever. About the only fishing is done from hired power cruisers, or by small boys who cast nets off shore and sell what they catch, impaled on a bamboo stick and ready barbecued.

Already there are enough American-owned courtyard fashion shops with chi-chi hand-painted signs in English on their adobe walls. Down on the beach called "Los Muertos" (The Dead, because there was a cemetery here once), tourists hand - painted with suntan oil fill the shade of the thatch-roofed shelters, or sip tequila and eat turtle steaks on the patio of El Dorado while mariachis serenade them at the door.

GRINGO GULCH

Perhaps 400 North Americans -e here now. Downtown, Ray Marshall caters to their needs with 45 houses renting for $150 to $3,000 a month, complete with servants. Most of the plush, scenically situated Yankee homes in town sit atop each other on a cliff over-looking the river, where local ladies wash their clothes as they always did and their kids swim in the altogether. The place is known as Gringo Gulch.

Gringos who do not stay long enough to become gulchers may feel at home, at least price-wise, in the new neo-inn called Posada Vallarta, complete with air-conditioning that occasionally works and a $1.20 cab ride to town. In town, at the skillfully managed and more intimate Rosita, equipped with custom-made local furniture and the -wn's only elevator, they may -l more in Mexico, at least price-wise. The homey Tropicana is right on Los Muertos Beach. Almost as convenient and pleasant are the Oceano, Rio, and Posada de la Selva, about in that order.

Has success spoiled P.V.? The fact is that some things even Liz and what's-his-name can't change, even though they now have a home (two homes, really) high up on the verdant, flowered mountainside. The dusty streets still have their cobblestones and jagged rocks. The people still live in their adobe or palm-thatched shacks, among the mansions of tequila magnates on the hillside. Iguanas still scurry among the rocks. And the furrowed green mountains tufted with palm trees rising from the bay will never change.

"The Night of the Iguana," -hich was filmed here while — the words of our driver — Liz was still married to "Danny Fichen, I teenk," has not yet been shown in P. V. Except on the bar and restaurant operators, it undoubtedly made less impression than the days when Henry Morgan used to hang out in Banderas Bay waiting to bury the treasure of Spanish galleons in the caves along the shore.

THE REAL REWARD

Anyway, the movie wasn't even made here, but at a paradise of a tropical beach a few miles down the shore known by the melodious name of Mismaloya, To see it, as well as another remote escape hatch called Yelapa, you had to take an all-day boat excursion that costs $4, including free beer. It is the real reward of a trip to Puerto -allarta.

At nine o'clock in the morning the bench-lined launch named Antonio Martin which looks as if it might just make it bobbed fitfully in the early swells. Soon it was filled with a handful of uncertain palefaces and a gay party of Mexican tourists who had brought their own off-key mariachi. He was dressed up for Wallace Beery as Pancho Villa, including a sombrero for doing the Mexican hat dance on deck. All Mexicans sing, dance and play the guitar, whether they can or not, and they did, all the livelong day.

We proceeded past idyllic caves and coves with postcard palm beaches. Porpoise leaped around us, and yawning pelicans left their rocky island perches to swoop for fish.

Mismaloya, where Ava Gardner swam in the same costume as the small boys in the river, peered around a bend at us. Its thatched hut set, looking so different from other shore settlements, was abandoned except for what appeared to be a lone family of squatters. Equally empty were the fine solid white adobe crew quarters, obviously, — but curiously — of no temptation to squatters.

Past a coconut plantation with its great red brick hacienda, the boat dipped into another bay where the mouth of the Tuito River parts the mountains but never quite climbs over the long beige sandbar that is the beach of Yelapa. The waters are the clear green of an empty wine bottle, and you soon suspect — rightly — that this may be what you expected P.V. to be.

IMITATION OF HEAVEN

On the left rises the huge open palm-frond roof of the Lagunita Hotel's bar, lounge, restaurant and office. Along the hillside beyond, accessible by a path named the Promenade of the Twilight of the Skunk (so much for the Night of the Iguana!) are 17 shuttered or windowless bamboo houses toped with thatched roofs, lined with wild orchids, hibiscus, and breezy porches, furnished with all the comforts of a Polynesian chieftain's home, including tile baths. The most they'll let you pay for this imitation of heaven, including meals that encompass fresh oysters and lobster, is $14.80 per couple a day.

At the other end of the beach is the village of Yelapa, which not only has no roads, but no streets. To get around among the bamboo shacks, next to which the Lagunita's are truly luxurious, you step among the jagged rocks, pigs and chickens clinging to the mountainside. The village is so inaccessible that even from the hotel it is best to go by boat. Higher up among the rocks above town is a Tahiti-style waterfall plunging into a tropical lagoon that trickles down among the stones into town.

Was Puerto Vallarta ever like this?

U.C.W. Meetings

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

The Eastminster U.C.W. held the regular monthly meeting in the church auditorium, on Monday.

The president called the meeting to order, then conucted the business meeting. The main topic of discussion, was the organization of the members, back into groups. During the past year, the U.C.W. had re-organized itself, doing away with the units, on a tri-- basis. It has now been decided, to return to the unit method of operation.

The next meeting on March 7th, will be a potluck supper at 6.30 p.m.

Used nylons will be collected at this meeting.

The program for the evening was a film entitled "Calling In Brazil". This film was introduced by Mrs. D. Thompson. She gave a most interesting background which brought about the conditions depicted in the film.

The members divided into groups to discuss the film and ansker some prearranged questions, amongst themselves.

The program closed with the worship service, led by Mrs. E. Yateman and Mrs. G. C. Brown, with Mrs. R. Graham

A coffee hour followed.

Women Spend Too Much Time Under Dryers

TORONTO (CP) — If all the time women spend under hair dryers, exercising and applying make - up were spent doing something else," we (women) might be going to the moon or running the country," says Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine.

"The whole PR bit for women is a big nuisance," Miss Anderson told the Canadian Public Relations Society Thursday.

Men go through life without bothering much about the impression they are making, she said.

"But if a woman is sloppy overweight, her nose is too big, she is painfully aware of it and its effects on other people.

"Women are always working at public relations. Whole industries have been built on our feminine efforts to improve our public relations based on promises to enhance our eyes or hair or camouflage our defects.

"Judging by the impression we seem to be making, we are doing very badly. What do we see on TV? Wind - up dolls in frilly aprons and newly-coiffured hair babbling away about fered hair babbling away about clean sinks."

George Didn't Break Arm —Sculptor Was After Effect

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Did George Washington ever break his arm? Legends about antiques are fun but rarely authentic.

We recently saw a figure of George Washington. His right arm was covered by a drape that resembled a toga or perhaps a sling. We were told it was made to depict Washington with his broken arm at Valley Forge.

History books do not tell that he broke his arm. We suspect that it is just a delightful legend made to explain an odd early American figure.

The four foot cast iron figure was made in Trenton, N.J., about 1843. It shows Washington dressed with a Roman toga.

Artists often pictured heroes in Roman dress. Napoleon had his portrait painted as a Roman to signify his greatness.

Several iron statues of Washington in this Roman pose were made in New York City and other Eastern foundries.

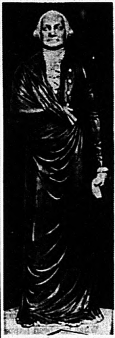
Q. We just bought an original copy of a paper that told about the death of George Washington It is the Ulster County Gazette dated in January of 1800. We are worried because our son told us Washington died in 1799. Is our paper authentic?

A. George Washington died on December 14, 1799. The first printed reports of his death did not appear until three weeks later in the Ulster County Gazette of Kingston, N.Y.



A Roman toga draped across one arm was added to give George Washington a regal look. This cast iron statue of Washington was made in 1843.

(Collection of Max Hess, Hess Department Store, Allentown, Pa.)

Only one authentic copy of this newspaper is known to exist. It is in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. Thousands of copies of the paper were printed during the nineteenth century. The reprints can be recognized by the use of a more modern type and a poorer grade of paper. The original Gazette had a double fleur-de-lis water mark 3⅛ inches by 1 15-16 inches. The old style type used in the paper had letters shaped so the "s" is shaped to look like today's "f."

Q. "Bonn, Germany, 1755" and a crest are signed on my antique clock. What can you tell me about it?

A. That mark was used by the F. A. Mehlem Porcelain factory that worked in Bonn, Germany, after 1836. The word "Germany" indicates that your clock case was made between 1891 and 1914. The factory only made the porcelain case. The clock works were made elsewhere.

Q. A tin "duck" that opened into two separate pieces was found in our attic. It must be at least 75 years old.

A. You own a tin decoy. This popular type of tin decoy snipe was patented about 1874. The decoy could be opened flat. Several decoys could be stacked together in a small space after the hunting season.

BOOK REVIEW

The student of early American decorative arts will be interested in "The Decorator Digest," by Natalie Ramsey (Tuttle $8.95). It is a reprint of magazine articles that have appeared since 1946. Unfortunately it is just a collection with no effort made to index the material by subject.

CWL Bridge Uses Decor Of Valentines

Amid a Valentine decor of hearts and cupids, St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League held its annual Valentine dessert bridge in the parish hall on Tuesday.

The dessert table holding an abundance of delicacies, looked most attractive with its floral centrepiece of red and white baby 'mums, with little red hearts dangling among them. Silver candelabra flanking the centrepiece completed the decor.

The individual tables, decorated in red and white, with twirling cupids everywhere complimented the overall Valentine theme.

The floral centrepiece was won by Mrs. K. Wormald. Other recipients of prizes were: Mrs. B. O'Connor, Mrs. W. Kelly, Mrs. H. Hanley, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. K. Black, Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. H. Serro, Mrs. K. Lock, Mrs. B. Lally, Mrs. C. Fraser.

Mrs. George Bell capably convened the bridge, assisted by Mrs. John Marta and Mrs. Gordon Tugnett.

Certain Environmental Factors May Cause Husband's Heart Attack

By John B. Armstrong M.D.
Canadian Heart Foundation

The heart you save may be — your husband's.

Now, even more than in your courting days, you hold the key to his heart, and to the health of his heart.

This is not meant to put wives on the spot, nor saddle them with guilt complexes about their responsibility for their husband's well-being. But our new and ever - growing knowledge of the correlation between certain environmental factors and the liklihood of getting a heart attack presents us with the opportunity to control these factors to some extent, and thereby reduce the risk.

For example, you can't do very much about the tensions and pressures your husband encounters in his work environment. But you can make it a point not to add to them when he comes home.

And home is where his heart is — about 70 per cent of the time.

Then there's the question of what he eats — for which you are primarily responsible. The pundit who said the surest way to a man's heart is via his stomach did not have heart attacks in mind, but you should.

DIET MAJOR FACTOR

For evidence is growing that the diet of the American people is a major factor contributing to the high coronary heart disease death rate in our country — chiefly our consumption of foods high in saturated (animal) fats and cholesterol. And statistics show that American men at age 50 have a heart attack death rate five times as high as that for women of the same age. You can help lower these odds for your husband.

While you're substituting vegetable oils and other polyunsaturated fats for animals fats in cooking at the table, you and your children will reap long-range benefits: lower blood levels of cholesterol and other fats and a lower risk of developing coronary atherosclerosis — the disease that clogs the arteries feeding the heart muscle and sets the stage for heart attacks.

Your husband may be risking a heart attack on other fronts as well. Does he hold down a swivel chair at a desk all day, and an arm chair in front of the TV set all evening? Does he drive to the corner store for a pack of cigarettes? And how many packs a day does he smoke?

There are at least two high-risk elements in that picture, and a third if he is smoking heavily because of tension.

CERTAIN DISEASES

And there may be another hidden risk or two, not visible to the naked eye: for example, high blood pressure or diabetes. Only a medical examination can disclose these and other significant conditions; regular check-ups can catch them early enough to treat before they do serious damage.

So, if your husband hasn't been feeling up to par lately, or even if he has, a wifely suggestion might be in order. You might hint gently that the time has come for him to get a complete medical check-up; or better yet, take matters into your own hands and make an appointment for him. It's good insurance.

HAWAIIAN HIGHLIGHTS

"We are having a perfect holiday; the weather continually in the 80's and dropping to 76 degrees at night, with a soft trade wind balmy breeze." — Helen Ketcheson.

* * *

"We are living in the lap of luxury and it's fun to have a taste of it," writes Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, 248 Bridge Street, East, who, with her husband is visiting the latter's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ketcheson, now residing at The Ilikai, at Walkiki Yacht Harbor, in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The Ilikai is a beautiful apartment building where Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ketcheson have a delightful apartment and Mrs. Ketcheson continues:

"They rent the apartment for 7 - 8 months, and it has two bedrooms with baths, living room and kitchen with a good-sized foyer and a lanai (balcony) all across the front. We are on the 15th floor (there are 30 storeys) and have continuous exciting things to watch.

"The pool is immediately below, as well as a small sand beach and a lagoon with a small island and a few palm trees. For the past two days we have watched them doing part of the program of "Hawaii Calling" which is being done in color for television to be shown in Canada this fall.

"The first night we were here, in the ocean which is just beyond the Lagoon, a mother whale and her baby were having a play while helicopters came and warned the Catamarans away. Then the next night a 14 inch octopus was pulled out of the Lagoon water which runs in from the Yacht Harbor.

"Incidentally, the yachts are fabulous. One, owned by one of the Fords, is rented out at $7,000 a week, not less than a three month period, and carries a crew of ten. A friend from Calgary who is in a travel agency was able to arrange a month's cruise for some VIP to entertain some business associates. This is quite a different world from what we are used to.

"Then one night we watched red flares being dropped and thought it was some type of fireworks, as every night someone is celebrating a birthday and the Chinese use fireworks. But these flares happened to be a private yacht on fire which was calling for help. (It's great to be ignorant!)

"Each night catamarans take guests out for dinner and the sails are outlined in colored lights which make a beautiful picture.

"The pool is fascinating to sit around. I get a great kick out of the gals, many of whom are not swimmers, but they are certainly attractive. One day I watched one change her outfit four times in an hour or so. The only thing she didn't change was her hat. She started with shorts, then three different types of bathing suits. She asked Papa for some money for the last one which was a bikini with a lace jacket. Each time they got scantier.

"I swim three times a day, always before breakfast which makes one feel so good. We have lunch and then go to town for dinner. For cocktails a drink is served called Banana Cow, which consists of rich mashed banana with milk, rum and nutmeg. It is very satisfying, but Mai Sai is my favorite.

"We went to the Sea Life Park which was being built when we were here two years ago. It is fabulous and has a tremendous aquarium built in or around the natural rock formation. It is filled with every variety of fish such as Hammerhead shark and others. Then a gal swims and performs with five porpoise which end up putting on a Lai each and doing the hula.

"Two whales perform and then a great variety of birds fly and circle around and catch fish in mid-air. They feed all these creatures pounds and pounds of fish from all positions each day.

"Just to see the sun-rise and sunset (for the coloring is unbelievable) is worth coming here to see.

Mrs. Ketcheson concludes her letter by saying, " . . . this is all true, and we watch a continual, live, panorama from the Lanai and I keep on pinching myself to realize it's really me that's here."

Another letter dealing with Mrs. Ketcheson's holiday in Hawaii will appear in next Saturday's issue of the Intelligencer.

Lines on Life

Change Can Be Bad

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

What has been happening to the young people of our time? Modern youth seem to be suffering from three basic lacks. They have few commitments to the adult world. And this is why they lack a desire to grow up to accept adult responsibilities. And because they have no commitments, and shun responsibilities, they lack the faith that they can help transform the world. And so, many of their public actions demonstrate that they have little regard for what society thinks, or what the "Establishment" will say.

For many young people the world seems to be nothing more "than a closed room with a rat race going on in the middle." Some will play the game according to the rules, but they don't really believe in rules. In the past, juvenile delinquents were those who willfully violated the rules, fought against social restraints, or were deliberately anti-social. Now, when delinquency occurs among those who come from the "right side of the tacks," we are not dealing with people who have their own set of perverted rules, but rather with those who know the rules, (and who sometimes even follow them) — but who do not really believe in any rules whatever.

They tell us much about themselves when they suggest that the best way to beat the "rat race" is by "playing it cool." "Playing it cool" is their way out of the world — the only way out for those who refuse to warm up to the world, or to express loving regard for it, and who lack the will to help improve it.

And yet, how lonely these young people often are! Our children suffer loneliness because their parents have made orphans of them. And the reasons for this go deep to the heart of the modern dilemma. Every generation before us feared changes, but we adore them. We adore them so much that changes no longer develop — they erupt. The result is that we no longer take time to reflect on the meaning of these changes. And what is more: we live with the myth that every change is for the better and that those who question innovation will perish.

We may sometimes mumble, even grumble, but in the end very few people ask whether a new bomb, a new tailfin, a new shampoo or a new expressway might be better left unbiilt. And those few who do are quickly stopped in their tracks by the time - worn cliche: "You can't turn the clock back!" We have all been so brain-washed with the illusion that the new will be better than the old that we forget to ask: What's good about the new, and what's bad about the old? Once only young people pined for change — now, all of us do. And in the end we all feel lonely — unanchored to anything stable.

Today rebellion of young people against their elders is passe. Children no longer walk all over their parents — now they see through them because there is nothing solid in them. One hundred years ago parents used to quote Scripture to their children: "Thou shalt not!" . . . Fifty years ago they twisted this into: "Perhaps it would be better if you didn't" . . . Now they say: "Love me and do as you please!"

There has never been a time when it was so important and so difficult to be a parent; never an era when so much depended upon the courage to take a stand as a wise father or mother; never an age when guidance, patience, wisdom and a proper understanding of the limits of freedom were needed more.

A Lift for Living

Need for Courage as Great As It Was in Bygone Times

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Courage was one of the first character traits to gain the admiration of the human race. The welfare of the community, its food supply, clothing and its very survival depended directly upon the willingness of tribesmen to risk great peril hunting wild animals and engaging in warfare.

In our time and civilization physical courage is less of a daily requirement for most people, because hunting is more of a recreation than a requisite for survival, and direct engagement in battle is reserved for a smaller percentage of the total population.

What happens, then, to courage when occasions for its use diminish? Does it wither and atrophy and finally disappear? The answer is this: the need for courage is as great as ever, but in our time it is moral courage that is constantly demanded, rather than physical heroism. Everyone everywhere who aims to live the good life must be willing to sacrifice comfort and undergo hardship for the sake of worthwhile goals and high causes. That willingness is what we call "courage."

EVERY VIRTUE

Courage is not merely one of many virtues; rather courage is every virtue at the moment of testing. Courage is being honest when honesty is expensive. Courage is standing by a conviction when no one else will stand with you or cheer you on, when all your friends believe you to be mistaken and beg you to alter your stand "for friendship's sake."

Courage is chastity when the temptation is strong to give into raw physical desire. Courage is charity when one hears a desperate need for help. Courage is mercy when revenge would be sweet and timely and it would "teach that fellow a lesson."

Courage is launching out into strange and dangerous territory when we crave comfortable security. One young aspiring writer, afraid to marry his fiancee because his financial future was not assured, reluctant to undertake a writing career because of fear of failure, confesses he was given courage by the sight of a squirrel.

While sitting in a park worrying about his prospects in life, the young man looked up to see a squirrel leaping from tree to tree. Once the little fellow missed the limb he aimed for and fell, but caught himself on a lower limb. Then he leaped again and again until he arrived at his goal. An old man sitting beside the writer remarked that he had watched many squirrels swinging from one leafy trapeze to another, making their way from tree to tree. He had seen many miss a limb, but always they caught another hold, and no squirrel was ever hurt trying.

Then the aged philosopher chuckled and said, "I reckon you've got to take some risks if you don't want to spend all your life in one tree." Two weeks later the lad married the girl and launched his writing career in earnest. And he always remembered the squirrel Such risk-taking is courage. The courageous are not free of despair; they struggle on toward their goals in spite of it.

CONQUEST OF FEAR

Finally, courage is the conquest of fear, rather than the absence of it. It means looking fear in the face without flinching. Admiral Drake was standing on the quarterdeck of his ship before a violent naval engagement. An officer stationed near him saw the admiral shaking and heard the remark, "My flesh trembles at the many dangers into which my resolute heart will lead me."

Courage implies knowing dangers, weighing them carefully, and then doing one's best, with God's help, to fulfill one's mission in the world in spite of all peril.

Jesus challenged the traditions of His own people, attacked their race prejudices and fanatical nationalism, and dared to preach a gospel of love in a world insane with hate. He well knew, disliked and dreaded the suffering His actions would bring to Him, but His chief aim in life was to do His Father's will, rather than to avoid hardship.

In a world with the slogan, "Safety First," the Christian follows One who taught "God's will first" and personal safety last. That is the highest courage of all.

Readers' Saturday Column

NOTE FROM EMEM:

Today's effort is for dozens of readers who wrote at my hint of casseroles to freeze in my files. I do not have sufficient to oblige so I abandoned my planned program and now my freezer is full of casseroles and I am farming them out for my helpers to judge.

SATURDAY Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Beef and Bacon Casserole (see Fri.) with Hot Tea Biscuits; Cabbage and Pineapple Slaw; Sliced Canned Pears in Lime Jelly; Sour Cream Cookies; Coffee

CHICKEN NOODLE CASSEROLE (will freeze)

Note: These amouts serve 12 to 14 people and make 3 medium-sized casseroles, one to serve for a current meal and 2 to freeze for future meals.

two 2¼-pound frying chickens, boiling water,
2 teaspoons salt,
½ bay leaf,
one 12-oz. package medium noodles,
1 small onion, chopped,
1 medium green pepper, chopped,
one 10-oz. package (pouch-pak) fresh frozen mixed vegetables or peas, one 10-oz. can mushrooom pieces and stems, ½ to ¾ cups salad olives and pimiento,
one 10-oz. can cream of mushroom soup, undiluted,
1¾ cups grated or shredded Cheddar cheese,
⅛ teaspoon pepper,
¼ teaspoon celery seed (or celery salt),
½ teaspoon salt.

Into large kettle pour boiling water over the chickens to three-quarters cover them. Add the 2 teaspoons salt and half bay leaf and simmer until meat begins to fall from bones - mine cooked 1¼ hours. Carefully lift out chickens to large tray, let cool to warm — just slip meat from bones. Discard skin and bones. I had 4 cups solid chicken meat in quite large pieces. Measure broth. (Fat is not skimmed off.) You need 6 cups when you add the liquid from the canned mushrooms to it. Return broth to heat, bring to boil, add noodles and cook 10 minutes until barely tender. While over low heat stir in the onion, green pepper, fresh frozen vegetables or peas, drained mushrooms, salad olives, mushroom soup, cheese, pepper, celery seed or salt, and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir gently to blend and heat through.

Have ready 3 or 4 small or medium corningware or stainless steel casseroles. (These casseroles withstand the stress of freezing.) Into all of them divide half of the chicken pieces evenly. Cover chicken in each casserole with half of the noodle mixture. Repeat this layering to fill all casseroles. If desired for current meal bake one casserole, covered, for 1 hour at 375 deg. Fahr. and serve. To freeze remaining casseroles, cool to room temperature and chill. Cover tightly and freezer-wrap and freeze. To serve frozen casseroles, bake at 375 deg. Fahr. covered for 1¾ hours, putting them into the oven unwrapped but still frozen.

We liked this casserole immensely and I hope our casserole addicts and freezer owners will clip this recipe. The noodles cooked in chicken broth give it especially good flavor. I think it is a good big party casserole for a buffet table.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crone

A SURPRISING REWARD

From Miami, Florida, comes this story of newspaperboy, Gary Swensk. He was on a canal bank when a boat capsized dumping a man and several children into the water. Gary did everything he could in helping the victims ashore, and the asked the man if he would sign up for a 13-week subscription to the Miami News.

The boatman, dripping, but ever - so - grateful, exclaimed, "thirteen weeks? You can sign me up right now for thirteen years!" Gary did just that. He got everything he asked for, 52 times over!

Gary, no doubt, seeing the need of these people, felt it his duty to do everything he could to help. But what a surprising reward he received! Life holds a constant challenge for each one of us, and the doing of our duty always brings it's own reward. However, human experience proves that our Heavenly Father often rewards His faithful children in ways and means undreamed of. God will never allow Himself to be our debtor. Let us face the challenge life brings us each day, trusting our Lord for grace and strength. Who can tell what today might bring?

TEXT FOR THE DAY: "Now unto Him who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think . . . be glory." (Ephesians 3:20-21)

Employment News

By JAMES R. STAVELEY
Employment Relations Officer

Locally demand for labor decreased during the past week, the job opportunities listed with the National Employment Service Office by local employers indicate. However, the construction field continues to be active and many of our industrial plants are operating at near peak labor force.

The demand out-of-town continues to be excellent, not only for skilled tradesmen, but also for semi-skilled and unskilled workers.

Anyone can obtain information regarding these positions from the local NES office. Through its facilities suitable workers can be matched with job vacancies in other areas. In recent weeks unemployed workers from this community have secured permanent employment at attractive wage rates through these NES facilities as far afield as Northern Manitoba and also as close as 50 miles.

Supplementing the local employment activity is the winter employment campaign which is directed at alleviating winter seasonal unemployment. The slogan is "Don't Postpone-Do It Now", when men and materials are readily available.

During the week another municipal winter works project commenced work in the northern part of the district. Municipal officials recognize the tangible benefits derived from [illegible] projects which provide employment to workers, who [illegible] otherwise be unemployed, during this winter period. The whole community benefits when there is maximum employment.

MANY JOBS OPEN

The following jobs are available through the local NES office: In the female division locally, permanent employment as plant production workers is being offered by a large out-of-town textile company. Attractive wage rates and other fringe benefits are being offered. The requirements are 18 to 45 years of age, height 5'2" in stocking feet, Grade 10 if under 26 years of age and Grade 9 if 26 years of age or over. No recent school drop-out will be considered by this company.

A qualified secretary is required by a manufacturing company in a neighboring town. In the same location there is a vacancy for a junior stenographer with first-class shorthand and typing. A large paper company in Northern Ontario has a vacancy for a stenographer who possesses a shorthand speed of 100 words per minute and 60 words per minute typing. Although 2 to 3 years experience is preferred, the company would consider an inexperienced person who has the necessary shorthand and typing skill. A good starting salary, plus excellent fringe benefits, accompany this 35 - hour - per - week position. Another opening out-of-town is for an experienced commercial artist who will be required to do illustrations for a well-known retail firm.

In the male division locally, an opportunity to study, practise the business of banking is presented by one of Belleville branch banks. Grade 12 and 13 graduates will be considered Grade 13 graduates receive a bonus in the shape of higher starting salary.

A Belleville branch of a national variety store chain has established a policy of encouraging young men to join its staff for training as future managers. The candidates starts at the bottom and are taught every angle of this wide-scale retail operation.

In nearby areas, a variety of good jobs are open to trained workers. These include plant maintenance workers, electricians, machine shop specialists and ship fitters.

Two out-of-city firms are anxious to obtain the services of stationary engineers with fourth-class papers.

Permanent plant production work is available at a large textile plant in a neighboring city.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment, or thinking of re-entering the labor market, please contact the local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, Belleville, Ont. or telephone 962-8681.

Announce Layout of New Jail

NAPANEE — According to a statement released by the Provincial Government, from 15 to 20 acres of land will be required for the Quinte Regional Detention Centre to be built in or near Napanee. This includes land for the two buildings, and for the gardens.

One building will house a total of 68 prisoners in maximum security, and a second, a minimum security building, will house 44 inmates.

The maximum security building will contain kitchen, heating plant; offices for the jail governor for the general clerical work, and for the custodial officer in charge of the shift; officers' room, and chapel.

A hospital area will have provision for a psychiatrist, a psychologist, and other medical staff; a segregation area; an admitting and discharging area, with provision for storage of clothing; general stores; interviewing rooms; a visiting area; and recreation areas for both males and females.

In the minimum security building will be two dormitories, two washrooms, and two day rooms which will also be used as dining rooms. There will be a garage and equipment building, a root house, and a workshop building.

The government estimates that the building alone will cost $1 million at least, with land, water, sewage and electric power to be added to that. Cost of the maximum security building will be $768,000 and of the second building $330,000.

MORE

SITE STILL UNDECIDED

Plans for the first regional jail in Ontario are going ahead, but everything is still very much in the planning stage. Even the site has not yet been decided, although it is necessary that it be built within five miles of Napanee. The Quinte Regional Detention Centre will serve the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Frontenac, and Lennox and Addington.

Chairman of the board is Fred Bassett of Harold, reeve of Hastings County. Other Hastings representatives are Clayton Hall of Plainfield and Vers McMurray of Toronto.

Reeve Roy Gaffney of Tamworth was named vice-chairman of the board. Reeve F. Erwell Huff of Ernestown is the second representative from Lennox and Addington.

B. C. Hepburn of Picton and Robert Boyce of Wellington represent Prince Edward County, and Frontenac County is represented by David Dixon of Sunbury and O. F. Goodfellow of Tichborne.

Mrs. Harold Wilson, acting county clerk of Lennox and Addington, was named secretary of the jail board.

Members of the board met Thursday in Napanee with representatives from the Department to Reform Institutions. Mr. D. Penfold, assistant to the deputy minister, and Mr. D. Dougall, administrator of inspection and jail branch. No statement was given to the press following the meeting.

School Board Will Return Tax Money on Hand to Town

DESERONTO — Asked why the former Board of Education for Deseronto had not turned over to the town the $31,000 which is now holds, Mr. Jack Spence explained: "We can't turn it over until all the bills are paid and the accounts audited."

Mr. Spence is chairman of the Public School Board, and is also a member of the former Board of Education which was disbanded December 31, 1965. His right to sit on two boards at the same time was questioned by trustee John Neal at the meeting of the Board of Education last Monday evening. Mr. Neal demanded that Chairman Spence resign, along with Donald Reid and Mrs. McVicker, both of whom are in the same position. On motion, the matter was placed in the hands of a solicitor for clarification.

The money on hand was contracted by the Board of Education on a tax basis, Mr. Spence explained, and what is left after all liabilities have been paid will return to the town.

However, still owing are two amounts for which the former Board of Education has not yet received the bills. Education bought from the Belleville area, and from the Napanee area must still be paid for, and until this amount is known and paid, the former Board of Education still has a duty to perform. Also, these accounts should be audited before the balance is turned over to the municipality, in Mr. Spence's opinion. "We don't want to turn it over and then find there is an error of maybe $1,000", Mr. Spence said. He estimated that there will be a balance of about $20,000.

According to section 19 of the Boards of Education and Schools Administration Act, a board which ceases to function for the purpose of administering education, must still sit for the purpose of disposing of assets and liabilities.

"We don't want the money", Mr. Spence said, "but we can't do anything about it until the last bill is paid. It's as simple as that."

Jaycees Fete Heads of Organizations

NAPANEE — Heads of various organizations of this district will be dinner guests of the Napanee Jaycees next Tuesday evening. Leaders in civic affairs in industry, in religion and in education have been invited.

Speaker for the evening will be Heath Macquarie, M.P., a specialist in political science, author of several books, and part - time lecturer at several universities.

Mr. Marquerie has represented Queen's County, P.E.I. since [illegible], and was parliamentary delegate to the League of Nations from 1958 through 1960.

Subject of his speech will be "Canada and You", dwelling on the work of the Jaycees in Canadian life.

Arrange Tours Of Hospital

NAPANEE — People who have contributed so generously to the fund which has helped make "our hospital" become a reality, will have an opportunity next weekend to see the wonders which those contributions have helped to bring into being.

Once the hospital admits its first patients March 1, some areas will not be open to the public, hospital authorities state. Operating rooms, central supply rooms, delivery room, dietary preparation areas, and administration offices will be closed to the ordinary visitor.

For this reason, citizens desiring to see the Lennox and Addington General Hospital as a whole will be able to do so the final weekend before the first patients arrive by making the tour the afternoons of Saturday and Sunday, February 26 and 27.

Staff members will be on hand to explain the functions of each area and to answer questions, and it is expected that parties of ten or 12 will start the tour at intervals. It is hoped that members of the Hospital Auxiliary will act as guides for the tours.

PATIENTS TO ARRIVE MARCH 1

Parking may be a problem for the many visitors expected, but this can be solved if the street sides are used. Also, since the paint is not yet set, visitors are to be asked to avoid touching it, as everything must be fresh for the arrival of the patients probably March 1. Small children will not be allowed to make the tour.

Offices were transferred from Dundas Street to the hospital itself last Monday. "We had to be close to the things we were talking about," stated J. C. Hepburn, hospital administrator.

Some specially trained people have been hired for he staff, bu, as far as possible, local men and women have been selected. Most of the positions have been filled, Mr. Hepburn said, but there is still room for a physiotherapist, laboratory and X-ray technicians and a pharmacist.

About ten per cent of the equipment is now here, and by the end of the week 25 per cent will be on hand, "enough for us to begin operating," the administrator stated.

Ann Landers

Most Alcoholics Must Have Outside Help

DEAR READERS: I have received so many excellent suggestions for E.O.M. — the woman whose husband decided he could quit drinking without help — that I have decided to print two such letters. Here they are:

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell E.O.M. I am living through the same heartbreaking, nerve-wrecking nightmare that she is experiencing and it is murder. I got the help I needed by looking in the phone book and calling Alcoholics Annonymous—not for him (he said he wouldn't go) but for myself. I heard A.A. had a branch for the spouses of souses and what a Godsend it has been.

The organization is called Al-Anon. They have both noon and evening meetings in our city. I can truthfully say the meetings have made a different person out of me.

Children who must live with an alcoholic should attend Alateen meetings (another group.) I know of two fathers who went A.A. because of the help their children got from Alateen.

So please tell E.O.M. to get in touch with A.A. and learn when and where these two groups meet. The benefits beggar description. — BEEN THERE.

DEAR ANN: Please tell E.O.M. that precious few alcoholics can stop drinking without outside help, and from the description of her husband (mean, sullen, punitive) he may be off the booze, but he is still in trouble — a dry drunk. The emotional problems which drove him to excessive drinking are unresolved, [illegible] his terrible disposition. His chances of staying dry are mighty slim.

The man needs A.A. and his wife could get a lot of good out of attending meetings of her local council on alcoholism.

My alcoholic husband is still drinking, and like E.O.M.'s he insists he has no problem. The council has helped me keep from cracking up. With the council's continued assistance I intend to change myself enough so that no matter what my husband does I will be able to lead a normal life, sign me — KANSAS CITY.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is a sophomore in high school. Her English teacher (a woman in her late 20's) has been living with a man of poor reputation for several months. She wears an engagement ring. It is apparent that this woman is pregnant.

Do you feel she should be allowed to continue to teach? My husband and I are horrified at the poor example this teacher is setting for her students.

Should we report her to the board of education or should we arrange to have our daughter transfer to another school? — PERPLEXED PARENTS.

DEAR PERPLEXED: Unless your daughter is attending a school where the faculty and administration are blind I cannot understand how the teacher goes unnoticed [illegible] the principal.

A pregnant (and unmarried) teacher would not be tolerated in any public or parochial school that I know of.

You can be sure that if this teacher is pregnant (which I doubt) she won't be around much longer.

Firms in Many Parts of World Interested in B. C. Mining Boom

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Tom Elliott picked up a fistful of the story of British Columbia's mining boom.

It was a pile of dozens of business cards, left by representatives of a vast variety of enterprises connected with mining while they inquired about getting in on the action.

The companies are located throughout North America and many parts of the world. They range from machine shops to Japanese exploration firms.

"They came here because they realize there is a big boom on in mining," said Mr. Elliott, manager of the B.C. Yukon Chamber of Mines. "It's just fantastic the business it's bringing in."

B.C. is providing some of the liveliest mining action on the continent, in the share market and in the field. One enthusiast says the province is becoming one vast open pit.

RICH IN MINERALS

Authorities say the boom is the combination of several factors. The first is that the province—and the Yukon and Northwest Territories—lie in one of the world's great mineral belts.

Rising industrialization throughout the world created demands for metals, and prices rose. B.C. had never been thoroughly explored. The Japanese spurred exploration by coming in search of iron and copper. Now that country imports about half as much concentrates as does B.C.'s No. 1 customer, the United States.

Open-pit mining was imported from the U.S. to harvest low-grade ores for which tunnelling was too expensive. Under this method, such prosperous mines as Bethlehem and Craigmont, copper properties west of Kamloops in the Highland Valley, came into being. Endako, a $20,000,000 molybdenum mine west of Prince George, also is open-pit, as are others.

Many searchers pore over old reports—the chamber of mines has them back to 1874—looking for clues to forgotten wealth. These reports are still leading prospectors to "new" fields.

Old reports led to the Endako mine. B.C. Molybdenum is spending $20,000,000 on a property north of Prince Rupert which was mentioned on a 1922 map and in an earlier report. Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. and others abandoned claims at the site of the multimillion-dollar Boss Mountain molybdenum development of Noranda Mines in the Cariboo.

NO LETUP SIGHTED

Those connected with the industry say there is no letup in sight. Mining activity continued almost unabated during the winter, and greater activity is expected in the spring.

It is greatest in the Highland Valley, the Stikine River, Alice Arm and Granduc areas north of Prince Rupert and the Cariboo and Endako districts. To a lesser degree exploration is in progress throughout the province and the Yukon and Northwest Territories, including Vancouver and the Queen Charlotte Islands and some old deposits in the southeast Kootenay.

A report prepared for the industrial development of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority says the Stikine River is one of the most exciting new mining areas in the province. It says that there are persistent rumors that the largest copper body yet found in B.C. or the Yukon has been discovered there.

When will the boom end?

"God only knows," says Mr. Elliott.

Industrial and Western Oil Issues Decline Sharply

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sharp declines in industrial and western oil issues featured trading on Canada's stock exchanges this week.

The declines appear to follow a sharp drop among blue chip stocks on the New York exchange.

At Toronto, volume was 29,288,808 shares compared wth 31,[illegible]5,186 last week.

[illegible]ssey-Ferguson led the industrial group lower, falling 3⅜ to 31¼ on 73,606 shares. The company said it plans to offer shareholders rights to subscribe to an additional common share for every five now held.

BANKS FALL

Bank issues slid for their fifth consecutive week. Some analysts say the decline reflects uncertainty about changes to be made in the Bank Act.

Nova Scotia was off 1¼ to 72½, Montreal and Royal ¾ each to 63 and 77, Toronto-Dominion ½ to 72½ and Imperial-Commerce ¼ to 68.

In other industrial activity, Canada Iron Foundries slipped 2¼ to 21½, Aluminium 1¼ to 36⅛, Algoma Steel 1⅛ to 69⅛, Price Brothers ⅞ to 41¾ and CPR ½ to 62¼.

[illegible]aco added 1½ at 58¾ and B[illegible] Telephone ⅜ at 76.

Interest in western oils remained high as a result of extensive exploratory activity in Alberta's Rainbow area, recently designated as an oil field by the province's oil and gas conservation board.

Although many senior oils fell during the week, a handful of other issues reached new peaks as a result of drilling success or rumors of success.

Gridoil Freehold, delayed 1½ hours at the opening Wednesday, advanced 31 cents to 1.41 on 2,410,682 shares. It reached a high of 1.85 before slipping back.

Charter Oil closed 20 cents higher to 5.00. It had jumped to 6.90 Monday and then fell as a result of profit-taking.

In other oil activity, Banff climbed 3⅛ to 15¼, Great Plains 1½ to 14½, Dome 1⅜ to 18[illegible]nd Canadian Export Gas 80[illegible]ts to 4.95.

Great Canadian Oil Sands and Pacific Petroleum each dipped ½ to 12¼ and 12¾. Husky moved down ¼ to 15 and Canadian Superior ¼ to 23⅛.

URANIUMS LOSE

Uranium stocks suffered heavy losses in leading the base metal group lower.

Trade Minister Winters said Tuesday he expected no immediate progress on a possible sale of uranium to France. Denison declined 1 to 38 and Rio Algom ¼ to 21⅛.

Among other base metals, Falconbridge was off 4 to 101½, Hudson Bay and Labrador 2 each to 82 and 32, Cominco 1¼ to 45¾ and Noranda ⅜ to 52¾.

On the Toronto index, industrials were off 1.95 to 172.23, base metals 2.13 to 88.66, weste[illegible]ls .80 to 115.07 and the TS[illegible] 1.89 to 162.96. Golds were up .42 to 178.66.

At Montreal, industrials were down 2:00 at 168.98, utilities down .78 to 152.36, banks down 1:47 to 126.48, papers down 1:27 to 122.80.

policy brought forward from those hearings," Russell said.

The only one he has heard so far, he said, is "that we get out of Viet Nam; that we just call the whole thing off, come home and leave South Viet Nam to the Communists.

Senator George S. McGovern (Dem. S.D.) disputed Russell's contention that a filibuster was under way. He said he thought it proper for the Senate to discuss for a few days the policies involved in expenditure of extra billions for the war.

RECALLS 1933

In the afternoon session of his nearly six-hour appearance before the foreign relations committee, Rusk recalled he was an undergraduate at Oxford University in 1933 when the Oxford Union had the great debate on a motion not to fight for king and country.

Philosopher C. E. M. Joad argued for the motion, which was passed. Rusk said that Joad was "quoted by Hitler as an indication that Britain wouldn't fight, and therefore his hands were free to pursue his ambitions." Added Rusk:

"But just a few years after that debate, C.E.M. Joad issued a statement saying to the young men who were in the union that night 'Sorry, lads, but this fellow Hitler is different. Now go out there and fight."

Rusk asked: "How do we organize a peace? . . . maybe we will say, 'If they will get out of his way, maybe he won't be too rude and too mad.' I must say I think these issues are very far-reaching, but I do hope that the Congress will review them and note, and vote and help us make this decision. It is a joint responsibility."

The secretary also said: "There are moments when . . . toughness is essential for peace."

forced resignation of 500 pilots a "monumental mistake." The air force now needs pilots. Combat ships were tied up because of manpower shortages and Army infantry units were being filled out by artillerymen.

CRITICIZES PURCHASES

Mr. Winch, the NDP's chief defence critic, said the U.S. had declared Bomarc missiles and Voodoo interceptors were obsolete.

So Canada bought them.

President Johnson had told Congress that the Northrop F-5 Freedom Fighter would not be bought.

But Canada purchased them and rejected the two planes the U.S. decided to buy.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said the defence department should make more information available to the general public. Then when controversies arose over matters such as the F-5, the people could judge for themselves.

For example, it would have been helpful for Canadians to know that nine other countries had decided to buy this jet.

When the Commons began its sitting, Finance Minister Sharp announced the government's intention to extend for six months the 25-per-cent forgiveness rebate on projects under the municipal development and loan fund.

Project costs up to Sept. 30 now will qualify for the rebate. The original deadline was March 31.

Spokesmen for all parties expressed disappointment at the announcement.

Successful Living

Offers Suggestions For Baby Showers

DEAR DORIS: I am hoping to give a baby shower for a friend who is expecting her first child in March.

Do you have a pamphlet which gives ideas for this type of shower? I'm mostly worried about games. — SALLY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SALLY: Why not adapt the Bride's Scrapbook idea (which leaflet I am sending you)? Guests clip magazine pictures to illustrate pages labelled "When Baby Was a Twinkle in Father's Eye," "The Stork and Other Birds Confer," "Baby's First Public Address," "Baby's Art Work" — and so on. Let your imagination be your guide — and don't be prim about it!

The leaflet "Party Games and Refreshments" will help with any kind of party. If you use the Drawing Puzzle Game, the drawings could be of baby in bassinet, or stork with baby in beak, or baby bear with his Mommy! (Leaflets available to others for ten cents each and stamped envelope.)

DEAR DORIS: As a daughter-in-law of three and a half years I'd like to speak out for a great number of us in saying "Mothers-in-law, God bless 'em!"

The ladies who wrote you saying they were left sitting alone while daughter-in-law had tea etc., are very unlucky to have such inconsiderate women for their daughters-in-law. Any woman worthy of the name daughter (and daughter comes first, not the in-law) would not think of leaving her mother-in-law by herself any more than she would leave any other guest.

By not even trying to make friends, she will not only deprive herself of the experience and help her mother-in-law could give her, but she will also deprive her children of the companionship of a loving grandmother. Her husband also cannot stay blind to the treatment.

I can understand shyness when you don't know your mother-in-law well yet; I was shy too. If you try hard enough, you might be lucky enough to get just what the name says: by law, another mother. — ANOTHER D.I.L.

DEAR ANOTHER: I don't even have to ask what happened in your case.

DEAR DORIS: With regard to Wondering Daughters: If daughters-in-law are not thought of as immediate family and are not to be included at the table I think sons-in-law should not be at the table either (if there are any.)

They are expected to share equally the work, the gift, and the dinner, but when it is to be enjoyed they are left out; which is not fair. — A DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

P.S.: Why don't daughters suggest to their husbands that they wait and eat with their sisters-in-law after the main meal and share the leftovers? And see what reception they get!

DEAR D.I.L.: Then the fat would really be in the fire! Books could be written about in-law rivalries — and some have been!

Use Truce Body In Peace Bid Martin's Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada arrived here today with the stated intention of exploring prospects of using the International Control Commission as another peace initiative in Viet Nam.

He was to confer today with State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Martin arrived from New York after talks with United Nations Secretary - General U Thant. He lunched with Canadian Ambassador Charles Ritchie. Canadian officials said his schedule is light and a state department spokesman said the only call scheduled there by Martin, aside from the Rusk conference, is a meeting with Thomas Mann, undersecretary for economic affairs.

Under the circumstances of the official mood in Washington, where a debate on Viet Nam is proceeding hot and heavy, Martin's visit is seen primarily as designed to keep in touch with official U.S. policy.

Judge Deyman Heads Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Judge H. R. Deyman of Ontario's Peterborough County court is expected to head an inquiry into the escape of four prisoners from the penitentiary at Collins Bay, Solicitor-General Pennell told the Commons Friday.

Replying to a question by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), Mr. Pennell said appointment of Judge Deyman would be made under the Penitentiaries Act by the commissioner.

"I do not know if all the details have been cleared and whether the judge has secured approval from the senior county court judge to act in this capacity However, I believe this permission will be forthcoming."

Four prisoners escaped from the institution. One was captured shortly after. The other three are charged with the kidnapping and rape of a housewife.

The three were taken at gunpoint when trapped by police in St. Catharines.

Calculation of Tax
PAGE 2 MUST ALSO BE COMPLETED

There are two ways to calculate your tax. If you use the tables which come with your personalized income tax form, you automatically allow for the Old Age Security Tax and the abatement for provincial taxes.

If you use the detailed calculation method (for some people there is no alternative) then you calculate each item separately. Figuring percentages seems to cause many problems. For example, to calculate the 21% provincial tax abatement (for all provinces except Quebec which is 44%), you multiply your Basic Tax by 21 and divide the answer by 100. The problem can be visualized this way:

Don't be confused by the fact that after you have calculated and deducted the provincial tax abatement you are asked to add it back again to the total (21% if you live in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, Alberta or British Columbia; 26% if you live in Manitoba; 27% if you live in Saskatchewan). This is necessary to show which portion belongs to each government.

Detailed instructions for making these calculations are contained in the guide attached to your personalized income tax form.

Deadline April 30th.

The Golden Years

Take New Look at Annuities Then Weigh Pros and Cons

By THOMAS COLLINS

Naturally, as you move up to retirement, you want to do your part toward keeping the executives of life insurance companies rich. Country Club waiters, custom tailors, makers of paneled offices and all sorts of people would suffer if you didn't. So it's noble of you.

But along with this charitable urge you also want, if possible, to keep yourself solvent in retirement.

The executives, in return for your consideration, can help you do it.

Life insurance companies are always coming up with plans to assure your financial stability from your retirement to the grave. Some of the most interesting of these deal with annuities.

Under one of the newer plans, if you are a man of age 65 you can now plank down $13,379 and buy an income of $100 a month for as long as you live. This averages out to about 9 percent a year on your money, which is somewhat better than you get on stocks and bonds. Of course you don't get your capital back because this payment is based on what is called a "straight life" annuity (no refund). There is one sure way to beat the game — to live longer than the statistics say you should, or to age 100 or so.

SOME NEW PLANS

Here is a breakdown of new annuity plans offered by one of the country's top life insurance companies:

If you are a woman of age 65 you can get $100 a month for life by paying $15,257 on a straight-life annuity. This is about $2,000 more than a man pays because women, living longer, collect more monthly cheques.

At age 70 a man would pay $11,384 for $100 a month, and a woman would pay $13,034.

You can buy what is called a joint and survivor annuity which will pay a husband and wife $100 a month as long as either of them lives. This costs more — $17,422 if both husband and wife are 65 at the time of purchase. If the wife is younger than 65 such an annuity can still be had, but the cost goes up as the wife's age goes down.

On a "refund" annuity, a man at 65 can buy $100 a month for $15,189. Under this plan, if he dies before he recovers his purchase price, then the $100 a month continues to be a beneficiary until the full $15,189 is paid back.

ONLY EXAMPLES

These figures are only examples. All of them might vary slightly in your individual case. But they give a pretty good picture of what is available. If annuities interest you, the thing to do is to go to your own life insurance company, or any good one, and ask what's what.

As a person nearing retirement you usually would produce the cash to buy an annuity from one of three sources: your savings, the money you get from the sale of your house at retirement, or the cash value built up on your life insurance policies.

The trouble with annuities is, and always has been, that they offer no protection against inflation. You buy an annuity now and you buy a contract to get 100 1966 dollars. In 1980, when you may well be around, you'll still be getting 1966 dollars. And while it's not likely, 100 of them then might not buy you a pair of pants.

The value of annuities, for retired people, is that they take the whole burden of investing money off the mind. The insurance company does the worrying, sends your cheque on time and keeps itself about as safe as anything can.

Second prize went to Miss Patsy Benson, age 13, in grade 8 at Ivanhoe School, her subject being Sea-shells. Other pupils competing were, Vera Wickens, Ivanhoe school, a close third, Nancy Francis and Earla Fenn of White Lake School, Charlotte Lahey of No. 15 school, Kathy Holbert and Gloria Hicks of Moira school.

Miss Margaret Lahey will go on to represent Huntingdon Twp. at the Inspectorate Finals on February 24th at the Madoc Public School.

Agricultural Society Lists New Officers

MARMORA — Officers reelected at the annual meeting of Marmora Agricultural Society were: president, Pat Bertrand; 1st vice-president, Bill Doyle; 2nd vice-president, Lawrence Bateman; secretary-treasurer, Tom Bateman. Sam Davidson was elected to the new position of fair manager.

The meeting was held in Sacred Heart Parish Hall following a banquet served by the C.W.L.

Rev. Maurice McLeod and Charles Lajoie were appointed auditors for 1966 ,the latter replacing Rev. Father W. P. Healey, who was thanked on behalf of the Agricultural Society for his work on the Fair Board for the past 12½ years. A motion was passed that the next service diploma be awarded to Father Healey.

GIVE REPORTS

In the reports given by each department, Mr. Bateman said plans are being made to widen the race track this year and work has been done on the grounds. Mrs. Charles Brady suggested some revisions be made in the children's prize list this year. Larry Bertrand stated better prizes will be given for dairy cattle this year when price list is revised. Last year heavy horses were down and light horses up, reported Bill Doyle. On poultry, Lawrence Bateman said an attempt will be made to have more children enter, and more cages built this year. Frank Bird suggested that some revision should be made in the marking of cheeses.

Mrs. Charles Lajoie said there was a large increase in fancy work entries last year with many new exhibitors. Mrs. Bateman reported there had been the largest exhibit of fruits last year than ever before. She suggested grains and seeds be replaced by apples and hen's eggs, and that honey be removed from list. The exhibit of flowers for 1965 was also the best since the fair started.

Reporting for the race committee, Lawrence Bateman said the races were more successful last year with no accidents. With an improvement in the track, races can be a still better drawing card at the fair. Frank Bird reported an increase in concessions.

DATE SET

The fair will be held on Labor Day in 1966 and a contract will be made with Robertson Outdoor Amusements of Toronto for a midway.

Reeve John Wilkes suggested that signs be erected in the village advertising the fair.

Bill Doyle was presented by Larry Bertrand with service diploma for his work on the 1965 fair.

Arrangements will be made for delegates to attend the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies convention in Toronto on February 23-24th.

Directors elected for 1966 were: Pat Bertrand, Bill Doyle, Lawrence Bateman, Tom Bateman, Bill Lavender, Manley Lavender, George Fox, Francis Cooke, John Wilkes, Dermot Bedore, Sam Davidson, Charlie Lajoie, Larry Bertrand, Maurice McFall, Tom Devolin, Gordon Jones, Frank Bird.

Carl Heath, director of the Ontario Fair Association for district 3, addressed the meeting, giving his comments on how Marmora Fair could be improved. He said an attempt should be made to get every organization in the village interested in the local Fair.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett were among those from the Stirling Agricultural Society who attended the annual meeting of district No. 3, Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies held recently at Club Canara in Belleville.

Income Tax Tips

STOCKS, BONDS, DEPLETION AND TAX CREDITS

There is no deduction from bond interest except when the taxpayer has purchased bonds on a time payment plan or through payroll deductions; then he may deduct the amount of carrying charges he pays from the interest received.

Divident paying stocks are subject to a depletion allowance if the company derives its income from underground workings, such as mines, gas and oil wells. The percentage rate of such depletion depends on the extent of the profit made by the company in this respect. The rate will sometimes vary from year to year. The rates of depletion on any certain stock for the current year may be obtained from the nearest income tax office or I can supply them. The divident reported on the return is the net amount after depeltion and carrying charges have been deducted.

Tax credits which are applicable to strictly Canadian stock dividends are deductible from the gross amount of income tax payable. The rate of credit is always the same; that is 20 percent of the amount of the net dividends reported. To be qualified for this tax credit the dividend must be from a Canadian Corporation, doing business in Canada and paying taxes in Canada.

A corporation may have its head office in Canada but its operations are in another country and all its taxes paid to the other country. In such cases as this there is no tax credit allowed on the dividends. Two examples of this would be Brazilian Traction and International Petroleum. There are many others so it is advisable to check before filing your return.

When the taxpayer receives dividends from various sources he should attach a list to his return showing the depletion and carrying charges deducted. Carrying charges claimed should be verified by a receipt if of a substantial nature.

For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

Question 1: I inherited some stocks in a Northern Ontario mine. What can I deduct from the dividends I receive?

Answer: You can reduce the amount of dividends by the depletion rate applicable to mine, which is usually 20 percent but check on this first. You can reduce your tax by 20 percent of the net dividends reported.

Question 2: Does the 20 percent tax credit apply to Canada Savings Bond interest?

Answer: No. This tax credit applies only to Canadian dividends and is allowed to offset somewhat the corporation tax paid by the company on its profits before the dividends were declared.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

When two pretty teen-age skaters from Belleville whirl out on the ice in the Mid-West Coliseum at Memphis, Tennessee next Tuesday night, their hearts, perhaps will be in their mouths, but they will dazzle the southern audience with their mercury-heeled ability.

It will be the most thrilling milestone in the skating lives of Peggy, 16, and Jane McCutcheon, 17, attractive daughters of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon of this city.

The first heart-tingling thrill came with a long-distance call from Los Angeles. At the other end of the wire was an official of the current top skating extravaganza "Holiday on Ice" with an offer to join the show - and turn professional.

In a letter to this reporter Peg and Jane wrote. "Our new adventure is very exciting and everything happend so fast we cannot believe it is true".

"It took real political talk to convince Mom and Dad, believe us. However we had done real well in our Christmas examinations at school and we had written College Boards for university next year."

"However, opportunity knocks but once and we convinced our parents that we should answer," the girls said.

Sportswise Peg and Jane have devoted almost all their young lives to figure-skating. They donned their first "blades" when they were skate-high to a grasshopper, concentrating on "singles" but later developing the poetry-in-motion that has made them one of the outstanding junior pairs in Canada.

Dr. McCutcheon brought them through their toddling days to early girlhood. He trained them hard and faithfully putting them through strenuous work as early as six a.m.

The trail to perfection took them to many places. Under expert coaching and training they visited many places in Canada and the United States finishing out their amateur careers in Toronto.

Apparently talent scouts of "Holiday on Ice" spotted them and liked what they saw. They were signed to professional contracts a few weeks ago.

During the busy years of training they did not neglect their education. "We took it by correspondence and did very well" the girls wrote.

And they are truly appreciative of the efforts of their parents in devoting time and money to their training.

"We are excited" they say, "and, believe us, we intend to work hard and reward Mom and Dad for being so wonderful."

The girls are justifiably excited over the fact they join "Holiday on Ice" as special attractions. I do not know if they are to appear in one of the many colorful "chorus lines" but they were chosen to perform in two distinctly different pairs routines.

Their grace and poise on skates, their uniformity of motion is seen in the photograph which appears on one of the sports pages.

The "Holiday-on-Ice" spectacular opens a wide and colorful vista of the United States and Canada to the young skaters. The forthcoming itinerary calls for their opening at Memphis, Tennessee, then to Alabama, North Carolina, Kentucky, Florida. In May they wil be performing in Mexico City.

Jane and Peg's potentials have been developed through sheer determination, hard work and perseverance. I remember asking Dr. McCutcheon one chilly 6 a.m. in Memorial Arena as the girls were going through their training routines some years ago, "Are they Olympics prospects?"

The amiable doctor smiled and shook his head.

"I don't think so," he said, "but I would like to bring out the best in them."

This he did and professional trainers and coaches brought them to the point where they attracted professional scouts resulting in a contract.

"Good luck, best wishes and stand 'em in the aisles, girls."

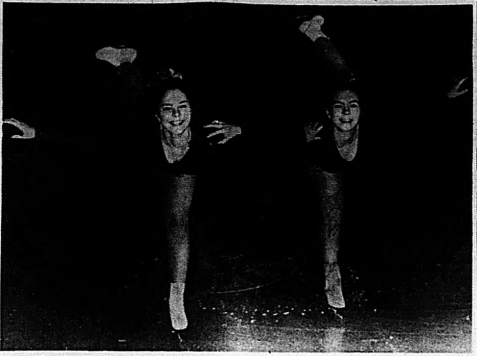
Jinx Hits Leafs; Bower, Sawchuk Out



PRETTY PROS — Peg and Jane McCutcheon, attractive daughters of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon embark on a professional skating career next Tuesday at Memphis,. Tennessee. They join the skating spectacular "Holiday on Ice" and will tour the midwest and southern states as well as Mexico. The girls will be starred in two special "pairs" routines. See "Sports Slices."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs tonight will meet New York Rangers without the services of their two top goalies and possibly Eddie Shack.

Johnny Bower, who had been scheduled to tend the nets against the National Hockey League cellar - dwellers after Terry Sawchuk suffered a charliehorse Wednesday against Montreal, received a 26-stitch gash over his right eye in a practice session Friday. He has been written off for at least one game.

The third-place Leafs have called up 22-year-old Gary Smith from Rochester Americans of the American League. His understudy will be Al Smith—no relation — from Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

The shot that injured Bower came from Eddie Shack. There was no word from coach Punch Imlach Friday but earlier he said he was not sure if Shack would start. Orland Kurtenbach played in Shack's spot for most of Wednesday's game.

Detroit Red Wings will get a chance tonight to try out Leo Boivin and Dean Prentice, picked up in a two-for-two deal with Boston at mid-week. The Wings go against fourth-place Boston in Detroit. The Bruins got winger Ron Murphy and Gary Doak, a first-year man.

In the other game tonight, Montreal Canadiens take on the high - flying Chicago Black Hawks, who have a four-point lead in standings over Montreal and Detroit.

While the NHL executive Friday was recovering from charges of "slave trading" by a British Columbia legislature member and a Maryland Senator's demand for an investigation of the recent league expansion, organized hockey in general came in for criticism in another field.

But of most of the criticism—against allowing children to be subjected to the mental stresses of hockey tournaments—was Detroit's star winger, Gordie Howe.

Howe's 12-year-old son Mark was reported Friday to be sick with a migrain caused by too much pressure.

The boy, a member of Detroit Roostertails, had been in a fight earlier with a member of Toronto Red Wings which beat the Detroit team in a peewee tournament at Quebec City.

Bill Glover of the Toronto peewee team said he "can't understand Gordie Howe letting his sons do all this." Reports said the Detroit peewees had played more than 70 games this season.

"We all understand his sons are a terrific draw in many arenas," said Glover, "but they are constantly open to challenge because of their father."

Clay Appeals Draft

'We Fight No Wars But Allah's'

By JOE MOOSHIL

Chicago (AP)—Cassius Clay the accepted world's heavyweight champion, will meet Ernie Terrell in a title fight in Chicago's International Amphitheatre March 29 despite his draft board proceedings.

Clay, who was reclassified 1-A Friday from his 1-Y classification, intends to appeal on the basis of his Black Muslim religion.

No appeal has been made as yet since Clay has not officially received notice of his reclassification. But the mere fact that he intends to appeal will hold up matters long enough for him to fight Terrell, the World Boxing Association champion, in Chicago.

Clay's lawyer, Edward Jacko Jr., said he will file the appeal within the legal 10-day period after Clay receives notice of reclassification.

The fact that Clay will appeal assures co-promoters Ben Bentley and Irv Schoenwald that sufficient time will be consumed for the fight to be held.

HAS NO QUARREL

"I am a member of the Black Muslims," Clay said from his Miami training camp. "We don't go to wars unless they are declared by Allah himself. I don't have no personal quarrel with those Viet Congs."

Jacko also said if Clay's appeal were turned down and his reclassification affirmed, "then an appeal also can be taken from that whereby additional time could be consumed."

As far as the 15-round title fight in the amphitheatre is concerned, it will be held and most, if not all, of the 15,000 tickets will be sold to the tune of more than a $500,000 gate.

But top revenue will come from closed-circuit television.

Whip Hawks 10-5

Flyers Cut Petes' Margin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers inched closer to first - place Peterborough Petes in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Friday night.

The Flyers defeated the eighth - place St. Catharines Black Hawks 10-5 with a burst of early scoring while the best the Petes could manage was a last-minute 4-4 tie with sixth-place Toronto Marlboros.

That left the Petes with a three-point lead over the Flyers. Peterborough has five games left to play in the schedule. Niagara Falls has six.

Danny Grant gave the Petes the tie when he flicked in a rebound at 19:35 of the final period after Marlie goalie Al Smith stopped a shot by Andre Lacroix. Lacroix scored twice for the Petes, with Grant and Mickey Redmond getting one each.

Al Osborne, Mike Byers, Cam Crosby and Brent Imlach were the Marlboro scorers.

In Niagara Falls, the Flyers swept to a 6-1 first-period lead before St. Catharines replaced starting goalie Larry Holmes.

Derek Sanderson piled up four goals and two assists for the Flyers. Don Marcotte and Bud Debrody scored two goals apiece while Steve Atkinson and Rosaire Paiement got one each.

NY Half-Mile Was Easy For Crothers

Farrell Didn't Run

By ROD CURRIE

NEW YORK (CP)—Canada's Bill Crothers easily won the half mile at the New York Athletic Club annual meet Friday night but the much-heralded return duel with Tommy Farrell, one of the few men to beat Crothers at that distance, didn't materialize.

Farrell, regarded as the best half-miler in the U.S., had been nursing a strained left leg for weeks and decided several hours before the test Friday that he couldn't make it.

Crothers set the pace most of the way and won by eight yards over Robin Lingle of the NYAC in a time of one minute, 50 seconds flat.

Farrell's meet and indoor world record time of 1:49.8 was set in defeating Crothers here last year. Previous to that upset the 25-year-old Markham, Ont., pharmacist had won the NYAC half-mile two years in succession.

A record time had been predicted in the scheduled Crothers-Farrell duel, but Crothers insisted the American's absence didn't bother him.

"I just messed it up myself," he said.

Crothers, Olympic runner up to Peter Snell of New Zealand in the 800 metres and victor over Snell in the half mile at Toronto last summer, ran what for him was an unusual race, inheriting the lead with three laps to go and setting the pace from then on.

Clubmate George Shepherd was setting the pace until he dropped out after the second lap, leaving Crothers at the head of the field.

The Madison Square Garden crowd of 15,137 saw Russia's Titiana Schelkanova set a women's indoor record in the broad jump.

She soared 21 feet, 5½ inches to wipe out the previous record of 20 feet, 10 inches by England's Mary Rand.

In the mile, lanky Jim Ryun of Kansas University won in 4.02.2 over Jim Grelle of Oregon.

Later Crothers came back to anchor the East York Track Club in the one-mile club relay but despite his time of 48.1—fastest of the night—East York finished second to Baltimore Olympic Club.

The women's 800 - yard run was won by Tamara Dmitryeva of the Soviet Union in a time of 2:14.9, with Abby Hoffman of the Toronto Track Club finishing fourth.

Dave Ellis of Toronto Olympic Club was fifth in the six-man two-mile event, won by Harold Norpoth of West Germany in 8:47.4, well off the meet record of 8:39 set by Bruce Kidd of Toronto in 1963.

John Pennel won the pole vault on fewer misses at 16½ feet, with Bob Seagren of California also clearing that height. Both missed attempts at 17 feet.

Sweep Trenton Triple-Leader

BCI Teams Finish Tops

By DAVID TEMPLER

BCI's collegians finished the regular hoop schedule with a flashing triple victory over the visiting Trenton Tigers to retain first place in all divisions. The seniors won 78-30, juniors 110-45 and the bantams 51-26.

In the senior game the home team slowly warmed up as the margin by quarters shows. After the first period BCI led 19-12. At the half their lead was 14 points. In the third period the collegians outscored Trenton 26-4 and the game ended 78-30. Walsh with 40 points led the winners offensively and defensively Lornie played well and scored 23.

For the Trenton five Williams hooped 8 and Witriack and Gibson scored 5 apiece.

John Chalmers led the junior team to a score not seen in this league for quite a few years. The team work and timing of Chalmers, McCreary and Thibeau and the defensive rebounding of Brian Shea were the prime factors in this decisive victory.

The scorers were: BCI — Chalmers 40, Thibeau 29, McCreary 27, Drumm 8, and Shea 6. Trenton — Larry 16, Pinke 15, and Schaufele 7.

David Cass and Larmo Heyduck with 13 and 12 points respectively generalled the bantam cagers to their win. For Trenton Wayne Miller scored 10.

Playoffs Hopes Jolted

Trenton Blanks Rollins 5-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Three third - period goals wrapped up a 5-0 victory for Trenton Apple Kings over Rollins Juniors here last night and dimmed greatly Belleville's hopes for a place in the playoffs.

By far the best crowd of the year, estimated at 1,300, saw a fast, hard - hitting game in which the Kings were sharp enough to score once in each of the first two periods.

It was still a tight game until mid - way through the third, when Trenton scored again. The last two were just icing on the cake.

The Kings took over the OHA Eastern Junior "B" loop's third spot with 32 points, followed by Peterborough with 31 and Belleville, in fifth, with 28.

Rollins pay a return visit in Trenton Sunday afternoon, at 3.15, and play Kingston here Monday. They must win these two games to stay in contention for a playoff berth.

Trenton had a skating edge on the losers but got the bounces as well. Rollins had their chances but several great saves by Wayne Bonter in the dying seconds of the middle period, were the best they could do. Harold Townsend led several dangerous rushes but Rollins lacked the finishing touch.

Al Ferguson swept across the front of the Belleville cage to net the opening goal at 8.31 of the first. The goal was hotly disputed by Rollins, led by goalie Wayne Brant - to no avail.

The first beat was chippy with nine of the game's 18 penalties assessed, including a misconduct to Belleville's Steve White. Referee Gord Lowe, of Kingston, came up with another of his inconsistent performances and almost let matters get out of hand several times.

Tommy Glover made it 2-0 at 5:58 of the second. Both Brant and Bonter came up with some of their finest saves in this period. Overall, Trenton had a 31-30 shooting edge.

With Rollins fighting desperately to get back into the game half-way through the third, Ferguson was left uncovered at the blueline and raced in alone, to beat Brant.

That clinched it but Dan Creighton scored on a high drive with the clubs five aside at 15:18 and Glover netted a low slider at 18:28.

Of the total penalties, Trenton took 11 but Bonter and his hard-checking mates rose to the occasion each time the club was shorthanded.

Grant Hagerman returned to Rollins' line-up and played a regular shift but was able to move only at about half speed, due to the knee injury. Andy Teeple missed the game for Trenton with a shoulder injury.

Trenton—Bonter, Hampson, Benham, Poechman, Hutchison, Glover, Ferguson, Holmes, Creighton, Howard, Turner, G. Stewart, Dixon, McDonald, Cunningham.

Belleville — Brant, Potts, Townsend, Boyle, Fleming, Hagerman, Boomhower, L. Stewart, Pringle, Smith, Duval, White, Ethier.

Referee — Gord Lowe, Kingston. Linesmen — Ken Goodrich, Kingston, and Fiori Goegan, Belleville.

Defeat Napanee 59-46

Quinte Srs. In Playoffs

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Quinte Seniors have gained a berth in the Bay of Quinte High School basketball playoffs. Yesterday evening, Quinte whipped Napanee 59-46 at the latter's home court to ascertain a Quinte - B.C.I. final to decide the league champions. With one contest remaining in the schedule, Quinte has attained a 6-1 record, with their only loss coming at the hands of B.C.I.

The Quinte juniors, led by the scoring of Paul Goodfellow, over-ran Napanee 47-35 for their fourth win in seven starts. Napanee took the wind out of Quinte's sails to win the bantam contest 54-21.

In the first quarter of the senior tilt Quinte surged to a big lead, and Napanee never quite recovered. Jack Reppard and Rocky Taylor started the locomotive with fine play at the beginning of the contest, and Tony Meddings kept it going in the second half.

Good ball control, especially by Max Valyear, and accurate shooting by the entire visiting squad were the keys to the victory.

Glen of Napanee played a fine game for the losers, hooping 20 points.

Paul Goodfellow played a sparkling game around the Napanee basket to score 24 points for the Quinte Juniors. Goodfellow's effort, coupled with sound team play, carried the Juniors to success.

Glen Easton and Dave Middleton contributed 10 and nine points respectively for Quinte.

The home-team was led by Grange (14), Smith (8), and Roblin (7).

In the Bantam battle, Wayne Legere rapped in 24 points for Napanee. Legere's out-put was more than that of the entire Quinte team. Helping Legere in the scoring were Cachetto and Roblin.

Quinte's dismal attempt was exemplified in their free-throw total, one out of fifteen.

Senior game: Quinte (59) — Meddings 20, Taylor 15, Reppard 12, Moon 8, Max Valyear 2, Paul Duncan 2.

Napanee (46) — Glen 20, Forbes 11, Webster 7, Taylor 2, Smith 2, Roblin 2, McCutchen 2.

QUITS BASEBALL

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) —Bob Turley, former New York Yankee pitcher who was scheduled to be a pitching coach for Richmond in the International League this summer, said Friday he is quitting pro baseball. Turley has been named a vice-president of a motel chain and will serve as supervisor of a recreation facility being built at Warm Springs, Ga.

Brown May Retire

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Brown, the National Football League's most valuable player, said Friday there's a chance—however remote—he will retire before the 1966 season.

Brown, who has said in past that next season would be his last, told The Associated Press he will decide in the next couple of months about plans.

"There's a possibility I might not be able to return," the Cleveland Browns' fullback said. "There are things I'm planning to do businesswise that almost would demand my football time. I should know definitely within the next couple of months.

"I have talked with Mr. Modell (Browns' owner Art Modell), and he would like me to give him as much notice as possible so he could formulate his plans, which is only right.

"I indicated to him that the chances are remote that I won't return. "I'm going to do everything possible to return."

Brown's non - football activities include acting, his marketing job with Pepsi-Cola, his interest in Main Bout, Inc., and his work with the Negro Industrial and Economic Union.

Jim Pappin Sparks Amerks Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The knock against Jimmy Pappin whenever he tries to catch a spot in the National Hockey League with Toronto Maple Leafs is that he doesn't score enough goals.

Providence Reds today are wondering how much is enough.

The 26-year-old right winger, who has spent the last three seasons shuttling between the Leafs and Rochester Americans, produced two goals and set up the other three Friday night to subdue the Reds 5-4 and bury them deeper in the cellar of the American League's Eastern Division.

The victory widened Rochester's Western Division lead to 12 points over Pittsburgh Hornets, whose third-period rally fell a goal short as they lost 4-3 to Springfield Indians.

BC Nips Ontario In Dual Track Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia capitalized on the performance of a gritty North Vancouver schoolgirl and a mistake in judgment by the Ontario team Friday night to win a narrow 89-88 decision in a two-province centennial challenge track meet.

There was little time for celebration as the athletes were due to return to action tonight in the Achilles international indoor meet.

The issue was decided in the final event Friday night when 16-year-old Lana Lundy leaped 18 feet one inch to capture second place in the women's broad jump by a single inch over Jenny Wingerson of Toronto, the Canadian pentathlon champion. Cathy Chapman of Toronto won the event with an 8-7 effort.

Miss Lundy, who had beaten out Miss Wingerson for second place in the high jump earlier in the evening, picked up three points for each of her efforts while third place was good for two.

Ontario threw away another point in the men's high jump when Jorma Salmikivi of Queen's elected to start his qualifying jumps at five feet five inches and failed to clear the height in three attempts. Had he been successful at a lower height, he would have qualified for a fourth - place finish, good for one point.

Four records were set before a disappointing crowd of 1,000.

Hyke Van Der Wal of Hamilton, an Ontario team member, lowered his world indoor mile steeplechase mark to 4:25.2 minutes from 4:25.4.

The other three records were all Canadian native marks. Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who shares the world outdoor record at 100 metres, also tied a Canadian Open mark with his 5.2 seconds for 50 yards; Ron Parker of Vancouver topped the high jump mark of six feet, six inches by three - quarters of an inch and Barry Cunningham of Vancouver ran the 1,000 yards in 2:15.6 in a high school race.

Jerome and Lynn Eves of Victoria and Portland, Ore., ran the middle distances in the men's medley and gave B.C. an insurmountable lead. Jim Irons of Brampton, finished only five yards behind Mike Evans of Vancouver after a stirring attempt to put Ontario back in the race.

. Miss Chapman was the only double winner of the competition. Besides broad jump, she won the women's 50-yard hurdles with a time of 6.7.

Roberta Picco of Toronto won the women's 880 in 2:13.5 and Cecelia Carter of Oakville was second.

Anglers, Hunters Federation

Criticizes Govt. Financing

KITCHENER (CP) — The hunting and fishing business puts $100,000,000 into Ontario's economy every year, but the government budgets only one per cent of that total toward fish and wildlife research and management, Jack O'Dette, president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, said Friday.

Speaking to delegates at the federation's convention here, Mr. O'Dette said the federation "is very concerned" about the attitude of the government and the treasury board because of the financial imbalance.

He said the government turned down requests for more staff and facilities for the fish and wildlife branch on the grounds of insufficient funds.

The government needs to realize that more money must be budgeted for fish and wildlife protection. If wildlife branch staff were doubled, conservation officers still would be spread too thinly in many areas, Mr. O'Dette said.

Mr. O'Dette said the federation appealed last year for hunter safety training, more access roads into forests, conservation education and wider memberships.

Steve Lawrence Would Like To Do Another TV Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Steve Lawrence thinks it's a shame networks don't give more than a 13-week trial for some television shows. Like his.

Lawrence still is nursing his bruises from the collapse of his NBC singing show, one of the first casualties of the 1965-66 season.

He said that 13 weeks was not enough time to develop a style and attract an audience, and added:

"Early in the game we made a decision to go a certain route. Each program tried to be a special—elephants parading down Broadway, that sort of thing.

"What we learned the hard way was that the audience doesn't want to be knocked on their ears every week. They'd rather get to know you as a personality and be entertained in a more intimate way."

"The shows were getting better, and so was the rating," said Lawrence. "But then it was too late. The decision had been made."

The singer now is playing dates in Las Vegas, Miami, New York and at colleges—engagements he had to postpone because of the series. Having done a Broadway show, What Makes Sammy Run, he would like to explore the one field he hasn't yet touched: movies.

Another television series?

"Love to," he said. "But next time it'll be right."

LOSE BRENNEMAN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League lost John Brenneman Friday when New York Rangers reassigned the winger to Minnesota Rangers of the Central Hockey League.

Re-enlistment Bonus Offered To NCOs and Lower Ranks

OTTAWA (CP)—Non-commissioned officers and lower ranks in the armed services are expected to divvy up about $27,600,000 in the 1966-67 fiscal year under a re-enlistment bonus plan announced Friday.

Associate Defence Minister Cadieux, announcing the measure in the Commons during consideration of defence department spending estimates, also said the plan probably will cost another $19,400,000 during fiscal 1966-67.

Mr. Cadieux said the move would bring an increase in training efficiency "resulting from the retention in the services of a higher proportion of skilled, experienced men."

But the two-year, $50,000,000 shot in the arm appeared to be aimed mainly at stemming a flow of highly-trained personnel from service ranks into higher-paying jobs on civvy street.

Defence Minister Hellyer mentioned this in his speech opening consideration of departmental estimates Thursday night. He said the forces were finding it difficult to compete with the demand for manpower in a booming economy.

The bonus is $200 a year for each year of re-enlistment. The effective date is Feb. 1 but there is a clause to cover persons who signed on for another term before that date.

A non-commissioned officer or enlisted man signing on today for another five-year hitch could get $1,000 cash on the barrelhead.

A man who signed for another five-year term last Feb. 1 will get $800 as a bonus.

But "in the interest of equity," all men and women now serving a second hitch in the regular force will be paid the re-engagement bonus "pro-rated according to the balance of their engagement," Mr. Cadieux said.

"For example, a man who re-engaged Feb. 1, 1965, and still has four years to serve in his engagement will receive $800 bonus. For part year bonus will be pro-rated at one-twelfth of $200 for each month of eligible service."

The associate minister also announced in the commons that the normal pay review for all armed forces personnel would take place next Oct. 1 and "interim increases will be granted on that date pending a decision on the final increases."

Lieut.-Governor Of Quebec Dies, Trapped in Fire

QUEBEC (CP) — Paul Comtois, 70, Quebec lieutenant-governor, died early today when trapped by a fire that reduced his stately white residence to ashes in less than two hours.

Lt.-Col. J. P. Martin, the lieutenant-governor's chief aide de camp, said everyone else in the residence escaped the fire which tore through the three-storey structure, known as Bois de Coulonges, as though it were a tinderbox.

The house, constructed mostly of wood, was built in 1862 at a cost of $28,015 and stood on an estate of more than 70 acres.

[illegible] Col. Martin said Mme. Comtois was rescued from the fire and carried out into the bitterly cold night by the watchman, Adrien Soucy. She was reported unharmed.

Two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Stearns of Sherbrooke, Que., escaped the leaping flames by jumping to the ground from the second storey.

Mireille, the lieutenant-governor's daughter, was taken to hospital with burns on her hands, arms and face. Col. Martin said she suffered the injuries while fleeing the fire.

EXPLOSIONS HEARD?

He said he believed the fire began in a men's cloakroom. He did not deny reports that a series of explosions was heard at the start of the fire.

Gerard Tobin, police and fire chief of suburban Sillery, said Mr. Comtois was seen to come out on a second-floor balcony at the height of the fire but turned back into the house.

"The fire started as though it were in a matchbox," Col. Martin said. Chief Tobin confirmed this, saying "It was incredible to see with what speed the flames spread through the building."

Until a few years ago, Bois de Coulonges, built 104 years ago, was known as Spencerwood.

Before Confederation in 1867, Spencerwood was the headquarters of Canada's Governor-General. When the Act of Confederation was signed, the residence was turned over to the province to house its lieutenant-governors.

HOSES FREEZE

The heat of the crackling flames was in sharp contrast to the 20-degree-below-zero temperature in Quebec City. Despite the wintry weather, the firemen could not approach closer than 100 feet. Hoses were continually freezing.

In less than two hours the historic house in suburban Sillery was reduced to glowing embers, with only a few piles of brick left standing.

It was impossible to begin the search for Lieutenant-Governor Comtois' body immediately after the fire.

The three-storey building was situated in the centre of a large park on a peninsula which over-

PC Chief Warmly Greeted

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative national executive Saturday decided in favor of a spring national convention and reversed last year's performance with a warm welcome for Leader John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership was unsuccessfully challenged by some of the party executive at the last annual meeting, less than a year ago.

This time, however, he got a standing ovation before and after he spoke. Reporters were allowed in to hear the speech and witnessed the demonstration of party unity.

Otherwise the one-day session attended by 102 executive members was closed to the press. It was held in a hotel banquet room.

Dalton Camp, the Conservative association's national president, said it was fairly quiet inside, but the delegates wanted a national convention before June 1 if possible. Failing that, it should be held next fall.

WILL SET DATE

The chief officers were empowered to set a date and place, preferably in Quebec province. Quebec City is a possible choice. The annual convention has been held in the capital in recent years, so moving to Quebec represents a departure.

Representation will be based on the current electoral boundaries, not those under pending redistribution.

In his speech, Mr. Diefenbaker suggested Canada call an international conference of nations affected by the Viet Nam war in an attempt to settle it. Both North Viet Nam and the Cold Wave Continues Unabated

British Columbia looked forward to balmy 40-to-50-degree temperatures under sunny skies today while the other provinces expected only slight relief from extreme weekend cold.

In Alberta and Saskatchewan brisk southeast winds Sunday plunged the mercury to 25 below, although maximums in far western Alberta reached 40 above during the day.

Winnipeg set records Thursday when at 31 below it was the coldest Feb. 17 on record. Friday, at 49 below, was the second coldest day in the city's history and Saturday's overnight low of 41.2 below set a record.

Various Ontario communities also set records.

Wilson Journeying to Moscow Despite Russia's Tough Stand

MOSCOW (Reuters) — British Prime Minister Wilson arrived here by air today for talks with Soviet leaders on Viet Nam, disarmament and Anglo-Soviet trade.

The chartered Comet-4 airliner which brought Wilson from London landed at Sheremetyevo Airport, 20 miles northwest of downtown Moscow, because of bad landing conditions at Vnukovo Airport, on the other side of town, which usually is used for visiting dignitaries.

Wilson is the highest-ranking Westerner to visit Moscow since the upsurge in the Viet Nam war. He came at his own request and in defiance of scantily-concealed Russian intentions to talk tough.

Premier Kosygin and his lieutenants were expected to say bluntly that Wilson could not hope for success as a mediator on Viet Nam and nuclear non-proliferation unless he ceased to support both American and West German objectives in these fields.

Inching the Russians toward negotiations on Viet Nam, usually well-informed diplomats said, was almost impossible. And a top British source conceded Sunday in London that Wilson himself had little hope.

An outline of Russia's views of Wilson's foreign policy, published Sunday in the government newspaper Izvestia, said that if the British prime minister wants peace in Viet Nam, he should talk to the United States.

But despite these blunt warnings, the full diplomatic red carpet was being unrolled for Wilson, his wife and party which included Britain's chief disarmament negotiator, Lord Chalfont.

Pravda, the Communist party paper, today expressed "the hope that the coming Soviet-British exchange of views will help in achieving better mutual understanding and in the development of friendly ties."

The serious business of the conference starts Tuesday when Wilson has his first formal meeting with Kosygin.

Foreign diplomats anticipated that the Russians' tough opening line would soften omewhat as talks went on.

Viet Cong Supply System Hit by Rice-control Moves

SAIGON (AP)—Big U.S. and allied military operations are beginning to crimp the Viet Cong supply system for the first time.

The most notable success came during a recent operation which threw nearly a division of American, Korean and South Vietnamese troops into the Tuy Hoa rice bowl. Their job—to make certain the fertile coastal valley's 48,000 tons of rice wound up in government storehouses instead of Viet Cong caches.

In the past, large Viet Cong units moved into the 200-square-mile valley during the harvest and controlled more than half of it. Now, for the first time in several years, Phu Yen province will export rice instead of importing it.

"The Viet Cong supply system is too good to strangle with what we have now, but taking that much rice away means real trouble for the Viet Cong highland units," said a U.S. source concerned with trying to block supplies to the enemy.

U.S. marines near Da Nang and U.S. and government troops operating in Binh Tuy province carried out smaller operations earlier that brought in nearly 10,000 tons of rice.

In addition U.S. troops operating north of Saigon have run into hundred of Viet Cong rice caches, big and small and hundreds of tons of rice were destroyed or brought back and placed under government control.

Last year, the national police seized nearly 3,000 tons of rice in checkpoints set up to control the flow of goods from government to Viet Cong areas. They are doing even better this year.

Although South Viet Nam has been fighting a civil war for years, there is no food rationing and no control over the sale of such key items as medicine and light machinery which can be used in Viet Cong arms factories.

Anyone can buy penicillin without a prescription on the open market and huge quantities have found their way to Viet Cong jungle hospitals.

The first tentative efforts at resources control did not come until October, 1964, when the national police were ordered to stop the flow of strategic goods into Viet Cong hands.

At the time there were only about 20,000 police in the country. They were still suffering from bad morale and lost reputation from the days of president Ngo Dinh Diem.

Today the police are 54,000 strong and their ranks are expected to swell to 72,000 by the end of the year.

But informed sources say there is still a long way to go before anything approaching true control over strategic goods can be achieved.

Tens of thousands of tons of rice are gathered yearly by the Viet Cong in the lush Mekong Delta. This is shipped to Cambodia, moved northward along the border and then brought back into South Viet Nam for Communist base camps.

Another problem is that over the years many influential businessmen have built up a flourishing trade in goods that wind up in Communist areas. These men have enough influence in the government to cause the police serious political trouble if a real crackdown went into effect overnight, competent sources say.

Hope Truce Team May Get Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Victor Moore, Canada's senior delegate on the International Truce Supervisory Commission in Viet Nam, has been in Hanoi within the last 10 days and in touch with officials of the North Viet Nam government, it was learned Sunday.

It was the first meeting of its kind in almost 10 months. The last contact in Hanoi was made by J. Blair Seaborn, Mr. Moore's predecessor, last May 31 after a five-day pause in U.S. bombings.

Results of Mr. Moore's talks were not disclosed.

The Canadian government has been trying to get negotiations on the Viet Nam war started through the three-nation truce commission created at the 1954 Geneva conference that ended war between French and Communist forces in what was then Indochina.

Canada already has been in touch with India and Poland—the other commission members—to get their views on the possibility of reconvening the 1954 conference chaired jointly by Britain and Russia.

RUSSIA RESISTS

Russia has resisted such efforts constantly, but prime Minister Wilson of Britain said in Ottawa last December he hoped a joint approach to the Viet Nam problem could be made by Britain and Russia.

It is understood that Mr. Wilson will pursue this idea during his visit to Moscow this week.

External Affairs Minister Martin held talks in New York and Washington last week and said Saturday after a meeting with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk that Canada's cautious peace initiative had drawn "nothing but the most favorable reaction" so far.

Mr. Martin discussed a wide range of topics with Mr. Rusk in Washington Saturday, two days after his New York meeting with UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Ottawa sources said the initiative received strong support in both cities.

Sources in close contact with the Viet Nam situation said Canada's efforts just might work though it was too early to tell and a lot of groundwork remained.

It is presumed that Communist Poland will sound out North Viet Nam and other Communist entries on the subject.

In a Washington interview Saturday, Mr. Martin declined to speculate on whether Poland would co-operate but sources in Ottawa said he is waiting hopefully for an affirmative answer.

The U.S. embassy in new Delhi said Sunday night that India is willing to join in Canada's peace bid.

The main objective, Mr. Mar-

France To Oust Troops

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle said today any foreign troop elements in France after April 4, 1969, will have to be under French command only. That is the date when members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization can choose to leave NATO.

In the first news conference of his second term in office, the French president declared NATO no longer is adapted to present-day needs. He said France intends to "progressively modify dispositions now in force."

This was taken to mean that he would continue to withdraw French elements from NATO but in such a manner as to permit the 14 other NATO allies to adjust to it.

The United States now has about 20,000 troops in France, running supply and other bases.

WHENCE NATO?

In addition, the French president's statement that foreign troops would have to come under French command threw into question the status of such big installations as NATO headquarters near the Bois de Boulogne in Paris and the rambling Versailles headquarters of S.H.A.P.E., Supreme Headquarters of Allied Powers in Europe.

De Gaulle told nearly 1,000 correspondents and officials in Elysee Palace:

"It is the will of France to dispose of her own fate."

He said this in connection with the announcement on French command of foreign troops on her soil after April 4, 1969.

He declared the U.S. has been in conflicts such as Korea, Cuba and Viet Nam and that such conflicts could be escalated into

Humphrey Assails Kennedy's Proposal To Give Viet Cong Voice in Regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky of South Viet Nam have assailed Senator Robert F. Kennedy's view that the Viet Cong should be offered a share of power in the Saigon government.

They said Kennedy's proposals that the United States express willingness to accept a coalition South Vietnamese government which would include Communists would not be an acceptable solution, would not lead to peace and—if adopted—could impose on the people of South Viet Nam the very forces trying to destroy them.

Humphrey said history has demonstrated that when fascists or Communists are included in a coalition government, there is either paralysis or takeover.

Speaking to newspaper men at Wellington, N.Z., during one of his many stops on a tour of Southeast Asia and the Pacific, the vice-president said to adopt Kennedy's proposals would be like putting a fox in a chicken coop.

There wouldn't be too many chickens left, he said.

"I do not believe in writing a prescription for the ills of South Viet Nam that includes a dose of arsenic," Humphrey said. Sticking to analogies, he said further that Kennedy's suggestion would be like having an arsonist in the fire department.

Ky, queried about Kennedy's suggestion in Saigon, snapped: "The so-called National Liberation Front does not liberate anybody. They killed 11,000 of our tribes last year and [illegible] of the innocent people in the countrysides. They murdered them.

"They are 1,000 per cent Communist and they are illegal," the prime minister added, "so let's not talk about the National Liberation Front any more."

Kennedy suggested Saturday that the National Liberation Party, the political arm of the Viet Cong, must be brought to the bargaining table. To "admit them to a share of power and responsibility," the New York Democrat said, "is at the heart of a negotiated settlement."

McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to President Johnson for security affairs, said Sunday on NBC's radio-television program Meet the Press:

"I can say that the administration does not take the view that admitting the Communists to a share of the power and responsibility would be a useful or helpful step . . . one that would really lead to peace.

George W. Ball, undersecretary of state, described the Kennedy proposal as "not a thoroughly new idea." He added that it "doesn't seem to us to be an acceptable solution."

Speaking on ABC's radio-television program Issues and Answers, Ball said:

"Our own feeling is if we accede to the idea of a coalition government, we would have to exclude all the representatives of the South Vietnamese government. That's what the North Vietnamese want."

Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, said Kennedy is "pointing in the right direction in which we will have to go."

Grossman Denies "Muzzling" Ontario's Prison Chaplains

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Grossman, Ontario reform institutions minister, Sunday night denied claims by the president of the Canadian Correctional Chaplains Association that the province's prison chaplains are muzzled and controlled by officials of his department.

"We have had no such report from any chaplain in the service," Mr. Grossman said in an interview. "This is a terrible reflection on the fine men of the cloth."

Rev. Sidney George West of Toronto said earlier in an interview that the department is trying to impose absolute censorship and control on prison chaplains.

Mr. Grossman was supported by Rev. Maurice Flint, provincial director of chaplaincy services, who said Mr. West's statements were unfair to chaplains.

Mr. Flint said the chaplains "have complete freedom to contact their own ecclesiastical authorities in problems relating to their ministries.

"We've never had any complaint from any church authority that any chaplains have been muzzled or rendered ineffective in their ministries."

Mr. West, who also is director of the Anglican diocesan correctional chaplaincy in Toronto, said chaplains are afraid to speak out against the department because they have been reduced to the status of civil servants.

—There are about 36 resident and part-time prison chaplains in Ontario. Mr. West said some are paid in full by the provincial government and others on a part time basis.

Rev. Frank Sullivan, president of the Roman Catholic division of the chaplains' association, said Sunday night:

"I'm not saying that everything Rev. West said is way off, but the department has given the chaplains a frame of reference and they can do a terrific amount of work in it."

Hardy Crow Heads North Despite Cold

Despite below zero temperatures of the past few days there are signs that Spring must be on the way.

During the past week a number of persons have reported seeing crows in the Bay of Quinte district while also a week ago early tulips were striving to push their sprouts up through the earth in flower beds with a southern exposure.

That was last week. Since then below zero weather has frozen off the tulips and made the crows wish they were still in the South.

But this morning a woman living east of the city called to say the crows were still with us.

The hardy crow, apparently in defiance of the weather, was flying north!

Two Weekend Calls Answered By Fire Dept.

A Saturday afternoon fire caused only minor damage to the Canadian Tire Corporation store on Coleman Street. Firemen were called to the store when a cutting torch ignited some leaking gas on a car in the service department. Damage to the car is undetermined.

Firemen were called to the Texaco Station on Cannifton Road to wash down some gas spilled when a tank was overfilled.

At 12.40 p.m. last night, Belleville firemen stood by under the Mutual Aid program when a call came in from Ivanhoe. The house of Mrs. E. Rollins, R.R. 1, Ivanhoe was lost in the fire. Madoc firemen answered the call.

WILLIAM GAY (Stirling)

The funeral of William Gay, Stirling R.R. 4, was held at the Duffin-Hogle Funeral Home, Stirling, on Friday, February 18.

Rev. C. Laurence Broadhurst of Alliance Church, Belleville, officiated.

The bearers were John Wallace, Milton Shaw, Edward Pollock, Gerald Kirby, Joseph Ryan and Leo McAvoy.

The interment was made in Stirling Cemetery chapel vault.

Some time ago the deceased had received his 50 year jewel as a member of West Huntingdon L.O.L. No. 300. On Thursday evening members of this lodge conducted a Memorial Service at the funeral home.

WALTER ALEXANDER THOMPSON

NAPANEE — Born within three miles of Napanee, and a resident of the town itself for over 60 years, Walter Alexander Thompson died Thursday, Feb. 17, in the Kingston General Hospital. He was in his 80th year.

Mr. Thompson was well known and was highly regarded in this district. He was the son of James Thompson and his wife, formerly Lucinda Maria Storms of the Deseronto Road. His father was a farmer but concentrated on market gardening and on raising nursery stock in a modest way. The love of gardening learned in his boyhood never left the son, although he eventually gave up life in the country for residence in Napanee.

When a young man he worked first for the Gibbard Furniture Company, and then for various merchants in the town. About 1930 he joined the staff of the local post office, retiring 15 years ago. Until a few years ago he acted as school crossing guard near his home. Soon after leaving the farm he purchased the home at 172 West Street where he has lived ever since. His wife, who was Lena May McConkey before her marriage, predeceased him by three years, but he has lived alone since.

A heavy stroke the Friday night preceding his death necessitated his removal to hospital. His son Arthur of Ottawa happened to be home for the weekend.

He was a member of Grace United Church, from boyhood. He was past master of Union Lodge No. 7, A.F. and A.M. since 1918, and was exceptionally active in committee work. He was a charter member of Napanee 151 Order of the Eastern Star, and had been Worthy Patron on at least eight occasions.

Mr. Thompson is survived by his son, Arthur, of Ottawa; his daughters, Mrs. George Irving (June) and Mrs. William Arbourne (Phyllis), both of Oshawa; by 13 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren. He was an only child.

The funeral service was held Saturday, Feb. 19 at 2 p.m. in the chapel of the Wartman Funeral Home.Rev. Guy Case officiated. A Masonic Service was held the previous evening at 8 p.m., and an Eastern Star service at 9 p.m.

Pall-bearers were members of the two lodges with which he had been so long connected: Robert Baldwin, James Clark, Glen Hudson, Fred Keith, Roy Lawrence, and Arnold Rogers.

Interment was in Riverview Cemetery.

All-out Assault Being Made on Mental Retardation

A nation-wide campaign launched today is making an all-out assault on Canada's most crippling affliction — mental retardation.

Mental retardation directly affects more than a half million Canadian families and J. Jacques Pigott of Toronto, Divisional Campaign Chairman for Ontario, described the National Crusade for Canada's Mentally Retarded as 'a comprehensive, co-ordinated network of pilot research and training facilities for the mentally retarded right across the country."

He said the Crusade for the Mentally Retarded was an attempt to make "one giant step forward — to erect the full framework on which diagnostic treatment and training facilities can be built." These facilities are essential in combatting what has been termed Canada's most serious social and health problem

The Crusade will not include any door-to-door solicitation. While there will be a direct approach to business, industry and community leaders, the general public are being asked to make their personal and private contributions. They can do so directly to the "National Crusade for Canada's Mentally Retarded", at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, or through their local office of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children. Either a cash donation or pledge will be accepted.

This national attack on mental retardation seeks support for 13 individual projects being undertaken at centres across Canada. The Crusade goal is $5,000,000. Federal and Provincial grants are expected to provide another $10,000,000. The $15,000,000 total is required to establish, equip, and operate proposed facilities for a five-year period.

Two of the 13 projects will be in Ontario. A model Community Services Project will be established in the Hamilton-Niagara area to demonstrate the advantages of concentrating all known services in one centre. Emphasis here will be comprehensive diagnostic and treatment services for a semi-urban area. At Toronto, an Adult Services Training Centre will provide an advanced program for work and training of mentally retarded. The staff will be specialized in vocational guidance and the Toronto Centre will serve as a nation-wide workshop for both staff training and experimental work training for the retarded.

Sidney Calls Tenders For Truck and Plow

The Sidney Township Council met February 7th and 8th.

Surety bonds were reviewed by council for the year 1966, also insurance policies on township equipment and liabilities.

A resolution was passed petitioning the Department of Highways for statutory grants on roads and bridges for 1965.

Planning matters were discussed with Mr. P. J. Beavis, director of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

The road superintendent was authorized to call tenders for a new truck with snow plow and wing and tenders for various materials to be used in constructing and maintaining township roads.

The County Court of Revision on 1966 assessments for Sidney Township was held at the Orange Hall, Wallbridge, with Mr. Douglas Spencer in the chair. It dealt with a number of appeals submitted by ratepayers of the township.

By-laws were formulated concerning through streets and speed limits in the Middleton Park area of the township.

The next regular meeting of council will be held on March 7th at the Orange Hall, Wallbridge.

Snow White Rally Is Held By Auto Club

Incurring only two points in penalties, the team of Jack McDonald and Gord Smith of Belleville led the field in the Quinte Auto Sport Club Incorporated, Snow White Rally held yesterday afternoon.

McDonald piloted a Corvair to first place. Smith was the navigator.

Second place went to Norm Storms, club president, and Nicholas P. Price in a Volkswagen. They were penalized five points.

A brother team of Bob and Gary McKenzie was penalized nine points while finishing third in a Karman Ghia.

The 80-mile rally was organized by Linda McKenzie, one of the six women in the 50-member club.

Eleven cars covered the course, starting at the Belleville Shopping Plaza and completing the 80 miles at Stirling after passing through Foxboro, Fuller, Crookston and Marmora.

The club's next rally is scheduled for Sunday, March 20, when newcomers to the sport of rallying will get their chance to participate.

No Decision Yet On Bridge Job

TRENTON — T. C. Muir of the contracts engineers' office at Downsview said today no decision had been reached on the awarding of a contract for construction of Trenton's new bridge.

Mr. Muir said that possibly by Wednesday of this week the Highways Department engineers would have arrived at a decision.

Tenders were opened last Wednesday, and the lowest bidder was the John Gaffney Construction Company of Stratford, at an asking price of $1,023, 622. 10.

Labor Council Backs Strike at Peterborough

TRENTON — At a meeting of the Trenton and District Labor Council in Trenton last week, the 15 representatives of local unions voted to support 52 striking members of the Textile Workers' Union of America who have been out on strike from the Peterborough "Tilco" plant since Dec. 12. A letter attesting to the local unions' moral support will be sent to the strike committee as well as a financial donation.

March has been set aside by the Trenton and district council as "Citizenship Month," and the council will sponsor a program to encourage the Ontario government to institute a form of government-run car insurance. The council feels this would result in savings to the motorist and ensure that all Ontario drivers carried adequate insurance as, under the proposed plan, the annual fee would be paid at the time the licence plates were bought.

Trenton Boy Scouts Hold Church Parades

TRENTON — Church parades at a number of Trenton churches marked the start of Boy Scout Week in Trenton on Sunday. The week is held annually to honor the founder of the movement, Lord Baden Powell.

Several Scouting activities have been planned for this week and displays have been arranged in a number of Trenton store windows to remind the public of the special event.

RESPONSE GOOD

TRENTON — Mrs. James MacDonald, chairman of last week's appeal for funds by the Trenton chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation, said today the canvass had gone well, but as many returns have yet to come in, she could not give an approximate total of collections until later in the week.

PC Chief

Viet Cong guerrillas should be invited.

He said that he feels Canada could make such a move because it is an independent country, a close neighbour to the United States and because it is a member of the International Control Commission in Viet Nam.

He asked the delegates for a consensus on Viet Nam, but they did not get around to discussing it.

Mr Diefenbaker also said he expected another federal election before too long, but did not elaborate.

SAYS LIBERALS DIVIDED

He prefaced his brief election comment with the remark it is "not for me to predict the vagaries of the mind" of Prime Minister Pearson. He said there are "vast divisions" in the Liberal party between left and right.

Mr. Diefenbaker told the meeting that the old age pensioners are going to get an increase. He said this can be "safely predicted" because he had asked Mr. Pearson about it in the Commons Friday. Mr. Pearson's answer was "sufficiently evasive" to indicate something is coming up, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said he "looked for changes" in the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

He referred to U.S. economic guidelines to curb foreign investment and said "we are facing ever increasing sovereignty by our neighbor over the Canadian economy."

He delivered a cutting aside about Justice Minister Cardin, whose father once held the same cabinet post. He said there was "nothing more pitiful than a dwarf parading before the footlights in garments inherited from a giant."

Television and radio are getting under the control of a few groups, he said.

"Strangely enough these groups are adherents of the Liberal party."

Intelligencer Trophy Prize For Women's Open Spiel

It was cold outside but inside the Quinte Curling Club there was a warmth of friendship as the bonspiel to determine the winner of The Intelligencer trophy was opened today by Mrs. Mary Livingston, president of the Women's Section of the club. The visiting curlers were also welcomed by Claude D. Tice, City Editor, who wished for them a pleasant time and good curling.

The largest entry in the history of the spiel, 32, forced the committee under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Jessie Baber to hold a three - day spiel instead of two as formerly. There will be sixteen rinks competing today and Tuesday with the two three - game winners and the two two - game winners of each day coming back on Wednesday to compete for the beautiful prizes that are being offered. The winner of the trophy will receive keepers for personal possession.

Interspersed with the curling will be several social affairs with a tea on Wednesday afternoon concluding the program. There will be dinners at the Clubhouse and entertainment at the homes of the host club members. This is one of the better bonspiels in the eastern part of the Province and the public is cordially invited to come up and see the girls at play. There are a number of excellent curlers on hand and the competition will be real tough.

The Colts, Ken Monson, Wilfred Weymark, Reid Giffin with Neville Burroughs as skip are still going strong on the Provincial title trail. On Sunday in Ottawa they defeated a rink from Renfrew and are now winners of District 2 and will play on Sunday next at Ottawa and if successful in winning from the winners of District one will proceed into the Provincial finals. The rink won their first game on the extra end and in the second game had a three-shot cushion coming home on the last end which they protected to win the series in two straight games.

The skip stated today that in the 21 ends played he was never in trouble when he stepped into the 'Hack.' "The boys on the front end played perfectly all day" said the skip.

Dr. Glyn and Doreen Jones of Trenton with Dr. and Mrs. Finley McCorquodale of the Quinte Club journeyed to the Boulevard Club on Friday to compete in a mixed spiel and won the consolation second event against 72 rinks of the Province. The rink enjoyed a pleasant weekend with dinners on Friday and Saturday with a cocktail party thrown in for Saturday afternoon. The hospitality was wonderful and a most delightful time was had by the rink in Toronto.

A rink of Bill Spinelli, Al McCullam, Ron Benn and Mac White as skip won the Corby trophy at the Cobourg bonspiel held over the weekend. The weekend. The trophy has been up for competition for four years and Mr. White has won it three times and was runner-up on the other occasion. The Quinte rink was one down coming home in the last game with Bill Lewis of RCAF Station rink having last rock but White stole two on the end to win the game.

Dr. S. D. Stirk Of Brampton Is Honored

Well known in the Tweed and Roslin districts, Dr. S. D. Stirk of Brampton was made a lifetime honorary member of the Ontario Veterinary Association at a banquet held in Brampton recently.

Dr. and Mrs. Stirk were guests at the banquet.

Offering congratulations on Dr. Stirk's appointment were Dr. K. Wells, Veterinary Director General, Ottawa; Dr. Jones, principal of the Ontario Veterinary College; Dr. Harold Wharton from the Department of Health, Toronto and many others.

Dr. Stirk has practiced in Brampton for about 54 years. During that time, he has been veterinary for some of the finest herds of dairy cows in Canada.

Four years ago, the livestock industry of the district held a dinner for Dr. and Mrs. Stirk. More than 400 were in attendance at the event.

Always a lover of heavy horses, Dr. Stirk has judged these animals at many fairs. His advice has often been sought by owners of horses when illness has laid the animals low.

A son, Dr. Gerald Stirk joined the business in 1943. Harry L. Stirk of Orillia Air Services and S. A. Stirk of Roslin are also sons of Dr. and Mrs. Stirk.

tin said in the interview, is to see whether the commission can help. India and Poland had previously indicated their desire for negotiations and peace and the commission itself remained the only organization with direct contact with both North and South Viet Nam.

Sources here said that if commission members can agree on reconvening the Geneva conference, it would make it more difficult for the Communist side to back away from a meeting. The U.S. already is in favor of one, they said.

MIGHT BRIDGE GAP

The commission might be used to bridge the gap between peace efforts in the UN Security Council and the Geneva conference, Mr. Martin suggested in Washington, but a conference should not be expected soon.

When Mr. Seaborn saw the Hanoi officials last May, they simply repeated their program of four points—including withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam before peace talks could begin.

President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam said in a letter to Prime Minister Pearson last month that the Communist National Liberation Front must be accepted as the sole authority in South Viet Nam.

Viet Nam was not the only subject on Mr. Martin's mind in washington. He and Mr. Rusk also discussed other topics of concern to both nations, ranging from U.S. balance-of-payments investment restrictions and the 12 - mile fishing limit.

Mr. Martin said he reiterated Canadian concern that some Canadian companies, whose stock is not listed on U.S. markets, might face pressure from U.S. regulations on over-the-counter or non-market sale of their securities.

He also said he made progress on talks going on for some time to reconcile Canada's 12-mile fishing limit with adjacent U.S. waters on both coasts.

general conflagration. He said France, of necessity, would be involved because her territory is used for communications facilities, air bases and other military installations.

De Gaulle declared the U.S. has established a protectorate in Europe under cover of NATO.

De Gaulle surprised many correspondents by not taking the United States to task for its policies in Viet Nam during his 71-minute press conference. He opposes the U.S. military position there and only last month his government expressed "regret and disapproval" of resumption of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

There was a recent exchange of letters between de Gaulle and U.S. President Johnson which stirred up interest when there were reports — denied in Washington and Paris — that de Gaulle's response to a Johnson letter had been harsh and severe.

De Gaulle told the press conference today that if Johnson cared to make public his letter then he would be agreeable to publishing his reply.

De Gaulle, however, re-emphasized his conviction that there is no way to peace in Viet Nam other than open discussion with those involved. Those involved, he said, are those who took part in the Geneva conference of 1954 ending the Indochinese war. Among them are China, the Soviet Union and Britain. The U.S. was not a signatory to the accords.

De Gaulle said settlement of the Viet Nam conflict requires the end of all "foreign intervention" and a need for complete neutrality. This has long been his stand, along with the contention that no decisions can be taken in Southeast Asia without taking into consideration the biggest power there—China.

"If there is a peace in Viet Nam it would be to the advantage of the world," he said, "but at the moment it is obvious that one is not taking that road."

De Gaulle said France's economy is more solid than ever. "Today we have ceased to fall back on foreign capital and we have liquidated our debts."

On the European Common Market — recently thrown into difficulties by a French boycott following policy disagreements —de Gaulle virtually invited one of the other five countries to propose a meeting of the heads of governments of the community.

The aim, he said, would be to start talks on a political organization among the six nations — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

If such a proposal were made, France would reply "positively and wholeheartedly," he said.

Fanfani Agrees To Return to Italian Govt.

ROME (AP)—Amintore Fanfani has agreed to return as foreign minister in a new centre-left cabinet. He quit the post in December in the middle of a political controversy over a disavowed Viet Nam peace feeler.

He told Premier-designate Aldo Moro Saturday he would take the foreign ministry again in a cabinet Moro is expected to form in a few days. Moro offered him the job Saturday.

The foreign ministry has been one of the biggest question marks in recent four-party negotiations aimed at ending Italy's 29-day government crisis. The Socialists, second-biggest party in the coalition, had been reported after it if Fanfani did not get it. Fanfani is a member of the leftist faction of the Christian Democrats, largest party in Italy.

Soviet Union Has Slowed Progress Toward Communism

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has slowed progress toward communism.

The five-year economic development plan published Sunday shows this. It reduces 1970 goals set in the Soviet Communist party's 20-year program as road guides toward achieving the millennium of good living by 1980.

Former premier Nikita S. Khrushchev made big promises when the party program was adopted at the last party congress in 1961. His successors have set themselves more realistic goals in the five-year plan that will be adopted by the next party congress, opening March 29.

Nothing was said Sunday about the old goals. Soviet leaders have a way of announcing glorious plans to their people without mentioning the people had earlier been promised even more glorious things.

Nor is anything likely to be said at the coming party congress about the discrepancy between the party program for the 1961-80 period, which will theoretically remain in effect, and the five-year plan for 1966-70.

DON'T MENTION FAILURES

No one is ever so indiscreet here as to mention publicly the failures to fulfil promises.

Instead, the emphasis in the five-year plan that appeared Sunday in Pravda, the party newspaper, is on "a substantial rise in the living standards of the people."

The party lays down policy which the Soviet government follows, so this plan will become the official directive later.

The new five-year plan says 400,000,000 square metres of new housing will be built by 1970. But it omits the party program's claim that the Soviet housing shortage will be solved by then. It seems doubtful it will be.

The program promises a doubling of incomes in this decade. The average worker's monthly income at the end of 1960 was 80.10 rubles ($89) so doubling would mean 160.20 rubles ($178). But the new plan promises only 114 rubles ($126.67) by 1970.

SOME GOALS REDUCED

Many production goals given in the program in 1961 or announced in 1963 as part of the program have been reduced by the new plan.

The drop in agricultural goals was particularly noticeable. The party program said by 1970 "the Soviet Union will outstrip the United States in output of the key agricultural products ahead of population." But agriculture has continually been the weakest point of the Soviet economy.

The plan says a source of farmers' income "should also be private auxiliary farming," meaning the private plots that theoretical communism, as enshrined in the party program, likes to ignore. The meat and milk goals depend heavily upon private livestock.

The long - range program promised that at the end of this decade the working week, now 41 hours in six days for most non-agricultural workers, would be 35 or 36 hours in five or six days. The subject was ignored in the new five-year plan.

Capital Punishment

The coming vote in parliament on whether to retain the death penalty in Canada is a matter of private conscience and solitary belief. Thus it will be a free vote, a matter for individual members without reference to party considerations.

For our part, we see no good reason for abolishing the death penalty for capital offenders. The public is entitled to protection from the menace of the hardened criminal who kills without compunction and without mercy.

If, as some people argue, hanging is no deterrent, how much less of a deterrent is abolition? Wilful, premeditated murder, or the killing of civilians and police officers in the course of say, a bank robbery, is a matter of the utmost seriousness.

The penalty of capital punishment is the only one that matches the seriousness of such offences. And that is why we believe it should be retained. It should be retained, even allowing for the fact that most death sentences in recent years have been commuted to life imprisonment.

As to the method, hanging, that is another matter, and one which in all conscience does not commend itself to civilized society. Nor for that matter does the electric chair, as used in the United States. Yet, if anything, the latter is the more humane of the two.

In this issue, the public interest is paramount. The criminal mind is one that has no consideration for the right of individuals to live their lives without fear of attack. And yet, unless insanity is proved, the criminal knows right from wrong as clearly as any law-abiding citizen does.

To remove the death penalty from the statute book would serve only to encourage the criminal element in our society, while at the same time increasing the public's sense of insecurity.

The only effective alternative, in our view, is imprisonment for life, without parole. In other words, life imprisonment should mean life imprisonment. However, in the absence of any such assurance under our penal system, the death penalty should remain.

The Mentally Retarded

Mental retardation is a serious disability which affects directly or indirectly more than 2,000,000 Canadians. Indeed, it has been described by medical authorities as the nation's severest crippler.

The affliction cripples ten times as many as diabetes, 20 times as many as tuberculosis, and ten times as many as polio. It has more than twice the combined incidence of blindness, cerebral palsy, polio and rheumatic heart disease.

Here is an interesting comparison of the statistics involved. Two per thousand in Canada are totally blind, three per thousand are crippled by polio; 3.5 per thousand have cerebral palsy and seven per thousand have rheumatic heart disease. Added together these diseases affect 15.5 per thousand, or about half the number affected by mental retardation — 30 per thousand.

The two million Canadians mentioned above are the family members of the country's half million retardates. Special care for this group by institutions, agencies and families costs nearly $100 million annually.

To combat this problem, medical research, aided by civilian agencies, is engaged in a constant fight to alleviate the problem. Much has been done already and can be done to enable retardates make their way in the world.

This week, and continuing through March 31, further attention will be paid to the problem by means of the National Crusade for the Mentally Retarded. Funds are needed to assist the work of the crusade, which involves a co-ordinated program to further research and treatment on a national basis.

Target of the crusade is just over $5,000, a very small sum indeed when compared with the amount of money being spent in many other spheres of vital medical research. The overall amount required is nearly $15,000, but government and other grants total some nearly $10,000.

Practical Discipline

Disciplinary action of a practical nature is the kind that commends itself to court magistrates these days.

Like Simcoe Magistrate W. E. Ross' manner of dealing with a Norfolk County youth who killed a 10-year-old girl's pet dog. He ordered James Ivey, 20, of Port Dover, to buy another dog, take it personally to the owner and apologize.

Ivey, who was also given a one-year suspended sentence, pleaded guilty to shooting the dog from a moving car while the girl was taking it for a walk on a township road.

Dogs do not have much of a life sometimes. Often they are neglected. And the irony of it is that many which are well looked after and properly exercised suffer some fate like the one up in Norfolk County.

Lack of exercise for a dog is one form of neglect which may be laid at the door of some owners. In our travels about town recently we have noticed a German Shepherd which is habitually left cooped up in a wired-off area at the rear of a house. The animal has a forlorn look, which is not surprising.

And incidentally, dog licence renewal time has come 'round again.

Canada's Northern 'Colonies'

Toronto Star

Queer as it may seem to Canadian democrats, this country has two colonies: the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. Both are essentially run by and from Ottawa and the appointed commissioners of the two territories are, in position and authority, like Britain's colonial governors of the 19th century. The two territorial councils sit under them and the commissioners are responsible to Ottawa and the minister of northern affairs, not to people of the territories.

Is it time to give self-government to the Yukon and the Northwest Territories, which form more than 40 percent of Canada's land area?

Most residents and members of the two councils think so. At its meeting in Ottawa last week the NWT council voted to increase its size, so as to have seven locally elected members who would be a majority over the five appointed members. The council sees this as a step toward making the Northwest Territories a province by 1978.

The Ottawa government, itself, seems embarrassed by the absence of responsible government in the territories. It has had an advisory commission sitting since last September to consider the most appropriate form of government for the Northwest Territories. A bill is scheduled to come before the present session of Parliament which will at least give the council more authority over local matters and provide for an elected majority of members. Another reform that should be made is to transfer the government of the NWT out of remote Ottawa to the territory itself.

It is probably inadvisable to move quickly toward provincial status for the NWT. Their 3,500,000 square miles have a population of only 26,000 and only the Mackenzie district in the western section has any sort of community cohesion. The districts of Franklin and Keewatin, sprawling across the Arctic wastes, are very sparsely inhabited by Eskimos, Indians, private entrepreneurs and government agents. Maybe only Mackenzie should eventually become a province, the other two districts remaining, in perpetuity, a national preserve.

But the Yukon is different. It may be possible, and desirable, to give it provincial status for tne 1967 Centennial.

The Yukon is one-seventh the size of the N.W.T. Although its population is small, (less than 20,000), it has an active town (Whitehorse) which is the seat of local government. The people are fairly well concentrated along the Alaska Highway and few are drifters of the gold rush type. Although the Yukon's economy continues to need heavy Ottwa subsidization, so has that of Prince Edward Island.

When Alaska became a full U.S. state, seven years ago it bounded ahead; it even has a university. Self-government for the Yukon might prove to be as beneficial, and encourage increased settlement in this sometimes astonishingly beautiful region.

Just Like Real Folks!

Hamilton Spectator

Honestly, National Revenue is the nicest department of government Ottawa has. It's so downright friendly. Just like real folks.

That advertisement it had in the papers the other day really hit home. "My name is Murphy," it said. "Friends call me Murph."

Gee, Murph. And we haven't even been introduced.

Anyway, Murph went on to tell us that he and the other fellows down at National Revenue are — aw shucks, let Murph tell it in his own way:

"It's not that we're trying to be familiar says Murphy. "We're trying to be efficient.

"You'll remember last year's income tax form. That's the one we personalized. For computer purposes, we shortened everyone's name in the account number to the first five letters. We're doing it again this year.

So if your name's Murphy, it comes out Murph. If it's Zellinitsky, you'll get it as Zelli. If it's five letters or less, it stays that way . . ."

That's not all Murph told us in the advertisement, but it was enough to get his message across in real heart-warming fashion. So from now on we're Spect and he's Murph.

And, as the ad also says, The Hon. E. J. Benson, the nice man who is in charge of Murph and the other fellows down at National Revenue, is Benso — hi Benso.

It follows, of course, that when we're in Ottawa, we call Mr. Pearson, Pears, and Mr. Diefenbaker, Diefe. And of course, Mr. Pickersgill's Picke (not about TV channels he isn't), and Miss LaMarsh is LaMar.

Detectives like Holme and Watso would find, as we did, however, that there's something a bit fishy about the whole thing. Just whose idea was it, anyway?

Who would benefit most from such a system if computers all over the country began demanding the same treatment? Why, Mitchell Sharp, that's who. He's the only candidate for Pears's-mantle who benefits from the idea.

Marti, who's he? And Bob Winte — really. But Sharp, now there's a nice fellow, we've heard his name before. He gets our vote.

Automation and Employment

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The important revolutions are not always the ones that make the most noise, nor are they usually political in nature. For political revolutions occur only after social and economic conditions have packed the powder and lit the fuse.

We are facing the third revolution in America in the 20th century. The first two were hardly noticed, except by specialists; but the third one, coming up, will most likely blow the lid right off the pot.

The first revolution was the move from the farm to the factory, beginning around 1900. Agricultural productivity began to become so efficient that fewer farmers could produce more, and rural workers migrated by the tens of thousands into the factories.

The second revolution was the move from the factories to the offices and service trades. Here, likewise, industrial productivity became so efficient that fewer workers could produce more. In the 1950s, for the first time in our history, the number of white collar employes passed the number of blue-collar workers.

When farming declined as a source of employment, industry took up the slack; when industry declined as a source of employment, offices and service businesses took up the slack.

Now the third revolution is nearly upon us — for the new technology of automation and cybernetics is threatening the most recent group of employment skills, not only for clerical people but for middle management men as well.

What Robert Heilbroner, the economist, calls "the sorting, filing, checking, calculating, remembering, comparing, okaying skills" are going to be in short demand when automation takes over, as it is already doing in many banks, insurance companies and engineering firms.

Moreover, the routine jobs now being done by middle management — decisions about balancing inventories against sales, scheduling production, and working out transportation mixes for delivery products—all these will be done better, faster and cheaper by machines.

What then will take up the slack? Where will we find a new expansive group of employments that will provide the same absorptive cushion that the factories gave to dwindling farm jobs, and the offices gave to dwindling factory jobs?

As Heilbroner suggests, if we can't find these new groups of employment in the private sector, then the government will surely take up the slack, in jobs for urban renewal, social welfare, beautification, and so on. This third revolution will be the one that sets the fuse off.

The world's bloodiest battle began 50 years ago today—in 1916—as concealed German guns opened fire on 25 miles of French lines around Verdun. The German high command knew the ring of fortresses was crucial to French morale and hoped to bleed the French army white by drawing more and more troops into the conflict. However almost as many German troops were drawn in as the battle dragged on for months. Post-war estimates found 420,000 men had been killed at Verdun and 800,000 wounded in 1916 and 1917. After the war, 150,000 unidentifiable bodies were found on the battlefield.

To Your Good Health

Measles Cripples As Many as Polio Did

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your article on measles helped our Parent-Teacher Association establish a program for vaccine for our children.

I believe measles can be wiped out in a matter of five years if the public will get aroused as it did about polio.

Our county health officer said his organization couldn't sponsor the vaccinations, but gave the P.T.A. permission to go ahead if we could get funds to finance them.

We lined up doctors to give the shots and a pharmaceutical labratory helped us get the vaccine.

We are a little school in a very poor area, but if other communities knew what we are doing, maybe they would establish a program to save children from death, blindness, deafness or other troubles from this so-called "harmless" disease. If you have more information concerning measles, I would appreciate hearing about it. — Mrs. F. G.

I feel reasonably hopeful that the time will come when all children will have measles vaccination as babies and won't have to wait for P.T.A. or other groups to organize a program like this. However, measles vaccine hadn't been developed when most of today's school children were babies.

The ideal way for vaccine to be given is by the pediatrician or the family doctor, as part of the process of bringing up a healthy child. But measles vaccine is still quite new, and more power to P.T.A. groups that catch up with the situation. The important thing is that children get the advantages of what modern science has created — in this instance protection against measles.

For measles, a very commn disease in childhood, may not do much harm most of the time but some of the time it kills children, and more often than that it damages eyes, heart or other organs. It kils or cripples as many children, and probably more, as polio ever did.

If P.T.A. groups can increase measles protection with the help of co-operative doctors and pharmaceutical firms, more power to all of them. A few years from now, measles protection will be as routine for babies as smallpox whooping cough and diptheria inoculations. Right now there's some catching-up to do.

Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to get rid of some weight on my hips and stomach and wonder if I can use the electric sander we have that is a vibrating type. I put a soft cloth around it and it really massages and makes the skin red. Do you think such massage could injure me in any way? — Mrs. C. K.

I doubt if it will hurt you, unless the cloth slips and you scratch yourself. But neither do I think that you can pat off or rub off weight, whether with your ingenious sander or any other sort of massage, with or without mechanical devices, salons or anything else.

If massage could do it, movie stars wouldn't go on diets, or struggle through exercises. Massage won't do it for them and it won't for you. Better do it the hard way: get rid of some pounds by dieting, and firm up the muscles with exercise.

Note to Mrs. E. J.: Nobody "outgrows" diabetes. When a child develops it, the important thing is to control the condition. Such a child may live as long as anyone else if the disease is controlled.

Welsh Corn Makes Good

BBC London Letter

LONDON — A Welsh farmer, Mr. Glyn Jones, has special reason to remember a walk he took in the Conway Valley in North Wales way back in 1950. Broadcasting recently in the BBC World Service 'Welsh Magazine' program, he explained that it was on this chance walk that he noticed an unusual variety of corn growing among a field of wheat. It was in fact a special sort of barley, and from the few plants he found he has developed a stock which is now undergoing scientific field trials and has been registered as 'Conway Unique'.

Normal barley carried about thirty seeds a head, Mr. Glyn Jones said, but 'Conway Unique' carried up to about eighty-four seeds per head. The authorities had admitted that it had a higher oil content, and it had now been taken in hand by a planting breeding firm who hoped to commercialize it all over the world. It would stand up to the weather better than normal barley, the straw was stiffer, and it was early ripening.

Town Pulled Up Its Socks

The Laurel (Miss.) Leader-Call

Fort Smith, Ark., is another one of those towns that should be sent a dozen red roses and given some sort of an award for having enough backbone to get up off its haunches and say 'no thank you, we don't want to be called a depressed area'.

When Fort Chaffee was closed, some 2,000 soldiers and civilians were cut off from the economy of the town, taking along a monthly pay roll of about 3 million dollars. Stores closed overnight, real estate values dropped and free-spending GI's were sorely missed. Unemployment skyrocketed. This was in 1959.

Then came news, originating from some mysterious place, that Fort Smith had asked aid under the depressed-areas law. The Chamber of Commerce said it hadn't asked for the aid. City officials denied they had.

The city politely said it did not need aid. Instead city leaders went to work. One morning businessmen and women gathered up brooms and started sweeping down streets as the kick-off of a campaign of helping the city itself. The Chamebr of Commerce, city officials and city leaders, set off an earnest campaign to bring in new industry. Within one year after the army camp was closed the city had recouped its losses. It was done by the aggressivness of a city so proud that it didn't want to [illegible] called poor.

At least five manufacturing concerns, impressed by the determination of city leaders, came to town. Today Fort Smith is prosperous.

Says Toronto Neglects Northland

North Bay Nugget

It's been quite some time since the old cry of secession went up in Northern Ontario. Once, it was heard fairly frequently, but in most cases it came from the Lakehead region, which from time to time protested alleged neglect by remote Queen's Park in Toronto.

There was once a fairly strong effort to have a new province created, the borderline of which would have lopped off a large chunk of Northwestern Ontario.

But the latest suggestion came from much closer to Queen's Park. It came from Mayor Leo Foucault of Espanola, who claims Queen's Park is still not doing for the North all that it should be doing.

This is an old complaint. It was raised during the Conservative days of Premier Ferguson and Premier Henry. It was raised during the Liberal regime of Premier Hepburn. It was raised during the Conservative days of Premiers Drew and Frost and now it is being raised against Premier Robarts.

Many wonder why provincial governments do not form a new department, known as the department of northern development.

Administering a huge territory such as that of Northern Ontario — which extends all the way from the Manitoba border to James Bay — is not an easy task, and let's face it, Queen's Park is a long distance away, even in these days of air travel.

But if we think we have a large province, and one which is somewhat unwieldy to administer think of the council of the Northwest Territories, which is proposing to become the 11th province. Its councin doesn't want the Northwest Territories divided — rather it wants them to become one vast province.

This might work, for the simple reason that there is not the population difference over this vast areas that there is betw[illegible] Northern and Southern Onta[illegible]

In Ontario, the wealthy south is resented in many municipalities in the North.

Perhaps there has been too much "lip service" paid to the North and not enough practical application of programs for its benefit.

Outcries like that of Mayor Foucault cannot be regarded lightly. Sometimes they are the only method of stirring governments into positive action.

Timber Operators Guilty Of Flagrant Abuses Claim

KITCHENER (CP) — Exploitation of natural resources in Ontario's provincial parks was criticized Saturday during the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Jack O'Dette of Kingston, federation president, said during a panel discussion there should be stricter regulations on the use of natural resources in Algonquin Park

He said some timber operators were guilty of flagrant abuses and had built roads without permission.

Dr. D. H. Pimlott, an associate professor in the zoology department at the University of Toronto, said:

"Go to Algonquin Park and you will find that the No. 1 priority is not the use of it by the people, but the use of it by the forest industries.

"You will have great deal of trouble finding a single logging road that has been specially located so it will not interfere with canoe routes."

FACILITIES NEEDED

Delegates also were told there is a severe shortage of outdoor recreational facilities in parts of the province and that there is need for at least one major national park in Ontario.

Gavin Henderson of Toronto, executive director of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada, told the convention:

"If Ontario does not take the initiative to make sure of getting a superlative national park, its own park system will be wanting.

"I would say, too, that to resist the overtures of the federal government to establish such a park is to invite the accusation that this province is not really interested in Canada as a nation."

James Woodford of Toronto, representing the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, said southern Ontario has less parks and outdoor recreational facilities than any other major area of equal size in North America.

Chief among resolutions passed was one calling for more conservation officers in the province

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

The federation's officers, all re-elected, include:

Mr. O'Dette, president; Dr. R. D. Longmore, Sudbury, and Harold J. Whan, Kingston, vice-presidents.

A. Kelso Roberts, Ontario's minister of lands and forests, presented the Junior Conservation Trophy to the Newcastle Sportsmen's Club and the Mary Pickford Trophy for senior club conservation work to the same club.

The Carling Conservation Trophy went to Lee Saunders of Brockville, a past president of the federation.

John Groff, 16, of Welland, received two plaques, one from Mr. Roberts and one from Canadian Industries Ltd., as the 100,000th graduate of a hunter training safety course sponsored by the provincial government and CIL.

Admiral Nimitz Dies of Stroke On West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, who commanded the most powerful fleet the world has ever known in driving the Japanese navy from the Pacific Ocean in the Second World War, died Sunday at his home on Yerba Buena Island here.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said Nimitz, 80, died "of complications following a stroke."

Nimitz suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Jan. 3 and had been in hospital for about two weeks.

He was jumped over 24 senior admirals to become commander-in-chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Eight Quebec deaths were all on the roads.

Ontario had nine fatalities, including a drowning, two asphyxiations, the decapitation and three killed in traffic. The bodies of two other men were found in the wreckage of their car Sunday. An autopsy was to be performed today to learn whether they were killed in the crash or died of exposure afterwards in below-zero weather.

Three persons were killed on British Columbia highways and two were asphyxiated.

Alberta registered one drowning and the hunting death.

There was one highway death in Nova Scotia.

Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan were fatality-free.

PROCLAMATION

"KINSMEN WEEK"

FEBRUARY 20 - 26, 1966

Kin was started in Hamilton in February of 1920. The Association has now 340 Clubs with a total membership of approximately 13,000. Kinsmen Clubs are to be found in every Province from coast to coast.

The Organization was started to promote and direct fellowship among young business and professional men between the ages of 21 and 40, and also to serve the community in which each club existed. The record of Kinsmen Clubs in community service is well known throughout the country, and in many instances, the benefits of Kinsmen efforts have been felt far beyond the boundaries of Canada. During and after World War II, the Kinsmen "Milk for Britain" drive sent over 50,000,000 quarts of much needed milk to British youngsters.

Among their many projects, the Belleville Kinsmen are particularly proud of the Memorial Swimming Pool, the Eye Clinic (which ensures that no needy Belleville child is without proper eye care), and the aid given to the Hastings Tuberculosis Association during their annual Christmas Seal campaign.

By virtue of the authority vested in me, I call upon all the citizens of Belleville to help the Kinsmen Club in this community celebrate National Kinsmen Week.

J. R. Ellis,
MAYOR.

Fellowship of Scout Movement Enjoyed By Third of a Million Canadian Boys

This is Boy Scout Week. It marks the 58th anniversary of Scouting and the 50th anniversary of Cubbing in Canada and ushers in a new era.

In every province of Canada, and almost every community, including Belleville, boys are enjoying the fellowship and adventure of Scouting. Over 320,000 Canadian boys are involved in the Boy Scout movement.

There are four sections of the Boy Scout movement — Wolf Cub Packs for boys aged seven to 11; Boy Scout Troops for boys aged 12 to 14; the Venturers, a new program developed for boys 14 to 17; and the Rover Crew, for young men 17 to 25.

Forty-five percent of Belleville boys between the age of seven and 11 are engaged in the cub program and 27 percent in the 12-14 group are in the Boy Scouts.

The total Scout population in Belleville is approximately 1300, and beyond. In their places will boys and leaders in uniform in the city, plus 19 Ladies' Auxiliaries.

BUSY PROGRAM

During the week, there will be church parades, special hikes, a father and son banquet, a scouting get together and the starting of a St. John Ambulance first aid course.

This is a week when great attention is focused on this organization that does so much to make boys into responsible citizens.

But the Boy Scout Movement goes on every week of the year, not just one week.

Leaders and assistants are in constant demand, and the rewards for some effort on your part would be worth your while.

Scouting had its origin in the desire of a famous British General to provide adventurous recreation for boys — the end result of which would be the building of better citizens.

The Founder, Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell, had a happy and adventurous youth. Many of his own boyhood activities formed the basis of a scheme which eventually he put into book form under the title "Aids to Scouting."

In 1907, after talks with Sir William Smith, founder of the Boys' Brigade, Baden - Powell put his theories to the test at a camp held at Brownsea Island off the south coast of England. His methods, and his book, were so well received that the boys formed themselves into Boy Scout Troops — and the movement was born.

King Edward VII, witnessing the rapid growth of the movement, took a personal interest in its progress. At his suggestion, Baden-Powell resigned his high post as Inspector-General of Cavalry to supervise the expansion of the movement — and thus it spread all over the world.

Younger boys, anxious to get in the movement, brought about the organization of the Wolf Cub section in 1916, and in 1917, the Rover Scout scheme for older boys was initiated.

The Movement has grown — how it has grown!! — and there will be many more changes during the next few years. Scouting in Canada is moving towards a new look, combining tradition with the fresh plans of the future.

CHANGING IMAGE

The Scout's image is headed for a switch. Small boys in short pants selling apples and helping little old ladies across the street be boys "Fit for Service" in a will be a faded memory in 1966 and byond. In their places will space-age society — boys more keenly aware of the problems facing the communities in which they live.

This will come about through new programs being studied by the Boy Scouts and involving nearly every phase of Scouting from national management methods to patrol procedures.

The Wolf Cubs have already revised two vital areas of their activities, including the introduction of a new proficiency badge scheme in 1965 and a five-star scheme last month.

The five-star scheme, replacing the old two-star system, is designed to provide more interest for the older Cub, yet attract new recruits at all levels by introducing more challenge.

By assigning each star an equal rank, it also eliminates the need for a boy to progress, step by step, through the Cub program and should therefore attract more recruits at all ages.

Each star has a special purpose: the black, to assist Cubs to explore the natural world; blue, to assist Cubs to explore and participate more fully in the organized world; green to assist Cubs to develop self reliance through a knowledge of Scouting and Scoutcraft; red, to assist Cubs in the care and development of themselves; and tawny, to assist Cubs to develop creative skills, manual dexterity and use of imagination.

MANY GROUPS HERE

In Belleville, there are 27 Cub Packs, plus 21 Scout Troops, three Rover Crews and one Venturer group The Venturer group, though not officially recognized as such, has already been established and is proving popular Already it boasts a membership of over 5,000 boys across the country.

In the two years since the Venturer idea was put forward Venturer groups have been formed to encompass such modern activities as go-carting, scuba and skin diving, ham radia op- gliding and outdoor sports. erating criminology aircraft

The aim of the Boy Scouts movement is "to develop good citizenship among boys by forming their character; training them in the habits of observation, obedience and self-reliance; including loyalty and thoughtfulness for others; teaching them services useful to the public and handicrafts useful to themselves; and promoting their physical, mental and spiritual development."

The Boy Scouts of Canada does not operate packs, troops, venturers and crews. Rather, it supplies a well rounded program suitable for the boys of today, while actual sponsorship is provided by churches, service clubs and civic sponsors, Canadian armed forces and school and institutional authorities.

The Boy Scout Movement produces better citizens. It deserves support.

OUTDATED, BUT USEFUL

Dear Susanna: Don't throw away those obsolete geography, history and social studies text books that were used by your eldest child. These outdated volumes can give invaluable assistance to younger children in their project work, because of the pictures.

The students can gain many extra marks if their note books are well illustrated. Although I always get a shivery feeling at the thought of desecrating a text book, if the school has declared them outdated, they are really not much good for anything else.

Sometimes at rummage sales, one can pick up a supply of old copies of the National Geographic Magazine for a few cents, and these, of course, are also a tremendous help in this respect. — Mrs. N. Brown

No Place For Men in Model Agency

EDMONTON (CP) — Men have no place in the administration of a women's model agency because they are trouble-makers, says Eleanor Fulcher of Toronto.

Miss Fulcher, who owns a model agency, says her industry is successful because "there are no men in it."

"Few men know how to dress themselves and they certainly have some odd ideas about women's fashions."

She says men become prejudiced about individual models and show favoritism.

Miss Fulcher, here to conduct a modelling course, says: "Ten years ago the modelling industry in Toronto had but a toehold. Today it is a multi-million-dollar business.

"Agencies were practically unheard of. Today the field is highly competitive with agencies sometimes handling business on a percentage basis.

"Television has been most responsible for the impact. Modelling for catalogues and an increased demand for fashion shows and commercials also have helped to make Toronto and Montreal Canada's leading model centres."

Models are well paid, she says. In Toronto they receive between $15 and $20 an hour for photographs and about $20 an hour for showroom commitments. Fashion and runway models receive an average of $25 an hour with extra pay for time spent fitting clothes.

Television pays up to $100 an hour, up to $4,000 for commercials and triple that for talking commercials.

The would-be model must be ambitious, determined, thin but not skinny, photogenic and five feet seven to eight inches tall, says Miss Fulcher, who was a stenographer before becoming a model and later setting up her own agency.

WEDDING

HERD — WILLIAMS

FRANKFORD — A recent wedding ceremony was solemnized, in Frankford United Church at 12 o'clock noon when Lois Ann, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams of Frankford, became the bride of Mr. William Douglas Herd, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Herd of Campbelford.

Rev. C. Dugan performed the double - ring ceremony, followed by communion service.

Soloist was Mrs. Glen Elmy of Belleville and Mrs. E. Sykes was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a white floor length bridal gown of pure silk organza over taffeta with sabrina neckline, fitted imported Chantilly lace bodice, long lily - point sleeves, Empire waistline and flat front skirt with unique Chantilly lace bow and back treatment swept in gentle folds into a chapel train. She wore a matching headpiece of double silk illusion butterfly veil and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. R. Mulvihill sister of the bride and three bridesmaids, the Misses Beverly Crowe, Maxine Crowe and Linda Dickens, of Frankford district and Belleville, respectively, all wore peacock blue floor length velvet brocade gowns with matching velvet headpieces and white accessories and carried colorful nosegays. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Heather Randall of Toronto, wore a floor length peau de soie gown with peacock blue velvet and white accessories and carried a nosegay of mixed flowers.

The ring bearer was Master Brian Herd of Weston, nephew of the bridegroom who was attended by Mr. John Johnston of the bridegroom. Mr. John Johnston of Toronto attended the bridegroom. The ushers were bellford, John Herd of Weston and Robert Mulvihill of Frankford.

The reception was held in Rose Lowery Hall. The bride's mother received wearing a turquoise jersey brocade suit, with matching hat and a corsage of pink roses The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a cranberry red wool suit with gold accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west, the bride wore a red plaid wool suit, trimmed with black, a matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Upon their return, the couple will take up residence at 50 Claremore Ave. Scarborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mang Der pose following their recent marriage in Hong Kong. Traditional red ribbon rosettes with streamers were worn by both bride and bridegroom.

Local Restaurateur Wed in Hong Kong

A Belleville man who travelled 7,200 miles to find a bride, has reported the successful result of his search to friends here.

Jack Mang Der, a partner in the Paragon Cafe on Front Street, and Mee Shang Yee of Hong Kong were married in Hong Kong early in January, at a Chinese wedding followed by a giant reception.

"A wedding is the most important day in a Chinese person's life," Michael Tom, proprietor of the Paragon and business associate of the bridegroom, explained. "Usually 2,000 or more are invited to the reception and over there the bridegroom's family pays all expenses."

So that the two principals can be easily identified amid the horde of wedding guests, each wears a red ribbon rosette with ribbon streamers. The bride's is pinned to the bodice of her gown and is imprinted with her name. The bridegroom wears his on his lapel and it too bears his name. At the Der — Yee wedding these rosettes were the only traditional Chinese touch on the western style clothes worn by the couple.

Because of the long British influence in Hong Kong, Mr. Tom said, bridal couples often choose western wedding garb instead of Chinese dress. Most children in the Crown Colony are educated at combined Chinese and English schools, as was the former Miss Yee.

Mr. Der came to Belleville from Hong Kong in 1952, and has worked here ever since except for a period of eight months spent in Trinidad. In 1964 he became a partner with Mr. Tom in the operation of the Paragon. When he left last August for a visit to his native city, he told Mr. Tom he might marry there, if he could find the right girl.

"He seemed a little uncertain about marriage before he left," Mr. Tom said, "but I guess he got over that when he reached Hong Kong."

The bridegroom will return to Belleville next month, but Mr. Tom doesn't expect his partner's bride to arrive for three to six months after that. Although Mr. Der is a Canadian citizen, it will probably take three months to clear his wife's application for admission to Canada through the immigration department. Mr. Der hopes to bring his widowed mother to this county together with his bride.

ALL TIME FAVORITE PANCAKES

Two happy things about February are that it is short and sunny. Hope springs eternal for March next and brings the promise of Spring.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Hot Consomme; Chicken Noodle Casserole (from freezer — see Sat. Feb. 19); Generous Tossed Green Salad with Tomato French Dressing; Peach Shortcake; Tea.

The Lenten season spans springtime and begins with Shrove Tuesday tomorrow. I racked my mind for a springtime idea for Shrove Tuesday and have heeded an idea that my son Pete passed on to me. His family had visited Barb and Dan Brunt for the weekend. On Saturday morning Barb and Marg had driven to the Farmers' Market and took home, among other purchases, some apple butter and fresh sour cream. Barb served these on pancakes on Sunday morning.

But how many of us can find apple butter? So that I could taste-test pancakes with apple butter and sour cream too, I made Quick Apple Butter yesterday and had pancakes with it for breakfast this morning. It was a treat. For a special Sundy Brunch with bacon or ham or sausages it would be a gourmet meal. Obviously it would be a good change from jam on breakfast toast or with muffins or tea biscuits.

QUICK APPLE BUTTER

Two cans applesauce (20-oz. size), 15% sugar content, ¼ cup spirit vinegar, ½ cup sugar, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. cloves, ¼ tsp. allspice.

Turn applesauce into large heavy pot. Rinse out cans with vinegar and add vinegar and all remaining ingredients. Cook gently in open pot for three hours, stirring frequently until reduced by one-half. Turn into two hot 12-oz. jars, cover, cool and store in refrigerator. Serve on Shrove Tuesday with pancakes topped with a dollop of fresh dairy sour cream instead of maple syrup and butter.

ALL TIME FAVORITE PANCAKES (repeated from Mar. 1, 1965.

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3½ tsps. baking powder, ¾ tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. sugar, 1 egg, beaten, 1¾ cups milk, 3 tbsps. melted butter or shortening.

Sift flour once, measure, then sift again with baking powder, salt and sugar. Combine egg, milk, shortening and add to dry ingredients. Stir until smooth. Drop by tablespoonfuls (or ¼-cup measure) onto hot griddle. Cook on one side until puffed and full of bubbles. Turn and cook on other side.

Ann Landers

Ann's Daughter Disagrees With Mother

DEAR MOTHER: I have never written you a letter before because in the years when I've wanted advice you were in the next room. I am not writing for advice today, however. I am writing to tell you that you goofed. And in an area I know something about. Sitters.

ANN LANDERS

You told a young mother, whose good friend helped her out of a tough spot by generously offering the name of her prize sitter, that it was O.K. to call that sitter for future sitting dates. You said it wasn't necessary to check first with her benefactor to learn if she needed the sitter herself on that particular night.

Sorry, Mother, but it's the unwritten law of the jungle that a sitter provided by a friend in an emergency is not fair game. The woman who booked the emergency sitter for three straight Saturdays dealt her benefactor a low blow. I'm shocked that you condone such tactics.

It's a good thing you no longer need sitters, Mother, because if this is your idea of justice I would not pass on to you the names of my sitters. — YOUR DAUGHTER MARGO.

DEAR MARGO: It's bad enough when strangers clobber me, but to be hauled up short by my own daughter! Ah, sharper than a serpent's tooth . . .

Your talk about the jungle makes me shudder. I thought I brought you up in a home. But then maybe the world has changed since I was a young mother and needed sitters.

Perhaps I should have added this thought: If the benefactor makes it plain that the sitter is "just for this once" the befriended mother should, of course, not try to engage her for future dates. If no such stipulation is made, I say a sitter should not be considered private property. Maybe I should encourage you to glom onto sitters in any way you can, because if you ever get stuck, kiddo, I know who's going to be drafted. Your father!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a man 49 years of age. I work in a machine shop with 12 other employees, ranging in age up to 71.

During lunch hour today we got into a discussion on man's sex life. Some of the men who are past 60 admitted that their sexual deisres have slowed down in the past 10 or 15 years.

The clean-up man is 71. He insists that a man's sex urges do not slow down regardless of age. He offers as proof the surprising information that he is just as active today as he was when he was 27.

We'd like a statement from you on this. Could the old buzzard be telling the truth? — PORTLAND INQUIRERS.

DEAR PORT: The old buzzard may well be telling the truth. Who knows how active he was at 27?

My medical consultants agree that sexual appetites do decrease in both males and females as time marches on. There is wide variation, however, according to the individual. Some buzzards (and buzzardettes) in their 70's are more active sexually than some 20-year-olds. And believe it or not, the psysicological factor is more of a determinant than the physical.

Women's Federation Wants Clinics for Sex Deviates

OTTAWA (CP)—A delegation from the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs asked Prime Minister Pearson Monday to set up clinics for persons convicted of criminal offences who appear to be mentally disturbed.

Such persons are "a continuing menace to the public" when released "with no improvement in their condition." Clinical appraisal would aid in sentencing, treatment, and consideration of parole, the delegation said in its 12-resolution brief.

The group, which speaks for 7,000 member women across Canada, wants special clinics established for the treatment of known sex deviates. Present treatment of sex criminals is "hopelessly inadequate" said the brief, adding that many are released while still "a danger to society and female children in particular."

National President Nazla Dane of Toronto led the delegation which also requested more women be appointed to senior positions in the public service The brief says that in 1960, 3,041 males and only 32 females were receiving $10,000 or more annually in the public service.

BECOMES SHARPER

The distinction becomes sharper at the $14,000 level, reached or surpassed by 576 males and three females. The delegation urged that women be appointed as deputy department heads "when future appointments are to be made."

The women also expressed concern at the "hardship at a time of great stress" caused by estate taxes on pensions. They asked that death duties on pensions be calculated at the same time as on other assets, but paid by deductions at the source of the pension while it continued.

Other resolutions dealt with divorce and abortion laws, income tax, and employment practices which discriminate against women.

The February meeting of Wallbridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. John Loshaw, with president, Mrs. D. Shorey in the chair.

The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. B. Hinchliffe, read a letter from the Blind Advisory Board expressing thanks for a generous donation. The convener of health and home economics, Mrs. S. M. Nicolson, was appointed to attend a conference in Guelph in May. Miss Judy Loshaw played two piano selections.

Mrs. Leslie Finkle, district president of Hastings West, making her official visit to the branch, was introduced and welcomed by the president. She took as her topic, "How do you rate as an institute member?" She was thanked by Mrs. Hinchliffe and presented with a gift.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Sine, Moira Street, Belleville.

Leaves Job To Become A Dancer

TORONTO (CP) — Audrey VanSickle, who announced her resignation as executive secretary of the Canadian Home and School Parent-Teacher Federation at an executive meeting several weeks ago, is moving to California to become a ballroom dancer.

The 102-pound Hamilton-born grandmother of two said in an interview she will begin her second career on March 17 at Tample, Calif., as dance teacher and partner to Eddie Palmquist.

"He's an extremely fine dancer," she said, "and we dance together as a team."

"It's been the most curious reaction," she said of the impact her announcement has had on the educationists with whom she has worked for the past 11 years. "People hear you're leaving and expect that you're going to do the same thing elsewhere. They can't believe you're trying something different."

Mrs. VanSickle has been leading a double life ever since her appointment by the National Home and School Conference in Fredericton in 1959. She has been dancing professionally for 25 years.

Mrs. VanSickle got the home and school job after working days as secretary for the director of placements at Hamilton's McMaster University. Since then, she has continued to teach, dancing two evenings a week.

Hair of Dogs Used to Make Woman's Suit

AYLESFORD, N.S. (CP) — Gwiadys Bezanson leads a prospective wardrobe around on a leash in this Annapolis Valley community.

The long white hair of her Samoyed dogs has already been woven into a stylish two-piece suit and matching full - length coat There was enough left over from a 16-yard lot o.f the fabric to drape the windows in several rooms of the Bezanson house

Samoyeds, commonly used as work dogs in New Mexico and other parts of the southwestern United States, shed their luxurious white hair during several stages of growth and Mrs. Bezanson turned a housewife's dilemma into an unusual fashion.

Mrs. Bezanson diligently combed out the downy soft underhair of her dogs before it had a chance to fall and stuffed it in a sack. In time she had a bulging pouch of pure samoyed "wool."

With the help of the Nova Scotia industry department, she found a craftsman in Antigonish, Mrs. Jack Brow, who carded and spun four pounds of the combings into yarn. Later a woman in Round Hill near Annapolis Royal wove the yarn into 16 yards of fabric.

Altai of Samoyland is at present the only Samoyed in the Bezanson family, but there have been as many as 17. Altai, a 2½-year-old "potential champ" bred in Montreal, is regularly combed by his proud owner who says she would "very much like to have a hat and gloves to match my suit."

PLUNGES TO DEATH

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan "sky diver" plunged 7,500 feet to his death Sunday from an airplane. Rudy Bulko, 25, never pulled the ripcord of his parachute after apparently blacking out.

Duplicate Bridge Session

On the second Tuesday of February attendance at the Duplicate Bridge was good with six and one half tables in play. With the Howell movement in use, the average score was 50 points. The winners were McGlashon - Adams with 63½ match points and a fractional master point award of .35; Acton - Atkinson with 54½ and .18; Meeus - Adams with 53½ and .12; the Townsends with 53 and .09; and Ward - Lewis with 52½ and .07.

Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon started playing duplicate bridge only this autumn, while her partner, Mrs. Jean Adams, was playing for only the second time. It was the first time of attending for Mrs. Atkinson.

Of the many movements possible for Duplicate Bridge, so far only the Mitchell and the Howell have been used. Director Jim Ritchie announced that for the next session he'd set up a Team-of-Four Match, in which two of the team would play North-South all evening, while the other two played East-West, and their scores would be combined.

More players are most welcome to come - singly, in pairs or in foursomes - this Tuesday night, February 22 at 7.30, Quinte Hotel.

Women's Activities

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon U.C.W.

RAWDON — Owing to the sleet storm on Wednesday, the February meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church Women was held on Thursday at the church hall.

A quilt for Mrs. Ralph Jeffs was on the frames for the forenoon and 27 people enjoyed a potluck dinner.

Mrs. Harry McAdam, president, opened the meeting. Reports of the recent meeting of Belleville Presbyterial were given by Mrs. Burton Sharpe, Mrs Raymond McConnell and Mrs. McAdam. The challenge for 1966 is "be concerned with those people who are moving from one place to another."

Mrs. Herbert Smith made a presentation to Mrs. Percy MacMullen in recognition of her receipt of a newspaper award.

Mrs. Douglas Campbell presided over the program arranged by herself and Miss Annie Holmes. They read the Bible lesson and a meditation. Mrs. Ross Jeffs, Mrs. Burton Sharpe and Mrs. Herbert Smith, assisted.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver was in charge of the mission study based on education in Trinidad. A series of films was shown, picturing the contrasts in standards of living of the upper classes and the slum dwellers. Almost half the population of Trinidad is under 15 years old, and school facilities are insufficient to educate all children. The largest oil refinery in the British Commonwealth is in Trinidad and a third of the government income is derived from oil.

Supper Aids Recreation Group

A potluck supper was held in Marysville Parish Hall recently to aid the finances of the Tyendinaga Recreation Committee. It was sponsored by the Catholic Women's League, of which Mrs. William McCauley is president. The supper was under the convenership of Mrs. Don McLarent and Mrs. Bernard Freeman.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing euchre. The prize winners were Mrs. Vincent Kennelly, Leo McAlpine, Mrs. John Whalen, Berarnd Freeman and Ken Power.

Conference Planned for City's Youth

A group of young people from Bridge Street and Tabernacle United Churches met last night to plan a "Faith at Work" conference on March 25, 26 and 27. The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Slavin on Burnham Street.

The "Faith at Work" youth conference will be held in conjunction with the adult conference planned for the same date.

Plans were made to include a hootenanny, a supper meeting, workshops, talk it over times, home meetings and a social get-together for the members and their friends. Invitations are to be sent to the young people of other United and Anglican churches in the city.

Doctor Overton Stevens, an Anglican medical doctor from Agincourt is the director of the youth section of the program. He is bringing six young people with him and is planning to bring a hootenanny leader, and a young singer from Detroit. Dr. Stevens has led youth groups around Ontario as well as in the United States.

Groups represented at the meeting were from both churches and included senior and intermediate departments of the Sunday School, Hi C and CGIT groups.

Successful Living

Says Hook Preferable To Russian Device

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: About artificial limbs: any rehabilitation team member will advise a patient with a hand loss to accept a hook (which comes in varying sizes and shapes for a variety of uses from the heavy 'Farmer's Helper' to a tiny pink rubber covered hook for toddlers.)

The Russian hand is utilizing a new concept in prosthetics but one must realize that the device is now only in the beginning stages of development. This prosthesis is rarely prescribed and then only for specific patients (mainly because of the many technical and mechanical intricacies that are all too prone to breakdown.)

As a professional person I can only hope that V.M.I.L.'s fiance's doctor will refer him to a rehabilitation centre that can show him all the advantages of using an individually prescribed prosthesis. There he can receive the training necessary to use the device and also the psychological support that seems to be lacking in this couple's relationship. — OCCUPATIONAL THERAPIST.

DEAR O.T.: Thank you. I expect it will be quite some time before artificial hands will be in general use for anything more than ornamental dress wear.

Both fiance and V.M.I.L. will appreciate your knowledge and reassurance.

DEAR DORIS: My girl friend and I are both in our late teens and have been going around with each other for several months. Neither of us go out with anyone else and we have the same interests. My problem is that I have asked her to go steady with me several times and each time she says no and gives no apparent reason.

I would like to know: (1) why she won't go steady with me and (2) how can I get her to say yes when I ask her again? — JIM K.

DEAR JIM: I don't profess to be a mind reader, but could it be that she wants to be free to go out with other boys sometimes? If so, it's pretty good thinking on her part.

If you want to win her devotion for life, just stay in there pitching. Impatience won't do it; friendliness, courtesy, loyalty, just might.

DEAR DORIS: Concerning your letter to the girl who had a crush on an older girl, I also was in a similar situation. In grades eight and nine I was madly in love with a senior girl and with a teacher (a nun.)

These two (who are good friends) were interested in my welfare and because I felt inferior I found this impossible to believe. I learned many things from these two people and can now accept them as true friends. — GRATEFUL.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Count me as Grateful the Second. A True Story from a grown-up Teen clinches the point far better than I could.

Tweed Stages Winter Whoop-up With Colorful Ice Carnival

With a big assist from the weatherman, the second annual Tweed Winter Carnival went off without a hitch on the weekend.

The three-day carnival, enjoying perfect winter weather — cold and bright — opened Friday with a torchlight parade to the Community Centre. A float from the Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company won first prize in the float competition. The theme was, "Saturday Night In The Hills," and the float was manned by nearly 20 participants, dressed in the garb of the hills and doing what hill folk are said to do — sitting in rocking chairs, bathing, dancing and taking advantage of the moon.

In the costume contests Friday, Terry Lesage, as a Keystone Cop, won the best comic costume, while Michael Craigen and his escort, dressed as Indians, won the best dressed costume. Eugene Trudeau won first prize in the best dressed boy category and Barbara Cotton won the best dressed girl award.

About 600 people watched RMC defeat the Tweed-Madoc Twins 7-5, and over 400 of these stayed for the moccasin dance, whooping it up until the wee hours.

Saturday afternoon Stoco Lake was jammed with spectators and participants for dog sled races, snowmobile races, a jalopy derby and airplane rides.

Madoc Reeve Tom Burnside fought off four fierce competitors to capture the Molson Trophy for his victory in the Hastings County Snowmobile Championships. Other dignitaries in the race were Tweed Reeve Guy Hughes, Hungerford Deputy Reeve Bill McCrea, Thurlow Reeve Clayton Hall, and Hastings County Clerk-Treasurer, Carl Bateman.

One of the most amusing events of Saturday afternoon on Stoco Lake was the Snowmobile Powderpuff Derby. In the final heat three snowmobiles failed to negotiate the tricky opening turn and headed straight into the crowd, scattering people in every direction. One machine turned over, but the occupants picked themselves up, straightened their hair and charged back onto the course. Mrs. Earl Beatty, Thomasburg, and her daughter won the event.

Eldon Allore won the Jalopy Derby, with Dave Ostman placing second.

At the Community Centre Saturday night, the Kinsmen and Kiwanis tied 1-1 in a hard-fought broomball contest, and the fire department beat out the Kinsmen, Kiwanis and Lands and Forests Department in a Tug O' War.

In the beard contest, Murray Spencer won the award for the youngest person with a beard, Ken Marshall, with a beard styled like Abe Lincoln's, won the most unique beard award, and Clifford Allore and Same Shaw tied for top honors in the longest beard.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Woodcock, Tweed, won the New York Holiday Draw, entitling them tc a trip to New York on Easter weekend. The Ottawa Minto Follies also entertained the large crowd with their skating prowess.

Sunday a host of children and adults competed in the skating races. In the big event of the day, the Land O' Lakes Open Cross Country Snowmobile Races, Clifford Beaudrie won the 14 horsepower class and his brother, Alex Beaudrie won the 10 horsepower class, with Chris Latt placing second.

Winter Carnival chairman Ken Little reported that although no official count had been made, the crowds were extremely large over the three-day carnival.

Trapper Must Go to Work To Pay Fine

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—Trapper George Raymond has 30 days to catch enough mink, beaver, otter and muskrat to pay a $50 fine for impaired driving.

Magistrate Donald Graham gave Raymond, 30, the time to raise the money after telling him: "I guess you can't stand civilization too much."

Raymond said he seldom ventures from the village of Parham, north of Kingston, where he traps for a living.

He was heading for a "good time" in Whitby, Ont., Thursday when police spotted his car weaving from side to side. Raymond admitted drinking beer and rum.

Ready For Coe Hill Ice Capers

Coe Hill's "Ice Capers '66" will be held on Wollaston Lake Saturday, February 26.

Registration opens at 9 a.m. at the No. 1 cottage at Island View on the Ridge Road for the ice fishing derby and snowmobile races.

The Coe Hill Legion Hall will be open all day and everyone is welcome. There will be a coffee bar and refreshments.

The Fabulous Telstars will provide music at the "Carnival Ball" Saturday night.

William O'Brien, Reeve of Wollaston Township will award the prizes to the adults and children. Directions there: Just follow the arrows along Ridge Road to Wollaston Lake. There will be ample parking available.

KILLED IN SUBWAY

TORONTO (CP)—Victor Hugh Luckett, 23, was decapitated Saturday when he fell under the wheel of a subway train at the Osgoode station here. Police said he was a patient at the Ontario hospital here with grounds privileges.

DON OAKES OF PERTH off to a good start Saturday in the Dog S
Races at the Tweed Winter Carnival. Members of the Arctic Sled Dog Club
Ontario competed in the event.

NANCY MERAW AND MARY HEALEY go up and over a snowbank in t
preliminaries of the Powderpuff Derby Saturday on Lake Stoco. The cold b

Black Creek Road Selected For Rebuilding

PICTON (Staff) — A section of road in South Marysburg has been recommended by Prince Edward County Council for a development road. The section, approximately 4 miles long, runs around the head of South Bay from the Black Creek to South Bay Church. It is one of the stretches assumed by the county roads system as a result of a recently adopted needs study.

The recommendations were included in a county roads committee report to council.

The request to have the stretch reconstructed as a road must now be approved by the Department of Highways. Once approved, the department underwrites the cost of the road and then turns it back to the country system and the county is then responsible for all future maintenance. This section of road has long been a favorite drive of tourists as it runs through a particularly attractive section of Prince Edward County.

Britain's Navy Minister Quits and Gives Reason

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Christopher Mayhew, who quit as Britain's navy minister, maintains there is a basic Anglo-American split in strategy towards China and expresses fear that Britain's declining military strength may force her to rely too heavily on United States policy and power.

While the 50-year-old Mayhew is reported to have stepped down because Prime Minister Wilson rejected the Royal Navy's plea for new carriers, Mayhew's weekend statements suggested the issue centres mainly on the question of Britain's future military independence

If Britain tries to carry out a peacekeeping role east of the Suez on the proposed curtailed defence budget of £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000) a year, "we should be able to act only with the consent and support of the vastly more powerful Americans, in the role of auxiliaries rather than allies," he said in a statement Saturday.

"This degree of dependence on the Americans would be un[illegible]able even if there were close political agreement between us in the area. But in the Far East—unlike Europe—this agreement, particularly in relation to China, does not exist."

MUST PAY PRICE

Mayhew argued, in advance of the government's white paper on defence to be issued Tuesday, that if the administration wants to maintain a world role, it should be prepared to pay the price in the form of American F-111A strike aircraft and new carriers. This would mean heavier outlays.

Mayhew suggested an alternative — a phased disengagement east of Suez—arguing that it is doubtful in any case that any white country can carry out an effective peacekeeping role east of Suez in the 1970s because of strong national racial feeling there.

In particular, we should not commit ourselves to the containment of China on this narrow basis," he said.

Mayhew's emphasis on China indicated there is more to the Labor government's internal policy struggle than the question of military equipment.

However, the speed with which Mayhew's deputy, J. P. W. Mallalieu, agreed to step in as the new navy minister suggested the defence policy storm is not as critical as some British newspapers describe it.

MIGHT STEP DOWN

One other possibility is that Sir David Luce, 60-year-old first sea lord and chief of naval staff, may also step down in protest against the government's reported plans to allow the carrier fleet to die through attrition and to rely on Polaris submarines as the navy's strategic striking force.

However, Sir David kept silent Sunday amid reports that he may make his decision Tuesday when the white paper is published.

It appeared unlikely that in its present state, the issue could cause Wilson to postpone reported plans to hold a spring general election.

Replying to Mayhew in a public speech Sunday, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart said Britain cannot just abandon its "defence obligations" around the world and it would be "dishonorable" to try.

Some people, Stewart said, want Britain to give up commitments east of Suez.

"I personally think it would be impractical" and it would also be "wrong to try," he said.

Thus, it was a question of balancing responsibilities against "the fact that it is no use trying to do more than your economy will stand."

The chancellor of the exchequer, James Callaghan, told a Labor party dinner in Cardiff "at last we have got a (defence) policy that we can afford and that makes sense."

looks the St. Lawrnece River. The road to Bois de Coulonges winds through the park for a half-mile from the nearest main road, Laurier Boulevard.

The Queen has called at Bois de Coulonges each time she came to Quebec City and the Queen Mother and King George VI also visited there.

Another illustrious guest was the late Sir Winston Churchill.

The lieutenant - governor's wife, Mme. Comtois, was taken to Col. Martin's home without being told of the death of her husband.

Mr. Comtois became Quebec lieutenant-governor Oct. 6, 1961, after four years as minister of mines and technical surveys in the Diefenbaker Conservative cabinet.

An agronomist who graduated from the University of Montreal and the Agricultural Institute of Oka, Que., he first entered the House of Commons in the general elections of June 10, 1957.

He was sworn into the Privy Council and appointed mines minister Aug. 7 of the same year.

Born of mixed stock, his father was Urbain Comtois, a French - Canadian, his mother Elizabeth McCaffrey, an Irish-Canadian.

He married Mme. Comtois, the former Irene Gill, Sept. 27, 1921. They had five children, Pierre, Odette, Yves, Mireille and Jean.

The Comtois had been home for only a half-hour when the fire started.

The Bois de Coulonges site has a history of fire.

The Canadian government bought the luxurious home of Spencerwood in 1852 and made it into the residence for governors-general.

Then, on a winter night in 1860 while sir Edmond Head was preparing to receive guests at a state dinner, a fire broke out and destroyed the building. A new residence was constructed on the site and inaugurated by Lord Monk.

Record low minimum temperatuers for Feb. 19 were set Saturday at Muskoka and Killaloe (-29), Hamilton and Centralia (-4).

In London, Ont. a reading of 6 degrees above zero matched the lowest maximum temperature for the date set in 1934.

Toronto Bay froze over and harbor police reported that lagoons at Toronto Island are safe for skaters.

Snowflurries headed into the province today with daytime temperatures varying between zero in northern centres to the high teens in southeastern sections. Winds gusting to 35 miles an hour made it feel colder.

Through Quebec province clear skies prevailed today and temperatures stayed around the zero mark in most areas.

Northern New Brunswick continued the coldest area in the Maritimes after overnight readings of 25 below in Edmundston.

"Saigon Tea" Prices Slashed In Most Bars

SAIGON (Reuters)—A week-long onslaught by combined American forces appeared today to be successful—the price of "Saigon tea" was slashed in half in most bars.

The beverage in question is the cold tea or soft drink a bar customer is expected to buy in return for the company of a bar girl who sits with him —usually without invitation.

The soldiers say the custom is not objectionable, only the price—160 piasters (about $1.50) for two "whiskeys" or five "beers."

A week of soldier sit-ins, complete with protest songs and boycotts, sent hundreds of bar owners into retreat, and halved the price of "Saigon tea."

HALVES THEIR PAY

Hostesses have been accustomed to earning at least 30,000 piasters ($265) a month—one - third more than cabinet ministers. Now their earnings are halved.

The operation, code - named Stiff (Saigon tea is finished forever), drew its success from the co-operation of thousands of servicemen.

A U.S. Air Force sergeant described how a band of Americans staged a three - hour sit-in, stolidly sipping bear and refusing to buy Saigon tea, "despite innumerable enticements and personal appeals by frantic hostesses."

The planners of Operation Stiff are drawing up a new campaign — "Operation Shanks Pony"—aimed at cutting rocketing taxi fares.

ENVOYS RECALLED

PEKING (Reuters) — About half of China's 50 ambassadors abroad have been recalled for consultations, reassignment or leave during the last three months, diplomatic sources said here Sunday. Foreign diplomatic observers believe that a high-level meeting on foreign affairs, involving most members of the Communist party's central committee, took place in December and its results were passed on to top Chinese diplomats as they came back to Peking.

U.S. Trained, Ready Military Units Said Almost Exhausted

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States armed forces have almost exhausted their trained and ready military units, with all available forces spread dangerously thin in South Viet Nam and elsewhere, the New York Times says.

Hanson W. Baldwin, military affairs expert of The Times, writes that this is the conclusion of a study he made of U.S. regular and reserve forces.

The story also says:

Virtually all the combat-ready units in the United States have been committed to South Viet Nam. And except for a few army and marine battalions and a few squadrons of the tactical air command, no more units will be fully trained and equipped for a number of months.

LACK GEAR

In addition to the shortages in trained military manpower and in field - grade officers, there are major existing shortages in uniforms and clothing, and actual or potential shortages of various types of ammunition and equipment that are causing the military increasing concern.

The commitment of more than 200,000 men to South Viet Nam, supported by strong air and naval forces, and the maintenance of two divisions in Korea, more than five in Europe and of smaller units elsewhere, including the Dominican Republic, have reduced the forces in the United States to a training establishment.

The experience level of the Atlantic Fleet and of all other commands has been reduced to provide the needs of South Viet Nam.

The military services say the "squeeze" appears to be becoming worse instead of better.

Union Members Attend Seminar

MARMORA — Members of Local 4854 took part in a two-day seminar on the weekend at the Royal Hotel with Richard Moss, Associate General Counsel and head of the legal department of the international office of the United Steelworkers of America in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Moss, having worked as a member of the top negotiating committee in 1962, 1963 and1965 in international negotiations with basic steel companies, explained in detail the collective bargaining agreement between local 4854 of United Steelworkers and Marmoraton Mining Company. He answered many questions from the floor in relation to different sections of the agreement, ably assisted by Bill Powell, area representative from Peterborough office. This is the first time in 14 years that the local union has had the privilege of having a representative from the top negotiating committee discuss and interprete the agreement as it affects those working at Marmoraton Mine.

A banquet was held Saturday evening, followed by a film depicting the life of John L. Lewis.

QUEBEC (CP) — Le Ralliement des Creditistes has decided to put off its convention to choose a provincial leader until after the next Quebec General election, expected this year. The convention was to have been held in March. Laurent Legault, interim provincial leader, announced following a meeting Sunday that he has been authorized to continue as interim leader until the convention is held.

WILL BUILD AIRPORT

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Tenders will be called in the spring for construction of an airport at nearby Bagotville, Postmaster-General Cote said Saturday.

300 Witnesses Hunt for Girl

AYLMER, Ont. (CP) — More than 300 Jehovah's Witnesses organized a land and air search of two counties during the weekend after a member of the sect reported his daughter went missing Friday evening.

The group called off its search Sunday, but police across the province continued to look for Georgia Jackson, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson of Aylmer.

The girl, who her father said "never had any dealings with boys," left the dairy bar where she worked at 6:15 p.m. Friday to walk the three blocks to her home.

Jehovah's Witnesses volunteered for the search from as far away as Toronto and Hamilton after Mr. Jackson asked his minister for help.

Dominican General Strike Failed to Solve Issues

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Dominicans are struggling to recover from a general strike and bloody violence that did little but demonstrate once more their capacity for self-destruction.

The violence, which took 21 lives, and the strike, which cost millions in production dollars, neither solved nor changed anything.

The precarious national situation, revolving around a political - military crisis now nine weeks old, remains basically unchanged from what it was prior to the disturbances that began Feb. 9 with a Communist-led student demonstration. This is an evaluation of both foreigners and Dominicans of the most recent developments here.

The general strike and violence brought to light the existence of some disquieting aspects of the post-revolution picture that cast deep doubt on prospects for future peace. These are:

—The civilian population remains heavily and extensively armed.

—Dominican Communists, a distinct numerical minority, have a well-organized and trained urban guerrilla corps.

—Right-wing extremists, although employing less sophisticated tactics, are no less well equipped and are getting substantial help from some sectors of the armed forces.

Considerable responsibility for recent troubles is being placed on the provisional government by prominent Dominicans and even by officials of the Organization of American States.

Criticism weighs heaviest on President Hector Garcia-Godoy for waiting seven days before acting decisively to stop an illegal political strike of grave financial repercussions.

QUARREL IS OLD

At the heart of the situation is an old quarrel between a segment of the civilian population, nationalists chiefly, and the military establishment, whose leaders have acted on more than on occasion as censors over civilian authority.

It has become readily apparent, however, the military crisis has been blown out of proportion to the crcumstances and is being used as a political football. The armed forces, for instance, were not involved in the immediate causes of the strike and wave of disorders. Still, their ouster became the prime objective of the work stoppage.

The major force that made the strike effective was the impressive following behind the Dominican Revolutionary Party (PRD). The PRD is known to fear that without substantial changes in the military, which overthrew their leader, Juan Bosch, in 1963, it has little chance of taking power even in an honest election.

Supermart Price Comparisons Can Save You Five Per Cent

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Tell your wife not to hurry through the supermarket. . . A University of Missouri survey found that 15 extra minutes of comparative food shopping could result in saving five per cent on a $20 purchase.

Odd legislation: In 1659 the general court of Massachusetts passed a law making the observance of Christmas a penal offence.

Barbering is one of the world's oldest occupations. . . . Egyptian relics indicate the nobility and priesthood patronized barbers 6,000 years ago. . . . There are more than 20 mentions of barbering in the Bible.

Women are turning more often to the cup that cheers. . . . Six out of 10 American women now indulge at least occasionally in alcoholic beverages, compared with eight out of 10 men. . . . But the bad news is that one out of every 13 so-called social drinkers in the U.S. is an alcoholic.

LUNCHES PAY

It pays to take a business prospect to lunch. . . . One firm found that its salesmen who never entertained customers averaged only $330,000 in annual orders, but those who took potential buyers to lunch three or four days a week averaged $729,000.

Folklore: If a bird flies into a house, someone who lives there soon will die. . . . It will spoil your luck if you kill a spider. . . . When a sick person stretches that's a sign he's getting well. . . . You can get rid of a sty on your eyelid by touching it with the tail of a black cat.

Quickies: Most laundry at the Vatican still is done by hand. . . . Doctors now can predict a child's future height by studying x-rays of his hand and wrist bones. . . . A $10,000 investment in a college education pays off the average graduate with $140,000 added earnings later in life. . . . The carrion crow and the cockatoo are the only birds known to have lived more than 100 years.

FIREMEN INJURED

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Three firemen were injured and 40 persons rendered homeless in 20 below zero weather by a fire which caused an estimated $100,000 damage to an 18-apartment building Sunday.

Trading Candy for Junk Gives Man Meagre Living

By KENNETH ISHII

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Clack clack, clack clack.

Bone-weary and discouraged, Choi Chong-tai trudged through the alleys of Seoul, back to his master's house, still clacking together the broad-bladed iron scissors of his trade.

A tray on top of the two-wheel cart he pushed was still almost half full of candy, and the junk stacked underneath would barely fetch enough for one meal for his wife and four children.

It was nearing the midnight curfew, and the dark figures that hurried home passed Choi by without a glance.

On a normal day, Choi would gross about 1,500 won ($5.25). This day, after trudging the streets from noon to midnight, he figured to gross around 1,000 won ($3.50) at most, and his 25-per-cent commission would give him a take home of only 250 won (94 cents).

Choi is an inescapable part of the life of Seoul—of any Korean city or town—and has been for more than 100 years.

The occupation of "yut jang-soo," meaning candy pedlar, is so old nobody remembers how far back in Korea's long past it really started, or the origin of the oversize iron scissors the pedlar clacks together to make known his presence.

But candy pedlar only partially describes this traditional, menial occupation. Basically, he is a junk collector. Selling candy is often more of a sideline, like bait, to attract customers. He accepts both cash and junk for his wares, and usually prefers the latter because his profit is larger.

The cart he pushes, the scissors he clacks, the candy he sells, all belong to his "master," a licensed junk collector, of which there are some 1,000 in Seoul alone. Each "master" employs an average of 12 to 15 pedlars. They report for work around noon, when the day's candy, usually made at the "master's" home, is ready.

Choi is 36 and looks it which is rare in a country where people usually look much younger than their age.

But, then, life has been hard on Choi.

"I used to work on a farm outside Seoul," he said, "but I lost that job seven years ago and came to Seoul." He then spent two years in the army, rising to sergeant.

"Then I became a day laborer for another two years, but the exertion was too much, so I turned to peddling candy and collecting junk."

Almost all pedlars are driven into the job by personal misfortune—and most get out of it if they can.

"Some day," said Choi wistfully, "I hope I can become a farmer again." But with a family of five to support on around $30 a month, the prospects are bleak.

END SCHOOLING

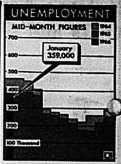
"I had to take my two eldest children out of school. I just don't have enough to pay their tuition," Choi said. His children are aged 12, 10, 7 and 4.

Actually, the pedlars sell candy too soft. Some pedlars February. After that the warmer weather makes the candy too soft. some pedlars turn to selling pop corn, others confine themselves to collecting junk.

And when it rains, there just isn't enough business to make it worth going out.

Tall, new buildings have begun to emerge in the heart of the Korean capital. Shops are well stocked, people are dressing better, and their shoes are shined to a sparkle.

In time, the "yut jang-soo" may seem out of place. But as of now, the familiar clack clack of the pedlar and his cart continue to be a vital part of the sights and sounds of Seoul.



UNEMPLOYMENT CONTINUES TO CLIMB — The number of unemployed in Canada at mid-January was 359,000 up from 252,000 in mid-December, 1965. However, the January figure was 48,000 fewer than the level a year earlier. In a joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the labor department, the increase was described as normal for the time of year. It put Canada's unemployment up 5.1 per cent of the labor force. The jobless rate was 3.5 per cent last month. (CP Newsmap)

A word of warning to those snooty snobbish brook trout which have been finning their snubby snouts at anglers, safe and secure in the hitherto inaccessible lakes of the north country.

A lot of you piscatorial stuffed shirts are heading for a butter bath in a greased skillet. You can quit subscribing to the pension plan for a lot of you won't live long enough to enjoy it.

Curiosity will kill a lot of you cool cats of the chilly waters of the lakes in the northern tundras.

The die has been cast. On midnight Friday, February 25th the sixtieth day of Christmas, war will be declared. You will be hunted ruthlessly in your sub-Arctic lairs.

The word has gone out to the mob. Several divisions of rod-and-reel infantry are mobilizing for the greatest invasion, the lakes, rivers and streams of the district have seen since the March 1st declaration was made three years ago.

But helping to seal the doom of a lot of you brook snobs will be the augmenting of the fishing foot-sloggers by mechanized units.

These form the Royal Regiment of Snowmobile.... Tanks. These remarkable terrain terrors will break down any and all of the barriers that formerly guaranteed you immunity from the probing hooks of trout-hungry humans.

The snow, brush, bush and forest that formerly gave you a life of peace and undisturbed serenity will see their usefulness destroyed. From now on, as far as you are concerned, they are mere decorative pieces.

These barriers hold no fear for them. Their mechanics can bring them to your doorstep, no matter where you exist. Their versatility is uncanny.

They fear nothing that stands in their way. Why, we have a troop of snowmobiles here in the city that is second to none.

A few weeks ago they were out on tactics on a lake in Prince Edward counyt. The miniature mechanized tanks (that may sound ambiguous) proved their versatility during the manouvres. They discovered their snow-jeeps could climb trees even at the expense of a few casualties.

Those good Joes back there in the Tweed District Headquarters of the Lands and Forests Department are looking forward to the snowmobile invasion with some sort of happy anticipation.

Russ Whitfield, Fish and Wildlife supervisor, (by the way Russ, best wishes for a speedy recovery from that serious operation), and his merry men, always with an ear to the ground, say that interest in early trout fishing is reaching new heights.

Inquiries asking information on the early trout fishing have reached a new high. The sardine, tuna and frozen fish diet is getting a bit boresome. Nostrils and appetites are yearning for the aroma and taste of golden-brown trout sizzling in a camp spider or the home electric fryer.

In serious vein, the Tweed Lands and Forests office officials predict a pronounced increase of snowmobiles of greater variety in the bush. The increased popularity of the snowmobile, they say, will have a significant bearing on the number of lakes that will be frequented. This form of travel will attract more anglers and have a reflection on the total catch of trout.

They hope that motorized travel over snow-covered trails to otherwise inaccessible remote brook trout lakes, will result in a better catch of hatchery-raised fish.

Anglers who intend to visit the Tweed district may fish for brook trout in about 300 public lakes. They may choose to fish for lake trout in over 100 lakes and for rainbows in about fifty waters.

And officials remind anglers that future fishing and other recreation on public waters depends on their cooperation by keeping them free from rubbish.

Ontario Mixed Curling

Eight of the best mixed rinks in the province journey to Kingston Curling Club, Wednesday (Feb. 23) to compete for the Ontario Championship and a trip to the National Mixed at Fort William next month.

For the first time the Ontario Curling Association will have a sponsor for the Rose Bowl provincial playdowns — the O'Keefe Brewing Company. Prominent in mixed curling for several years now, O'Keefe sponsors local bonspiels at Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and the Lakehead, as well as the National Mixed Curling Championship for the O'Keefe Cup which it inauguarated three years ago. The 1966 National Mixed will be curled at Fort William, March 21 to 26.

The eight rinks in the Ontario finals at Kingston will play a straight knockout series to determine the provincial champion, winner of the O'Keefe Trophy, and rink to represent the province in the National Mixed. Last year's winner, Ray Gran't rink from Unionville, lost out enroute, leaving the competition wide open among a number of "dark horse" foursomes. Most prominent is Earl Hughagen's rink from Toronto Humber Highlands including Mrs. Jeanie Mutch, third; Floyd Owen, second, and Earl's wife Wyn in lead.

The other rinks are: (skip, third, second, lead) Kingston Curling Club — Ted Brown, Betty Reid, Alex Scott, Kay O'Neill; Uxbridge Curling Club — Harvey and Winnie Acton, Murray and Doris Taylor; Scarborough Golf and Country Club —Eric Downer, Molly Lawson, Jim Jessup, Vera Downer; Elmvale Curling Club — Lou Turner, Marlene Tinney, Cecil Tinney, Doreen Turner; Chesley Curling Club — Murray and Mary Thomson, Ross and Wallie McCurdy; Lincoln Curling Centre — Terry Bishop, June Johnson, Harold and Leona Johnson; Brant Curling Club — Bob and Bea Ion, John Griesser, Ann Truant.

An easy win over Boston Bruins kept Chicago Black Hawks safely in first place Sunday night after losing half their four-point lead in a game with the Canadiens in Montreal Saturday.

The Black Hawks defeated the Bruins 5-1 in Chicago on goals by Chico Maki, Doug Mohns, Ken Wharram, Eric Nesterenko and Bobby Hull who scored his 47th of the season, only three short of the record, now held by Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion

Boston outshot the Black Hawks 36-27 but only one Bruin goal—by Bob Dillabough—got through Chicago goalie Glenn Hall. Ed Johnson was in the net for Boston.

In Montreal Saturday night, Canadiens' Dick Duff scored three fast goals in the second period to pace the 5-2 win over the Hawks. Scoring for Chicago were Lou Angotti and Wharram. Other Montreal goals were scored by John Ferguson and Gilles Tremblay.

Detroit Red Wings bombarded rookie goalie Gary Smith with 31 shots Sunday night to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1. Gordie Howe, Paul Henderson, Bruce MacGregor and Norm Ullman scored Detroit's goals. It was the seventh time in 10 encounters that Detroit has defeated Toronto.

Smith, brought up from Rochester Americans of the American League for Saturday's game against New York Rangers after Johnny Bower was injured in practice, is in his first professional season. Scoring for Toronto was Tim Horton on a play from Orland Kurtenbach.

The win halted a three-game losing streak by Detroit.

The Bruins ended a 10-game drought in the Detroit Olympia Saturday night when four former Detroiters led a 36-shot attack on the Red Wings, defeating them 5-1.

Johnny Bucyk, Pit Martin, Forbes Kennedy and Murray Oliver, all former Detroit property, scored for Boston while Howe got the lone Detroit tally. The Bruins, who had lost nine straight to Detroit this season, has lost only one of the previous seven games. Their streak was ended in Chicago Sunday night.

Duff, hot from his three-goal performance in Montreal the night before, shot two goal and assisted on two others Sunday night to lead the Canadiens to a 5-3 win over the Rangers. Goalie Charlie Hodge only had to handle 21 shots.

Jean Ratelle opened the scoring for the Rangers and Jean Beliveau for the Canadiens tied it up in the middle of the first period. Duff scored his first market before the period ended. In the second period, Claude Provost scored for Montreal and Don Marshall and Reg Fleming for New York. In the final stanza, Duff and Bobby Rousseau scored to clinch the win.

In the other game played over the weekend, the Rangers poke-checked their way to a 3-1 victory over the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday.

Former Leaf Bob Nevin fired his 23rd and 24th goals to pace the win. Also scoring for New York was Ratelle while Eddie Shack, who almost wasn't included in the lineup doe to a poor showing earlier in the month, got the lone Leaf goal—his 20th of the season.

Chicago leads the league with 65 points, Montreal is second with 63 points and two games in hand over Chicago while Detroit is third with 61 points. Toronto still holds fourth place with 53 points, Boston has 36 for fifth place and New York remains in the cellar with 34.

The next games in the league are Wednesday when Boston is at Montreal, Toronto is at Chicago and Detroit is at New York.

Westfall Slowing Hull

'By Hook, By Anything'--Reay

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Hull is going to break the National Hockey League scoring record this season but it has turned into an inch-by-inch process which is beginning to irk the Golden Jet and has infuriated his coach, Billy Reay.

Hull's pace has become a hobble mainly because of defensive tactics being employed in the league against the super-star, who scored his 47th goal in a 5-1 victory over Boston Bruins Sunday night to help keep Chicago Black Hawks in first place.

Hull's goal came despite Ed Westfall, who is gaining notoriety as Hull's No. 1 shadow. Westfall's sole ntent is to stop Hull and he is proving effective.

But Hull, who is not the type to complain openly, and Reay, who is, don't like the way Westfell is earning his bread.

"It's a shame that the most colorful player in the National Hockey League has to be checked illegally," says Reay. "Westfall constantly is hooking Bobby and because Bobby is so strong and good that he refused to go down, the referees don't call the penalties they should

"Bobby is being deprived of his freedom to manoeuvre. A stick should be used to play the puck and if you want to check, you use your body. But these guys are using their sticks to check and it is impossible to get away from a guy using his stick to check."

Hull, who needs four goals to break the 50-goal barrier which he shares with former Montreal stars Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, isn't as vociferous as Reay.

"He's doing his job," said Hull when asked about Westfall. "But he's not playing hockey. Unless he has a breakaway at mid-ice he won't go after the puck.

"Claude Provost (Montreal) also guards me closely. But Provost plays the game. When the chance comes he goes on offence. Not Westfall. He stays on top of me and he uses the stick to stay there.

"The record? You think I'll break it? I guess so. No, I don't particularly care where it happens. I'm Canadian but Chicago has been very good to me. If I break it, I hope the goal comes when it counts and helps us to stay in first place."

Buffalo Nips Aces, Bears Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wayne Rivers, who was overlooked in Boston Bruins' youth movement this season, is enjoying himself back on the farm.

The 24-year-old right winger from Hamilton spent most of the 1964-5 season in the National Hockey League but didn't get past the Boston training camp last fall. Now he's blinking red-light signals at general manager Hap Emms as a member of Hershey Bears, the Bruins' American League affiliate.

During the weekend, Rivers scored the deciding goal in a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets and follows with two more as the Bears battled from behind to tie Rochester Americans 4-4 Sunday night.

The three points from two road games still left the second-place Bears 18 points behind Quebec Aces in the Eastern Division race. The Aces were upset 4-2 Sunday night by Buffalo Bisons, tail-enders in the west.

BEAT PITTSBURGH

Baltimore Clippers defeated Pittsburgh 3-1 and Springfield Indians nipped Providence Reds 3-2 in overtime in the other Sunday games. On Saturday, Cleveland Barons bombed Providence 9-1, Rochester downed Baltimore 4-1 and Buffalo edged Springfield 2-1.

Broderick Shows Ability

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Ken Broderick continues to play as he has been recently Canada's national hockey team could give a good account of itself in the world championships.

Broderick played three outstanding games in the nets of the Western Hockey League Vancouver Canucks, then left Sunday to join the national team in Yugoslavia.

He made 41 saves Sunday in a goaltenders' contest that saw the hometown Canucks tie first-place Portland Buckaroos 2-2 in overtime before 3,645 fans.

Dave Kelly in the Portland nets made 35 saves. In the only other game of the weekend San Francisco Seals stepped out of the WHL cellar with a 5-4 overtime victory against Los Angeles Blades, who went into the basement.

League Cancels Schedule

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League decided Sunday to cancel all remaining games in the schedule and start playoffs next Friday.

League officials decided Saturday to cancel the four remaining games involving last-place Maxville Highlanders as the team already was out of the playoff picture. This left only three games which were cancelled Sunday.

A special playoff will be held to settle a dispute over the fourth and final playoff berth after Hawkesbury Meteors claimed four points for defaulted games and Perth - Smiths Falls Rideaus protested that this would eliminate their playoff hopes.

Alf Taylor, secretary - registrar of the Ottawa District Hockey Association said Perth and Hawkesbury will play a two-game, home-and-home series before Friday, with total goals to count. The winner will meet second-place Ottawa-Carlton Maroons in the best-of-seven semi-final.

First-place Morrisburg Combines and third-place Hull Volants meet in the other series.

Montreal Junior Canadiens moved into a third-place tie with Oshawa Generals in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series after tying a Saturday game in Oshawa 4-4 and defeating Toronto Marlboros 5-0 Sunday night.

The game Sunday in Montreal was one of the roughest of the season with referee Dick Munn handing out 10 major penalties for fighting, five to each team.

In two other games, both on Sunday, Hamilton Red Wings defeated London Nationals 9-2 in Hamilton and St. Catharines Black Hawks won 4-3 over Kitchener Rangers in St. Catharines.

Lucien Grenier and Jacques Lemaire paced the Canadiens with two goals each in the Montreal game. Carol Vadnais added one. It was the first shutout of the season for goalie Ted Ouimet.

PACES OSHAWA

In the Saturday game Brian Morenz scored two goals while Bobby Orr and Danny Sandford added one each for Oshawa. Christian Bordeleau, Bernard Cote, Norm Ferguson and Ralph Stewart scored for Montreal.

In Hamilton left-winger Gary Marsh scored four goals to lead the Red Wings. Freddie Speck, Brian Watts, Kevin Pettit, Bart Crashley and Brian Gibbons scored one each.

Scoring for Nationals were Neil Clark and Moe St. Jacques.

In St. Catharines third-period goals by Bob Sicinski and Doug Shelton gave Black Hawks the win after Rangers had led 2-1 in the first and 3-2 at the end of the second. Shelton also scored a goal in the first period and Kerry Bond added one in the second.

John Beechey scored twice and Don Luce once for the Rangers.

For Vancouver Two Years Or Ten?

Statements Conflict

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver's clouded hockey future got even more obscure Sunday following conflicting statements from two National Hockey League officials.

Frank J. Selke, vice-chairman of the board of Montreal Canadiens, was due to leave today for Vancouver to explain why that city did not get an NHL franchise and to prepare officials there for possible further expansion.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

But he will also have to explain what league president Clarence Campbell meant when he said Vancouver probably won't have another chance at an NHL franchise for 10 years.

Vancouver's bid was rejected in a surprise move at the NHL's recent expansion meeting in New York in which berths were allotted to Philadelphia, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis-St. Paul, San Francisco and Los Angeles with Baltimore named the first alternate choice. The new teams start play in the 1967-68 season.

David Molson, president of the Canadiens and a member of the league board of governors that rejected Vancouver, said Sunday there is no guarantee the league will not expand to a further two cities within the next two years. He said Selke's western trip is being made in an effort to ensure Vancouver is prepared for any such eventuality.

But Sunday night Campbell said in a CBC television interview that there is little chance Vancouver will get another chance in the next 10 years.

Campbell, replying to criticism of Vancouver's rejection, said:

"This is a tempest in a teapot. Our pride is hurt as Canadians. This is quite unrealistic.

"There's a great mistake about allocating franchises on a sentimental basis."

He said nobody expects university professors and engineers to stay in Canada and nobody should expect an athlete to play hockey in Winnipeg for $7,500 when he can make $21,000 in Chicago.

Molson said that Selke will talk with officials of the Pacific National Exhibition and Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League. He said PNE officers asked that Selke make the trip and the Canadiens' have given permission.

This will be a repeat performance for Selke, who two years ago visited Vancouver with Senator Hartland Molson, chairman of the board of Canadiens. They advised officials at the time to start construction of a suitable arena immediately.

No rink meeting NHL standards has yet been built, although one seating 16,000 is planned even though the city's franchise bid failed.

Commercial Hockey League

The Commercial "B" Hockey League completed its regular schedule last night with Belvedere Hotel defeating American Optical 9-5 while Stewart Warner and Pepsi tied 4-4.

Stewart Warner finished in first place with 20 points, followed by American Optical with 12, Belvedere Hotel with 10 and Pepsi with six.

Playoffs start next Sunday. Warners meet Belvedere at 9.00 and the other two clubs tangle at 10.00 p.m.

Brooks, with three and J. Hughes with two, paced Belvedere's win. Taylor, Bennett, B. Hughes and St. Denis also scored. Boomhower fired three, Jones and Genereaux one each for Optical.

Bryant netted three Stewart Warner goals and Kellar added the other one. Woodcock with a pair, Maracle and Ruttan, scored for Pepsi.

There were six minor penalties, five to Belvedere, in the first game. Warners got the odd one of seven in the second match.

Gordie Howe

Defends Minor Hockey

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe is "100 per cent" in favor of organized Pee Wee hockey, but the Detroit Red Wings star thinks the schedule in the local league may be a bit too tough.

Criticism of organized children's hockey has been stimulated in Canada by a fight at the Quebec international Pee Wee hockey tournament in Quebec City Thursday.

Howe's son Mark, playing on the Detroit Roostertails team, fought with a Toronto youngster after a game in which the Roostertails lost 4-2 to Toronto Red Wings.

Asked to comment Saturday, Howe said he did not know anything about the fight. His team had been on the road and this was the first he had heard about it. He would have to know more about that particular incident before he could comment on it.

The veteran hockey star said he pulled his two sons, Mark, 12, and Marty, 11, out of play for a couple of weeks earlier this year because their school work was suffering.

WERE ALARMED

"We got a little alarmed when the teachers told us they were literally asleep in class," Howe said.

Howe said he does not think that in general, there is too much pressure on youngsters playing organized hockey.

There might be instances of an individual coach bearing down too hard on his young players, but he, felt this was probably the exception rather than the rule.

Howe said it is not so much the number of games but the travelling and other activity that goes with minor hockey that might be too much for youngsters.

Canadian criticism has come from psychologists and athletic and recreation officials.

Rollins Rally To Tie Trenton

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — Overcoming 2-0 and 3-1 deficits, Belleville Rollins Construction battled to a 5-5 deadlock with Trenton Apple Kings before 1,255 roaring fans here yesterday afternoon.

Belleville twice held the lead in the final chapter but each time Trenton's Al Ferguson fired the equalizer, the last time at 17.36 and the clubs playing five aside.

The tie left Rollins in fifth spot in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" standing, with 29 points. Peterborough is fourth with 31 and Trenton third, with 33.

Rollins play Kingston in Belleville tonight, at 8.15, and can force the playoff battle down to the wire with a win. Belleville and Peterborough each have three games remaining and Trenton has four.

Bob Boyle paced Rollins' attack scoring two goals and assisting on a third. Jim Pringle Steve White and Carl Boomhower netted the others. Harold Townsend and Doug Potts earned two assists each.

Ferguson scored three Trenton goals and also got an assist. Chuck Howard had a goal and two helpers, John McDonald one of each, Tom Glover two assists, Gary Stewart, Terry Hutchinson and Art Hampson one apiece.

Eleven minor penalties aside were assessed, plus a misconduct to Apple King Larry Poechman Belleville coach Gordie Bell was ejected from the team bench in the first heat after Pete Fleming was cut by Hampson's stick. No penalty was given and Bell voiced his displeasure with referee Gord Lowe.

Ferguson and McDonald gave Trenton a 2-0 lead before the game was three minutes old. Boomhower stabbed home Rollins' first at 4.43 and that's the way the period ended as both Brant and Bonter kicked out hot shots.

Howard made it 3-1 early in the second before Boyle took over for Rollins. He stickhandled in for his first goal with the Kings playing four men to five at 6.50. He cut in close to tie it at 11.17.

Belleville pressed in the third and took the lead for the first time on White's marker at 9.27. One of two Rollins' penalties was still being served when Ferguson made it 4-4 at 14.15.

Pringle converted Townsend's pass with Trenton shorthanded at 15.30 and the clubs were five aside when Ferguson tied it again at 17.36.

Fleming returned to play after he was cut but Grant Hagerman dragged himself to the bench, early in the second and did not return.

Playoff Birdie Wins Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Joe Campbell tapped in a short birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday to edge Gene Littler for the $9,000 first-place money in the $60,000 Tucson open golf tournament.

Campbell reached the green in two on the sudden-death hole, the 545-yard par-five 15th. Littler was off to the side in the second shot and pitched well past the pin.

Littler's 25-foot try for a birdie rimmed the cup and went past, giving Campbell two tries from 15 feet. Campbell's first putt missed by a foot, and he tapped it in easily to grab the victory.

Campbell started one stroke off the pace set by Jay Hebert, who shot a 65 Sturday but ballooned to a 73 on the final round. Littler was tied with George Archer, three strokes back going into the last 18 holes.

FINISH OFF PACE

Hebert, his brother, Lionel, and R. H. Sikes all finished two strokes off the pace at 280. Tommy Aaron, Doug Sanders and Archer were grouped another stroke back at 281.

George Knudson of Toronto shot 68s both Saturday and Sunday and finished with a 282 total, worth $1,833.

Jay Hebert carried his lead into the final nine holes but lost command on the 12th when he three-putted for a two-over-par five.

Campbell shot a 70 to go with previous rounds of 69-69-70. Littler, who had shot 68-71-71, closed with a 68.
